COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

The unexplained lull in operations in the western theater of war continues. Fierce fighting, however, is going on between the Teutonic allies and the Russians in the East. Mail advices indicate that the British already are speculating on title and ownership to Constantinople.

That Mexico City is in a state of siege is disclosed by special advices from The Times correspondent, who has broken through the lines and reached El Paso with the account of the amazing and terrifying conditions in the capital of Mexico. Carranza's intention is said to be to entirely destroy Mexico City. The account contains the appeal of the International Committee in Mexico City.

Her Menfolk all Serve King George.

Lady Herbert Harvey,

Famous English beauty, whose husband, brothers and father are all members of His Majesty's service, and whose grandfather was the famous Earl of Dundonald, whose invention, made nearly 100 years ago, was pronounced by the British Admiralty as "too terrible to be used in warfare." Its secret still remains hidden in the archives of the navy department.

Historic.

DUNDONALD "SECRET PLAN" IS RECALLED BY THE WAR.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, March 27.—The activity of Lady Herbert Harvey in aiding plans for alleviating the suffering of soldiers at the front recalls the fact that she is the granddaughter of the famous Earl of Dundonald, considered one of the greatest naval fighters the British empire ever produced and whose discovery of nearly 100 years ago was pronounced by the British Admiralty as too terrible to be employed in modern warfare. After being pronounced perfectly feasible by a commission of the Admiralty its secret was buried in the archives of the department, where it has remained until this day.

Lord Cochrane, Earl of Dundonald, was variously engaged in command of ships and fleets of the English navy, a member of Parliament and so fierce and successful a fighter, that notwithstanding he was a thorn in the side of the powers that be, and at one time dismissed in disgrace, he was reinstated and died in full possession of his titles and honors. There have been various conjectures as to what his discovery might have been, and the consensus of opinion is that it must have been some arrangement of burning glasses by which he could destroy the fleet of an enemy from a distance, vessel in his time being mostly of wood and highly inflammable. During the Crimean war, Dundonald offered to capture Sebastopol, declaring he could destroy the entire Russian garrison for the English without the loss of a man. The offer was not accepted. Lord Dundonald died in 1860 after a remarkable career, part of which was spent in the service of two South American countries when he was not connected with the British navy on account of an irregular financial transaction for which he was imprisoned.

Prior to her marriage Lady Harvey was Lady Jean Cochrane and her husband, a younger brother of the Marquis of Bristol, has been Charge d'Affaires at Bilbas, since 1907. She has two brothers serving with the forces, the elder Lord Cochrane, who is in the Scots Guards, having recently been invalided home, while her other brother, the Hon. Douglas Cochrane, is with the Royal Welsh Fusiliers at the front. Her father, the second Earl of Dundonald, saw service in many parts of the world, and distinguished himself particularly in the South African war. Lady Jean herself is a keen golfer.

EARLY PEACE IN EUROPE, VIEW OF BOND BROKERS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—The quick absorption of $10,000,000 in German government treasury notes, according to leading Philadelphia bankers, presages an early peace in Europe. About 75 per cent. of the entire loan has been grabbed in a hurry by financial interests here and none of the notes is for public sale, a syndicate having taken all it could get.

The Philadelphia bankers acted on information received here that the great European war would end within thirty days. How Philadelphia got this early tip and where it came from is a mystery, and none of the bankers concerned would discuss that phase of the matter today.

New York, where the notes were first offered, was calling on Philadelphia today, having received a similar tip but same days later.

The announcement of yesterday, and accredited to Chandler & Co., the bankers of No. 1330 Chestnut street, was reported inaccurately in one regard. It was stated that the notes went at a figure between 97 and 98 and that they would accrue 5 per cent. interest. It now develops that they were grabbed up quickly at an aggregate price of 99⅝, and will figure at an interest rate of 5.52.

Inner and Outer Siege Conducted by the "First Chief" of the Revolution to Bring the Metropolis of the Latin Republic to Submission—Churches Sacked from Altar to Belfry, Schools Closed, Business Paralyzed, Dead Litter the Streets.

BY GEORGE ADDISON HUGHES.

Special Correspondent of the Los Angeles Times in Mexico City, the first to break through the lines of the besieged capital with the news of the frightful conditions existing there.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL PASO (Tex.) March 27.—The International Committee of Mexico City, composed of duly elected representatives of the seventeen foreign colonies and counseled by the diplomatic corps, requested the Los Angeles Times to give to the world the story of the siege and more recent outrages against foreigners in the Mexican capital.

The Times correspondent in Mexico was asked if he would undertake the mission of bringing to the United States the affidavits of foreigners who had suffered at the hands of Mexicans and the official committee photographs that picture the extent to which outrages are being perpetrated.

The mission was accomplished after a ten-day passage by horse, handcar, train and other conveyance through the lines of the Zapatista, Carranzista, Villista, Gutierrezista, Elisondista, Sanchezista and Colinista forces and wandering bandit gangs, via Toluca, Maravitio, Acambaro, Celaya and Aguascalientes to the north. Mexico City was isolated.

Prevailing opinion in Mexico City was that the trip could not be accomplished. At the last minute the Brazilian Minister insisted on abandonment of the plan. General fear was based, not on the possibility of public execution in case of discovery of the documents, but on the possibility of such discovery being followed by assassination in the hills.

Gen. Alvaro Obregon, chief of military operations of the Constitucionalista army, who stated at the time of his first occupation of Mexico City that he would not recognize foreigners until foreigners recognized him, declared upon his second occupation of the capital that he would live to see the day when a cross would mark the place where Mexico City once stood.

The destruction of Mexico City and its native and foreign population is, then, the declared intent of the Carranzista forces. That destruction has been begun. Upon his recent evacuation of the capital, Obregon declared he would within two months return to complete the work.

THE CAPITAL A SEPULCHER.

When he left Mexico City on March 10, he left a capital that had become a silent sepulcher. It was rotting in stench. Every door and window was masked by steel-bound shutters that were sealed with the seal of the foreign chancellories. For six weeks from the day of Obregon's entry, there had been no water. Epidemics of typhus and smallpox and all other deadly diseases bred and nurtured in filth had stricken the populace. Carranza had sent the decomposing corpses of smallpox and typhus victims to the capital from Vera Cruz to assist in spreading the pestilence. This is a matter of proved official record at Washington. There was no food. Foodstuffs had been prohibited from entering the capital and the supplies in the city were being confiscated at 10 per cent. each levy, and being shipped to Vera Cruz—an unblocked port. If there had been food, there was no money with which it could be bought, no medium of exchange. Carranza had nullified all Chihuahua paper when there was not a peso of any other currency in the capital and the population would not accept Carranzista paper because they feared that when Villa returned he would retaliate by nullifying that. If there had been money and food, there was not an open store at which it could have been purchased. Foresighted foreign clubs had saved the foreigners from starvation by having laid in emergency supplies. Rich natives had in a measure alleviated their suffering by similar action. Peons were eating horseflesh and catflesh and ratflesh. Horses and dogs that fell of starvation in the avenues were not cold before the starving masses were upon them. Even the vultures were dying. It was their food that was being grabbed up by the human scavengers. Babes were dying at their mothers' breasts because those breasts were atrophied for lack of nourishment. Men rich in paper and estates were walking the streets with their linen soiled, their clothing unpressed and their shoes down at the heels. Their money was useless. Their laundry and their tailor and shoemaker had closed shop. Millionaires of yesterday had become the mendicants of today, taking a place among the ten thousand lame and halt and blind. The population was going mad by starvation and pestilence and oppression. They had been deprived of their money, of their stores, of everything that even semi-civilization boasts. Their priests had been lured to imprisonment, their nuns thrown into the streets, a thousand of their business and professional men imprisoned, the masses had been incited by Obregon to rise and pillage, their churches had been sacked from altar to belfry. The street car service had been taken away from them. The cars had been stripped and the electric controllers had been shipped to Vera Cruz. The motorists were hiding from the army. When the starving went to the National Palace to cash paper given them by the authorities they were driven into the army and placed in the front ranks against the Zapatistas. That was a way of giving them a living.

"NO NEUTRALS," CARRANZA DECLARES.

Carranza had declared there were to be no neutrals. So he forced them into his own ranks. He closed the schools and arrested all the teachers who would not go to Vera Cruz. He closed the postoffice and mail service and paid the employees off in 15-cent stamps that were worthless after the Zapatista entry.

There was no railroad service out of the capital. There was no telegraph. Few messages got through the cable censor at Vera Cruz. Carranza turned the streets into abattoirs in which the police were slaughtered by machine gun and rifle fire. They had attempted to maintain order. There were no coaches because every horse that could stand had been confiscated. Every head of cattle had been sent to Vera Cruz. All automobiles were stolen. Fruit and vegetables and fuel were prevented from coming into the city. Milk and eggs and flour, butter, fresh meat, rice and beans were unheard of for weeks. The suburbs had been depopulated. Battles raged night and day through them. For forty nights the population went to sleep with the thunder of machine gun and rifle fire ringing in their ears. Bread and money rioters demonstrated through the streets by night and day. Gun fights between officers of the army occurred daily throughout the city.

Soldiers sacked the stores and unprotected homes of the residence section, kidnaped women at the point of pistols in broad daylight and dragged into their cuartels others who had come in search of succor. Wholesale confiscations were made wherever anything caught a soldier's fancy. Tax after tax was levied without discrimination or reason. Disappearances of prominent business men were daily occurrences.

Mexico City was, in a word, being crucified on the bayonets of the Constitucionalista army of Liberty and Justice and Reform. If the detailed history of all that occurred during Obregon's second occupation of the capital were to be written, Mexico would be confronted with a history of disgraces that would fill several volumes.

Carranza took good care that not a word of this history should reach the outside world through the newspaper correspondents. He not only destroyed everything that went through his censors at Vera Cruz, but placed men at the desks to construct articles to his liking and send them under the Mexico City correspondents' names to newspapers of the United States. Every letter of any description was opened at Vera Cruz when there was railroad service between the port and the capital, and finally all communication with the outside world was taken away from the inhabitants.

They have not had a letter or a newspaper of any description since January 15. They were populating a microcosm that was as apart from the outside world as Mars is from Earth.

Future of the Great War Divides Attention with the Official French Revie

The Eastern Question.

TITLE TO CONSTANTINOPLE IS ALREADY AN ISSUE.

One Thing is Certain, England Won't Let the Russians Hold It.

Inside Information from the London Foreign Office is Said to Make Clear that Neutralization of the Straits will be the Policy of Britain — Interesting Speculations About the Future of the War.

[FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, March 13.—Russia will not be permitted to hold Constantinople. That statement comes from the inside of the Foreign Office, and is, moreover, an expression of opinion in London's most important circles. England, war or no war, has not entirely forgotten her policy of generations, and comment here is heard on all sides that England had better have left the Dardanelles alone and continued to rely on Canadian and American wheat rather than risk a row with the Colossus of the North.

What England wants, and what she hopes Russia will agree to, is the neutralization of the straits and the administration of the Turkish capital by an international board. That was the meaning of Sir Edward Grey's statement in Parliament, last month, on the very eve of the opening of operations against the Dardanelles, that England was in sympathy with Russia's aspirations in the south. Free access to the Mediterranean, England hopes, will satisfy the Czar.

And if it doesn't? England is not considering that contingency in public, but there is a good deal of speculation as to what might happen if Russia insisted upon the outright gift of Constantinople as the price of continued efforts against the Kaiser, who is understood to be ready to give Russia the most favorable possible terms of peace, perhaps even including the betrayal of Austria and the cession of Galicia up to the Donajec River, at any time that Russia shows willingness to talk about deserting her allies. In case Russia demanded Tzargrad it is almost certain that France would throw all her weight into the scale to induce England not to risk the whole war in a row about one city, and Englishmen grudgingly admit that if the matter reaches such a stage as this after the combined fleets smash through the straits Russia will have, to say the least, a diplomatic advantage in the discussion.

Coming Events.

COLOSSAL OPERATIONS IN THE WEST DUE SOON.

[FROM A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, March 13.—In the pause before the impending colossal operations in the West begin, England is seething with speculation as to the duration of the war and the size of the armies which Lord Kitchener is now transferring to the front. The former topic is widely discussed in the press, the latter is never mentioned. Military experts may devote columns to more or less exact calculations as to the strength of their enemy, but the strength of Britain and her allies is supposed to be an insoluble enigma to the enemy, who might gain invaluable hints from guesses made in London. Accordingly, the guesses, while everybody makes them, are not published.

The writer has made an attempt to estimate the actual fighting strength which Great Britain will have in the field on April 20, a date which rightly or wrongly is regarded as that approximating the beginning of the "concerted move" which is to be made against the enemy's lines in the West—if the enemy doesn't make a "concerted move" first. These figures are frankly guesswork. Perhaps no man in England but Lord Kitchener knows the exact truth; certainly the men who know the truth may be counted on one's fingers. But these figures are based on guesses made by men who do know the truth concerning the strength of certain parts of the new armies and 25 per cent. is more than need be allowed as a possible margin of error.

BRITONS NOW THERE.

There are approximately 1,900,000 British now under arms in Belgium, France and England. These figures include men in uniform, whether they went to Mons in August or enlisted last week. The common report that the 2,000,000 mark which Kitchener is supposed to have set the recruiting authorities as the minimum demand for the present campaign has been passed is probably a little premature, but recruiting is proceeding at a rapid pace now. Many men who hesitated to enlist in the cold weather are now flocking to the colors for the triumphal campaign which the press has made them think will bring the Kaiser to his knees by early summer, or by fall at the latest.

The number of men who will see service at the front this spring and summer has yet to be reckoned. One of the many points upon which Kitchener is adamant is that no half-baked troops, and above all, no half-baked officers, shall be put in the fighting line. At least five months of training has been the rule, and then the men when moved across the channel have been marched about a bit and moved up to the front by easy stages. Very few troops which have not been under arms at least six months are at the front now, excluding, of course, the territorials and others who while not in the regular army have had military training previous to this war. Hundreds of thousands of troops which have been in the service five months are occupying the reserve centers. The British and French armies, in strong contrast to the Germans, believe in strong reserve bodies.

ON THE FRONT.

It is not probable that there are more than 400,000 British, or 500,000 at the outside, now at or near the front. This estimate is far lower than the estimate common here, but it is made by men whose knowledge of the formations of the British army which had been doing the fighting is fairly complete. The movement of troops now under way will give Field Marshal Sir John French a maximum of 1,200,000 men for the operations of this spring. There will be no more than this number ready for service by April 20.

The great British base camp constructed this winter at Etaples, a resort town near the French coast, about twenty miles south of Boulogne—not even the name of the town has been mentioned in the British press—has accommodations for nearly, if not quite, 800,000 soldiers, and probably is the largest encampment of soldiers the world has ever seen. A glance at a railroad map of France, with reference to the present front, will show why this site has been selected. The expense of constructing the military city has been staggering, for the work has been done so that the place may be used for years by a population the size of Boston, and the accommodations are comfortable to a degree never before dreamed of by soldiers "in the field." It seems highly possible, though no British officer would say this, that when the great "concerted move" is made Etaples will be the starting point for troops that are to be rushed in overwhelming numbers to that point of the line where the British expect to break through, or, perhaps, make a gigantic "demonstration" while the French break through somewhere else.

TO MISLEAD THE FOE?

It is not advisable to speculate further concerning the plans of the British army, though plausible guesses might be based on reports of where the troops are being sent. There is the possibility that the present enormous troops movements, which the British know they cannot conceal from the Germans even if they mystify their own people, are deliberately intended to mislead the enemy. This is a theory one frequently hears. Against it is the fact that the vast size of modern armies and the necessary supply arrangements make movements of bodies of men tactically important in this war, that is, of several army corps—merely for the purpose of misleading the enemy's intelligence department, rare if not unknown.

In view of the confidence displayed that "Kitchener's millions" will soon finish the job, it is interesting to compare this estimate of 1,200,000 British effectives ready for battle April 20 with the estimates made publicly by leading critics as to the strength of the other combatants. Hilaire Belloc, Oxford professor, formerly in the French Artillery and a widely-known military critic, has recently written that there are perhaps seventy-five Russian corps now in the field, or something less than 3,000,000 men, whose relative value is less than those of the western nations because of the superior mobility of the German, French and British armies.

Germany, Belloc thinks, over and above the men who took part in the opening campaigns, her regulars and her regular reserves, had 2,400,000 men whom she could send to the front. He thinks two batches of 800,000 reserves each have already taken the field, the last batch being responsible for Hindenburg's latest blow in the north. The last reserves Germany can put in the field, 800,000 fresh men, he thinks will appear at the front at the end of April or the beginning of May, and he allows 600,000 as the maximum number of new men Austria can provide. Turkey, he says, is an incalculable factor. Russia has plenty more men to draw upon, but is handicapped by lack of equipment.

AS TO THE FRENCH.

The French army, like the British, Belloc, in his censored articles, cannot deal with too closely. The best estimate I have been able to obtain for the French is a maximum of effectives of 2,700,000 men by April 20, including the new levies which have been in training in the south this winter. How many men France can put in the field depends on how quickly her lamentable deficiency in equipment can be made good by imports from Great Britain and America.

Perhaps 50,000 Belgians are in the field at present. If 2,700,000 French and 1,200,000 British are available by the end of April, the combined effective force of the western allies will fall a little short of 4,000,000. Unless the Germans take the line of Vistula in the east and can move troops to the west front, not more than sixty or sixty-five of the 100 corps which the Germans, in round numbers, will have on both fronts by April 20, can be used against this crushing force of French and British. This calculation, that they will have 4,000,000 men against not more than 2,500,000 Germans, accounts for the present optimism among Englishmen. Military critics like Col. Repington of the Times and Hilaire Belloc hint to their readers that for an offensive against such positions as the Germans hold a very crushing superiority in heavy artillery and a numerical superiority of perhaps two to one will be needed, but despite these warnings supreme confidence in a speedy victory is the dominant note among all classes in England at the present time.

Statement.

ALLEGES A PLOT AGAINST CHIEF.

MONEY IN COMPROMISING HIM, DECLARES WOMAN.

Says Her Sister Told Her a Newspaper Man Would Pay Eight Hundred Dollars if She Would Entrap Sebastian—Other Woman in Case Quizzed by District Attorney.

While her sister was closeted in an ultra-secret conference with Dist.-Atty. Woolwine early this morning Mrs. Lilly Pratt of No. 877 East Thirty-eighth street made a statement to the police in which she declared she was told she could get $800 if she would compromise the character of Chief of Police Sebastian. It is the newest development in the charges affecting the Chief, which have been taken before the grand jury, and that he denounces as a political plot to defeat his candidacy for the Mayoralty. The statement of Mrs. Pratt was made to Inspector Home and Detective Bitten.

Early last night Mr. Pratt reported to the police that his 16-year-old sister was missing and asked that they question Mrs. Pratt's sister, Mrs. Martha Oliveras of No. 631 San Julian street. Mrs. Oliveras was taken to the Central Police Station. A very few minutes later Chief Deputy District Attorney Dean appeared and whisked Mrs. Oliveras away to the District Attorney's office, where she was interrogated by Mr. Woolwine.

But before she left the Police Station, she said in answer to a question that she did not know the chief, but the officers might question Mrs. Pratt.

Mrs. Pratt was accordingly taken to the station and immediately made her statement. She declared Chief Sebastian and two officers recently went to her home in the line of duty and after they had left Mrs. Oliveras, who was there, said: "I know a newspaper man who would give $800 if you could trap that big game."

Mr. Woolwine and Mr. Dean refused to make any statement relative to the questioning of Mrs. Oliveras.

IRELAND OUSTED BY SOCIALISTS.

DEFENDER OF MRS. LINDSAY NOW SHARES HER FATE BY COMMITTEE VOTE.

Socialists cast forth last night another so-called disturbing factor when by a majority vote of the Central Committee they unseated William Francis Ireland from the committee because he espoused the cause of Mrs. Estelle Lawton Lindsay in an address in the Socialist Forum last Sunday.

That speech riled the radical Socialists and as early as Monday it was threatened to throw Ireland off the committee, which is tantamount to casting him out of the party.

Last night Ireland was given the opportunity to defend himself and it seems that what he said did not serve to placate the irate ones, for out of twenty-five present of the thirty-five members of the committee there was secured a majority of the whole committee to unseat Ireland. The latter still maintains his stand regarding Mrs. Lindsay, who was a Socialist candidate for the City Council till recently read out of the party because she would not withdraw from the race at the behest of the radicals.

CHARGE GERMANS STEAL OVERCOATS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, March 27 (via London, March 28.)—The following Russian official statement concerning the progress of the war was issued here tonight:

"On March 25 the Germans between the Skwa and Pissa rivers (Northern Russian Poland,) attacked repeatedly, twice capturing some of our trenches near the villages of Serafin and Tartak, but we drove them back on each occasion to their former positions. The Germans lost heavily.

"The Germans in certain sections north of Esareff have been stealing our overcoats, which are much superior to theirs, as protection against bad weather. Their soldiers constantly are leaving their trenches in order to strip the overcoats from our dead but our effective fire makes them pay dearly for their thefts.

"At Ossowetz the Germans repeatedly have tried to fly a captive balloon, but our guns hit it every time it appears. As a result of the absolute superiority of the guns of the fortress, the German batteries fire only short salvos, and are silenced quickly.

"In a fight at the village of Karaska, on the left bank of the Omulew River, we took over a hundred prisoners, six mitrailleuses and three cannon.

"A number of Czechs belonging to the garrison of Przemysl are clamoring for permission to fight for Slavdom in the Russian ranks."

TICKET FOR SCHOOL BOARD NAMED BY MANY CITIZENS.

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENT, bearing on the election of a Board of Education for Los Angeles, was issued last evening:

During the last year the board which governs our public schools has been divided into two factions. The transaction of business has been seriously hampered by this dissension, and it has produced a state of unrest in the minds of the teachers and other employees, which, without questioning the honesty of purpose of either faction, we believe has resulted in impairing the efficiency of the entire school system and in irreparable loss to the pupils.

There is now grave danger that a school board may be elected in which these differences will be perpetuated. Several candidates for the Board of Education have offered themselves as declared partisans. It is understood that others are about to become candidates pledged to support the position of one side or the other.

It would be a misfortune amounting to a calamity to elect a school board, the members of which would enter upon their duties divided in the same manner as the present school board. The undersigned believe that the only way in which this danger can be averted is by the election of a group of candidates who are entirely satisfactory each to the other and every one of whom is of such repute in the community that his judgment, fairness and ability will carry conviction to the minds of every one that the affairs of the public schools will be wisely and safely administered, and all of whom will enter upon their duties not as partisans, but will investigate the conditions without prejudice and act on all matters coming before them in the manner that, in their judgment, will secure the greatest possible benefits for the children.

The undersigned, having become deeply concerned because of the condition existing, have induced the following-named citizens to become candidates for election to the Board of Education:

Walter Bordwell, W. J. Washburn, Mrs. R. J. Waters, Shelley Tolhurst, H. H. Cotton, Arthur S. Bent and Andrew J. Copp, Jr.

We believe that each of these candidates fulfills the requirements set forth above. Their consent could be obtained only upon the condition that they be united and supported as a group, and that each is unpledged and unbiased.

Second Installment of Official Review of War Op tions Describes Campaign of New Army Which Engaged in Belgian Luxemburg — Morocco Di Meets Savage Assault Toward Marshes of Saint G

[The following is the conclusion of the second section of the [illegible] ficial review of the war operations. The first installment of this [illegible] printed in The Times yesterday. This concludes the material now [illegible]

LONDON, March 18. — The action of Fere-Champeaux: Our center consisted of a new army created on August 29 and one of those which at the beginning of the campaign had been engaged in Belgian Luxemburg. The first had retreated on August 29 to September 5 from the Aisne to the north of the Marne and occupied the general front, Sezanne-Mailly. The second, more to the east, had drawn back to the south of the line, Humbauville - Chateau - Beauchamp - Bignicourt-Blesmes-Maurupt - Le Montoy.

The enemy, in view of his right being arrested and the defeat of his enveloping movement, made a desperate effort from the 7th to the 10th to pierce our center to the west and to the east of Fere-Champeaux. On the 8th he succeeded in forcing back the right of our new army, which retired as far as Gourgancon. On the 9th at 6 o'clock in the morning there was a further retreat to the south of that village, while on the left the other army corps also had to go back to the line, Allemant-Connantre.

GENERAL OFFENSIVE.

Despite this retreat the general commanding the army ordered a general offensive for the same day. With the Morocco division, whose behavior was heroic, he met a furious assault of the Germans on his left toward the marshes of Saint Gond. Then, with the division which had just victoriously overcome the attacks of the enemy to the north of Sezanne, and with the whole of his left army corps, he made a flanking attack in the evening of the 9th on the German forces and notably the guard, which had thrown back his right army corps. The enemy, taken by surprise by this bold maneuver, did not resist and beat a hasty retreat.

On the 11th we crossed the Marne between Tours-sur-Marne and Sarry, driving the Germans in front of us in disorder. On the 12th we were in contact with the enemy to the north of the camp De Chalons. Our other army of the center, acting on the right of the one just referred to, had been entrusted with the mission during the 7th, 8th and 9th of disengaging its neighbor, and it was only on the 10th that, being reinforced by an army corps from the east, it was able to make its action effectively felt. On the 11th the Germans retired. But, perceiving their danger, they fought desperately with enormous expenditure of projectiles behind strong intrenchments. On the 12th the result had nevertheless been attained and our two center armies were solidly established on the ground gained.

Operations of our right: To the right of these two armies were three others. They had orders to cover themselves to the north and to debouch toward the west on the flank of the enemy, which was operating to the west of the Argonne. But a wide interval, in which the Germans were in force, separated them from our center. The attack took place, nevertheless, with very brilliant success for our artillery, which destroyed eleven batteries of the Sixteenth German Army Corps.

On the 10th the Eighth and Fifteenth German Army Corps counter-attacked, but were repulsed. On the 11th our progress continued with new successes, and on the 12th we were able to face round toward the north in expectation of the near and inevitable retreat of the enemy, which, in fact, took place from the 13th.

The withdrawal of the mass of the German force involved also that of the left. From the 12th onward the forces of the enemy operating between Nancy and the Vosges retreated in a hurry before our two armies of the east, which immediately occupied the positions that the enemy had evacuated. The offensive of our right had thus prepared and consolidated in the most useful way the result secured by our left and center.

Thus was this seven days' battle in which more than five millions of men were engaged. Each army gained ground step by step, opening the road to its neighbor, supported at once by it, taking in flank the adversary which the day before it had attacked in front, the efforts of one articulating closely with those of the other, a perfect unity of intention and method animating the supreme command.

To give this victory all its meaning, it is necessary to add that it was gained by troops who for two weeks had been retreating and who, when the order for the offensive was given, were found to be as ardent as on the first day. It also has to be said that these troops had to meet the whole German army and that from the time they marched forward they never again fell back. Under their pressure the German retreat at certain times had the appearance of a rout.

In spite of the fatigue of our men, in spite of the power of the German heavy artillery, we took colors, guns, mitrailleuses, shells, more than a million cartridges and thousands of prisoners. A German corps lost almost the whole of its artillery, which from information brought by our airmen, was destroyed by our guns.

The chapter deals with "The Rush to Sea," September 13 to October 1 is as follows:

GENERAL CHARACTER OF T ACTION.

As early as the 11th of Septe the commander-in-chief had di our left army to have as imp forces as possible on the right of the Oise. On September 1 made that instruction more by ordering "a mass to be tuted on the left wing of our di tion, capable of coping with the flanking movement of the enemy."

Everything led us to expect flanking movements for the Germ are lacking in invention. Inde their efforts at that time tended a renewal of their maneuver of A gust. In this parallel race the op nents were bound in the end to stopped only by the sea; that is wh happened about October 20.

The Germans had an advanta over us which is obvious from glance at the map—the concen form of their front which shorten the length of their transport spite of this initial inferiority we ar rived in time. From the middle September to the last week of Oc tober fighting went on co to the north of the Oise, but time we were fighting we were ping northward. On the German this movement brought into line than eighteen new army corps (tw active army corps, six reserve corp four cavalry corps.) On our side ended in the constitution of the fresh armies on our left and in the trans port into the same district of the Brit ish army and the Belgian army from Antwerp.

For the conception and realizatio of this fresh and extended dispositio the French command, in the fir place, had to reduce to a minimum the needs for effectiveness of o armies to the east of the Oise with view to utilize to the utmost o means to transport. It succeeded i this when at the end of October th battle of Flanders opened, when the Germans, having completed the con centration of their forces, attempted with fierce energy to turn or to pierc our left. They flung themselves upo a resistance which inflicted upon th a complete defeat.

DEPLOYMENT OF A FIRST ARMY

MY TIRED FEET ACHED FOR "TIZ"

Let your sore, swollen, aching feet spread out in a bath of "TIZ."

"Just couldn't wait to take my hat off!"

Just take your shoes off and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, aching, burning, corn-pestered, bunion-tortured feet of yours in a "TIZ" bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy; they'll look up at you and almost talk and then they'll take another dive in that "TIZ" bath.

When your feet feel like lumps of lead—all tired out—just try "TIZ." It's grand—it's glorious. Your feet will dance with joy; also you will find all pain gone from corns, callouses and bunions.

There's nothing like "TIZ." It's the only remedy that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up your feet and cause foot torture.

Get a 25-cent box of "TIZ" at any drug or department store—don't wait. Ah! how glad your feet get; how comfortable your shoes feel. You can wear shoes a size smaller if you desire.

WOULD LIKE TO SEE STATE RUN WESTERN PACIFIC.

Believes if Private Interests Were Unable to Make Any Money on the System California Couldn't do it Even with Higher Passenger and Freight Rates.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, March 27.—R. S. Lovett, chairman of the Union Pacific Executive Committee, who has returned after a six months' stay in California, says:

"I would like to see the State of California take over the Western Pacific. If it made this move it could not operate the road on its present basis any more successfully than the private interests that have controlled it. The Western Pacific has not been a success, as everybody knows, and the only way it could be made a success under State ownership would be to increase rates. If rates are increased over the Western Pacific they must be increased over the other roads so that we would have no reason to regret this development.

"The two fairs are all and even more than has been claimed for them, and the attendance to date has been very satisfactory and promises to increase. As for prospects, farmers are preparing much larger crop areas, excepting for cotton. Sugar-beet and cane growers are enthusiastic because of good demand and believe that this will continue for some time to come, even should the war be soon concluded."

CHICAGO, March 27.—Efforts to show that the forty-one western railroads in spite of their petitions for higher freight rates, had spent great sums for improvements in recent years were made on behalf of the shippers in the Interstate Commerce Commission hearing of the acse today.

L. E. Wettling, statistician for all the roads, on cross-examination testified that while such roads as the Burlington were able to borrow money at relatively low rates, the less prosperous roads, such as the Missouri Pacific, have to pay high rates and the general average of all the roads showed that they paid much higher rates than industrials.

BOY SHOOTS BANK BANDIT.

Wounded Desperado Believed to be Henry Starr.

Citizens of Stroud, Okla., Put Big Gang to Flight.

Robbers Quickly Surrounded in Pasture by Town.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

OKLAHOMA CITY (Okla.) March 27.—Two banks at Stroud, Okla., were robbed early today of $5000, and one of the robbers, said to be Henry Starr, for whose capture the State has offered $1000 reward, was shot and captured. Eleven men were in the band which was surrounded by a posse of 300 in a gully two miles east of Stroud.

The men rode into Stroud at 10 o'clock, tied their horses at the stockyards and proceeded to loot the bank. As the news spread, citizens were soon running into the streets armed with such weapons as they could gather quickly. Many shots were fired.

As one of the robbers was mounting his horse, Paul Curry, 15 years old, pointed his rifle at the robber nearest him.

"Drop your gun or I'll shoot!" Curry yelled.

As the man, now believed to be Starr, dropped the revolver, the boy fired. The bullet struck the man in the leg and he was unable to mount. The boy turned his captive over to the authorities.

The other robbers rode out of town under a shower of bullets.

Less than thirty minutes later they were surrounded in a pasture two miles east of Stroud. The man captured had diamonds known to have been in Starr's possession. He also was identified by pictures sent out and a description circulated by officers several weeks ago.

WOUNDED MAN TAKEN.

One of the robbers who gave the name of Bill Estes, fell from his horse a mile out of Stroud and was captured. He had been shot.

At 1:30 this afternoon the robbers still were surrounded in the pasture and shots were being fired at them. They were hidden in a grove, evidently waiting for nightfall.

Jerry Turner, a farmer, was said to have been fatally wounded in the First National Bank when he refused to comply with the robbers' orders to throw up his hands.

A letter was received by Gov. Williams today in the handwriting of Henry Starr and purporting to have been sent by him from Reno, Nev. In the letter Starr declared he had been in Nevada several months and did not know, until he met a friend from Oklahoma, that a price had been placed on his head.

Starr denied he had been implicated in recent robberies in Oklahoma and said he could prove by witnesses there he had been in Nevada all the time.

RECORD OF STARR.

Henry Starr, a halfbreed Chickasaw, for years has been one of the most notorious outlaws in the Middle West. In the main his activities have centered in the old Indian Territory and Oklahoma, his home being in the Osage Hills near Tulsa. A recent act of the Oklahoma Legislature offered a reward of $1000 for Starr's capture, dead or alive. At present he is a fugitive from justice charged with violating his parole in Colorado.

ROB MAIL ORDER HOUSE.

Eight Masked Bandits in Chicago Blow Open Safe and Escape With Four Thousand Dollars.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, March 27. — Eight masked robbers early today entered the mail order house of Babson Bros., felled the watchman, John Kastory, with an iron bar, blew open two safes and a vault and escaped with more than $4000. Kastory's wounds were superficial.

HOLD GIRL AS PRISONER.

Maggie Conway, Formerly of Idaho, Arrested on Charge of Murdering Utah Sheepman.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

OGDEN (Utah) March 27.—Maggie Conway, formerly of Mackay, Idaho, was arrested last night at Hailey, Idaho, on the charge of murdering Daniel Winters, a wealthy sheepman, in September, 1913. The arrest followed the detention in the County Jail here of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Southerland, who are being held as material witnesses. Winters's body was found about 100 feet from the house where the Conway woman lived and an examination of his stomach showed he had died from poisoning.

MRS. ROGERS ASKS DIVORCE.

Wife of New York Lawyer Whose Relations With Another Woman Were Revealed, Wants Separation.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 27.—Mrs. Caroline Giddings Rogers, wife of Lorlys Elton Rogers, the lawyer, whose relations with Mrs. Ida Sniffen Rogers were revealed when the last-named woman administered poison to herself and two small children, today filed suit for an absolute divorce. Mrs. Ida Sniffen Rogers, now awaiting trial on the charge of murdering the children, was named as co-respondent.

THE WEATHER BACK EAST.

Lower Temperature Reported with Slight Moderation Through Middle West—Cold Rains Continue.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, March 27.—Colder weather is reported from the East, but the Middle West experienced a slight moderation today. Chicago's maximum was 44 deg., rising from 24 deg. last night. Snow still remains in places not exposed to the sun. Excepting snow in Michigan and Western Canada and rains in the South, the country was clear. Cold rains continue to keep idle the baseball training camps in Louisiana. Other temperatures:

RESIDENTS OF PERUGIA ARE NOW CAMPING IN THE OPEN AIR.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ROME, March 27 (via Paris.)—Slight earth shocks were recorded in the province of Perugia today. No damage was done. Nevertheless the whole population is camping in the open air. The people are in an extraordinary condition of nervousness because of the fatal earthquakes a few months ago in the Abruzzi provinces.

Seven-hundred-mile Journey to Repair a Shaft.

Schooner from Hawaii Disabled in Ocean.

Revenue Cutter Dispatched to Assist the Vessel.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN LUIS OBISPO, March 27.—Traveling the last two days almost without water or provisions, a boatload of six men from the disabled steam schooner O. M. Clark ended a 700-mile journey today, when they arrived at Port San Luis.

The schooner, which was bound from Hilo, Hawaii, to San Diego, broke a tail shaft on March 13, when three days out. Progress by sailing not proving successful, a small boat was started last Sunday for the California coast to repair the tail shaft and return.

Chief Mate E. M. McCallister and five sailors had to row most of their six-day voyage, as a southeaster made raising their small sail dangerous.

The Clark was riding nicely, McCallister said, when he left it, 400 miles off Point Concepcion. He expects to get the tail shaft repaired and then will return, probably in a gasoline launch.

HIGH SCHOOL BOYS SHOT IN A RAID.

CADETS OF ONTARIO, OR., ON A HIKE INJURED BY PARTY OF RIVALS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ONTARIO (Or.) March 27.—Three high school boys were shot, two being seriously injured, today, during a raid upon the high school cadet camp. The cadets started on a hike yesterday and camped for the night three miles west of here. About midnight a party of high school boys went out to raid and frighten the camp. The rifles of both parties were supposed to be loaded with blanks, but some of the boys, it is said, pushed rocks into the ends of their cartridges. Robert Madden, aged 18, was shot in the back, the missile penetrating the lung. William Fitzgerald was shot in the eye. William Duncan was shot in the thigh.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND, March 27.—All records for the water transportation of lumber from Portland were broken today with the chartering by Balfour, Guthrie & Co. of the American schooner Encore. The vessel was chartered at 100 shillings to take lumber to Cape Town, South Africa. She will come here shortly from San Francisco to take aboard cargo. Vessels now here are loading approximately 10,000,000 feet of lumber for foreign ports.

M'CULLOCH SENT TO AID SCHOONER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—The United States revenue cutter McCulloch was ordered late today by radiogram to proceed at once to the assistance of the steam schooner O. M. Clark, reported disabled 450 miles southwest of San Diego, late today by members of her crew who reached Port San Luis in one of the ship's boats.

The McCulloch was hove to near Pigeon Point in a heavy southeaster when the message reached her and preparations were made at once to proceed to the O. M. Clark. The McCulloch was en route to Monterey to investigate the presence there of the Japanese cruiser Chitose.

TO SELL SIX SCHOONERS.

Creditors and Stockholders of Globe Navigation Company of Seattle will Dispose of the Assets.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, March 27. — Creditors and stockholders of the insolvent Globe Navigation Company met today and decided to sell the company's six schooners, which are now laid up in Eagle Harbor. The vessels originally cost $350,000. Extremely high charter rates have been offered for the fleet, and it is deemed best to get the boats into service. They will be sold at auction April 15.

AT ONCE! PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN STOPS INDIGESTION, GAS, SOUR STOMACH.

Don't suffer! Here's the quickest and surest stomach relief known.

Time it! In a few minutes all stomach distress gone. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas, acid or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach doctor in the whole world, and besides, it is harmless.

Millions of men and women now eat their favorite foods without fear—they know it is needless to have a bad stomach.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store and put your stomach right. Stop being miserable—life is too short—you're not here long, so make your stay agreeable. Eat what you like and digest it; enjoy it without fear of rebellion in the stomach.

Pape's Diapepsin belongs in your home. Should one of the family eat something which doesn't agree with them, or in case of an attack of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis or stomach derangement, it is handy to give instant relief.

Matamoros.

VILLA'S BORDER CAMPAIGN PRECEDES GRAND SWEEP.

Finds He Can Make no Progress Toward the South with His Line of Communication Constantly Threatened — Severe Defeat of Pablo Gonzales's Army Reported by Angeles's Army at Monte Morelos.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Gen. Villa began today the attack on Matamoros, opposite Brownsville, Tex., the possession of which would give him practically undisputed control of the States bordering on the American frontier.

Having been driven out of Piedras Negras, the only ports of entry on the Texas border remaining in the hands of Carranza were Neuvo Laredo and Matamoros. Only a small garrison is at the former place, but at the latter town several thousand Carranza troops have been concentrated.

Gen. Villa's plan of campaign for the last month has been directed against these border towns, because he found his troops could make no substantial progress in the south with their lines of communication constantly threatened from the rear.

DEPARTMENT SUMMARY.

The State Department summary today says in part:

"A mail report dated March 22 from Piedras Negras, states that Americans and other foreigners are being shown every courtesy. It is said that wherever a wrong has been done by the new faction speedy redress has been given. It is stated that better conditions are expected in the district after a new party has time to settle down and make appointments to the many civil offices.

"The same report states that the statements to the effect that Gen. Raoul Madero with 6000 troops was at Sabinas en route to Piedras Negras, appear to have been unfounded, as refugees arriving from the Sabinas coal fields report that there are only 1200 troops under Gen. Pereyra garrisoning Sabinas and the surrounding country. Coal is being shipped from that section daily by the Villa forces, who are purchasing it from the foreign-owned mines. No attempt has been made to seize any property in that section, and absolute protection is said to be given to all. On March 22 there remained but seventy kilometers of railroad to be repaired between Allende and Silencio station before trains could go directly from Piedras Negras to Monterey."

VILLA AGENCY.

A statement issued by the Villa agency tonight was as follows:

"The convention consul at Brownsville, Tex., wired the confidential agency that the battle for the possession of Matamoros had begun.

"The confidential agency has received official news of a severe defeat of Pablo Gonzales's army by the convention forces under Gen. Felipe Angeles at Monte Morelos, a week ago. The dispatch added that Gonzales's army was retreating towards Tampico.

"Numbers of Carranza troops are arriving at Nuevo Laredo, fleeing from Canon de Santo Domingo, where Villa forces defeated them and captured many horses and a large amount of ammunition."

SISAL CROP MOVEMENT.

Movement of the sisal crop from Yucatan on United States naval vessels has begun. Rear-Admiral Caperton, commander of the cruiser squadron at Vera Cruz, notified the Navy Department today that the collier Jupiter sailed Thursday from Progreso for New Orleans with a sisal cargo. Rear-Admiral Caperton's report said fighting continued between Carranza and Villa forces at Ebano, outside Tampico, and that some oil tanks in that vicinity had been damaged.

Customhouse and national documents at Matamoros, Mex., have been sent to Brownsville, Tex., in anticipation of the battle between the Carranza and Villa forces.

Transportation of sisal fiber by United States vessels where necessary in order to relieve the situation confronting the twine makers and the farmers will go on as of March 20, and that will permit the transportation of 100,000 bales which the International Harvester Company has undertaken to distribute among other manufacturers.

Official dispatches say in an interview with the Brazilian Minister, Roque Gonzales Garza, head of the government in Mexico City, promised prompt payment of the indemnity for the killing of John B. McManus, an American, by Zapata troopers.

VILLA QUITS AS CHIEF.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO (Tex.) March 27.—That Gen. Francisco Villa relinquishes his position as supreme civil chief of the northern government of Mexico and his three cabinet members, Miguel Diaz Lombardo, Francisco Escudero and Luis de la Garza Cardenas, assume charge of their departments in the Cabinet of the temporary executive, Roque Gonzalez Garza, is the basis of a plan which is reported to have been presented to the convention at Mexico City to combine the two existing governments in the territory controlled by the Convention.

Gen. Villa would retain his position as general in chief of the military operations of the Convention government's military forces, which he has held since the founding of the Convention government, according to the plan as reported here from Chihuahua City.

A message filed at Brownsville, Tex., late today by Col. Jose O. Flores of the Carranza garrison and received here during the afternoon by Carranza Consul Andres G. Garcia, claimed a victory for the Carranza garrison in the first encounter with Villa government forces in the battle at Matamoros, Tamaulipas, which opened today. The message read:

"Fighting began today. The enemy was repulsed. We took eighty-two prisoners. We are holding our original positions."

The Great War.

HEAVY FIGHTING IN EAST; A QUIET DAY IN THE WEST

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, March 27.—Comparative calm in the west and heavy fighting in the eastern war zone characterized the European campaign. The Carpathians are again to the fore as the scene of the most desperate struggle, for along the chain of mountains both Russians and Austrians have brought up large reinforcements and are engaged in a battle, upon the decisive turn of which much depends.

In reply to the German declaration minimizing the Russian victory at Przemysl, the Russian War Office asserts 125,000 prisoners were taken in the fall of that fortress, and that contrary to the German report, only 1350 Russian prisoners were found when the invading army took possession.

The Russian War Office also takes occasion to deny categorically the destruction of any towns or villages in Galicia.

The Russians claim to have made progress in the Carpathians, which as usual differs from the claims set up by the Austrians, who declare that the Russian attack has miscarried, with heavy losses.

In the Vosges, the French success in capturing the heights of Hartmanns-Wellerkopf near Muelhausen, is admitted by the Germans. This strategic position has been the object for which the opposing forces have been fighting desperately for several days, as it dominates the surrounding country.

Great interest centers in the possible entrance of Italy into the war. The action of Rumania and Bulgaria is to some extent dependent upon that of Italy, and Rome dispatches report that the Italian government has completed all measures preparatory to hostilities.

An interesting report in this connection is contained in a Sofia dispatch which says that the German field marshal, Von der Goltz, who recently was sent on a mission to the Bulgarian capital, has been authorized to offer Bulgaria, on behalf of Turkey, that territory north of a line drawn from Enos to Midia in return for Bulgarian neutrality.

Neuve Chappelle.

TOTAL BRITISH LOSSES GREAT SHOCK TO PUBLIC.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, March 19.—The British public is not deceived by the lack of definite reports as to the British losses in the Nueve Chappelle fight in France. The official announcement that the British had taken 1800 prisoners and the official estimate that the Germans must have lost 18,000 men in the terrific bombardment prepared the public for heavy losses on the British side. Rumor ran that the total loss to gain about a mile of territory was in the neighborhood of 13,000 men.

Meanwhile the recruiting advertisements are pointing out that the Germans, being at Ostend, are already nearer London than Manchester is; some of the daily papers are editorially preaching conscription and there is an urgent call for more nurses and hospital facilities.

School buildings, asylums, workhouses and buildings of all kinds are being commandeered by the government in all the larger English cities, in an effort to provide additional hospital accommodation. The new hospitals are to provide for 60,000 wounded men who are expected when the promised "big move" comes with the breaking up of winter in Northern France and Belgium.

Similarly strenuous efforts are being made to supply nurses for the new hospitals.

"It is clear," says Viscount Knutsford, who is in charge of this branch of War Office activity, "that we must abandon the idea of nursing soldiers only with fully trained nurses, at least on this side. In France we shall still require only trained nurses as long as possible, as the supervision abroad cannot be as efficient as here.

"By June or July, if not before, we shall have 60,000 more sick and wounded men in this country."

COL. SAMANIEGO NOT A LOOTER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DOUGLAS (Ariz.) March 27.—"The action of Col. Miguel Samaniego at Moctezuma was not looting, but confiscation of property in behalf of the Constitutionalist cause," said Col. P. Elias Calles, Carranza commander in Sonora, today regarding reports that Samaniego had looted Moctezuma when he captured it from Villa forces.

Calles declared that Americans and other foreigners would be indemnified from loss through the acts of his subordinates. Reports reached here today that the Slaughter ranch near Moctezuma was entirely stripped of live stock, even to chickens, although it had the American flag flying over the main buildings.

Mexicans will lose their former property taken in the Samaniego raid, it is said, because the military Governor of Sonora refuses to pay their claims. As a result several hundred destitute Mexicans are reported to be making their way toward the border in the hope of finding food.

AUTO COLLISION; TWO ARE INJURED.

LOS ANGELES WIDOW AND HER BROTHER SERIOUSLY HURT IN SAN FRANCISCO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—Mrs. M. C. Manning, a widow from Los Angeles, Cal., and her brother, Harry Clark, a Los Angeles broker, were severely injured here tonight when the automobile in which they were driving collided with a street car on Haight street. Mrs. Manning suffered a broken arm and Mr. Clark's jaw bone was fractured.

JAIL FOR WIRE TAPPING.

Ohioan Who Swindled Two Farmers Is Sentenced to Two Years at Moundeville Penitentiary.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TOLEDO (O.) March 27.—Two years in Moundeville (W. Va.) penitentiary and a fine of $2000 was the sentence imposed today by Federal Judge Killits on John J. Shea, convicted six weeks ago on a charge of defrauding two farmers in a wire-tapping scheme.

Shea went back to jail without bond. Judge Killits declined to parole him.

Shea, it developed at the trial, was the most conspicuous figure among the five men named in the charges.

Next Wednesday—March 31—is "Times Day"—the day you can help your favorite candidate in the "Automobile Circulation Campaign" to win a magnificent motor car. Ring her up and tell her you'll help.

CHECK PASSER ARRESTED.

Man Held in El Paso Admits He had been Under Similar Charges in Los Angeles.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL PASO (Tex.) March 27.—When A. R. Edgett was arrested here on a charge of passing worthless checks on the Commercial National Bank he admitted to the police that he had been involved in similar transactions in Los Angeles, San Diego, Phoenix and Tucson.

Edgett said he had been under arrest in Los Angeles and had been held there pending an investigation of his case and later released. He said he had been similarly arrested in San Diego, but would not admit that he had been convicted in either city.

After several hours of questioning he finally admitted that he had served a term of eighteen months in the Missouri State Prison. He is being held to the grand jury here.

Horrid Pimples Kill Dimples

But Stuart's Calcium Wafers Will Remove the Unsightly Blemishes in So Short a Time as to Seem Almost Impossible of Belief.

The crowning beauty of a woman is her skin. She may have only ordinary features or even a coarse, heavy contour of face, but if she is the possessor of a fine, colorful skin, showing vigorous health and a pure blood, she will grow attractive to every eye.

The Girl: "Betty has a pretty face and cute dimples, but the pimples are horrid."
The Man: "Stuart's Calcium Wafers would remove them in a jiffy."

The great trouble with the majority of women is that they try to remove pimples by outside treatment, such as greases, massage, cosmetics, electricity, etc. These methods will not cure nor even temporarily remove pimples and facial disorders.

The difficulty is generally impure blood. The blood is a stream of waste matter filled with poisons. Its color is black or blue or brownish cast, instead of ruby red, as it should be.

The best color always comes in youth, of course, but all the cosmetics in the world will not bring back the color if your blood is diseased or filled with impurities which it cannot remove or throw off.

Go to your druggist, whoever he may be, and he will give you a box of Stuart's Calcium Wafers, price 50c.

Flat Chested for 15 Years, She Developed Her Bust Six Inches in Thirty Days.

Any Lady Can Now Do the Same by Following the Simple Directions Given Below.

Why Exercises, Massage, Creams, Prescriptions, Apparatus, Appliances, and Similar Methods Can Never Develop the Bust.

Any women readers who are lacking in bust development will be interested to learn of a recent remarkable discovery whereby the bust can quickly be developed to any desired size and firmness without recourse to massage, exercises, prescriptions, appliances, apparatus, creams, worthless medicines or any other means hitherto known. The lady who made this wonderful discovery which seems destined to prove a veritable blessing to ill-developed womenkind, recently sent a complete description of the method to several distinguished medical authorities, for the purpose of obtaining scientific and disinterested opinions of its efficacy. Their reports, given below, are extremely interesting for they prove beyond question or doubt that however fallen, shrunken, flabby and undeveloped the breast may be, and regardless of what may have caused their condition, a means has been discovered at last whereby any woman may now enlarge her bust to any desired size and firmness.

The most careful investigation fully establishes the fact that all the qualified praise accorded this remarkable method is more than justified, not withstanding that it upsets all previous theories in regard to development of the bust. Undoubtedly other treatments, nostrums, apparatus, etc., have failed because they overlook the basic fact the mammary glands of the bust are the only organs of the body which lie idle and out of use the greater part of one's lifetime, hence they can never be developed by treating them as though they were simple muscles or organs in constant use with regular functions to perform.

Among the numerous professional reports examined, one from no less an authority than Dr. Colonnay, of the Faculty of Medicine, Paris, reads as follows: "No matter whether a woman be young or old, nor what her condition of health may be, I firmly believe that in this treatment she has an infallible method for developing and beautifying her bust." Another report from the famous physician, Dr. Domenico Souncio, of Prata Sannita, Italy, reads: "I beg to confirm my previous letters concerning the treatment, and I have pleasure in informing you that my patient has used this treatment and is very satisfied with the marvelous results that she has obtained. I can therefore conscientiously state that this treatment is excellent, and that it can in no way be compared to others of its kind, claiming to give the same results." Among numerous letters from private individuals who have actually used the method, one from Miss Helen Beckett, Cholmeley Road, Reading, reads: "Since using the treatment my bust has developed in all four inches, an improvement for which I am extremely thankful." Many other letters too numerous to quote here, report even greater increase in bust measurement as well as a vast improvement in general health while using the method. Even when the neck, shoulders and chest were scraggy, and showed outlines of the bones, they were quickly filled out and made exquisitely soft, smooth and of fascinating rounded contour. In view of these positive documentary proofs, there can be no hesitancy in recommending the treatment to all readers who require anything of the kind.

A limited edition of books containing a full description of the method of bust development above referred to has just been printed, and while intended primarily as a treatise for physicians' use, arrangements have been made so that, while the supply lasts, one will also be sent in plain wrapping and free of charge to any readers of The Times sufficiently interested to forward the following coupon to address given below, also enclosing two penny stamps for posting expenses. Only one book can be sent to each applicant in exchange for the coupon. It may be added that the book is written in simple and non-technical language, and any lady can easily use the treatment in the privacy of her own room unknown to her most intimate friends. There are no prescriptions of any kind to have filled, and writing Miss Merlain places you under no obligation whatever. She, of course, has nothing to sell.

(There is, of course, no interruption in the regular mail service between this country and England.)

MISSION PADRE CALLED BEYOND.

BISHOP AND PRIESTS TO ATTEND FUNERAL SERVICES AT SAN LUIS OBISPO.

Bishop Conaty and about fifteen Catholic priests from Los Angeles will leave for San Luis Obispo tomorrow afternon to attend the funeral services over the body of Rev. Father Andrew Garriga at 9:30 o'clock, Tuesday morning, at the mission. Father Garriga, who was 72 years old, had served the church in various parts of California more than forty years.

Father Garriga was born in Spain. Immediately after being ordained in All Hallows College in Dublin, Ireland, in 1868, he came to California. He labored in the northern part of the State until 1890, when he went to San Luis Obispo mission as assistant pastor. After serving in that capacity five years he returned to the northern part of the State. He was appointed pastor of the mission in 1907.

Both in appearance and sentiment, Father Garriga belonged to the "Padre" type of priest familiar in California in the early days. He was conversant with the history of the missions of California and was in favor of the preservation of the historic institutions. About seventy-five priests from various parts of the State will be present at the funeral.

STABBED BY BANDIT.

William Cathanaca, a laborer, who has been employed for the past three months at a ranch near Eagle Rock, staggered into the Receiving Hospital last night with a deep stab wound in his right side, and a split forehead. He said that he had been stabbed by a strange Italian as he was walking to the car in Eagle Rock. The attack came suddenly, he said, following his refusal to give the Italian money. He rode all the way from Eagle Rock to the Receiving Hospital with his coat buttoned tightly about his injury. Cathanaca is 59 years old. He will recover.

All Hope Abandoned.

of any of the submarine's crew of twenty-one men being taken out alive.

The powerful dredger California, from the Pearl Harbor naval station, had lifted the F-4 fifty feet before the mishap occurred which plunged the vessel back into the lips of the submarine crater in which it had lodged.

Immediately, however, fresh efforts were begun to secure another grip on the hulk. Owing to the great depth—fifty fathoms—of the submarine's resting place and the peculiar formation of the ocean's floor at that point outside Honolulu harbor, the task of passing chains under the vessel is extremely difficult. Divers cannot work effectively at that depth and the casting about for a hold is necessarily more or less haphazard.

The Alert, mother ship of the submarine flotilla here, is lending all possible aid to the dredger. As soon as the F-4 is elevated to a point where divers can operate, lifting chains will be made fast to the hulk's bow and stern, and then it will be comparatively easy for the dredger to bring the submarine to the surface.

The rescuers worked with feverish haste today, cheered by confident predictions of officers that life would be found in some of the F-4's crew if the boat could be raised to the surface before night.

There were numerous heart-breaking mishaps. Once a cable groaning with the dead weight of the hulk, suddenly sagged, releasing its hold on the F-4. Later, just after a chain had been successfully passed under the vessel, it slipped off the smooth plates. The disappointment of the workers reached its climax when the hulk, after being raised the full fifty feet, again shook off the chain and sank.

Air bubbles rising to the surface today were taken to indicate that at least one of the F-4's three compartments had burst.

It is believed that the bodies of most of the crew will be found in the forward compartment, the smallest and strongest of the three.

Relatives of the crew residing here refuse to abandon hope and plead with naval officers to hasten the work of raising the craft.

REPORT OF AN EXPLOSION.

There is a report, not wholly confirmed, that a battery explosion aboard the F-4 on March 6 caused serious damage.

Rear-Admiral Chas. B. T. Moore, commandant of the naval station, said the reported accident did not disable the F-4.

"I had heard something about a battery explosion aboard the F-4," he said, "but it was not serious. It was not considered of sufficient importance to be reported.

"The chances are that if it had been serious enough to disable the vessel it would have killed some of the men.

"One man was burned slightly, so far as we know. It had no connection with the present accident."

In a letter dated Honolulu, March 7, George L. Deeth, of Portland, Or., a member of the crew of submarine F-4, in writing of the misfortunes of the vessel to which he was attached, mentioned an explosion which, according to Deeth, occurred the day previous.

"The explosion almost wrecked the inside of the boat," he wrote. "It bruised a number of us by hurling us against the side of the ship."

Deeth said the F-4 was to go to Pearl Harbor the next day "to have another main motor installed in place of the one that was burned out the other day."

Deeth said the F-4 was the unluckiest boat in the submarine flotilla.

GARDEN SAGE DARKENS GRAY HAIR SO NATURALLY NOBODY CAN TELL.

Restores Its Lustre, Prevents Scalp Itching; Dandruff and Falling Hair.

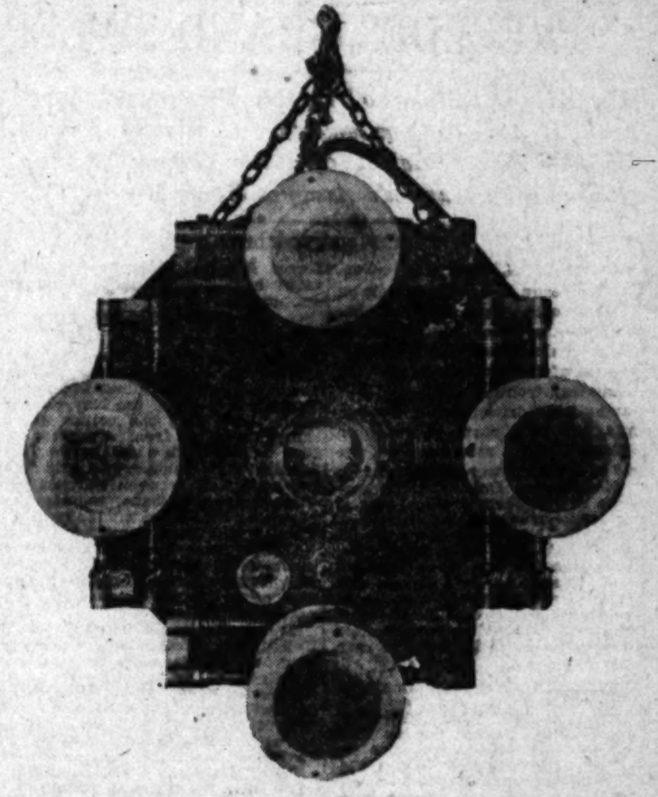
That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. While it is a mussy, tedious task, it well repays those whose hair is turning gray, faded and streaked.

Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred fold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and luster of your hair and is the best thing known to remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody chooses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time, which requires but a few moments. Do this at night and by morning the gray hair has disappeared and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant. It certainly helps folks look years younger and twice as attractive, says a well-known down-town druggist.

The "If" on the F-4 Tragedy.



Diving apparatus,

The invention of a Los Angeles man, with which, the inventor says, the men of the F-4 could have been rescued within an hour after the accident in Honolulu Harbor if the navy were equipped with his device.

Subjunctive Mood.

"COULD HAVE SAVED THEM," SAYS A LOS ANGELES MAN.

THAT the submarine F-4 could have been located within an hour, put in position to be raised in less than twelve hours and her occupants probably saved is the claim made in connection with a new diving apparatus recently invented by William D. Sisson of this city.

The apparatus consists of an eight-foot sphere weighing six tons and was devised for the purpose of seeking out and recovering sunken and hitherto inaccessible treasure. It is also claimed by men who have studied the device that one of the principal mechanical difficulties, the casting of a spherical shell of so large size, has been overcome.

The shell is 1¼ inches thick and is said to be sufficiently rigid to withstand the pressure of the sea at a depth of 1000 feet. If that is true working at a depth of 300 feet, where the submarine lay, would have presented no difficulties.

The apparatus is designed for use in connection with a tender to which it is attached at all times. Cables from the tender supply electric power to operate a powerful searchlight and machinery. Two men operate the bell and, it is said, can remain below the surface for many hours without discomfort.

The searchlight is larger and more powerful even than those used by battleships. The method of bringing wrecks to the surface is ingeniously and curiously devised. The bell is fitted with four strong magnets which hold it firmly to the side of any object upon which work is being done. Electric drills are used to bore holes through wood or metal and another device drives in a coupling or grappling hook. This work can be done rapidly and the inventor believes that sufficient attachments could have been made to the submarine to raise her long before the end of the twelve hours required to bring a crane.

Ballast tanks can be filled with water to give it power to sink on about the same principle used in submarines. It has two propellers with universal joints in the rear and two in the bottom, which will permit of its being moved in any direction on its own power, it being intended, however, that the tender ship will take care of most of the transportation.

With the bell sunk at the spot where a wreck is supposed to be, the searchlight plays on the surrounding ocean bed. If the wreck is not at first sighted the bell progresses under its own power in a wide circle, prospecting and searching until the discovery is made.

Pessimistic.

F-4 IS BEYOND HOPE, VIEW OF NAVAL OFFICERS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, March 27.—Officers of the navy yard declared tonight that the F-4 is beyond aid and that the entire crew died either by suffocation or drowning almost as soon as the submarine reached the bottom. If by any chance the vessel did not meet with an accident, but simply cannot get to the surface, disastrous results may follow any efforts to raise her. The F-4 must be brought to the top of the water on an even keel and only a miracle can bring this about, one of the officers declared.

Talks with officers brought out the startling fact that there is no craft with a capacity great enough to lift the F-4. This is true not only on the Pacific and Asiatic coasts, but in the East there is no ship known that is capable of lifting a weight within several hundred tons of that of the F-4. The submarine is said to have a tonnage of 500. This is too great to attempt to lift, the officers say.

"BADGER GIRL" GIVES SELF UP TO SHERIFF.

MRS. ANDREW J. SCHOLZ, a neatly dressed and attractive young woman, who is referred to as the "beautiful badger girl" because of her alleged relations with Contractor William Polsen, surrendered herself to the Sheriff's office last night. She had been hiding with friends in Sierra Madre, and from there had been telephoning to the authorities and keeping in intimate contact with the prosecution of her mother, Mrs. Mattie Marshall, already under arrest on the charge of having extorted money from Polsen.

The complete disappearance of Mrs. Scholz and her husband following the springing of the trap on Polsen was one of the most annoying puzzles the police department has had to solve. The report of a landlord that his tenant had suddenly fled without warning developed the identity of the Scholzs.

Polsen alleged Mrs. Scholz induced him to enter her boudoir in an apartment house on South Alvarado street, and as her husband and mother rushed into the room, she suddenly shifted her garments to place her in a position of embarrassing nudity. To avoid scandal, Polsen gave up jewelry, checks and deeds, most of which were found in the possession of Mrs. Marshall when she was arrested.

Mrs. Scholz refused to talk last night further than admitting she is the person sought. A meeting between Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Scholz in the County Jail was a theatrical affair greatly enjoyed by both, each expressing a wish that the newspaper men had cameras. Mrs. Scholz is a woman of more than ordinary attractiveness.

There was no opposition to adoption of the amendments and Chandler is hopeful that it may in its modified form be successful, but it is known that the opposition is large and a two-thirds vote is necessary for adoption.

STATE TRAINING SCHOOL.

Senator Breed's bill for the establishment of a State training school at Oakland in which students of the University of California seeking high school teachers' certificates may get practice in teaching was reported favorably to the Senate today by the Education Committee. It was referred to the Finance Committee on account of a $75,000 appropriation which is contingent upon the gift of a site and maintenance funds from the community in which it is located.

Senator Luce's bill to validate all proceedings in the 14,000-acre La Mesa Grove and Spring Valley irrigation district of San Diego county was unanimously adopted by the Senate today. A companion bill by Assemblyman Judson has passed the lower house, insuring enactment of the measure.

It cost the Legislature $230.85 to investigate and dismiss the contest of former Senator E. E. Grant for the seat of Senator Wolfe of San Francisco. The report of the committee was made today by the Senate by Senator Carr and the committee was discharged.

IN THE ASSEMBLY.

SHRIMP BILL IS PASSED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO (Cal.) March 27.—California shrimps will be in the market again this year if Gov. Johnson signs the Beban bill to permit the use of Chinese bag nets in the southern part of San Francisco bay. The measure, already passed by the Senate, went through the Assembly today.

Another Senate bill passed by the Assembly and now on its way to the Governor was Senator Flint's bill for greater protection to golden trout by shortening the season to the months of August and September instead of June, July and August, although the limit remains at twenty a day. Extermination of golden trout is said to have been threatened in the stocked streams of Yosemite Park and the Mount Whitney region.

CLEANS UP CALENDAR.

The Assembly held a two-hour session, passed eight bills, amended a dozen other measures, cleared up its calendar and adjourned until Monday morning. Among the bills passed was a measure by Ryan increasing the salaries of five San Francisco justices of the peace from $3600 to $4200.

Opposition to the raise was made by Lawson of Fresno, who said he thought the justices were getting enough salary and that if they were overworked the remedy lay in creating more justices.

Among other bills passed were the following:

By Kerr—Empowering officers and employees of State reformatories to make arrests in case of escaping prisoners.

By Avey—Authorizing the Horticultural Commission to establish quarantining against shipment or importation of infectious plants.

FLOOR LEADER BETTER.

Assemblyman Frank M. Rutherford of Truckee, floor leader, who has been confined in a Sacramento hospital for nearly three months suffering from typhoid fever, will recover, according to a report made to the lower house of the Legislature today. For several weeks it was thought Rutherford could not survive. He was stricken during the early part of the general session.

LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Authority to wind up the affairs of the Continental Building and Loan Association of San Francisco, which has been in financial difficulties, is given to the State Building and Loan Commissioner under a bill passed today by the Assembly. It provides that when loan associations fail to make returns on withdrawal applications after a lapse of two years the commissioner shall step in and take charge of the concerns. The bill was introduced by Wright of San Jose, and was aimed particularly at the San Francisco association.

SUTRO LIBRARY GIFT.

Validation of the Sutro library gift to the State of California is proposed in a bill presented for introduction in the lower house of the Legislature today by Tabler of Knights Landing. The bill further provides for the establishment of a branch State library in San Francisco, where the volumes shall be kept.

FOR "HOME TEACHERS."

Senator Thompson's bill providing for the employment of "home teachers" whose duty it would be to carry instruction into the homes of children and adults, where school attendance is not possible, was reported for passage today in the Assembly by the committee on education. Not only would the teachers instruct in grammar school courses but the bill provides that they also shall instruct parents in their preparation and use of food and clothing and in the fundamental principles of the American system of government. The bill is aimed at alien families where elemental instruction is regarded as necessary to proper education.

GIRLS! CLEAN AND BEAUTIFY HAIR NO DANDRUFF--25 CENT DANDERINE.

Stop washing hair! Try this! Makes hair glossy, soft and abundant.

Surely try a "Danderine Hair Cleanse" if you wish to immediately double the beauty of your hair. Just moisten a cloth with Danderine and draw it carefully through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or any excessive oil—in a few minutes you will be amazed. Your hair will be wavy, fluffy and abundant, and possess an incomparable softness, luster and luxuriance.

Besides beautifying the hair, one application of Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; invigorates the scalp, stopping itching and falling hair.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, soft, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.

TEUTON ADVANCE IS INEXORABLE.

Desperate Warsaw Campaign is Long Drawn Out.

Russians Employ Tricks to Deceive Invaders.

Greatest Fighting in History Almost Continuous.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

(Eighth article.)

BOLIMOW (Russia) February 25.—We have word today that the German engineers have been sent forward from certain points where the battle line is more advanced than it is here, to begin the rebuilding of bridges and railways which will facilitate the advance toward Warsaw. Here we are, thirty-five miles from the center of Warsaw, or little more than twenty from its western line of forts. Evidently certain troops lying to the north of us are nearer than that.

Meanwhile, some of the greatest fighting in history continues, and if much of it seems more like feats of engineering than battles, it is none the less desperate. The enormous activity and energy of this Warsaw campaign can be indicated by no figures. The mind of the layman simply fails to grasp it, let him go over the actual figures and the actual scenes as often as he will.

It is when he tries to get the business clear in his mind that he ceases to wonder that the lion eyes of Hindenburg are veiled by weary abstraction and that his staff encourages him to give a twenty-minute sitting to a painter every day to the end that this terrific strain may be lifted from his brain for a little while. The man has to think in the terms of frontiers.

VISUALIZE BIG TERRITORY.

Counting in the operations in East Prussia his mind has to carry from Tilsit on the north to the northern boundary of Rumania. Along a prodigious outward curve, along a still vaster inward curve, and along another outward curve that is greater than the other two combined that mind has to travel daily.

In other words, he must think from Tilsit to Bolimow, from Bolimow to Czenstochau, and from Czenstochau to the Bukowina. The best soldiers in Germany and Austria are thinking with him—Von Eichhorn and Mackensen, and Suren, and Von Morgen on the north. Von Bulow, too, and Von Lutzner and Lietzmann. And, toward the south, Woyrsch, with his Silesians and Austrians.

The operations are ceaseless and pitiless, and though the situation is constantly presenting new aspects, the German advance seems as inexorable as fate. At some points it appears to be as slow as the workings of fate. In the earlier operations around Lodz there was one position where the Germans were pounding away for five weeks. At another the siege business—for that is what this kind of fighting comes to—lasted two weeks.

ISOLATED FACTS GIVE IDEA.

One way to get an idea of the extent of this Russian campaign is to lay hold of isolated facts and dwell on them.

For example an officer assigned to the work of salvage in a district where there had been heavy fighting collected twelve baggage cars full of Russian rifles in five days. These had been gathered up from the fields and from the enemy's trenches.

And again: During the seven weeks ending with New Year's eve the Germans took 136,000 Russian prisoners of war and captured 100 cannon and 300 machine guns. Since then that record has been surpassed.

And the Germans can do things with dazzling celerity. At the time they were compelled to fall back from Lodz to Sieradz an officer of the engineers was ordered to dismantle the bridge over the Warte so that it could not be repaired in less than two months. He did it. In far less than two months he received orders to have the bridge back in commission in two weeks. He surveyed the ruin he had wrought, set his jaws hard, and executed the order. The Germans tell the story better—like this:

"Orders to wreck the bridge so that it could not be repaired for two months. He did it. Orders to restore the bridge in two weeks. He did that, too. Iron cross for the job."

TRICK WORRIES RUSSIANS.

As to the kind of fighting that breaks the monotony of the artillery duels, here is a specimen. Four miles north by east of Bolimow is the village of Borzymow. There was heavy fighting around it for days and that fighting culminated early last month. In the late afternoon of Saturday, January 2, the Germans, lying in the trenches before Borzymow, amused themselves and worried the Russians with their helmet trick.

Placing their helmets on the ends of their rifles, they lifted them a little above the edge of the trenches, giving the Russians the idea that the whole line was preparing to scramble from the trenches and make a dash for the Russian positions. Twenty times they did this before daylight failed, always drawing an energetic Russian fire until at last the Russians became disgusted and ceased to pay any attention to the helmet antics.

But after nightfall the Germans did really come on, and by midnight of January 2 to 3 they had stormed and captured Borzymow. But at midnight of January 3 and 4 the Russians retook their former positions and drove the Germans out of Borzymow. All day of Monday, the 4th, the Germans had that fact to ponder upon and they appeared not to care for it, for after nightfall they again stormed and again captured Borzymow, and, having taken 1000 prisoners, asked the Russians how they liked that complexion of things. The Russians seemed reconciled and did not come back. Now the place is heavily defended.

RUSSIANS' DECOY TRENCHES.

But as to tricks, the Russians can match the Germans any day with their decoy trenches and dummy guns. The decoy trenches, which are left somewhat exposed, are dug 1500 to 2000 feet in front of the actual trenches, which are heavily screened with earth and boughs. On the decoy trenches are mounted—not too obviously—the dummy guns fashioned out of logs. The actual guns—only light pieces, of course—are back on the lines of actual trenches, and these guns are almost entirely buried in the earth.

The high advantage of all this decoy business, which involves a vast amount of grim toil, is that when the flyers think they have discovered the true position of the enemy, and begin to signal their information to the artillery, they have discovered only the false trenches and the dummy guns. And when the artillery acts on this information it is pounding only the decoy works to pieces and working no harm at all to the true position, nearly a third of a mile away.

When the German flyers were hovering above the Russian positions the Russians permitted no firing, and so days would sometimes pass before the flyers—very puzzled, and so rendered suspicious—would, partly by chance and partly by persistence, get an inkling of the real state of affairs.

"Dot's ver-y, ver-y clever, indeed!" said the Germans when they at last got the hang of the ruse, adding: "We bet they learned it from the Japanese." For everything clever the Russians do the Germans have that explanation—"We bet they learned it from the Japanese."

FRIENDS RELIEVE WANDERER IN NEW YORK.

Man Without a Country Who Could Neither Land Here Nor Anywhere Else Finally Taken Off Steamer at Ellis Island by the Immigration Aid Society.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 27.—Nathan Cohen, who, as an insane person, traveled more than 33,000 miles on a $45 steamship ticket because neither this country, from which he was deported, nor Brazil, from where he emigrated, would admit him, has ended his travels. He was to have started back to Brazil on his fourth round trip aboard the steamship Vasari of the Lamport and Holt line today, but friends took him off the vessel five minutes before she sailed. They presented a stay of the order of deportation, which was secured at Washington.

It was learned several days ago that a man named Nathan Cohen was a member of the Knights of Pythias Lodge in Jacksonville, Fla. A representative of the lodge came here and found out that the Cohen detained aboard the Vasari was the same man. The Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society of America was communicated with and it was then learned that Cohen became insane after his entrance to this country as the result of a series of business troubles. This fact was communicated to the immigration officials at Washington and the stay was issued. Cohen was taken to Ellis Island from the steamer late today. He will be released upon a bond of $500 as soon as it can be arranged. The bond will be supplied jointly by the aid society and the fraternal order.

COLLEGE LECTURES VAUDEVILLE SHOW.

VASSAR PRESIDENT DECLARES PRESENT SYSTEM IS A BIG JOKE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA March 27.—Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken, president of Vassar University, speaking before the Philadelphia alumnae of that institution at their annual luncheon here today said the present system of visiting lecturers at colleges furnishes nothing more than a "haphazard vaudeville show."

"A love of strangeness and novelty encourages eccentric lecturers," Dr. MacCracken said. "The college is at the mercy of the lecture bureaus and the haste with which a speaker rushes to Vassar and tries to make the next train for New York is truly painful."

Dr. MacCracken suggested that there should be an intercollegiate lecture bureau and that each college should determine its own definite lecture needs.

FRUIT LAXATIVE FOR SICK CHILD GIVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS."

Cleanses tender little stomach, liver, bowels without injury.

Every mother realizes that this is the children's ideal laxative and physic, because they love its pleasant taste and it never fails to effect a thorough "inside cleansing" without griping.

When your child is cross, irritable, feverish, or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat sore, has stomach ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic—remember, a good liver and bowel cleaning should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Directions for babies, children of all ages, and grown-ups are plainly on each bottle.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs." Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other fig syrup with contempt.

Eyeglasses Not Necessary

Eyesight Can Be Strengthened and Most Forms of Diseased Eyes Successfully Treated Without Cutting or Drugging.

That the eyes can be strengthened so that eyeglasses can be dispensed with in many cases has been proven beyond a doubt by the testimony of hundreds of people who publicly claim that their eyesight has been restored by that wonderful little instrument called "Actina." "Actina also relieves Sore and Granulated Lids, Iritis, Cataracts, etc., without cutting or drugging. Over 100,000 "Actina" have been sold; therefore the Actina treatment is not an experiment, but is reliable. The following letters are but samples of hundreds we receive:

Mr. David Suttle, Glen Ellyn, Ill., writes: "I sent for your 'Actina,' and when it came I told my wife I would throw my glasses away and give the 'Actina' a fair show. I did so, following directions, and soon felt my eyes were getting in normal condition again, and now I can say my eyesight is as good as ever, and my headaches practically vanished."

Mr. Emery E. Deitrick, 7124 Idlewild street, E. E. Pittsburg, Pa., writes: "My eyes were very weak, and my vision was so bad that I could recognize people only at short distances. Since using 'Actina' I have discarded my glasses, my headaches are gone and my vision, I believe, is as good as ever it was."

Mr. J. H. Frankfield, 522 E. 20th street, Cheyenne, Wyo., writes: 'Regarding what the 'Actina' has done for me I am proud to say that I am not wearing my glasses at all. As for my cataract it is almost gone, and I have been troubled with it for more than sixteen years.

"A great number of my railroad friends are buying 'Actina,' as you know by the orders you have received."

"Actina" can be used with perfect safety by every member of the family for any affliction of the eye, ear, throat or head. A Free trial of the "Actina" is given in every case.

GERMANS DELAY SHIP INQUIRY.

HOLLAND IS INDIGNANT AT THE SINKING OF VESSELS.

Report that Ultimatum had been Sent by The Netherlands is Denied, but Telegraph Demand was Immediately Sent to Berlin—Investigation Under Way.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

THE HAGUE, March 27 (via London.)—Germany has informed the Minister of The Netherlands at Berlin that the investigation into the seizure by German submarines of the Dutch steamers Zaanstrom and Batavier V has not yet been concluded.

An explanation of these acts was asked for by the Minister. The vessels in question were seized while en route to England and taken into Zeebrugge. The German government has sent a special official to that port to investigate and his report is awaited with much interest.

The Minister has been charged also to obtain from the German government an explanation of the sinking March 25 off Beachy Head of the Dutch steamer Medea, bound for London. The Medea was torpedoed by the German submarine U-28.

A Netherlands statesman very closely connected with the government and fully cognizant of the action taken, informed the Associated Press today there was no truth in current rumors of a Dutch ultimatum to Germany, but immediately the report of the sinking of the Medea was received, a telegraphic inquiry had been sent to Berlin.

What is described as the high-handed procedure of the German submarines has aroused indignation among all classes in Holland, but under the Declaration of London, it is admitted in semi-official circles here, German warships have a right to sink any vessel captured if the German naval commanders consider that to convoy them as prizes to the nearest port, in this instance Zeebrugge, would place their own vessels in danger.

France and Great Britain, it is contended here, do not need to sink their prizes as their ports are open.

ORDER BIG BATTLESHIP ON NEUTRALITY DUTY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The battleship Alabama of the reserve fleet was ordered to Hampton Roads tonight on "neutrality duty," according to an announcement from the Navy Department. The battleship is at the Philadelphia yard.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels said it was intended to place one large vessel on guard to support the submarines and destroyers which have been on duty since the German commerce destroyer Prinz Eitel Friedrich reached Newport News. Heavy ships had been employed in neutrality duty at Boston and New York, the secretary said, and it was thought best to take similar precautions at Hampton Roads, as the smaller vessels would be handicapped in the event of heavy weather.

MILLIONS IN WAR LOANS ARRANGED IN NEW YORK.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 27.—Conferences among bankers here, it was announced today, have brought near conclusion arrangements for the extension of credits to Great Britain, France, Italy and other countries in addition to the $10,000,000 loan to Germany.

The French credit, it is expected, will be the first to be closed. The amount has not been definitely fixed, but may, it is said, be as large as $50,000,000.

The English credit, it was said, may be twice as large as that for France. Negotiations are in progress for a loan to Russia in addition to the $25,000,000 she recently obtained. Italy is likely to obtain a credit.

Most, if not all of these loans, are expected to take the form in which they can be sold to the public in order that the banks may not have to carry the big sums involved out of their own resources.

Bankers engaged in these negotiations say that it is greatly to the interest of both capital and labor in this country that the European countries should be put in position to continue their purchases here. Labor, they believe, gets the lion's share of the money so spent and the extension of these credits makes it possible to keep mills running and workmen employed that would be idle except for the extraordinary demand due to the war.

SPAIN'S FEELING TOWARD PORTUGAL.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

MADRID, March 27 (via Paris.)—Marquis de Lama, the Foreign Minister, has severely criticised that portion of the Spanish press which is conducting a campaign against Portugal.

"It is the desire of the Spanish government," the Marquis says, "to put an end to the ridiculous stories which present Spain as nourishing a hostile attitude and ambitious intentions toward her sister nation."

After the Cabinet meeting yesterday Premier Dato declared that the call of 30,000 men to the colors was merely the carrying out of established requirements.

Santa Ana.

STATE ACTION IS REQUESTED.

Orange County Objects to Use of the Dragnet.

Great Walnut Crop Promised for Orange County.

Additional Highway Bonds may be Voted.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, March 27.—Within the last two days appeals have been sent to the State Fish and Game Commission and to Gov. Johnson asking for State action in preventing the further use of the pernicious dragnet along the shores of Orange county.

Letters from the local Fish and Game Association have been sent urging that war be made upon San Pedro fishermen who are alleged to be daily breaking the law in using the prohibited net.

Victor Walker, a leader in the movement, said today that the condition is serious.

"I have counted as many as thirty boats in a day on the coast of this county and they were using unlawful means to catch fish," said he. "The dragnet, also known as the paranzella or trawl net, is devastating as it drags on the bottom and damages spawning beds and kills the fry. Orange county fishermen not only respect the law but they know that the continuous use of the dragnet is going to clean out the fish, just as continuous hunting has cleaned out many mountain ranges of wild game. If the fishing is knocked in the head, several dozen families of this county will be derived of their means of livelihood.

"For the last eighteen months the San Pedro fishermen have been dragging the waters of the Orange county coast. So far as is known here nothing was done to prevent the depredations until Orange county's new game warden, W. E. Adkinson, went on the job. Last week he caught the Ethel H. of San Pedro and threw George Romans and a helper into jail. That shows that the fishermen can be caught. It looks to Orange county fishermen and to all those who are interested in preserving the industry that some radical steps should be taken to stop the practice.

Today a letter was sent to State Senator Anderson and Assemblyman Burke by Victor Walker and T. E. Stephenson, as a committee of local fish and game men, urging that a law be passed making it a crime for anyone to have a dragnet in his possession.

WALNUT EXHIBIT.

While the name of this county is Orange, it would not be amiss to call it Walnut. D. W. McDannald, the county's lecturer in the Southern California Counties Building at the exposition in San Francisco, was here today making a collection of walnuts to be entered in competition for a gold medal, and since the county produces forty per cent of the walnut crop of California, McDannald is having no trouble in getting all of the fine walnuts he wants. The exhibit will be placed in the Agricultural Building.

McDannald is going to display five varieties, all of which were first propagated in this county, most of them offspring of the old English walnut stock. Those varieties are the Klondike, Eureka, Neff's Prolific, Garden Grove and Placentia.

An exhibit of chile peppers is also being secured to enter into competition for a gold medal.

"I feel sure that Orange county will win both medals," said McDannald. "I know that the walnut exhibit in the Southern California Counties Building attracts as much attention as any exhibit in it."

The walnut crop of this county is worth $1,400,000 a year. Santa Ana ships more walnuts than any other shipping point in the world.

TO TALK IT OVER.

Those who favor an additional good roads bond issue of $500,000 of Orange county are going to ask the Associated Chambers of Commerce for an expression of opinion. The county's associated boosters are to hold their annual meeting at Elks' Hall, Santa Ana, next Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock and today in sending out notices to the various boards of trade and chambers of commerce of the county announcing that meeting, Secretary J. C. Metzgar stated that the proposal for $500,000 bonds would be up for discussion.

While the disposal of the surplus in the good roads fund after the roads provided for in the $1,270,000 bond issue voted two years ago has been settled, those interested in getting a coast boulevard along the seashore of Orange county will be behind the proposed $500,000 bond issue. In a previous meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce a proposal to ask for additional bonds was defeated in the shape in which it then came up. At that time it was tied up in the controversy concerning the disposal of the surplus. Those who want the additional bonds probably believe the matter can now be viewed in a different light.

FOUR AMERICAN CARGOES DETAINED BY THE BRITISH.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, March 27 (6:40 p.m.)—Four steamers with cargoes composed for the most part of foodstuffs shipped from American ports for ports in Sweden, Denmark and Holland, are now being detained at the Scottish seaport of Kirkwall. They are the Norwegian steamers Sark, Korsfjord and Stiklestad and the Swedish steamer Nike.

The Norwegian steamer Sark from New York for Copenhagen was detained at Kirkwall on March 23 and since has been held pending an investigation as to the consignee of her cargo of barley.

The Norwegian steamer Karsfjord from New York for Gothenburg, Sweden, with a cargo made up mostly of foodstuffs, has been detained at Kirkwall since March 24. Her cargo has been ordered before a prize court. The Swedish steamer Nike, bound from Baltimore for Norrkoping, Sweden, has been detained at Kirkwall since March 23. Her captain has been advised that the ship may proceed if the cargo is discharged in England.

The Norwegian steamship Stiklestad from New York for Rotterdam, has been held at Kirkwall since March 23 pending reconsignment of her cargo of foodstuffs to the Netherlands Overseas Trust.

The Danish steamers Texas and United States, from New York to Copenhagen, were permitted to leave Kirkwall March 23 under a pledge that they would return certain articles to England if such action were required.

GERMAN PEOPLE ARE REASSURED.

MUST NOT BE CRUSHED, BUT GOOD-BY HOHENZOLLERN.

Former French Minister Outlines Probable Outcome of Negotiations if the Allies are Successful, and Declares no Territorial Aggrandizement will be Considered.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, March 15.—If a lasting peace is to be assured, the allies must not attempt to crush the German people, according to Yves Guyot, former Minister of Public Works in France.

In an address before the National Liberal Club, he said one of the first articles of peace preliminaries should be the refusal to treat with any member of the house of Hohenzollern. The German peasants, land-owners and manufacturers should be reassured that the desire of the allies was not to crush the German people, but, on the contrary, to extend the liberties of the Germans, only at the expense of the ruling family.

The imperial constitution by which the Emperor had obtained unlimited power and by which Prussia had become the dominating state, must be amended, he said. Prussia should be restricted; the portion of Saxony seized by Prussia in 1815 should be returned to Saxony, similarly the annexations of 1866 must be anulled, Frankfort made a free town and the Rhenish province and Westphalia declared autonomous states.

This would take the leadership of Germany from Prussia and establish the European balance by removal of the menace of the will of a single person.

The allies, declared the speaker, had no territorial ambitions in Germany apart from the restoration of Alsace-Lorraine to France. The reconstitution of Poland would offer the great advantage of a buffer state between Russia and Prussia. The allies should demand the neutralization of the Kiel Canal, like that of the Suez, and the treaty of 1859 should be completed, by which the straits joining the Baltic to the North Sea would be declared free waters.

Neutrals must be excluded from the peace negotiations, and all other considerations subordinated to the elimination of the causes of war, said M. Guyot.

As to Turkey, there no longer exists the same objections as formerly to the occupation of Constantinople by Russia. Germany's colonies must be divided up between Great Britain, France and Japan, he said.

BRITISH LOSSES IN KUBRI BATTLE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

CAIRO, Friday, March 26 (via London, March 27, 12 noon.)—An official statement on the military situation in Egypt, reading as follows, was issued here today:

"The British losses in a skirmish in the desert ten miles to the east of Kubri,, March 23, were three men killed and sixteen wounded. There were no officer casualties on our side. The enemy left on the field about fifty men killed and some 250 rounds of 3-inch gun ammunition, but he succeeded in carrying away nearly all his wounded. Aeroplane reconnaissances show that this Turkish force has retreated to Nekhl."

BRITISH RELEASE RUBY AND RAVEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, March 27.—A special cablegram to the Chicago Daily News from London, Eng., today says:

"An understanding has been reached between the British and American governments by which the ships Ruby and Raven, detained at the Downs, off the southeast coast, will be released and permitted to proceed with their cargoes of packing-house products to Rotterdam, Monday. Four other ships similarly laden are held subject to further negotiations."

HONVEDS CHANT IN LAST CHARGE.

Two Hundred Died Daily at Siege of Przemysl.

Garrison Subsisted Long on Rice and Horse Meat.

Artillery Destroyed Before City Surrendered.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, March 27 (via London.)—A striking story of the last days of the Austrian stronghold of Przemysl has been sent by the correspondent of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger at Austrian press headquarters, who obtained his information from an Austrian aviation lieutenant named Stanger. The lieutenant and Pilot Capt. Lehmann were the only aviators who left the Przemysl fortress on the last day of its existence who have as yet reported to the Austrian authorities.

According to Lieut. Stanger, as early as December the rations of the defenders grew scarce and the allotments were cut down. They virtually gave out March 18. Bread had long since been unknown, horse meat and rice lasted the longest.

The condition of the defenders was in every way precarious. Two hundred died each day during the last few days of the siege, and there were no fewer than 28,000 men in hospitals. It was consequently decided March 18 to make a final attempt to break through the Russian line. The Honveds and some older troops sallied out on this last expedition, singing, but the flesh was weaker than the spirit. It took them seven hours to march seven kilometers (four miles,) and many exhausted men were left along the way.

FORCED TO RETREAT.

The expedition fought bravely, but it was forced to retreat at 10 o'clock in the morning. It had to return a distance of fourteen kilometers (eight miles) before it reached the protection of the forts. Nevertheless the Honveds came back singing as they had gone out.

The Russians, who saw from the condition of the captives made by them how desperate was the plight of the garrison, began their bombardment the night of March 20, only a few hours after the exhausted members of the expeditionary force had returned to the forts. The commandant decided that the fortress must be held until 5 o'clock in the morning of March 22. Preparations were made to destroy the fortifications and the artillery. The infantry regiments were withdrawn from their positions and the civilian population of Przemysl was assembled outside the zone of danger. Then the work of destruction began. The method was this: A motor howitzer was loaded as usual and then the gun was filled with sand. It was then fired, with the result that the explosive force, thrown back into the gun, wrecked it and its immediate surroundings.

Five Russian officers and 2000 soldiers, prisoners of war, were in the fortress when it fell.

An Austrian officer was posted on the ruins of each fort and provided with a white flag. He was instructed to make this announcement to the Russians:

"His Excellency cannot hold the fort any longer on account of the lack of provisions and he leaves everything to the chivalry of the enemy."

GRAND VIZIER ACTS PROMPTLY.

PROMISES TO RESTRAIN WILD MOBS IN PERSIA.

Belief Expressed to American Minister that Reports Have been Exaggerated, but Efforts are Being Made to Protect American Missionaries Threatened at Urumiah.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 27.—The Grand Vizier of Turkey has issued instructions to his subordinates that all inhabitants of the mob-ridden section of Persia, including the thousands of Christians in the vicinity of Urumiah, must be protected, according to advices received from the State Department today by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. Reports from Urumiah made public yesterday announced that the large village of Gulpashan had been destroyed, its men shot and sixty-five refugees from French and American missions hanged. A massacre impends, according to the message.

George T. Scott, assistant to the board, said the State Department had advised him "that Ambassador Morgenthau at Constantinople had communicated to the Grand Vizier the request of the State Department for protection of Americans in the vicinity of Urumiah.

"The Grand Vizier, the letter says, expressed the belief that the report of outrages there were inaccurate and told Mr. Morgenthau he would immediately instruct his subordinates to protect all inhabitants of the section, including, of course, the Christians.

"Mr. Morgenthau's cablegram, the letter said, was dated March 24 but did not reach the State Department until yesterday, March 26, having been delayed in transit for two days."

TURKS HURRY RELIEF.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Efforts to have adequate measures taken for the safety of American missionaries and refugees near Urumiah, Persia, continued today by the State Department. Turkey had informed the United States that relief would be hurried to the scene, where a Kurd uprising threatened a general Christian massacre, but the number of troops to be sent and other proposed details of the expedition were not yet known.

The State Department's renewed efforts were made after the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions at New York received alarming reports of atrocities at Gulpashan, Persia, a few miles from Urumiah. It was declared sixty men had been taken from the French mission and five from the American mission compound and hanged.

While the State Department had received no official notice of that report, it had an appeal from the Presbyterian board for relief.

RUSSIANS SUFFER SEVERE LOSSES.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

VIENNA (via London) March 27, 9:45 p.m.—The following official Austrian statement was issued here tonight:

"Russian attacks with strong new forces on the Carpathian front have miscarried and the enemy suffered severe losses.

"In the hills near Benyavoelgz, on both sides of the Latorcza Valley south of Labotczrev, very violent fighting continues.

"In Bukowina, northeast of Czernowitz, our troops after a violent engagement repelled superior Russian forces, driving them back to the frontier. We took several villages and captured over 1000 prisoners and two guns.

"In Russian Poland and in Western Galicia there is no change."

BIG SHIPMENTS FOR RUSSIA.

FIVE BIG STEAMERS TO SAID FROM SEATTLE.

Three Hundred and Eighty-four Traction Automobiles Have Arrived in the North and Eighteen American Long-range Guns are Lying on the Docks.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, March 23.—Five large British and Japanese steamers are announced to sail from Puget Sound and British Columbia ports for Vladivostok within the next month. From American ports the boats take bales of cotton, great numbers of automobile trucks and others merchandise, and from Vancouver, cannon and ammunition, manufactured in the United States and shipped to Vancouver through Canada. The Russian Consulate here has been elevated to a Consul-Generalate and the trade built up promises to be permanent.

Three hundred and eighty-four large traction automobiles have arrived in Seattle, Tacoma and Vancouver for shipment to the Russian army in Europe by way of Vladivostok, and many more machines are on the way from the eastern States. Russia has been greatly handicapped by inability to concentrate troops rapidly. From this defect resulted the victories of Gen. Von Hindenburg.

Eighteen American long range guns are now at Vancouver awaiting shipment. Besides the five big vessels on the way, a sixth ship is reported chartered for a voyage to Vladivostok.

CAPTAINS RETURN WITHOUT SHIPS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 27.—Capt. Fred G. Avery of the American steamer Denver, which was abandoned March 23, after wireless calls had brought rescuing steamers to her aid, arrived today with Mrs. Avery and thirteen members of his crew on the steamer Megantic. Members of the crew said the Denver had been leaking several days before her abandonment and that for two days the fires under the boilers had been out.

Capt. David T. Smith of the American steamer Evelyn, which was sunk by a mine in the North Sea, was a passenger on the Denver and arrived here on the Megantic.

EIGHTEEN BRITISH SAILORS ARE LOST.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, March 27.—Eighteen members of the crew of the British steamship Trostburg lost their lives yesterday, when the vessel was wrecked near Cape Spartel, on the Moroccan coast at the entrance to the Strait of Gibraltar, according to a dispatch from Tangier to Reuter's Telegram Company. The Trostburg was a vessel of 7000 tons.

GOODYEAR COMPANY, 324 South Broadway

Finally, at the close of October, the entire German press incessantly proclaimed the importance of the battle of Calais. It is superfluous to add that events in Poland explain in large measure the passionate resolve of the German General Staff to obtain a decision on the western theater of operations at all costs. This decision would be obtained if our left were pierced or driven in. To reach Calais, that is, to break our left; to carry Ypres, that is, to cut it in half; through both points to menace the communications and supplies of the British expeditionary force, perhaps to threaten Britain in her island; such was the German plan in the battle of Flanders. It was a plan that could not be executed.

CHECK GERMAN ATTACK.

The enemy, who had at his disposal a considerable quantity of heavy artillery, directed his effort at first upon the coast and country to the north of Dixmude. His objective was manifestly the capture of Dunkirk, then of Calais and Bouglogne, and this objective he pursued until November 1.

On October 25 the Belgians along the railway lines from Nieuport to Dixmude were strengthened by a French division. Dixmude was occupied by our marines. On the 29th the inundations effected between the canal and the railway line spread along our front. On the 30th we recaptured Ramscapelle, the only point on the railway which the Belgians had lost. On the first and second of Novem- the enemy bombarded Furnes, but began to show signs of weariness. On the second, he evacuated the ground between the Yser and the railway, abandoning cannon, dead and wounded. On the third our troops were able to re-enter the Dixmude district. The success achieved by the enemy at Dixmude at this juncture was without fruit. They succeeded in taking the town. They could not debouch from it.

The coastal attack had thus proved a total failure. Since then it never has been renewed. The battle of Calais so noisily announced by the German press, amounted to a decided reverse for the Germans.

GERMAN DEFEAT AT YPRES.

The enemy had now begun an attack more important than its predecessor, in view of the numbers engaged in it. This attack was intended as a renewal to the south of the effort which had just been shattered in the north. Instead of turning our flank on the coast, it was now sought to drive in the right of our northern army under the shock of powerful masses. This was the battle of Ypres.

"Ypres was solidly covered and the connections of all the allied forces were established. Against the line thus formed, the German attack was hurled from October 25 to November 13 to the north, the east and south of Ypres. From October 26 on the attacks were renewed daily with extraordinary violence, obliging us to employ our reinforcements at the most threatened points as soon as they came up. Between October 30 and November 6 Ypres was several times in danger. The British lost Zandvorde, Ghelluvelt, Messines and Wytschaete. The front of the allies, thus contracted, was all the more difficult to defend, but defended it was, without a recoil.

The arrival of three French divisions in our line enabled us to resume, from the 4th to the 8th, a vigorous offensive. On the 10th and the 11th this offensive, brought up against fresh and sharper German attacks, was checked. Before it could be renewed, the arrival of fresh reinforcements had to be awaited, which were dispatched to the north on November 12. By the 14th our troops had again begun to progress, barring the road to Ypres against the German attacks and inflicting on the enemy, who advanced in massed formation, losses which were especially terrible, in consequence of the fact that French and British artillery had crowded nearly 200 guns onto these few kilometres of front.

Thus the main mass of the German army sustained the same defeat as the detachments operating further to the north along the coast. The support which, according to the idea of the German General Staff, the attack on Ypres was to render to the coastal attack, was as futile as that attack itself had been.

During the second half of November the enemy, exhausted and having lost in the battle of Ypres alone more than 150,000 men, did not attempt to renew his effort, but confined himself to an intermittent cannonade. We, on the contrary, achieved appreciable progress to the north and south of Ypres and insured definitely by a powerful defensive organization of the position the inviolability of our front.

The report next proceeds to summarize the character and results of the operations since the battle of Flanders; that is, during the period November 30-February 1. It says that since the former date the French supreme command had not thought it advisable to embark upon important offensive operations. It had confined itself to local attacks, the main object of which was to hold in front of us as large a number of German corps as possible and thus to prevent the withdrawal of the troops which to our knowledge, the German General Staff was anxious to dispatch to Russia. As a matter of fact, the numbers transported to the eastern front have been very moderate.

Of the fifty-two army corps which faced us on the western front, Germany has only been able to take four and one-half corps for the eastern front. On the other hand climatic conditions—the rain, mud and mist—were such as to diminish the effectiveness of offensive operations and to add to the costliness of any undertaken which was another reason for postponing them. Still another reason lies in the fact that from now on the allied forces can count on a steady expanding growth, equally in point of numbers and units, as of material, while the German forces have attained the maximum of their power and can only diminish now, both in numbers and in value. These conditions explain the character of the siege warfare which the operations have assumed during the period under review.

Meanwhile it is by no means the case that the siege warfare has had the same results for the Germans as for us. From November 15 to February 1 our opponents, in spite of very numerous attacks, did not succeed in taking anything from us except a few hundred meters of ground to the north of Soissons. We, on the contrary, have obtained numerous and appreciable results.

The French writer here proceeds to strike a balance of gains and losses between the allies and the German forces in France during the winter campaign. The result he sums up as follows:

(1.) A general progress of our troops, very marked at certain points.

(2.) A general falling back of the enemy except to the northeast of Soissons. He continues:

To complete the balance it must be added that:

(1.) The German offensive in Poland was checked a month ago.

(2.) The Russian offensive continues in Galicia and the Carpathians.

(3.) A large part of the Turkish Caucasian army has been annihilated.

(4.) Germany has exhausted her resources of officers (there are now on an average twelve officers to a regiment) and henceforth will only be able to develop her resources in men to the detriment of the existing units.

(5.) The allied armies, on the contrary, possess the power of reinforcing themselves in a very considerable degree.

It may therefore be declared that, in order to obtain success, it is sufficient for France and her allies to know how to wait and to prepare victory with indefatigable patience.

GERMAN OFFENSIVE BROKEN.

The German defensive will be broken in its turn.

Part two, under the caption "The French army as it is," deals exhaustively with the condition of the army after six months of war, the higher command, the supply of officers and non-commissioned officers and of munitions of war of all kinds, and transport and auxiliary services.

The compiler of the report, beginning his review on February 1, states that the condition of the French army is excellent and appreciably superior to what it was at the beginning of the war from the three points of view of numbers, quality and equipment.

In the higher command important changes have been made. It has, in fact, been rejuvenated by the promotion of young commanders of proved quality to high rank. All the old generals, who at the beginning of August were at the head of large commands, have been gradually eliminated, some as the result of the physical strain of war and others by appointment to territorial commands. This rejuvenation of the higher ranks of the army has been carried out in a far-reaching manner and it may be said that it has embraced all the grades of military hierarchy from commanders of brigades to commanders of armies. The result has been to lower the average age of general officers by ten years. Today more than three-fourths of the officers commanding armies and army corps are less than 60 years of age. Some are considerably younger. A number of the army corps commanders are from 46 to 54 years of age and the brigade commanders are usually under 50. There are, in fact, at the front extremely few general officers over 60 and these are men who are in full possession of their physical and intellectual powers.

This rejuvenation of the high command was facilitated by a number of circumstances, notable among which were the strengthening of the higher regimental ranks carried out during the three years preceding the war, as a result of which at the outset of the campaign each infantry regiment had two lieutenant-colonels and each cavalry and artillery regiment a colonel and a lieutenant-colonel, and also the system of promotion for the duration of the war. Many officers who began the war as colonels now command brigades. Some are even at the head of divisions or army corps. Ability proved on the field of battle is now immediately recognized and utilized and in this way it has been possible to provide in the most favorable manner for the vacancies created by the changes in command which were considered necessary in the first weeks of the war.

The higher grades of the French army are inspired by a remarkable unity in the matter of military theory, and by a solidarity of spirit which has found striking expression in the course of the numerous moves of army corps from one part of the theater of operations to another, which have been carried out since the beginning of the war.

The cavalry after six months of war still possesses an excess of officers. There are on an average thirty-six officers to a regiment, instead of the thirty-one considered to be the necessary minimum. The artillery, which has suffered relatively little, has also an excess of officers, and is further able to count on a large number of captains and other officers who before the war were employed in the arsenals or in technical research. Finally, the reserve artillery officers have nearly all proved to be excellent battery commanders.

The losses in the junior commissioned ranks have naturally been highest in the infantry. There is, however, nothing like a want of officers in this rank. Many captains and lieutenants who have been wounded by machine-gun fire (such wounds are usually slight and quickly healed) have been able to return speedily to the front. The reserve officers have in general done remarkably well and in many cases have shown quite exceptional aptitude for the rank of company commanders. The non-commissioned officers promoted to sub-lieutenancies make excellent section leaders and even show themselves very energetic and efficient company commanders in the field.

It must be remembered also, thanks to the intellectual and physical development of the generation now serving with the colors; and thanks, above all, to the warlike qualities of the race, and the democratic spirit of our army, we have been able to draw upon the lower grades and even upon the rank and file for officers. Many men who began the war on August 2 as privates now wear the officers' epaulettes. The elasticity of our regulations regarding promotion in war times, the absence of the spirit of caste and the friendly welcome extended by all officers to those of their military inferiors who have shown under fire their fitness to command have enabled us to meet all requirements.

The staff of the infantry on January 15 was very satisfactory and much superior to that of the German infantry. On an average each of our regiments has forty-eight officers including eighteen regular officers, fifteen reserve officers and fifteen non-commissioned officers. In each regiment six of the twelve companies are commanded by captains who are regular officers, three by captains of the reserve and three by lieutenants. Each company has at least three officers.

In summary the staff of the army as regards the commissioned ranks from the highest to the lowest is declared to be exceptionally brilliant. The army is led by young well trained and daring chiefs and the lower commissioned ranks have acquired the art of war by experience. Finally a warm tribute is paid to the work of the staffs of the armies and of the army corps which were formed three years ago and have thrown themselves into their work in entire agreement both of views and methods.

Including all ranks, France now has more than 2,500,000 men at the front and every unit is, or was on January 15, at war strength. The infantry companies are at least 200 strong. In many regiments the companies have a strength of 250 or more.

In the other arms, which have suffered less than the infantry, the units are all up to, or above, regulation strength.

This fact constitutes one of the most important advantages of the French army over the Germans. While Germany has created a great number of units, army corps or divisions, which absorbed at a blow all of her available resources in officers and men, the French supreme command has avoided the formation of new units, except in limited number, and has only admitted exceptions to this rule when it was able to count with certainty on being able to provide amply for both the present and future requirements of the new units as regards all ranks without encroaching upon the reserves needed for the existing units.

At the same time, thanks to the depots in the interior of the country, the effectives at the front have been maintained at full strength. The sources of supplies for this purpose were the remainder of the eleven classes of the reserve, the younger classes of the territorial army, and the new class of 1914. A large number of the men wounded in the earlier engagements of the war have been able to return to the front. They have been incorporated in the new drafts providing these with a useful stiffening of war-tried men.

With regard to the supplies of men upon which the army may draw to repair the wastage at the front, we learn that there are practically half as many men in the depots as at the front—in other words, about 1,250,000. Further supplies of men are provided by the class of 1915 and the revision of the various categories of men of military age previously exempted on grounds of health, or for other reasons, from the duty of bearing arms. As a result of this measure nearly 500,000 men have been claimed for the army, almost all of whom, after rigorous physical tests, have been declared fit for military service.

In the depots in which the new soldiers are being trained the services of many officers and noncommissioned officers, discharged as convalescents after being wounded, are utilized in order to give a practical turn to the instruction. There are still many voluntary enlistments, and with all these resources of men the army can count on reinforcements soon to be available which will considerably augment its offensive power.

The quality of the troops has improved perceptibly since the beginning of the war. The men have become hardened and used to war, and their health—largely owing to the excellence of the commissariat—is extremely satisfactory. In spite of the severity of the winter, hardly any cases of disease of the respiratory organs have occurred, and the sanitary returns of the army show an appreciable improvement on those of the preceding winter.

With regard to the reserves, experience has verified the dictum of the Servian and Bulgarian generals in the war of 1913, namely, that two months in the field are necessary in order to get all the full value of reserves.

Our infantry is now accustomed to the rapid and thorough "organization of the defensive." In August it neither liked nor had the habit of using the spade. Today those who see our trenches are astounded. They are veritable improvised fortresses, proof against the seventy-seven-millimeter gun and often against artillery of higher caliber. During the last five months not a single encounter may be cited in which our infantry did not have the advantage over the German infantry. All the enemy's attacks have been repulsed, except to the north of Soissons, where their success was due to the flooded state of the Aisne and the carrying away of our bridges. Our attacks, on the other hand, have yielded important results and have been carried out with plenty of spirit, although without the imprudence which cost us such heavy losses in August. The cavalry made a remarkable progress. Throughout October this branch was called on to eke out the inadequate numbers of the infantry and showed itself perfectly adapted to the necessities of fighting on foot. Several regiments of cavalry have been used as infantry and, armed with rifles, rendered the most valuable services.

The artillery has displayed a superiority in the use of its admirable material which is recognized by the Germans themselves.

This chapter of the report concludes with tribute to the work of the aviators and to the less brilliant, but not less useful, work of the engineers, who in the trench warfare which is now being waged have naturally been called upon to display great activity.

NEW BATTLESHIPS FOR DARDANELLES.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, March 27.—Fresh battleships from the marine forces of Great Britain, France and Russia are expected to reach the Dardanelles today to reinforce the allied squadron, according to a dispatch from Athens published in the Evening News.

With the arrival of these vessels the assaults on the straits will be resumed at once, the dispatch says.

ITALIAN AGENTS BUYING HORSES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, March 27.—Two Italians, said to represent the Italian government, have been steady buyers of horses at the stockyards here for the last three months, it was learned today. Heavy purchases have been made also at East St. Louis, Ill., it was learned.

BRITISH DETAIN JOSEPH WEGLAU.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, March 27.—Joseph Weglau, claiming American citizenship, has been taken in charge by Scotland Yard officials and will be sent to a concentration camp. Weglau obtained a temporary American passport in Berlin, then went to New York and later started back for the German capital with the expired passport, on a Dutch ship. A British warship took Weglau from the vessel and brought him to England.

Weglau, who is 24 years old, lived many years in Germany. His parents were German, but his father had been in America for twenty years, during which time he had been connected with a dry goods house in New York.

VON KUSMANEK PRISONER OF WAR.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, March 27, 12:27 p.m.—The Reuter Telegram Company has received a dispatch from its correspondent at Kiev, Russia, saying that Gen. Von Kusmanek, the Austrian officer who commanded the fortress at Przemysl, has arrived there a prisoner and been assigned to quarters.

UNION DOCKERS BACK AT WORK.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, March 27, 1:53 p.m.—Responding to appeals made by War Secretary Kitchener, the Earl of Derby, and the leaders of their unions, the Liverpool dockers unanimously resumed work today. The men at Birkenhead, however, still remain out and are tying up work on several big ships.

THINK MILLION MADE BY FRAUD.

Detective Agency Rapped by Postoffice Officials.

Adopted Name of Pinkerton, it is Alleged.

Local Merchants Mulcted of Thousands, Charge.

Frauds alleged to have been imposed on local merchants and involving many thousands of dollars were exposed by a telegram received by Capt. C. V. Hatter, manager of the Los Angeles office of the Pinkerton National Detective Agency, informing him that the Postoffice Department at Washington had issued a fraud order against Pinkerton & Company U. S. Detective Agency. The total of money taken in by the alleged mock agency are estimated to be more than $1,000,000.

Several months ago the agency made its appearance here, sending out a number of clever solicitors who represented, it is alleged in numerous affidavits given by prominent local business men, that the company was a part of the regular Pinkerton detective agency. By this appeal, they succeeded in signing a great number of contracts with many of the most important business organizations in the city, in which they agreed to make collections and use the regular Pinkerton operatives in effecting these collections.

Because of the substantial reputation of the detective agency, upon which they poached, the newcomers were able to do a most lucrative business, it is alleged, particularly as they were given many thousands of dollars in delinquent bills to collect, and in some instances, it is charged, made no return whatever on the ones for which they received payment. The sworn testimony in the hands of Capt. Hatter shows the agency made no effort to return collected accounts to the merchants, coolly pocketing the proceeds as part of their profits.

OFFICE KEPT HERE.

The imitation concern is alleged to have offices in all parts of the country. It is charged the local representative is one George Loehr, who has desk room in a downtown office building. He has employed a number of solicitors and has offered a most liberal percentage for all business signed by them.

The imitation company is reported to have incurred the hostility of the Postoffice Department by the letters sent from the agency to debtors, in which threats were made that unless an immediate settlement of the delinquent accounts was made, the Pinkerton detectives would be placed on their trail. The insinuations are alleged to have been so broad that they constituted practical blackmail.

Capt. Hatter reports that numerous persons who owed no bills at all had been threatened by the alleged bogus company in the name of the Pinkerton agency, and had come to the local office to complain against such conduct on the part of the established agency.

In asking for accounts, the solicitors are reported to have represented the company was a subsidiary of the Pinkerton National Detective Agency, and was in charge of a relative of Allan Pinkerton, who founded the original agency in 1850. They gave handsomely-engraved contracts, charging a retainer fee of from $50 to $500.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—It might have been the "Vernal Equinox" in which Ayers and Irl R. Hicks set such store about this time of year, or it might not have been; just a plain, old-fashioned sixty-four-mile-an-hour southerner, is what the old salt would call the breeze that hit San Francisco today. And with the wind came spasmodic downpours.

Bay transportation was interfered with slightly, and a few insecurely moored signs uptown were detached by the air currents, but no ships went down and no one was killed or even injured.

And San Francisco fared much better than some other California points. For instance, at Fresno the wind attained a velocity of seventy-four miles.

Yuma, Ariz., was the windiest point in the United States, with an eighty-two-mile-an-hour gale sweeping its streets.

One strange feature of today's weather was that on Mount Tamalpais, the highest wind velocity was only fifty-two miles per hour.

Weather Observer Willson forecasts unsettled weather for tomorrow throughout this vicinity, with possible high winds and showers.

Storm warnings are displayed from San Francisco to Eureka.

Shipping in and out of the Golden Gate was badly disrupted by the storm. Many vessels were forced to return to the harbor after facing heavy seas outside for a time, while others chose to remain inside until the weather moderates. At a late hour tonight there is no cessation in the heavy wind and rain.

STORM AT SAN JOSE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN JOSE (Cal.) March 27.—Owing to the heavy storm here today, the blossom festival at Saratoga was called off. Many visitors flocked to the hills but soon left for home. An informal luncheon was given by Senator James D. Phelan at his beautiful country villa to about one hundred guests. Vice-President Marshall was to have been present, but did not leave San Francisco because of the storm. One hundred and fifty members of the stock growers' convention made a trolley tour of the valley.

RAIN IN SOUTH PLEASES RANCHERS

Showers that spilled over from the northern portion of the State wet down various sections of Southern California last evening and brought smiles to the faces of dry farmers, as an earnest that the dry spell was broken. Grain crops and others would be greatly benefited by a good wetting just now, and pasturage in various sections will be saved.

The fall of about .06 inch here during the evening was not quite according to the form card. A high pressure area hovered off the lower coast yesterday, with a low pressure in the region of Northern California. It was expected there would be just a trace of rain here as a result, but instead, a measurable precipitation developed. The conditions are expected to continue today.

Back from the coast no rain had developed at various places last night, including the vicinity of San Bernardino, and it had not extended as far south as San Diego. Light rain fell at Riverside, however, and along the local coast. Santa Barbara county got a good soaking. At 7 o'clock .20 inch had fallen at Santa Barbara and indications were for continued precipitation. The storm came just in time to relieve anxiety of stockmen, as pasturage was beginning to burn there. Fruit growers shared in expressions of relief.

Whitaker kicked the door of the vault and attracted attention that brought his release fifteen minutes after the robbery.

NEW BATTLESHIP HOODOO.

Argentine Vessel Moreno Sinks a Barge and Runs Aground on Its First Voyage Down Delaware.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, March 27.—The new Argentine battleship Moreno, which sailed from here yesterday for Hampton Roads, collided last night with a barge off Newcastle, Del., thirty miles down the Delaware River from this city. The barge was sunk and the Moreno went ashort, where she remained fast until 7:30 a.m., today, when she floated. The Moreno proceeded down Delaware Bay apparently uninjured.

NEW SCHOOL DISTRICT.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VICTORVILLE, March 27.—The vote for the formation of the Victor Valley Union High School District today was practically unanimous in favor, Victorville voting 124 for and one blank. This means that Victor Valley will have a Union High School by September first and is a big step in the development of this section, the assessed valuation of the Union High School district will reach $1,250,000 and a small tax rate will be ample for maintenance. Plans will be prepared at once for a building to cost from $20,000 to $25,000.

POMOLOGICAL TALK.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, March 27.—The Claremont Pomological Club, in all-day session here today, was addressed this afternoon by George T. Powell on the subject, "Fruit Growing." Other speakers of the day included Ray W. Richard, whose subject was "A Trip to Honolulu," and Marvin Fox, whose subject, "The Past Year's Work," was followed by a discussion of the phases of the work of the organization. Mrs. B. L. Pearson gave several readings, Mrs. C. L. Tuttle sang and Hobart Alter rendered several violin selections.

An Unexpected Chicken.

[Pittsburgh Gazette:] A tiny chick was oddly incubated under the sun-heated roof of a hayloft in Glen Rock, Pa., where it was found away up in the stable of Walter Shipley. The egg must have been laid in the hay field, and through some strange chance it came unbroken into the loft, unnoticed, with a load of hay.

Woman Agrees to Leave Santa Monica If Charges of Finger-biting are Dropped.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, March 27.—Biting fingers is quite a serious charge, but it is not to be pressed against pretty little Muriel Caples, wife of William Caples, because she is leaving for her home in San Francisco with her mother, came down from the north to induce her daughter to return with her.

The charge was made by Mrs. Clara Caples, wife of Edward Caples, a brother of William Caples. As the defendant is leaving the city, the charge will be dismissed. Mrs. Caples, accompanied by her mother, today visited Judge Carrillo in Police Court and informed him that she was going away to her mother's home.

The Caples will then be out of the local courts for good, as they say, and the trial of the petite blonde bride will never come off here. The affair happened a week ago Sunday afternoon at the fashionable Westgate home of the plaintiff, when the little woman bit the other's finger because she would not allow her to telephone the police to come and arrest her husband.

SUDDEN DEATH OF CANADIAN.

MANITOBA INSURANCE MAN HAS ATTACK OF HEART.

Began Business Life as Dry Goods Merchant and Built up Great Concern—Mayor of Long Beach Refuses to Remove Accused Park Officials.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, March 27.—Jeffrey H. Brock, managing director of the Great West Assurance Company of Manitoba, probably the largest life insurance concern in Canada, died this afternoon at Hotel Virginia of uritis. He was 65 years of age. The body will be shipped to Winnipeg, the home of the Brocks, tomorrow.

Mr. Brock, who amassed considerable wealth in the insurance business, was born in Guelph, Ont., and had been in poor health for two years. He had traveled in Europe and to many parts of the American continent in search of health betterment. He came here January 8 and his condition seemed to improve day by day. He had been up and about the hotel for several days, his heart failing him while he was in the lobby.

Mr. Brock was engaged in the dry goods business with his brother, Dominion Senator W. H. Brock of Guelph, before going to Western Canada in 1886. He headed the organization of the Great West company twenty-one years ago. The concern is now doing a hundred-million-dollar business.

With him when the end came were his widow and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Vere Brock. Other survivors are four sons and two daughters—Vere Brock, Clarence Brock and Albert Brock, Mrs. R. MacElhearn and Mrs. George Martin, all of Winnipeg, and Eustace Brock of Toronto.

KEEP THEIR JOBS.

In answer to a report from the City Council which hinted that the resignations of R. M. Golder, member of the Board of Works, and Arthur Falkenhayn, as park superintendent, would be accepted, Mayor Whealton today issued a statement declaring that he would not ask for the resignations of the men.

The Mayor says politics is at the bottom of the whole affair, and as Mr. Falkenhayn did not personally profit by the alleged padding of the park pay roll he would remain in office if he wished. The Mayor is the only official who has the power to remove the men.

BEACH BRIEFS.

That jitney-car drivers are fast giving up the game as unprofitable, now that the novelty of the thing has worn off, was evidenced at last night's meeting of the City Council. C. A. South, Norton W. Munn and Laura A. Wallace, in petitions to the Council, stated that they had given up the jitney-bus business and wanted their casualty-bond premiums returned. In each case the request was denied. Mrs. Wallace was not the driver, but the owner of the car. There are now only half as many 5-cent-fare autos on the streets.

It was thought that the lid had always been doubly clamped down in this city, but it is not so. Chief of Police Cole announces that certain merchants have been conducting drawing games, and, in accordance with a manifesto of the District Attorney, he will order his men to arrest those who conduct these drawings after Monday if they do not desist. Now that the chief dissipation is taken from the business section, the inhabitants will, it is thought, turn to the excitement of fishing from the wharf.

IRATE NEIGHBORS RAID "LOVE-NEST."

SAN BERNARDINO RESPECTABLES OBJECT TO ALLEGED CARRYINGS-ON.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, March 27.—In an effort to rid the neighborhood of what is declared to be a "love-nest," the residents of Sixth street, between H and I streets, through W. L. Maloney, a neighbor, have filed a statutory charge against W. L. Tully, a real estate operator, who, it is alleged, has been a visitor at the home of Mrs. Annie Phillips of No. 855 Sixth street, at all hours, day and night.

The woman is also a real estate broker. Tully is said to have a wife living in Los Angeles. Tully was arraigned today before Justice Wall and his bail set at $250.

More than two years ago the police made a raid on the house, then occupied by the same woman, and it is stated that Tully was then in the house.

IDENTIFIED BY WOMAN.

L. Molin was arrested today near Crestmore and identified by Mrs. Gervasia Bega, an Italian woman, as the man who made a beastlike attempt to assault her last night. The woman claims that she used wood she had gathered to beat off the attacks of the man, who, with a companion, tried to strangle her. Her screams frightened the men away and a posse from the Sheriff's office soon started on the man-hunt, resulting in the arrest of Molin today.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

City and county school teachers by almost an unanimous vote decided in favor of attending the Southern California Teachers' Institute in San Diego next October, instead of holding the usual joint city and county institute in this city. State law gives the teachers themselves the right to decide on such a step and Mrs. Grace Stanley, County Superintendent of Schools, announced today that the vote was 492 for and fifty-seven against transferring the institute.

BRIDGE PROJECT.

Dict.-Atty. Duckworth returned today from Sacramento, where he has been lobbying on the bill for the appropriation of State aid for the Needles bridge project, for which Arizona and the government have already appropriated their share. Mr. Duckworth feels assured that the Legislature will look favorably upon the measure.

Jose Velarde, one of the oldest Spanish residents of the city, who was very ill in his home on South Arrowhead avenue, was rescued from his burning building late last night by neighbors, who discovered his humble hut enveloped in flames. The old man was alone and the rescuers were forced to break through a locked door to reach him.

E. L. Bussey, Salt Lake brakeman, charged with burglarizing a box car on the desert, was discharged today at his preliminary hearing and as a result Bussey declares that he will sue the railroad for causing his arrest. Bussey was arraigned before United States Commissioner Charles Post.

ALLEGES DRUGS WERE GIVEN HIM.

NEW FEATURE IN WILL CASE CAUSES STIR IN SANTA BARBARA CIRCLES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, March 27.—Sensations have been sprung in the John E. Beale will contest. The contestants, Fred A. Beale, a brother, and Joel, Arthur and T. B. Stearns, nephews of the deceased, have filed an amended petition in which they attack the validity of the widow's marriage to the deceased and also specify drugs which they allege she administered to Beale during his last illness.

The validity of the marriage is attacked in the statement that the widow married Beale in New York, June 25, 1906, only three days after she had divorced her former husband, Daniel W. Brown, in Chicago. The contestants claim that under the laws of Illinois the couple were prohibited from marrying again within a year after the decree was handed down.

The petition then asserts that during Beale's last illness his wife was his sole nurse and "administered to him frequently large doses of morphine, adrenalin and heroin, which weakened his will force and depreciated his mentality to such an extent that at the time said alleged will is alleged to have been made the said John E. Beale was not of sound and disposing mind and memory."

Beale died at his Montecito home last spring, leaving a California estate valued at $250,000 and extensive property interests in New Jersey and Pennsylvania. The Beale home is one of the show places in Montecito, opposite that of Mrs. William Miller Graham.

MOTORCYCLE OFFICER KILLED CHASING AUTO.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, March 27.—Shot through the air at a forty-five-mile clip, Louis Allison, a county motorcycle officer, was fatally injured here this morning when he was thrown from his speeding machine while chasing a mystery speeder. He died tonight.

Allison sped after the autoist and as he drew closer to the automobile he struck a small stone, which knocked the motorcycle from under him, throwing him in the air as if he had been shot from a cannon. The motor cop landed on the hard road after turning several somersaults, suffering a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. He skidded and rolled over and over on the ground before he stopped.

Allison was working with his partner, G. Connors, when the accident happened. H. Ward, a motorist, who had just passed the speeding officers heard a crash and turned in time to see the officer sprawling on the ground. He turned about and picked up the injured rider and conveyed him rapidly to the St. Catherine Hospital, where he was operated on this afternoon.

The motor cops were working on the Soldier's Home stretch, where William Ward, a veteran, was killed last Saturday night. The home authorities requested protection for the aged soldiers and the county officers were watching the territory when the fast driver appeared and caused the speed chase which ended in death.

The newly completed road is quite inviting to autoists, and a high rate of speed is attainable here, but owing to the road's being cut through the home grounds, it is exceptionally dangerous to the old men, for many of them are deaf and do not watch so alertly as younger persons the many automobiles which pass through. The patrol will be maintained here to catch any reckless drivers or speeders.

SUIT TO SETTLE RIGHTS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TULARE, March 27.—Suit which will settle the basic irrigation rights on the St. John's River and which will affect the water pre-emptions of upwards of seventy-five individuals, has been filed by the Tulare Irrigation Company. The defendants include the officers and members of the Evans Ditch Company, the Watson Ditch Company, the Persian Ditch Company, the Fleming Ditch Company and the Cakes Ditch Company, as well as several individual users. The plaintiffs claim the right to water by priority of filing. The ditch owned by the Tulare company is the largest in Tulare county and is over thirty miles in length.

AUTO SPECIAL REACHES FAIR.

Young Woman and Party Drive from the East.

Car Coaxed Along Desert by Sugar Sweetening.

Vincent Astor Sails Yacht Into San Diego.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, March 27.—Secretary of the Interior Lane, the guest of honor at the exposition, today had a close rival in the interest of the crowds when Miss Margaret Gale drove into the exposition in the first automobile to make the first transcontinental trip from the eastern coast to the fair.

There were men in the party, but they were of no importance in the eyes of exposition crowds, compared to the pretty young woman, who, after driving over 4100 miles through snow, mud and over desert, appeared today at the exposition as fresh as if she had just come from an hour's ride.

She wore a natty suit of gray breeches, a long coat, high walking boots and an aviator's cap tied down over her ears. She and Raoul le Mat made the long trip in a Stutz on a wager with Stanley James of Washington. Miss Gale says she and Mr. Le Mat have won the $5000 wager, as they are five days ahead of the second car, although San Francisco is their destination.

James and G. Boernstein of New York arrived here today in a National, although they started the trip in a ninety-horse-power Thomas. Their car was wrecked in an accident between Valparaiso and Chicago. The party shoveled through three feet of snow in the Alleghany Mountains and had bad roads until reaching New Mexico. They came along the Lincoln Highway as far as Marshalltown, Iowa, south to Kansas City, then took the National Old Trails route to Springville, Ariz., and then the Ocean-to-Ocean Highway to Phoenix, thence through Imperial to San Diego.

Last night the Stutz car had clutch trouble and the passengers passed the night on the desert in the car. Finally they managed to run the car to a garage by pouring sugar on the clutch and wetting it wih orange juice.

Congressman William Kettner, who, with a party of Congressmen, officially started the party from the White House in Washington in January, today greeted the autoists at the exposition, where he was entertaining Secretary Lane.

Everybody at the exposition, from the diplomats, exposition officials, the boys of the G.A.R., and their wives, dear motherly women who asked a thousand kindly questions, and young women, displayed a keen interest in the pretty motorist. The party left New York January 9. They have run about fifty-four days, as they made many stops and sometimes traveled but five miles an hour. Le Mat is a resident of Hartford.

They will leave for Los Angeles Monday and go on to San Francisco, their destination. The trip was not made in the interests of any firm or for any car, but as a wager by the two friends.

ASTORS ARRIVE.

The Noma, Vincent Astor's palatial yacht, the first large private yacht to come around from New York by way of the canal, dropped anchor in San Diego Bay this morning. On the million-dollar yacht are Vincent Astor, the young son of John Jacob Astor, who lost his life on the Titanic; Mrs. Vincent Astor, bride of a year, formerly Miss Helen Dinsmore Huntington; Miss Ellis Astor, the young sister of Vincent; Mrs. Helen Chadwick, a friend, and Mrs. Raedel, governess of Miss Astor.

Half an hour after the yacht had dropped anchor alongside the Santa Fe, a trim little motor boat was lowered and carried the passengers to the wharf, where they were met by a big seven-passenger automobile. The yachting party did not go to a hotel, but was driven immediately to the exposition to take in the fair.

Although President Davidson sent an invitation to the yacht for Mr. and Mrs. Astor to attend the reception given at the exposition for Secretary of the Interior Lane, the party had left the vessel and could not be located afterwards. The young couple peeked into the beautiful room known as the Women's Headquarters, where the reception was held, but not until after they had departed did those present know of their presence.

Before leaving their yacht, Mr. Astor told the reporters that they had had a beautiful trip out, but had been held up by a slide at Culebra Cut while going through the canal. The yacht is all white and is 264 feet over all and thirty feet beam. It is the finest yacht ever seen on this Coast, and, with the nattily dressed crew of forty-six men, made a pretty picture as she lay in the bay.

The Astors will remain here until Monday, staying aboard the Noma. They left New York February 2, stopping at Jacksonville, Jamaica, San Jose, Guatemala, Acapulco and Magdalena Bay.

DIES IN THE DESERT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, March 27.—T. J. Patterson returned tonight from Mojave with the body of young Earl P. Farrow a former employee of the Southern California Edison Company here, who committed suicide by taking cyanide of potassium on a train of the Southern Pacific in Mojave station. Farrow was 28 years old and lately had been working as an electric lineman at Marysville. He was the son of A. S. Farrow and a brother of J. C. Farrow who live at San Antonio and Raymond avenues.

UNAVOIDABLE ACCIDENT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COMPTON, March 27.—The coroner jury in the inquest over the body of D. M. Hathorn who was killed by a north-bound Newport car at Olive street Friday morning, rendered a verdict today of unavoidable accident. Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made in Woodlawn cemetery.

LIFE SENTENCE FOR HIS CRIME.

ANGELENO WHO KILLED WIFE NEAR PERRIS SENT UP AT RIVERSIDE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, March 27.—Apparently anticipating full measure for his crime, John B. Rademaker of Los Angeles, who pleaded guilty to the murder of his wife at Perris on November 18, received without visible emotion today a sentence of ninety-nine years in San Quentin for the deed.

On the day of the murder Rademaker called at a ranch house in the Perris Valley where his wife had secured employment as a domestic, and failing to induce her to return with him to Los Angeles with her two children, shot her dead.

After being placed under arrest he secured an attorney and entered a plea of not guilty. He later changed the plea to murder in the second degree, receiving a maximum sentence.

After hearing testimony covering a period of fifty-one and a-half days in the suit of Robert N. Bridson against the Riverside Portland Cement Company for a permanent injunction on the ground of damages from cement dust, Judge Densmore has the case under advisement.

The suit has been dragging its length through the Superior Court since November 9, and has engaged the services of the city's ablest lawyers. An opinion is not expected for several weeks.

Joy Lunn Murphy of Ottawa, known as one of Canada's "grand old men," is dead here at the age of 79. He had spent his winters in this city for twenty-five years, and was the owner of a twenty-five-acre orange grove on Monroe street, as well as other property within the city limits.

Murphy was one of the pioneers in the lumber business on the upper Ottawa river, developing a large business and becoming the owner and manager of a line of steamships, now owned and operated by the Ottawa Improvement Company.

THE CITY AND ENVIRONS.

EVENTS BRIEFLY TOLD.

Leaves Motherless Baby.

Mrs. Julia Phillipson of No. 1079 Esperanza street, who was severely burned when her clothing caught fire from a gas stove, died early yesterday at the County Hospital. Mrs. Phillipson leaves a daughter only nine weeks old.

Farewell Dinner.

Traffic men of the city will give a farewell dinner at the Alexandria at 6 o'clock tomorrow night to General Freight Agent Stubbs and General Passenger Agent Batturs of the Southern Pacific, who have been transferred to the northern district of the road.

Printer Found Dead.

Milton M. Lyon, a printer, 53 years of age, was found dead in his apartments at No. 839 South Hill street yesterday afternoon. He had apparently locked all the doors of his apartment Friday night and then turned on the gas jets and seated himself in a chair to await death. The body was found by Mrs. C. P. Leyde, housekeeper, when she went to show the apartment to a prospective tenant. A letter to Mrs. Laura Vogeley, proprietor of the apartment-house, said that Lyon was "just tired of life."

Marshall Party Here Today.

Word that the Vice-President's party, which will arrive here at 7:45 o'clock this morning for a brief stay, will include Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Roosevelt, Mr. and Mrs. Owen Winston, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Davis and two naval aides, was received yesterday by the Chamber of Commerce. A special committee of the chamber will meet the party on arrival and escort the members to the Alexandria for breakfast and then to the harbor, where they will board the torpedo-boat destroyer Paul Jones for San Diego.

NEBRASKANS MEET AT JOLLY SPORTS.

EIGHT THOUSAND TAKE IN FUN OF VERY SUCCESSFUL STATE PICNIC.

More than 8000 members of the Nebraska State Society gathered in Sycamore Grove yesterday to attend the greatest annual meeting in the organization's history. The dampening weather had no effect on the good time of the people from the Antelope State, and the attendance, as enumerated by the registers in the county books, showed an unprecedented record. It also showed that many hundreds of Nebraskans are wintering in Los Angeles, or are here for the expositions.

An important change in the list of officers was a part of the formalities of the day. W. O. Henry, the president, had been summoned to Omaha to attend important business affairs that will require several months in the handling, and he submitted his resignation. To succeed him Judge R. W. Richardson, a prominent attorney, was elected, and took the office before the crowds.

Speeches were made by President Richardson, former Lieut.-Gov. Wallace, E. H. Hindshaw, former president of the society, and others.

Luncheon was served to all and caldrons of coffee containing gallons enough to serve the entire gathering were boiled in the open, lending an appetizing odor to the luncheon hour.

In the afternoon games were played, all the grotesque variety of contests that are most amusing to those not athletes. The fat men and the thin ones were paired, and the bald heads and the blondes against the brunettes. Foot races, jumping contests and other events kept the crowds amused. It was an unusually successful gathering.

ALUMNAE MEET.

Former Students of Mt. Holyoke College Hold All-day Session and Renew Acquaintances.

The Alumnae Association of former students of Mt. Holyoke College held its annual session yesterday in the College Woman's Clubrooms in the Trinity Auditorium.

The social feature was to the fore and the all-day session called for a luncheon, which was splendidly arranged. The tables bore dainty blue forget-me-nots, the college flower.

Letters were read from the alumnae secretary, Miss Crowell, who lives at the college, and from Miss Anna C. Edwards, for many years an honored member of the faculty.

Dr. Grace Fernald, member of the California State Commission of Recreation, spoke of her search for the cause of juvenile delinquents. Dr. Fernald is not an old graduate, but is loyal to her alma mater. She fills the chair of pedagogy at the Los Angeles State Normal School.

Mrs. W. S. Young of this city presided and Miss Louise Atsatt, also of Los Angeles, took the minutes. Margaret Sanborn of Redlands, a graduate of 1914, brought a breezy whiff from the South Hadley of her day. Madame Blaisdell, mother of the president of Pomona College and a student more than fifty years ago at Holyoke, gave early recollections of the founder, Mary Lyon.

The 1914 officers were held over for another year.

TOO MUCH OF AN ORDEAL.

Man Prefers Death to Talking Over Divorce With His Wife—Fails at Suicide Attempt.

Unable to face the ordeal of talking over his divorce with his estranged wife, R. H. Sweeney, 27 years old, a chauffeur, startled a friend who was present by suddenly drinking a bottle of chloroform in his room at No. 510½ East Fifth street, last night.

W. R. Denman, who lives at the same address, went into Sweeney's room early in the evening to borrow a chair. Denman said he found Sweeney lying on the bed with a rag saturated with chloroform over his face. Denman seized this rag. Sweeney then jumped up, he said, and, seizing the bottle of chloroform, drank it.

Sweeney was rushed to the Receiving Hospital and resuscitated by use of the stomach pump. His wife, Mrs. Esther Sweeney, who has not been living with him for some time, was notified. She hurried to the hospital.

"We were to talk over our divorce tonight," Mrs. Sweeney said. "We have not been living together for three years. It was a case of incompatibility.

"My husband has tried to take his life several times before. Of course, I am sorry for him, but I ceased to love him several years ago."

Sweeney was resting easily late last night. He was removed to the County Hospital.

HEART CAUSE OF SUDDEN DEMISE.

END COMES AT COUNTRY HOME SOUGHT AS REFUGE.

John M. Bryson, Prominent Business Man, Son of Former Mayor and Father of Public Administrator, Cut Off When He Felt Health was Returning.

John M. Bryson, a prosperous business man, son of former Mayor John Bryson and father of Public Administrator Frank Bryson, died suddenly early yesterday with heart trouble at his country home, Freeman and Patton streets, Lennox, a suburban district between Inglewood and Hawthorne. He was 63 years old and had been a resident of Los Angeles twenty-eight years.

For some years his heart had been erratic in its action, causing him discomfort and spells of depressed feeling, and to aid his health he had gone to the ranch seven months ago. In midweek he was feeling very well, doing light work about the property and taking particular interest in the planting of seed.

When he made ready for bed Friday night he remarked to his wife: "I've been feeling pretty good this week, haven't I, mother? I felt real strong today and I hope to goodness that I feel as well tomorrow. It's such a relief to feel good."

They retired, and in the morning Mrs. Bryson was aroused by groans. She called to Mr. Bryson, but he could not answer. His appearance was alarming and she summoned a physician, who arrived after life had gone.

His son, Public Administrator Bryson, had been in the San Jacinto Mountains several days and was notified by messenger yesterday of the sudden death.

Mr. Bryson, who was a native of Muscatine, Iowa, where he was profitably engaged in the lumber business, came to Los Angeles twenty-eight years ago. His father became active in politics and was elected Mayor of the city. Mr. Bryson assumed an active interest in business and was part owner of the Bryson Block, which his father financed. He had considerable real estate and was reputed to be wealthy.

His mother, Mrs. Evaline Bryson, who is 96 years old, is still living, at No. 1237 Elden avenue. Mr. Bryson's father died when 89 years old.

Besides the widow and son, Mr. Bryson leaves two brothers and a sister, Isaac H. Bryson, James F. Bryson and Mrs. Margaret Krause, all living here.

Funeral services will be conducted Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the home of the elder Mrs. Bryson, No. 1237 Elden avenue. Interment will be in the private vault in Inglewood Cemetery. The body is at the Pierce mortuary.

I will make you a pair of gold-filled rimless glasses, crystal lenses, Shur-on style, for $2, examination included. I make a specialty of eye strain, cause of headaches, brain fag, watery eyes, blurred vision, nervous debility, very sensitive to light. It makes wrinkles around the eyes and makes you scowl and squint. You wonder why you ache in the back of the neck after reading or sewing. It is weak muscles and common in old people and many times in young people. This I can correct. If you have been given up, I will improve your vision if there is any left. I make Kryptok Invisible Bifocals, two pairs of glasses in one, no lines, a solid piece of glass for near and far vision, as low as $8. Dr. A. M. "Cure Your Rupture Like I Cured Mine"

Old Sea Captain Cured His Own Rupture After Doctors Said "Operate or Death."

His Remedy and Book Sent Free.

Captain Collings sailed the seas for many years; then he sustained a bad double rupture that soon forced him to not only remain ashore, but kept him bedridden for years. He tried doctor after doctor and truss after truss. No results! Finally, he was assured that he must either submit to a dangerous and abhorrent operation or die. He did neither! He cured himself instead.

"Fellow Men and Women, You Don't Have To Be Cut Up, and You Don't Have To Be Tortured By Trusses."

Captain Collings made a study of himself, of his condition—and at last he was rewarded by the finding of the method that so quickly made him a well, strong, vigorous and happy man.

Anyone can use the same method: it's simple, easy, safe and inexpensive. Every ruptured person in the world should have the Captain Collings book, telling all about how he cured himself, and how anyone may follow the same treatment in their own home without any trouble. The book and medicine are FREE. They will be sent prepaid to any rupture sufferer who will fill out the below coupon. But send it right away—now—before you put down this paper.

Rides Like The Car Wheels On Steel Rails

That's the plan of construction in the "Creeping Grip" tractor. It lays and carries its steel track. It rides smoothly, creeping over the soil with a firm grip. It loses no power in slippage—it never packs the soil—saves money in fuel bills because of the greater power delivered—at the draw bar. Here's the tractor that cuts the cost of plowing and gets crops in on time. The can enter soft fields in early spring when other tractors must lie idle waiting for wet spots to dry. By comparison the creepers are lighter on the soil than an empty wagon. They climb and oscillate over obstructions, carrying the machine on a center axle. Two points of contact rest on the ground, thus avoiding jolts on the machine. The frame rides on 3 points of suspension, which eliminates binding on bearings—upkeep cost is reduced to a minimum.

THE WEATHER.
[Official Report.]

LOCAL OFFICE, U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, Los Angeles, March 27.—[Reported by Ford A. Carpenter, Local Forecaster.] At 5 o'clock a.m. the barometer registered 30.09; at 5 p.m., 30.06. Thermometer for the corresponding hours showed 55 deg. and 64 deg. Relative humidity, 5 a.m., 84 per cent.; 5 p.m., 67 per cent. Wind, 5 a.m., northeast, velocity 8 miles; 5 p.m., northeast, velocity 10 miles. Highest temperature, 67 deg.; lowest, 54 deg. Rainfall for season, 14.76 inches. Barometer reduced to sea level.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.—The greater portion of the United States is covered by a field of high barometric pressure. The weather over the majority of the States is therefore fair and generally cool. Freezing weather obtains north of Tennessee, Texas and Arizona, and east of the Sierra Nevada Mountains. The precipitation was light during the past twenty-four hours, occurring in scattered localities and chiefly along the coast of Southern Oregon and Northern California. The barometer is comparatively low over the Pacific Coast, and rain was falling at the hour of observation Saturday morning at Red Bluff and Sacramento. San Francisco also received a small amount of rain. This area of low pressure will give cloudy weather in Los Angeles and vicinity during the ensuing thirty-six hours, and light showers over the elevated district.

EVENING BULLETIN.—6 p.m. Saturday, March 27, 1915. The area of low pressure which has been stationary over the northern part of the State for some days caused moderately heavy rain along the Sacramento Valley, .82 of an inch falling at Red Bluff and .42 at Sacramento. San Francisco received .42 of an inch, and San Luis Obispo .04 of an inch. An area of high pressure is off the Southern California coast and will prevent the northern area of low pressure from causing much more than sprinkles in the Los Angeles district during tonight or Sunday.

FORD A. CARPENTER, Local Forecaster.

LOCAL FORECAST.

For Los Angeles and vicinity: Generally cloudy Sunday; westerly winds, veering to southwesterly.

For Southern California: Generally cloudy Sunday.

STATE FORECAST.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—Weather forecast: San Francisco and vicinity: Unsettled weather, with showers, Sunday; fresh southerly wind.

Sacramento, Santa Clara and San Joaquin valleys: Unsettled weather, with showers, Sunday; light southerly wind.

Southern California: Probably showers Sunday; light southwest wind.

ARIZONA FORECAST.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Forecast for Arizona: Generally fair Sunday and Monday.

Asked about the conditions of the many American colonies in the sunlit, well-watered valley that front the Pacific Ocean, Col. Randolph stated that most of them have gone to rack and ruin, but that in cases the colonists have pluckily weathered the storms of revolution.

"The Richardson and Esperenza colonists are still holding out," he said. "Johnson, the big sugar man, has also continued operations, though I don't know how much of his returns he gets for himself, that is, over and above what the revolutionists take."

Looking fine and fit, Col. Randolph gives little outward evidence of a man who, for long years, has been patiently trying to operate a 1730-mile line through a country that is stratified with troubles. Recently, there have been great floods all along the line. More commonly, the revolutionists have spent their time, between fights, in blowing up Sud-Pacifico bridges, burning station buildings and equipment, and tearing up track. Other times, they commandeer the road for their own belligerent usages.

In the Great War.

TO AID KING AND COUNTRY.

British Peer Here en Route Home to Help.

Imperial Valley Knight of Unique Reputation.

Educator of Nations Through Optical Demonstration.

Alfred Mosley, C.N.G., LL.D., Knight of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, in England, passed through Los Angeles on his return to his home in England after having spent the winter months on his large land holdings in the Imperial Valley. He shortened his annual visit to Southern California to offer his services and wealth to the British government during the emergencies of war. Already he has built and equipped the Queen Mary and Princess Christian hospital for the naval wounded at Queen's Ferry, Scotland, as an expression of his loyalty and liberality.

Mr. Mosley, who is one of the most ardent enthusiasts over the future of Southern California and the Imperial Valley especially, has achieved an international reputation that is unique.

Originally he was connected with the diamond mines in South Africa, where he earned the respect and confidence of Cecil Rhodes, the empire builder. Although his interests were centered in the mines, he immediately became active in developing the country. Some twenty years ago he retired to devote himself to public work. During the South African war he took an active part in organiaing and equipping the Princess Christian Hospital at Pointtown Bridge, Natal.

For twenty years he has been making regular visits to the United States, has become personally acquainted with the foremost men of the nation, and widely informed about the country.

In the early 90's he became convinced that the British workingman had much to learn from the United States, particularly regarding highly specialized machinery and general administration. In 1902 he brought a delegation of twenty-three secretaries of the principal trade unions to the United States and took them through the Eastern and Middle Western States where they visited the large manufacturing centers.

Later, our education system appealed to Mr. Mosley as having many superior features. He was impressed with the facilities offered the children of poor persons to secure free education from the kindergarten to the university, thereby utilizing the brains of the whole people. In 1903 he brought from England a delegation of thirty-five professors from Oxford, Cambridge and other educational institutions, taking them through all parts of this country, and intimately acquainting them with the practical side of the educational system here.

Two years later, Mr. Mosley organized an expedition of 500 English teachers who toured through the United States at his expense. A year later he took 1000 American-Canadian teachers to England, where they visited all the school centers in Great Britain, and many of the teachers went to the continent. Several teachers went from Los Angeles.

When the present war began Mr. Mosley was in England. He learned that the hospital accommodations for wounded sailors were inadequate and at once donated funds for the Queen Mary and Princess Christian Hospital, which was built and furnished in six weeks. Later than usual, he came to Southern California, and went to the Imperial Valley, where is his favorite resort for the winter season.

He believes that the real development of the Imperial Valley is in its infancy, and that persons impressed with its amazing development have no conception of what is to be accomplished there.

When he was here exactly one year ago, he passed between Brawley and Imperial Junction (now Niland, and a thriving town,) and there was little to see but the desert. Yesterday, as he passed again, he came upon Calipatria, a thriving town with brick buildings, a handsome hotel, two banks and a business activity that gave it the appearance of a town of long existence.

NO THOUGHT OF SELF.

Window-washer, Lying in Hospital With His Neck Broken, Talks of Job He Didn't Finish.

"If I could just wiggle that left toe a little I know I could get back and finish that job," said M. F. Kimzey, 53 years old, as he lay in the Receiving Hospital yesterday. "You see, the window I was washing broke and I tumbled down and landed on a chicken coop in the back yard. My neck hurts a little and I feel funny in my legs but I got to finish that job this afternoon."

But he did not finish the job, for Kimzey's fall of fifteen feet broke his neck. He was taken to the County Hospital, where an examination indicated that his might be one of the rare cases of recovery after one of the cervical vertebrae has been broken.

Mr. Kimzey said he had a room at No. 128 East First street, but there were no relatives to notify and his only concern seemed to be whether he could finish that window washing job before night.

Charter.

NAME MANY AS FREEHOLDERS.

COUNCIL GETS CANDIDATES FROM CIVIC BODIES.

Learns that Charter Conference Does not want People to Vote on Form of Government Desired. Committee of the Whole to Discuss the Situation.

The City Council's suggestion that the people indicate at the primaries what form of government they want has run counter to the plans of the charter conference, the efficiency director and all others who have taken a post-graduate course in giving the people something they don't understand.

At least that is the view of the matter taken by Councilman Betkouski and others, who will make themselves heard in the Committee of the Whole, to which has been referred the request of the charter conference not to submit the question.

The Council is disposed to submit three forms of city government for an expression of the people at the primaries, as a guide to the Board of Freeholders that will be elected at the June election. The three forms outlined in the proposal are City Manager, commission form, or a continuation of the present form of government. Since there are so many styles of each brand, the efficiency director and the charter conference warned the Council not to do anything of the kind.

While only three candidates have appeared for places on the Board of Freeholders, the Council received a list of twenty-two names suggested at a meeting of the conference, and twelve names suggested by various civic organizations as material for the board. A committee has been appointed to inquire into the legal qualifications of each person suggested and to obtain the consent of each one, following which petitions will be taken out.

Those suggested by the civic bodies are:

William F. Bryant, by City Club; J. P. Yoder, by Teachers' Club; T. E. Gibbon, Chamber of Commerce; S. C. Graham, Business Women's Civic Club; Dr. Milbank Johnson, Council of Social Agencies; Dr. John R. Haynes, Efficiency Commission; Haines W. Reed, Outlook Association; A. H. Koebig, City Planning Association; M. E. Johnson, Wednesday Morning Club; Dr. Elbert Wing, Municipal League; Charles D. Shields, Central Labor Council, and C. E. Locke, Christian Socialist Forum.

The others nominated from the floor of the conference and also submitted to the Council are: Harry Chandler, George H. Dunlop, Harley W. Brundige, R. W. Heffelfinger, Oscar Mueller, Charles G. Andrews, Parley M. Johnson, Dr. W. S. Clark, Arthur W. Eckman, E. M. Supple, T. Percival Gerson, E. A. Geisler, F. W. Braun, Guy B. Barham, Lucien K. Chase, Lloyd W. Moultrie, J. O. Koepfli, A. F. Naftzger, Frank G. Henderson, Dr. Paul Edwards, Dion R. Gardner and L. W. Butler.

A discussion of the charter situation will be held either tomorrow or Tuesday by the Council as a Committee of the Whole.

EASTER EGGS IN THE NESTS.

Unique Los Angeles Work of Great Good.

Many Thousand Children to be Remembered.

Joy on Hospital Cots and in Poor Homes.

One of Easter's most picturesque features in Los Angeles is to be far more expensive this year than ever before. It is the distribution of colored eggs, hidden beneath a baby rabbit or a tiny chick in a nest of fluffy paper, among the poor, the ill and the unfortunate of the city's newest generation.

Fifteen thousand Easter eggs are to be colored, 7000 nests, each with its chick or rabbit, will be constructed, and the work is now well under way at No. 2209 East Fourth street, the home of Mrs. P. Harold Sunde, who founded the custom eight years ago, when she made a visit to the children's hospital with a small basket of Easter eggs.

The distribution of the Easter gifts has reached such proportions now that Mrs. Sunde and her associates have been forced to organize the industry and begin weeks in advance in order to be prepared against the growing

ALL TO SHOW THEIR ZEAL.

"Times' Day," Next Wednesday, Chance to Help Friend Toward Prizes.

A day for the friends of the candidates in the "Times Automobile Circulation Campaign" to get out and help their favorites with the splendid automobiles and thirty-two exposition tours that will be awarded April 10.

"Times Day" is dedicated to these friends, who want to demonstrate their loyalty and interest in the welfare of some particular young woman, by lending their assistance, however little it may be, in securing subscriptions and votes.

It promises to be a memorable event. Candidates are being proffered the co-operation of friends right and left. You, who have a friend contesting for these prizes, should get in touch with her at once without waiting to have her communicate with you. Assure her that you will devote your efforts for one day, or at least a part, toward helping her in her valiant race for an honored prize.

Candidates, on the other hand, should immediately ring up at least five or six of their closest friends and plan to organize a systematic "campaign committee" that will leave no stone unturned next Wednesday to further their interests, and lend a helping hand up the ladder of success.

Make sure that at least a certain number of these hearty workers will be out in the field to carry your candidacy to victory. "Times Day" alone may be the deciding point between failure and an automobile. Get in with the crowd and make the day one never to be forgotten.

Additional receipt books and supplies will be promptly furnished by writing or calling at Campaign Headquarters, on the second floor of The Times Building.

TRYING HARD TO GET OUT OF JAIL.

AMERICAN HELD IN CHIHUAHUA URGES FRIENDS TO TRY ANEW.

Leonard Worcester, Jr., an American mining man who is in the penitentiary at Chihuahua City, Mex., has written another appeal to the committee of Colorado citizens in Los Angeles, headed by W. M. Irwin, urging renewed efforts to obtain his release before death overtakes him.

Mr. Worcester has been made the subject of international negotiations with Secretary of State Bryan at the Washington end and Gen. Villa on the Mexican side, and Special Agent Carothers of the State Department acting as go-between. There is no criminal charge against Worcester, but he is charged with fraud in the sale of gold bullion to a St. Louis concern. The accuser is a Mexican partner of Mr. Worcester, the company having declared him blameless.

"Villa's Minister of Justice and Foreign Affairs said that I should be allowed bail if I applied for it," said the latest Worcester letter. "I had applied soon after I was jailed, but had been refused and applied again after Carothers's telegram to Secretary Bryan, but was again refused, although I offered security in any amount up to $100,000 gold, and I am still held without bail.

"Consul Letcher wired Secretary Bryan full details of the case, asserting my innocence, saying that it was a plain case of hold-up on the part of Mexican officials, but Mr. Bryan has done nothing beyond requesting my release on bail, which Mr. Carothers promised. The American society here has wired Schuyler Lawrence, its president, who is now in Pennsylvania, to lay the matter before President Wilson personally.

"My accuser says Villa is behind him, gets 80 per cent. of the money and will keep me here until he gets whatever he demands.

"Gen. Antonio Rabago, commander of the army of the north and military governor of Chihuahua under Gen. Huerta, dies this afternoon (March 20) in the cell directly under mine."

Mr. Irwin and his associates are bombarding Secretary Bryan and many Senators at Washington with telegrams.

REWARD HIDES IN SILK HAT.

Fighter Nails Snatcher of a Woman's Purse.

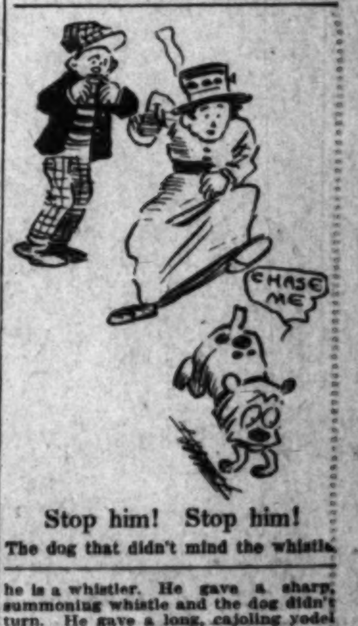
Glorious, Useless Skypiece Her Thankful Gift.

He Can't Even Smile Until Looks Under Band.

Mickey Sullivan is as well known about Venice as the bath-house or the dance halls. Even the parrots call him "Mickey." Yesterday he made an excursion to the city and was standing on Fifth street awaiting his car, when an electric brougham drove up.

The middle-aged woman who was within opened the door, and as she did so, a hasty young terrier dog of wondrous pedigree leaped out and went scuttling down the street. The woman called. She could not whistle. She saw Mickey and she shouted, "Whistle, oh, whistle please!"

By profession Mr. Sullivan is a fighter of sorts; but by accomplishment he is a whistler. He gave a sharp, summoning whistle and the dog didn't turn. He gave a long, cajoling yodel of a whistle and the dog failed to hesitate. He gave a series in variety and contrast with wonderful brevity and the effect was as nothing on the dog.



Stop him! Stop him!

The dog that didn't mind the whistle.

In the meantime the owner saw her dog was on escape bent and she darted out of the machine. Mr. Sullivan offered to make the chase but she said a stranger could never catch the "little dear," only she said the word "dear" hurriedly. But that was the word.

So Mickey dallied to watch the fun. The woman was not unusually thin. In fact her appearance became diamond pendants and low-necked gowns and other raiment designed to further a majestic presence.

He watched her charge after the dog until his attention was attracted to the brougham. He saw a quick arm dart toward the seat, saw the woman's purse clutched and withdrawn into the protection of the thief's overcoat. Then the thief ran.

SECOND CHASE.

Mickey didn't try to whistle him back. As the dog ran so did the thief, and so did Mickey. The thief was quick but Mickey was strong and when the thief tried to dodge through a crowd of women shoppers at

SPOT LIGHT ON RIPE OLIVES.

Free Distribution of Fruit on Official Day.

Los Angeles Interested in Great Industry.

Three-fourths of State's Crop Packed in South.

Twenty-five young women in costume will bombard the public of Los Angeles with home-grown ripe olives Wednesday. The free distribution of one of California's historical fruit products is part of the local olive men's plan for observing national "Ripe Olive Day."

California olive growers and packers and other persons interested in our commercial prosperity have donated hundreds of tons of olives and a liberal expense fund for exploiting an industry of which the Golden State has a natural monopoly and which is rapidly developing in importance.

Los Angeles is especially interested in the ripe olive industry for several good reasons. Three-fourths of the ripe olives shipped from California are packed in this vicinity. The largest olive grove in the United States, if not in the entire world, is located in San Fernando valley near the site of the mission of that name where the classic evergreen trees were planted more than a century ago by the padres. The great sweep of trees, known as Sylmar Olive Grove, is 2000 acres in extent. It is the property of the Los Angeles Olive Growers' Association. The first trees were planted twenty-two years ago and have thrived without irrigation.

THE WORKERS.

The State-wide campaign for the observance of "Ripe Olive Day" has been conducted by the California Ripe Olive Day Association, formed at Oroville, the olive center of the northern part of the State, February 15 last. Frank L. Brown, a director of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, was elected chairman of the executive committee. Other officers of the organization include President Moore, of the exposition; E. W. Ehmann and George C. Mansfield of Oroville, and T. F. Hornung of Sacramento.

The principal responsibility for the success of the day in California was placed upon Mrs. Harry A. Kluegel, appointed a special commissioner jointly by the Olive Day Association and the Panama-Pacific Exposition. She is a member of the university set at Berkeley and an active worker in women's clubs and philanthropic movements, with a wide acquaintance among prominent persons in California. Olive day will be observed officially at both expositions.

The local olive growers and packers quickly united with the movement at the north for a successful "Ripe Olive Day." As a representative meeting of growers and packers, held in the headquarters of the Southern California Retail Grocers' Association in the Wilcox Building, several weeks ago, Flavel Shurtleff was appointed director of arrangements in Southern California for "Ripe Olive Day." He is secretary of the California Olive Packers' and Growers' Association.

THE PURPOSE.

The Southern California Retail Grocers' Association adopted resolutions Thursday night, indorsing "Ripe Olive Day." Secretary Olsen of the association is taking a personal interest in the arrangements and has assisted Mr. Shurtleff.

"The purpose of 'Ripe Olive Day' is to bring the attention of the general public to the food value of the ripe olive, increase its general use and thus develop one of California's great and growing industries," Mrs. Kluegel declared recently in Los Angeles. "People interested in the California olive industry believe that it has not received the public attention which has been given to some of the other products of the State.

"Climate and soil give the State a practical monopoly of the olive business. There is more olive-producing land available in California than in all of the other States in the Union combined.

"For many years the public fancied that the green olive as it came to our market from foreign countries was the best product of the olive tree. The discovery was made a few years ago that olives produced in California and allowed to ripen on the tree were, when processed, far superior to the imported green olive. California people were quick to detect the fine flavor of the ripe olive and it became popular at once, first as a relish and then as a part of regular diet.

"The opinion prevails now in the commercial world that California ripe olives are superior to those produced in Italy, France, Spain and other foreign countries which have been noted for their olives for centuries. The long summer season in California enables the olive to come to full maturity."

NO "OLIVE BELT."

There is no recognized "olive belt" in California. The trees are grown in thirty-eight counties, ranging from Shasta in the north to San Diego in the south. When olive trees originally were introduced into California by the mission fathers, the southern part of the State was regarded as more favorable to their growth. In recent years, however, the planting has been extended to northern valleys where low temperatures do not prevail. Planting in Imperial Valley has been extensive lately.

"California can expand her olive industry to meet the increasing demand," Frank Simonds, secretary and treasurer of the Los Angeles Olive Growers' Association, said yesterday. "In this respect the State has the advantage over other olive-producing countries. The olive business has reached its limit in France, Spain and Italy.

"Nature determines where the olive shall grow. The tree is limited to a few favored regions of the world. In California the climate is behind the business."

Grand Army Posts Arrange Programme for Fiftieth Anniversay of Lee's Surrender.

The G. A. R. posts of this city have appointed committees to arrange a celebration on April 9, of the fiftieth anniversary of the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia to the Army of the Potomac at Appomattax Courthouse.

The posts voted to hold a basket picnic at Sycamore Grove and to invite every G. A. R. Post and auxiliary, Spanish War Veterans, Sons of Veterans and auxiliary organizations to participate in the event. Coffee will be served at noon and there will be a programme of music and speechmaking.

Ring up your favorite candidate in "The Times Automobile Circulation Campaign," and tell her you are going out and get at least one new subscription for her on "Times Day," next Wednesday, March 31. It will help her to win an automobile.

Question of Economy.

JOINT WORK ON HARBOR UNITS?

Shall "Inner" and "Outer" Projects be United?

Injunction Suit Hearing Goes on Tomorrow.

"Subterfuge" is a Charge of Petitioner.

Will the cost of dredging channels in the new Fish Harbor and filling the forty-acre area back of the bulkhead there, and dredging in the inner harbor channel leading to the turning basin, with the dredgings therefrom pumped 7000 feet to the area to be filled, be greater than to carry on each of these inner and outer harbor improvement units separately?

This is the gist of the inquiry upon which, apparently, will hinge the action of the Superior Court on the petition of former Senator W. H. Savage for a permanent injunction, restraining the Harbor Commission from signing the contract for the joint work.

The case was before Judge Works yesterday, having been advanced because of the extensive interests involved on the part of the city and the general fishing industries of this port.

DEMURRER OVERRULED.

Arguments on the demurrer filed by City Attorney Stephens occupied much of the forenoon. The demurrer was overruled, and shortly before noon taking of testimony commenced.

In the argument on the demurrer the City Attorney argued that none of the proceedings of the Harbor Commission, as shown by its official minutes, indicate any act on the part of the board to sustain the contentions of the petitioner, but that there was simply a presumption that the board was going to do somehing wrong.

The petition alleged that the provisions for the joint work on the inner and outer harbor improvements was "a mere subterfuge for the purpose of defeating the will of the electors," who had voted specific amounts of bonds for the improvement of each of these harbors, and that the plan was to secure improvement of the inner harbor at the expense of the outer harbor bond fund.

The entire minutes of the Harbor Commission pertaining to the subject were read in court yesterday. These set forth the various steps taken by the board and its engineers looking to the accomplishment of the joint work, the receipt of a letter from former Senator Savage, protesting against the use of outer harbor bond money on inner harbor work, if such was the intention of the board, and its order that a reply be sent to him, stating that the charges for the work would be made to the proper bond fund.

WOULD PREVENT CONTRACT.

The Harbor Commission on March 17 voted to award to S. G. Hindes the contract for the joint work, at 10.46 cents per cubic yard. It was to prevent the signing of the contract on the part of the city that former Senator Savage filed his petition for a permanent injunction.

In this petition the charge is made that dredgings for the fill could be secured cheaper in the outer harbor than from the inner harbor, and that the cost of dredging the channel in the inner harbor would be less by depositing the dredgings near at hand than by carrying them to the Fish Harbor fill.

The first witness in the hearing of testimony was Capt. F. H. Gridley, who declared he was a dredging expert and had had experience on the Los Angeles Harbor and the Long Beach Harbor.

PROPOSES CHEAPER WAY.

He gave testimony sustaining the contentions of the petitioner, declaring that it would be possible to secure sufficient dredgings for the fill from Area A, in the Fish Harbor, at a cost of 7 cents per cubic yard, and that sufficient dredgings could be obtained there by going to a depth of twenty-two feet. He also testified that dredgings could be obtained from the channel going into the turning basin, at a cost of about 9 cents per cubic yard, and that there were points other than those proposed by the Harbor Commission where the earth for the fill could be secured at a less cost than that for which it is proposed to contract.

Further hearing of testimony was continued until 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. It is expected the case will be concluded in the one afternoon's hearing. Elmer B. Sanford appeared as attorney for former Senator Savage, and City Attorney Stephens was assisted by Deputy City Attorney Penn. All members of the Harbor Commission, its secretary and City Engineer Hamlin and Harbor Engineer Jubb were in court yesterday, ready to give their testimony.

RECALLS OLD FIGHT.

The present action again calls attention to the strained relations that have existed between San Pedro and Wilmington for many months in regard to harbor improvement work. Factions in San Pedro have maintained that the Harbor Commission has been more active in advancing inner harbor improvements than those for the outer harbor. The charge of "subterfuge" on the part of the Harbor Commission is merely one phase of the contentions that have been in progress for months past, and which has included action by public meetings urging the commission to hasten the development work on the outer harbor.

In this connection a statement of the condition of the harbor bond funds at the beginning of this month will be of interest.

CONDITION OF FUNDS.

The 1913 harbor bond funds voted by the people by a very heavy majority amounted to $2,500,000. Of this it was provided that $750,000 be expended on the inner harbor, and $1,750,000 on the outer harbor. These bonds were sold and have not been entirely paid for yet by the purchasers.

On March 1 the outer harbor bond fund stood:

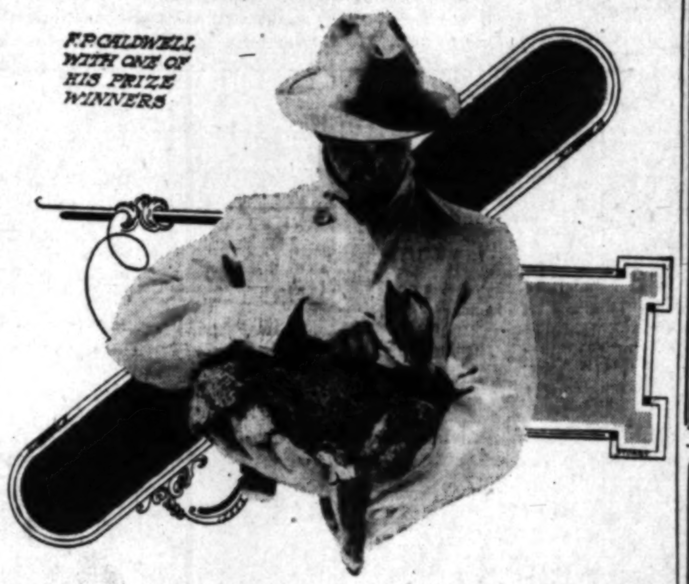
Paid in by bond purchasers, $1,608,541.90; expended, $211,953.98; liabilities on outstanding contracts, orders, etc., $644,391.27; leaving available funds for future work to the amount of $752,196.65.

There is still to be paid in on the bonds, in purchase price and premium, $200,000, this amount including the balance unpaid on both inner and outer harbor bond issues.

The statement on the inner harbor bond fund shows:

Paid in by the purchasers, $689,275.10; expended, $346,679.98; liabilities, $475,697.15; leaving an available balance for future work amounting to $266,997.97.

"Ted" Meredith, the University of Pennsylvania quarter-mile champion, has decided to run in the 440-yard event in the Amateur Athletic Union championships at San Francisco. This race will be on a straightaway track and Meredith will try to lower the record of 47s. held by Maxey Long for the distance.



F. P. CALDWELL WITH ONE OF HIS PRIZE WINNERS

BELGIAN HARE EXPERT TO GIVE FREE LECTURE

Mr. F. P. Caldwell, who will deliver a free illustrated lecture Tuesday evening, March 30th, in the large ground floor lecture hall of the Angeles Mesa Land Company, at 433 South Hill Street, is well known as one of the most competent and successful breeders of Belgian hares in the Southwest. Mr. Caldwell's Royal Red Rabbit Ranch is one of the show places of Southern California.

The lecturer's talk will deal largely with the Belgian hare industry as a practical, money-making proposition. Interesting pictures have been prepared from photographs taken on Mr. Caldwell's ranch, and will be used to illustrate his talk. The lecture is absolutely free—beginning at 7:45 p.m. Those attending are urged to come eary in order to procure good seats.

Poindexter of Washington, "Progressive" in the Senate, not think the "Progressives" will name a candidate Presidency in 1916, but he "Progressives" will come the Republican party and candidate. The only his statement is simply cor- evidence of the hopelessness cause which was only a disorganizing movement at the best.

Hack hire to get the voters to the polls is said to have been the heaviest expense in Kansas campaigns for a number of years. Now the Legislature proposes to take this expense off the office seekers by prohibiting the hiring of any kind of vehicles by candidates for the purpose of taking voters to the polls or registration booths. It will then be up to the friends of the candidates to volunteer their good offices on election days.

A boom is incubating in Ohio for the nomination by the Republican national convention of ex-Senator Burton of that State for the Presidency. Ohio is prolific in candidates, Gov. Willis, former Gov. Myron T. Herrick and Warren G. Harding, the new Senator, are all being looked after by their friends. When Mr. Herrick first returned from France he was considered a very active Presidential possibility, but as he has been in the South resting from his strenuous labors in France his mental attitude regarding the matter will be somewhat in doubt until he returns to his home in Ohio.

Former Gov. Herbert S. Hadley of Missouri has been indorsed by a Republican mass meeting at Jefferson City for the United States Senatorship. An attempt will probably be made to unite the Republican and "Progressive" forces in his candidacy to accomplish the defeat of the present Democratic Senator whose term expires in 1917.

Representative Charles C. Carlin of the Eighth West Virginia District, who is said to be looming up for the Democratic nomination for Governor of his State two years hence, has been a member of Congress since 1907 and is now the ranking member of the committee of the judiciary. If a Republican majority in Congress be returned at the next national election Mr. Carlin may recognize the gubernatorial movement, but if the Democrats remain in control of Congress he may prefer to remain where he is.

A bill to prohibit the appointment of any relatives in the State service is one of the measures taking up the attention of the Wisconsin legislators. It provides that no State officer, whether elective or appointive, shall name any relative by blood or marriage to any position, or engage such relative in any employment of the State in another department. With such a law in existence some politicians would wish to know what they are in office for.

Gov. Brumbaugh of Pennsylvania is determined that a local option law shall be enacted by the present Legislature, if such a thing be possible. As a part of his campaign he has asked the friends of local option to come to Harrisburg en masse when a public hearing is given on the proposed measure. The Governor believes it is a moral issue to give the people of the counties of the State the right to vote on the question of license, and he says if the people cannot be trusted with this simple power we may as well confess that our theory of government is a mistake and a failure.

In order to adjourn, the Missouri Legislature indefinitely postponed all anti-liquor bills, railroad rate changes and woman suffrage amendment to the constitution of the State. Even with this action the legislative clock had to be set back to enable the appropriation bills to be enacted.

The members of the Illinois Legislature want to get some extra money out of the State, either now or in the future. One measure before them is for an increase of salary from $2000 to $5000 each term, but as they are forbidden to increase their own salaries during their period of office they are canvassing the prospects of a re-election before acting on the bill. Another proposition is for a mileage allowance in the guise of an appropriation of $1000 for a secretary of each member, who will not be employed, but the money be drawn from the State treasury as an indirect increase of salary. Pay for mileage cannot be legally appropriated for any more than an increase of salary during a term of service.

They are after Mayor Mitchell of New York because of the apparent extravagance of his administration. He was elected with the approval of President Wilson who was opposing everything of the Tammany brand, and he made certain pre-election promises to a convention of 107 persons which people the Mayor now proposes to ask if he has kept the faith. Taxes are higher than they have ever been before, and it is proposed to spend $60,000 to determine how far away the city is from its debt limit. The situation is just such a one as Tammany wants for good campaign work although that organization is said to have done nothing to create it.

RUSSIAN WRITER TO SPEAK HERE.

MARY ANTIN, ONCE IMMIGRANT AND NOW NOTED, STRONG ON THE PLATFORM.

Mary Antin, Russian immigrant, author, lecturer and social worker, is to speak at Trinity Auditorium April 9 and 10 under the auspices of the Los Angeles City Teachers' Club. It will be a part of her first western tour.

She came to this country from Russia with her parents twenty-six years ago, a child of 13, with no word of English and no experience of life outside the Jewish pale. Within sixteen years she produced two of the widely-known books of the time—"The Promised Land" and "They Who Knock at Our Gates." Both deal with immigration.

Early the ability of the child was recognized and her family made every possible sacrifice to send her to school, while her teachers gave her great encouragement. Dr. Edward Everett Hale and Josephine Lazarus were among those who interested themselves in her development. She graduated from the Girls' Latin School of Boston and attended Barnard College in New York. In private life today she is Mrs. Amadeua W. Grabau, wife of a Columbia University professor.

She began successful work as a lecturer in 1913 and has since then made three extensive lecture tours in New England and two in the Middle West.

EDUCATOR WILL PREACH.

Dr. Hagerman, Founder of Colleges, to Be Speaker This Evening in Wilshire Boulevard Christian Church.

Dr. B. C. Hagerman, formerly president of Bethany College, founded by Alexander Campbell, who organized the Christian church, or Disciples of Christ, will preach tonight in the Wilshire Boulevard Christian Church, Normandie avenue and Wilshire boulevard.

Dr. Hagerman is a grandson of Alexander Campbell, and has maintained a prominent place in educational work. After serving as president of the college which his grandfather founded, Dr. Hagerman became president of the Hamilton Female College of Lexington, Ky., and later he founded the Campbell-Hagerman College for Women at Lexington. Fifteen years ago he was pastor of the Christian Church of San Diego, which pulpit he has been supplying during the temporary absence of Dr. Crabtree in Honolulu. It is probable that he will decide to make his permanent home in Southern California.

SHE PLEADS GUILTY.

Miss Margaret C. Callahan, charged with using the mails to send a threatening and scurrilous letter to the editor of the Menace, anti-Catholic publication of Aurora, Mo., pleaded guilty in the Federal Court yesterday before Judge Trippet. The District Attorney's office requested that she be sent to the County Jail, but Miss Callahan was allowed to go on her own recognizance, and promised to appear in court April 10 for sentence.

THE BEST OF ALL.

Whenever you begin to worry about some of your own people try to remember that nothing is really a great misfortune so long as your loved ones are alive. It is easy to forget the great blessing of life itself.

GIVE AND TAKE.

Thirteen ships will bring 100,000 tons of merchandise from New York to the Pacific Coast in the next fifty days. It is for California to see that these vessels are returned with full cargoes of our own products.

OWNING THE SHELVES.

The public will sympathize with the effort to construct a central library building for Los Angeles. Every suburb has a handsome library, while the city goes on paying big rent and having its fine books cramped up in limited quarters.

WHAT EVERY WOMAN WANTS.

Seventy-five young women at Pasadena are studying architecture. If they all practice their profession in that city somebody will have to do considerable building. If each one does no more than build herself a home Pasadena will at least have seventy-five houses with enough closets in them.

A LIVELY PROSPECT.

Calipatria has voted a school bond issue of $40,000. Last September the town only had twenty-six school children. Now it has fifty-five and will build a fine grammar schoolhouse. The town is less than a year old and a business lot there sells for more than very good residence property in Los Angeles will bring.

A GRAND INSTITUTION.

One often hears that parents can raise one set of children, but that they would spoil the second. Just the same, we would be unalterably opposed to a bill doing away with grandmothers. About half the fun in this life would be cancelled if a fellow didn't have a grandmother at the right age to boost his stock in the family market.

VISITORS ON WHEELS.

Down on Main street the other day we saw a fine big automobile which bore the name of Yellow Bird. It flew the pennant of Toronto and had made the trip overland from Canada. Lots of people are coming to the two big fairs in their own machines. This is not the cheapest way to travel by any means, but if people are hardened to it nothing could be more delightful.

THE GOOD OF THE BAD.

You may be puzzled when you read your Bible in trying to figure out how it was that Satan came also. You see, the devil possessed certain terms of mastery that the sons of God were compelled to recognize. That may be one reason why the wicked continue to prosper. It is their strict adherence to good principles which helps them to get across. It is the good and not the bad in them which thrives.

MONEY DIRT CHEAP.

Another national convention is to be held in Mexico City. A part of its programme will be to spend $5,000,000 in Mexican money on the poor. We hope it is the right brand of Mexican money. The writer of this paragraph picked up a bundle of the Constitutionalist specie at the San Diego fair grounds the other day and thought himself in high luck to trade it for a very small box of cigars at Tia Juana. The merchant who took it put it in his show window for a curiosity.

A LAME EXCUSE.

The Indian who killed a white man in the mountains of Fresno county asked the court to please not hang him, as he had only acted as agent for another man who wanted to marry the murdered man's widow. He said he got $100 for doing this and assured the court that this was his sole interest in the transaction. The other man said it was not so and it couldn't be proved that it was true. The Indian was sent up for life, and the man he accuses of hiring him had to be released. If the story is true, hanging is too good for either. The Indian's defense reminds us of a darky in the South who, when asked if he had anything to say as to why he should not be hanged on the 10th day of August, said, "Shorely, Mars Judge, you-all don't mean this comin' August!"

READING THE HEART.

A justice of the peace at Sawtelle decided not to put a woman under a peace bond on the ground that a lady does not always mean what she says. He probably could not find this in the statutes of California, but it is written very largely in the book of human nature. People not only do not mean what they say, but they say what they do without ever stopping to think what it means. Just the same it often happens that one is obliged to stand the test of his own statements and must prove what he says. A light moment may cost years of labor and of pain. A light word may undo a life. Words have power and they must be backed by authority. One of the gravest offenses is the irresponsible manner in which people indorse other people. It is both dangerous and unfair to recommend somebody you do not know, yet this is done every day.

UNITED STATES SUBMARINE F-4.

"Their unmarked graves are restless waves
That sweep and rise and fall;
And where they died in the ruthless tide
The matted seaweeds sprawl,
While down beneath with gleaming teeth
The slimy monsters crawl."

Such are the lines a seaman once wrote when he stumbled below after a long, lonely watch in the "crow's nest." For hours the watcher, perched on a little bobbing point in the center of the unbroken, water-bound horizon, had been held by the sinister fascination of the never-resting ocean.

It is a fascination that all men feel who go to sea and stay there; they love the dangers of sea, even when the answer to that love is death.

There are no cowardly sailors. Peace or war—it matters not—the men of the navy go on their perilous course with hearts that are sturdy and with lips that jest. Duty is the watchword, whether the battle flags fly or the homeward-bound streamer; and now the flags of all the ships in Pearl Harbor may be drooping at half-mast. Submarine F-4, with her worthy crew of twenty-one—"in the line of duty"—found the floor of the ocean at fifty fathoms.

Men of the sea do not expect death, but they do not fear it. F-4 was an ill-fated vessel, and one accident after another, as though warning away her crew, came; but still the sailormen were there to take her below. "The F-4 has been the unluckiest boat in the flotilla," wrote one of the seamen a few days before the last dive was made.

The submarines are tricky little sea beasts. Designed for furtive work—to creep along below the surface of the sea and pull down the steel mammoths that float proudly on the waves—they are treacherous for their own crew. The men must huddle in tight spaces, interlace their arms and legs amid the machinery—and with a wall of glassy waves on all sides they have only the eye of the submarine—the periscope—with which to watch the world above them.

And the sea is a fierce mistress. She takes the life of those whom she draws down before casting them up for friends to weep over. The ships that glide the surface are elusive to the clutchings of the sea; but the submarine goes down, down, down into the very arms of the tide. The pressure is terrific. The steel plates groan against eager waves that strain harder and harder to reach in and smother with watery caresses those who rest behind the riveted ribs. And once a rivet loosens, once a plate shifts, once a shaft weakens—then the little steel sea beast gives up its crew to the waves and goes on down to find the floor of the ocean.

All that ingenuity and courage can accomplish has been invoked by the fellow-officers and seamen to bring relief to Submarine F-4. The whole fleet at Pearl Harbor has gone to the work; and surgeons waited through almost the whole of a night and a day with instruments of resuscitation ready for use. And whether or not the crew of F-4 lives or may be resuscitated, will be determined in a few hours.

Hope is insistent; but in this case hope asks for a miracle. Never, never before have men found fifty fathoms, lain there helpless for two nights and two days, and come back to tell of how it is to stare down the throat of Death.

"HARD TIMES."

Judging from ordinary conversations, one would imagine that the United States really was having a taste of hard times. Quite a number of perfectly normal people honestly believe that we are experiencing a little genuine poverty and talk hopefully of the day when prosperity will be restored.

Oh, but it would do us all good to know, just for once, what hard times really are. This country—broadly speaking—doesn't know what it means to be distressingly poor, hasn't a notion how very many more things it would have to learn to do without if times were really hard, hard as they know them in the Old World, hard as the poor of Europe know them in times of peace and prosperity, hard as a large percentage of the population of the Great Powers, the Rich Powers, the other World Powers, know them year in and year out.

What we call being poor here is comparative wealth anywhere else. What we dare to designate hard times would be luxurious plenty in any other land. As one of our public men said a few weeks ago, how can a country pretend that it is enduring hard times while thousands of tons of chewing gum, thousands of tons of cigars and cigarettes, thousands of tons of candy and ice cream are purchased and consumed in every State every week?

We call it hard times when we can't get exactly the sort of job we prefer. We call it hard times when we have to wear our clothes a few weeks after they have ceased to be fashionable, when we are forced to the ignominy of wearing a last year's pattern in footgear, cleaning our straw hat, darning our stockings, mending the lining in a coat, cutting two out of five visits to the theater a week, making do with one instead of two telephones, eating four instead of six courses at our meals, wearing $2.50 gloves instead of the $4 kind, and possibly having to wear silk lisle instead of pure silk hosiery.

When a man arrives in this country from Europe he is impressed with the high standard of living, the appalling waste, and staggering extravagance. No wonder all the immigrants write home for their families; they have found Tom Tiddler's ground and are picking up gold and silver from the roads. One works half the time for three times the money in America in almost every profession and trade—and still they grumble, still they ask for more.

We hear about 2000 unemployed in Chicago for whom the city feels itself responsible. And they refuse farm work because they don't think they would like it. Much of the unemployment in this country means that they can't just happen to secure the special kind of job they have set their heart on, one compatible with their dignity and pride, one that will enable them to continue their present mode of life and not interfere with their special habits.

In European countries the well-to-do middle classes live on about the same income that our day laborers have. Ten dollars a week is a good average income in England, France, Germany, not because food is cheaper (the difference is probably not more than a dollar a week, anyway,) but because there is no waste, because such families do not consider it a matter of life and death to keep up with the fashions, because meals are plain and wholesome and no member of the family has ever dreamed of cultivating a regular taste for luxuries. The average daily American meal would be party fare for the average European family, and the average American everyday clothing would be gala attire for the same class in any other country.

Take the one item of butter. Americans do not realize the luxury they are experiencing in using the quantities of butter they do, with every meal. To eat thickly-buttered bread with a hot four-course dinner impresses the European as pure gluttony. In most families butter is used sparingly at two meals a day in England, and the child that is allowed both butter and jam on the same piece of bread is regarded as a spoiled creature of fortune. As for spreading butter on cake-bread as they do in this country, well, that would be regarded as almost as vulgar ostentation as wearing diamond buttons down one's school frock.

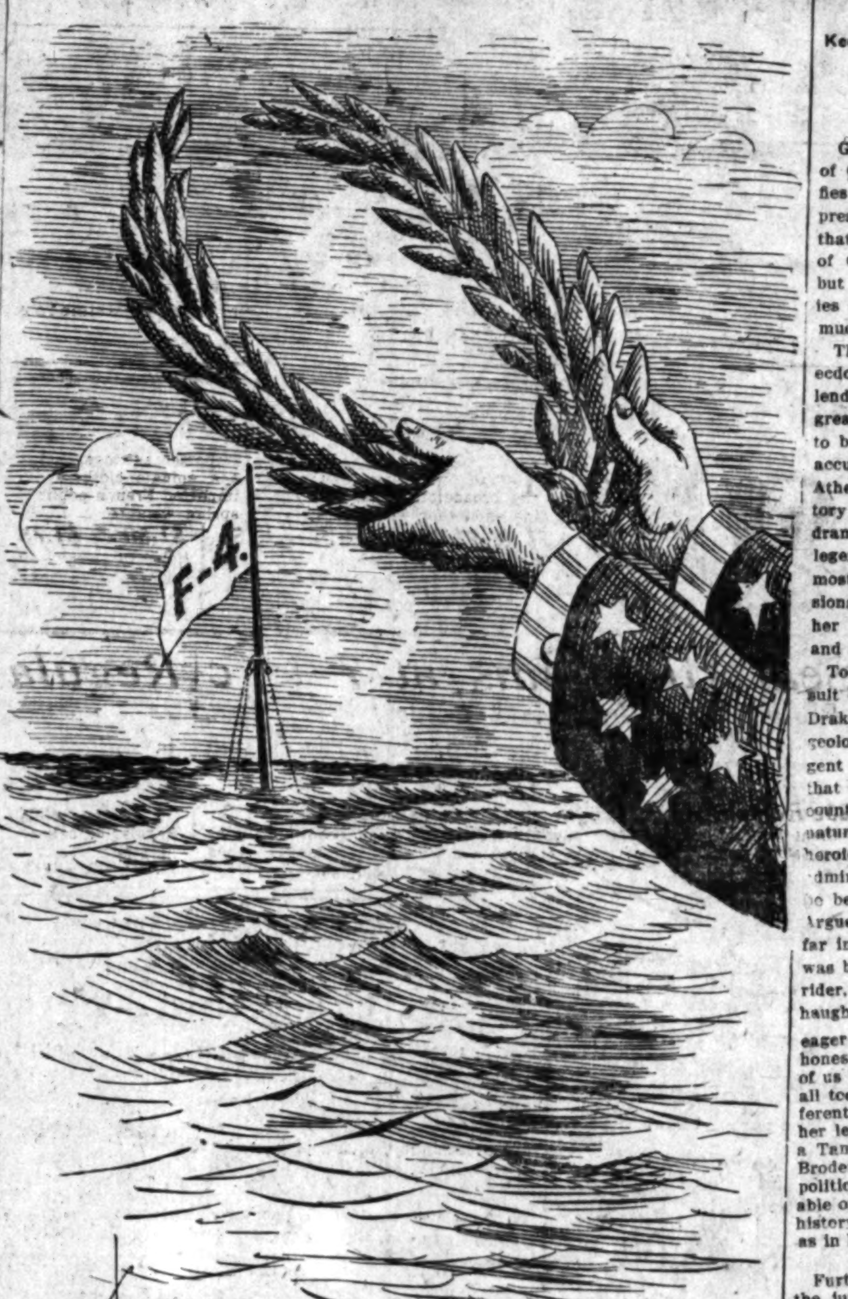
When we were collecting clothes for the Belgian relief recently it was highly interesting to see the difference between the discarded clothing of the Americans and those of the Europeans in our midst. Almost without exception the Americans contributed perfectly good clothing, scarcely worn at all, boots that were good for another year's wear anywhere else, and certainly nothing that showed signs of frequent repair. But the other gifts were sadly out of fashion, darned and mended in a dozen places, faded and washed and repaired to the limit—yet no one suspects that the Europeans were less generous than the Americans. It was merely that they wore their clothes longer as a matter of course, and boots were not considered worn out until they had been repaired at least three times.

This generation of Americans has not been called upon to learn the lesson of doing without, have had no hint of genuine hardship. When we have come to the place where we have to cut out all waste, be thankful if our bread boasts a scrape of butter, have our boots repaired for the third and fourth time, wear made-over clothes indefinitely, skimp on the electric light, reduce the gas bill to a minimum, do without a telephone, darn our stockings till they are mostly darns, regard a theater as a great holiday function and buttered toast as a banquet, warm over the scraps from the last meal, wear coarse underwear because it lasts longer, wash it ourselves and be careful of the soap, clean our teeth with chalk, cut out ice creams, candy, chewing gum, cigarettes, watch the sugar with an anxious eye, save the stale bread crusts—then we shall be in the same position as the moderately prosperous European family which is grateful that the Lord has spared them from hard times!

AN EXPENSIVE PET.

Down in Florida the other day Edward B. McLean gave a dinner party to a bear and spent $2400. The bear drank two dozen bottles of beer and a quantity of champagne. Many of those present could not "bear" to let Bruin monopolize the refreshments, and they did their share to help Mr. McLean spend his money. McLean is the father of the $100,000,000 baby, and is no doubt anxious to set his heir a good example. It is hardly fair, however, to expect even a baby of this class to keep up with a full-grown bear who has a man's-sized thirst.

The Nation's Tribute.



THE NIPA PALM.

We have a source of wealth in the Philippine Islands at present hardly tapped. Some day it may make the islands so valuable a possession for Uncle Sam that even Democrats will cease from their talk of surrendering this portion of the White Man's Burden. Thousands of acres of swamp land in the archipelago are covered with the Nipa palm, a plant that grows and multiplies there as rapidly as do osiers and willows in our own marshy lowlands.

American scientists lately have been investigating the Nipa palm, from whose sap the native Filipinos have for long brewed an agreeable beverage. These investigators have decided that 50,000,000 gallons of denatured alcohol could be distilled annually from the Nipa palms of the Philippines at a cost as low as that of gasoline or any other fuel used for producing motive power. All that is necessary is for some enterprising American to establish a plant there on a large scale for distilling the sap and another source of supply will be added to satisfy the ever-growing demands of the mechanical world.

Next to cheaper food, cheaper transportation is the most pressing problem of this generation. In fact the two are intimately connected. If in the Philippines we have the raw material in abundance for a future supply of driving power, we cannot afford to neglect the opportunity for developing it to satisfy the shortsighted policies of Democrats afflicted with the fear of over-expansion. And of course American capital will hardly be forthcoming to open new industries in any country likely to revert to a second Mexico.

Should we ever abandon the Philippines and should they then pass, as they probably would, under the suzerainty of Japan, there is every likelihood that the economical Nipponese will develop this cheap source of liquid fuel and through it operate a great mercantile marine to win for them the commercial mastery of the Pacific.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

DELIVER US!

From all the woe and sorrow that bloody warfare brings, when monarchs start to borrow some grief from other kings, from dreadful scenes of slaughter, and dead men by the cord, from blood that flows like water, deliver us, O Lord! From fear and melancholy that every death list gives, from all the pompous folly in which an army lives, from all the strife stupendous, that brings no sane reward, but only loss tremendous, deliver us, O Lord! From seeing friend and neighbor in tools of death arrayed, deserting useful labor to wield the thirsty blade; from seeing plowshares lying all rusty on the sward, where men and boys are dying, deliver us, O Lord! From seeing foreign legions invade our peaceful shore, and turn these smiling regions to scenes of death and gore, from all the desolation the gods of war accord to every fighting nation, deliver us, O Lord! WALT MASON.

Wilson and Bryan.

[Philadelphia Telegraph:] Comes a thought relative to the sad statement of President Wilson to a delegation from Chattanooga that he is tied to the capital by his legs. In fancy we can see an optimistic light float over the features of Secretary Bryan and hear the great Nebraskan say it is better to be hobbled than to be muzzled.

THE BREAKS OF GERTRUDE ATHERTON.

Keen Woman Analyst Points Out Flaws in Work of Distinguished California Novelist.

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

Gertrude Atherton has written a "history of California" the title of which she modifies by the word "Intimate"—a word that presumably is intended to excuse the fact that her history deals not with the growth of California, nor its logical development, but with the intrigues and political fripperies of San Francisco. And there is too much Gertrude Atherton in it for a history.

The book is replete with legends and anecdotes of early California to which distance lends enchantment, and which coupled with great names are more or less amusing. But to bring anecdotes to date requires a more accurate handling than is permitted Mrs. Atherton by her inventive genius. A history written by a novelist is certain to be dramatic, but Mrs. Atherton's book is legendary; and to be truthful, it displays a most amazing faculty for supplying conclusions to every situation from the wealth of her imagination, and all with a plentiful and ready prejudice.

To say that the San Francisco Bay is a result of earthquake and was, in the days of Drake, a fertile valley, arouses the wrath of geologists, but leaves the rest of us indulgent and indifferent. Mrs. Atherton says that to one brought up in an earthquake country the earthquake theory seems more natural; to tell almost anything noble and heroic of such a historical and universally admired figure as Padre Junipero Serra and be believed is easy; to tell us that Luis Arguello was the most interesting man by far in old California history, and that he was besides, "a dashing soldier and reckless rider, a gay and handsome caballero, haughty, amiable, independent, but always eager to serve his country, and withal, an honest gentleman," is all right, because none of us knows the contrary, and if we did it is all too long past to quarrel about. It is different, however, when Mrs. Atherton brings her legends up to date and informs us that a Tammany ward politician like David C. Broderick was the ablest man in California's political history and that he is "still immovable on his lofty and solitary pedestal in the history of California; he remains in death as in life the greatest of her sons." Oh, oh!

Furthermore, it is trying to be told that the jury which acquitted so honorable and brave a man as Patrick Calhoun was bribed, especially as the jury was made up of unusually high-class men who are still living in California and will no doubt be surprised and indignant to hear that they were bribed. Gertrude Atherton's "private conversations" with Mr. Calhoun's "best friends" have led her to believe and state that he "paid over at least $200,000 to the Ruef-Schmitz machine" for his overhead trolley. "He denied the charges in toto," she writes, "when after indictment by the grand jury he was brought before the bar, witnesses disappeared, the jurymen were bribed, and copies of the reports of the government's detectives were stolen, it was impossible to convict him legally."

Thus nonchalantly the paragraph is brought to an absurd close, and in discussion with one of the attorneys concerned in the trial I learned that Mrs. Atherton's supposed inside information is as much of a mystery among the members of the bar as it is among the bribed jurymen. Why, oh, Gertrude, call fiction by the sacred name of "history"?

This amazing tendency to jump at conclusions and settle situations through a personal bias and a novelist's bent is evident throughout the book. In the case of the drowning of William C. Ralston, the president of the Bank of California, at the time of its failure in 1875, Mrs. Atherton tells how Ralston had been in the habit of taking a daily swim from the North Beach bathhouse, how he swam out at the usual time and went down, and of the subsequent excitement in San Francisco over Ralston's suicide; that night Mr. Sharon said to Mrs. Atherton's grandfather: "Best thing he could have done," but, says Mrs. Atherton, her grandfather never believed in the immediately adopted theory of suicide, a theory that gained swift credence not only because Ralston was ruined and had wrecked the bank, but because he was a man of intense pride. The suicide theory was disposed of once for all in Mrs. Atherton's mind by the fact that some years later Dr. John Pitman, who was Ralston's doctor, wrote one of Ralston's daughters a lengthy letter in which he said he was not of the opinion that Ralston had committed suicide. No doubt a most satisfactory disposition of the whole affair.

By far the most striking errors in the whole book are to be found in the chapter devoted to the Broderick-Terry duel. So extraordinary are these that in enumerating them, I insist upon calling attention to the possibility of typographical errors. Judge Field sent Terry to jail for six months for contempt of court and Terry vowed vengeance on Judge Field. Mrs. Atherton says: "The Justice never appeared in the West again save in the company of a guard employed by the government." As a matter of fact, Terry was killed during Judge Field's first visit to the West after Terry's release. The present book states that the killing of Terry took place in 1899, whereas it occurred in 1889. Judge Field and his guard, a man named Neagle, were on their way from Los Angeles to San Francisco and were breakfasting (the book says they were lunching) at Lathrop when Terry entered the restaurant and saw Judge Field sitting at breakfast with his guard. Mrs. Atherton says that Terry sprang from his seat in the restaurant and approached Judge Field from behind and slapped the esteemed Justice in the face and that the guard leaped to his feet and shot Terry dead. This is novelistic license. More of the Pat-Calhoun-case sort of fiction. Terry was not seated in the restaurant. His wife told him that Field was there, and he walked in the restaurant and slapped him, whereupon the guard did not jump to his feet, as he saw Terry coming and was prepared for him with his finger on the trigger of his gun, and as Terry struck Judge Field, the guard, sitting quite still, pulled the trigger and shot Terry dead.

All this is rather disconcerting because it leads one to fear for the accuracy of that part of the book of which we cannot judge so readily. However, there is plenty of enthusiasm "and good spirit in the telling," and when Gertrude Atherton speaks of her beloved California, spirit and enthusiasm are the things we should look for, while for such dry things as facts we should go to historians.

From the House of Hyland

Exquisite New Millinery in Time for Easter

—"Send the Store Reporter to write of the beauty and charm of that new Hyland Millinery that is just being unpacked," said the store management.

—It's the cleverest line of Millinery we've ever had in the house at the prices—$10 to $15.

—And the Store Reporter has caught the note of style supremacy and exclusiveness in her story below—

—Simplicity linked with smartness—that's the keynote of them! And it's a simplicity, piquant, sophisticated rather than demure. The sort of hats that make the Woman Who Knows say approvingly, "They have style."
—Lisere and hemp braids are the leading materials. Shepherdess and sailor shapes predominate. Sand, putty, African brown, blue, rose and battleship gray are the prevailing colors and there's a decided liking for black. Burnt ostrich with the new "whip" ends, wings, quills, fruits and flowers, with here a bit of grain or there a touch of ribbon, make up the list of trimmings.
—So much for general impressions. The collection of hats is a joy—each model is an individual delight! A wide-brimmed Shepherdess hat of blue has gray-green grapes and shiny "ripe" blackberries with their foliage grouped artfully about the crown. A stunning gray model has a fluffy ruche of gray silk, the edges quaintly "pinked" about the crown. A black poppy, one red rose and some wheat ears add a worldly note of contrast to the sober Puritan tone. A dark blue sailor has wide spread wings poised jauntily and a strip of gray velvet ribbon seems to keep them from flying away. Another sailor is rose colored and trimmed with two gray quills that have two big rose-toned daisies to mark their crossing.
—Every hat is different, individual, distinctive—the sort that seems to reflect the wearer's personality, and there seems to be the right model for every type in this wonderful assemblage.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS

THE local board which is in charge of preparations for the fourteenth annual State convention of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, which meets in San Francisco from May 17 to 22, inclusive, has just issued its first bulletin in which Mrs. Percy S. King, president of the San Francisco district, sends greetings from the women of her district, and says:

"Come in numbers! We assure you a cordial welcome, a splendid programme and a session full of interest and benefit."

The local board of San Francisco has extended a cordial welcome to club women of California to attend the convention.

Officers of the board are among the prominent and active workers in the club life of the convention and bay cities, and are enthusiastic in their efforts to make this meeting the most successful in the history of the federation.

The large assembly hall on the Polk-street side of the new Civic Auditorium Building has been engaged for the meetings, committee and conference rooms being adjacent or near.

The headquarters of the California Federation of Women's Clubs on the exposition grounds will be in the Napa county reception room, where a registration bureau, information bureau and club bulletins will be kept, enabling visiting club women to learn of club activities.

The one official excursion will consist of a trip through the exposition. This excursion will take place Saturday, May 22.

Reciprocity Day.

Rosecrans reciprocity day will be observed at Echo Park clubhouse next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Opening remarks are to be made by the president, Mrs. Addie Johnson. Mrs. Jennie S. Berryhill will furnish music. The Los Angeles district president, Mrs. Herbert A. Cable, will give greetings, as will Mrs. W. C. Mushet of the State board. Miss Marguerite Goodwin, who was formerly a protege of the club and who later became curator of the music section, will sing. Mrs. Coral Harrison Sloan will read; Mrs. J. E. Coleman, founder and president emeritus of Rosecrans Club, will introduce Dr. Thomas B. Stonewell, L.L.D., of the University of Southern California, who will deliver an address on education and civic righteousness. Music and refreshments will conclude the afternoon's programme.

Presidents and delegates from the clubs in the district have been invited. Temple, Crown Hill or Edendale cars can be taken to the clubhouse, which is located at the upper end of the playgrounds.

Glendale Tuesday Club.

The Tuesday Afternoon Club of Glendale celebrated federation day last Tuesday. Over 150 guests represented outside clubs.

Mrs. W. C. Mushet, State vice-president, being absent on account of illness in her family, State parliamentarian, Mrs. Osgood, spoke in her place; Mrs. Herbert A. Cable, president of the Los Angeles district, gave a short address; Mrs. D. M. Cate, vice-president of the district, also spoke. This was followed by two musical numbers by Julius Kranz, violin, accompanied by Mrs. Mattison B. Jones. A travel talk on Byron in Italy, illustrated with colored lantern slides, was presented by Mrs. Mary Mendenhall Perkins. Refreshments were served. The rooms were decorated with California poppies.

Boy Problem Discussed.

The boy problem was discussed at Manual Arts Parent-Teacher Association last Tuesday in a meeting arranged by Miss Dole, chairman of civics. Chief of Police Sebastian and Principal A. E. Wilson led a general discussion in which the pernicious effects of cigarette-smoking and of idleness were blamed for much of the deterioration of character frequently found in boys of school age. Mrs. Ralph Laughlin was in charge of refreshments, which were served by boys of the school. Fine work by the boys' glee club was commended.

Business Woman's Civic Club.

Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock the Business Woman's Civic Club will be entertained by the Bluebell Operators' Culture Club in the latter's clubroom, third floor of the Pacific Telephone Building, No. 622 South Hill street. Miss Daphne Isgrigg, president of the Bluebell Club, has arranged a musical programme which is to be presented by members of the club. A special number will be the reading of "The Piper" by Miss Edith Emerson Spencer. The operating-room is to be thrown open to the visitors. Only club members are invited.

Friday Morning Club.

The Public Affairs Committee of the Friday Morning Club will have the district conference, with Miss Lloy Galpin talking on "Flood Control," Dr. H. C. Bryant on "Forest" and Mrs. Frank Caldwell on "Club History" next Tuesday afternoon. On Wednesday afternoon a reception is to be given by the board when all members admitted since March 1 of last year will be guests.

Mr. James T. Armstrong, who talked on "Woman, Her Achievements and Influence in Art," last Friday morning urged that women attempt more in the future. "Locally, there is an atmosphere for art in California not to be found in any other part of the world, but everything wants leading and encouraging, and there must be more enthusiasm," said the speaker. Mr. Armstrong, formerly of Plymouth, Eng., is the owner of the only complete collection of wood blocks, dating from 1423, and some of these were exhibited in the parlors of the clubhouse. The earliest children's books were printed from these blocks. The luncheon speakers were Charles Hutchinson, president of the Chicago Art Institute; Edward Berwick, who spoke on "Peace," and Mrs. Julia Bracken Wendt.

Henry Bruere is to furnish the main programme this week, speaking on the new city government. Mr. Bruere, city chamberlain under Mayor Mitchell, New York City, is prominent in the younger generation of public servants.

Mrs. W. C. H. Noble and Mrs. Luther Brown will be assisted during April by Mrs. R. A. Chapman, Mrs. D. R. Spangler, Mrs. O. E. Dutton and Mrs. W. A. MacLagan, as committee on courtesy.

Ebell Club.

Prof. E. J. Banks, field director of the expedition of the Oriental Exploration Fund of the University of Chicago to Babylonia, will give an illustrated lecture on "Bismya, or the Lost City of Adab," at the Ebell Club tomorrow afternoon.

The books and conversation section, Mrs. John Stearns Thayer curator, will consider Spain and the Spanish Netherlands next Thursday morning. "The Great Infanta, Klingstein," will be Mrs. E. C. Gates's subject. Mrs. A. L. Stetson will talk on "William the Silent," and Miss Gertrude Dallow will tell of modern essays. Luncheon will be in charge of Mrs. C. W. Reyburn.

The social science section has secured David Beaton, M.A., for Thursday at 2 o'clock. He will address the members on "Marriage and Family Life," considering the status of woman, marriage and divorce, heredity and eugenics. Mmes. Charles N. Flint and Sumner P. Hunt are curators. The Bible literature section will hold a session next Friday morning.

Galpin Shakespeare Club.

The Galpin Shakespeare classes will begin the spring term next Tuesday. The Tuesday class will study "The Tempest," and the Thursday class "Macbeth" and "King Lear." The classes meet at Cumnock Hall under the direction of Mrs. Warren Fishburn.

Inglewood Club.

Mrs. O. P. Allen talked on the history and equipment of the United States Army at the Inglewood Woman's Club last Tuesday. Mrs. Anna Clark's presentation of the Monroe doctrine was an excellent interpretation. The club president, Mrs. N. E. Brown, closed the programme with an illustrated talk on the Yosemite, presenting her subject from a personal standpoint and ably.

This week the club will hold a flower show. A novel feature will be the outside showroom, permission having been given by the city fathers to erect a pergola of artistic design over the sidewalk, where vines and hanging baskets can be effectively displayed.

Wednesday Afternoon Club.

Miss Ruth Sterry gave an interesting talk to the members of the Wednesday Afternoon Club book and conversation section upon newspaper work, from the viewpoint of a newswriter, and presented some strong ideas upon the co-operation which should exist between clubwomen and representatives of the press, last Wednesday.

Mrs. Estelle Lawton Lindsey furnished one of the best programmes of the year on current events from a woman's standpoint. She told of the work being done by women in not only this but other States along the line of social uplift. Mrs. M. E. Johnson of the books and conversation gave a delightful reading of Marian Craig Wentworth's "War Brides," and led in the discussion. Mrs. Leroy Bosserman gave piano solos. Mrs. John Kuhns was hostess for the luncheon.

Seven-seven Literary Club.

Mrs. Harriet Bigelow, president of the Seven-seven Literary Club, entertained the members at her home on Wednesday afternoon. The morning was spent in a visit to the museum and art exhibit at Exposition Park. Luncheon was served at noon, at the home of the hostess, after which the afternoon programme was enjoyed. Answering to roll call by naming their favorite books, the members were requested to state their reasons for their avowed preferences. A biography of De Lesseps was read by Mrs. Nellie Carr. After an interesting general discussion by the members on the news of the day, the meeting adjourned until April 7 next.

National Park Alumnae.

The third of a series of parties by the National Park Seminary Alumnae Association was given Thursday at the home of Miss Lucia Railsback, No. 504 Oxford avenue, when fifteen members and their mothers were present.

A tea under the direction of Miss Lucile Evans will be given next month for the members, and in May the annual luncheon will be an interesting social event. All alumnae are invited to the meetings. The Alumnae Association president is Miss Gertrude Willard, No. 615 South Virgil street.

Highland Park Ebell Club.

A programme of unusual interest was given last Tuesday at the Highland Park Ebell Club, under the direction of the new psychology section. Mrs. Trask introduced the speaker of the morning, Mrs. Harlan Shoemaker of the State Normal School, who talked on "Ourselves and Efficiency." Given in a forceful, comprehensive way, the address was appreciated by all. Mrs. Shoemaker discussed the subject from two points of view—the psychological and the economic. She said that efficiency is a process of action; that it is result in the making and must therefore be a product of thought. Man has developed efficiency through the ages, from adaptation to invention, she said, and last of all he has developed efficiency, which is a science.

Press Club Birthday.

The twenty-first birthday of the Southern California Women's Press Club was celebrated last Tuesday night by a dinner at Christopher's, with many speakers joining in the occasion. Mrs. Lavinia Griffin Graham, head of the club this year, presided. The first president and founder, Mrs. McComas, was a guest and blew out the candles on the handsomely decorated cake which occupied a prominent place on the festive board, decorated in showers of white iris. Mrs. Hughes Cornell, Miss Rose Ellerby, Mrs. Emma Read, Mrs. Russell J. Waters, Mrs. E. R. Brainerd and other prominent attendants spoke and Mrs. Grace Wood Jess gave two operatic selections. Mrs. Hooker, who has just returned from Marcus Vineyard, spoke of her suffrage work. Among those who responded was Mrs. James H. Bower of the Matinee Musical Club, who urged co-operation in "American made" music and composers. Mrs. Graham paid tribute to the various committees of the club who are carrying out every policy with energy.

Audubon Society.

The Los Angeles Audubon Society will hold its regular field day next Thursday at Dominguez ranch. Members are requested to bring lunches and binoculars for an all-day event. Interested friends have been invited to join the party and meet at the Pacific Electric station at 8 o'clock in the morning. The indoor meetings are held at Fine Arts Museum, Exposition Park, the third Thursday in each month, at 2:30 o'clock.

University Women.

The Women's Club of the University of Southern California held an interesting meeting last Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. George Veach Wright read "The Hour Class" by William Butler Yeats. Mrs. Wright is dramatic instructor of the Friday Morning Club. She believes the place to begin the betterment of mankind is in his amusements. She first gave the stage setting of the play, followed by the theme motif. The musical numbers included a selection on the pipe organ by Miss Gladys Osburne.

Cosmos Club.

An instructive programme was rendered by the Cosmos Club Art Committee, of which Mrs. G. A. Murray is chairman, last Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Theo Walker gave a talk on the color scheme of the Panama-Pacific Exposition and artists who are exhibiting there. Mrs. Robert Fenton Fowler delighted her audience with several vocal selections. Chan Que Sing delivered a lecture on his native country, and a social hour followed in the parlors.

The Ramblers will visit Chinatown the second Monday in April instead of the first, as was originally planned. A guide will officially conduct the party through all places of special interest. The meeting place will be announced later.

Mrs. William Holzer, chairman of music, announces a musicale and card party at the Regent next Friday at 2 o'clock.

Wednesday Morning Club.

Organized in the year 1898, the Wednesday Morning Club, whose handsome clubhouse is located at Avenue Twenty-eight and Sichel street, is enjoying marked prosperity. Its sections embrace classes in French, Spanish, music, Dickens, Shakespeare, and ramblers, under the directorship respectively of Mrs. E. W. L Mrs. J. B. Wall, Mrs. W. E. Help the Stomach Digest Your Food

When the stomach fails to digest and distribute that which is eaten, the bowels become clogged with a mass of waste and refuse that ferments and generates poisons that are gradually forced into the blood, causing distress and often serious illness.

Most people naturally object to the drastic cathartic and purgative agents that shock the system. A mild, gentle laxative, positive in its effect and that will quickly relieve constipation is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle. It does not gripe or cramp, but acts easily and pleasantly and is therefore the most satisfactory remedy for children, women and elderly persons. For a free trial bottle write to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington street, Monticello, Ill.

RHEUMATISM CONQUERED

I say that I can conquer rheumatism with a simple home treatment; without electrical treatment, stringent diet, weakening baths, or in fact any other of the usual treatments recommended for the cure of rheumatism. Don't shut your eyes and say "impossible," but put me to the test.

You may have tried everything you ever heard of and have spent your money right and left. I say "well and good," let me prove my claims without expense to you.

Let me send you without charge a trial treatment of DELANO'S RHEUMATIC CONQUEROR. I am willing to take the chance and surely the test will tell.

So send me your name and the test treatment will be sent you at once. When I send you this, I will write you more fully, and will show you that my treatment is not only for banishing rheumatism, but should also cleanse the system of Uric Acid and give great benefit in kidney trouble and help the general health.

This special offer will not be held open indefinitely. It will be necessary for you to make your application quickly. As soon as this discovery becomes better known I shall cease sending free treatments and shall then charge a price for this discovery which will be in proportion to its great value. So take advantage of this offer before it is too late. Remember, the test costs you absolutely nothing. F. H. Delano, 101-W Delano Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y.

ENGLISH VERSION GIVEN TO OFFSET GERMAN.

City Club Hears President of British-American League Speak After Listening to Teuton Expound Fatherland's Good Points—"Irish-Germans" are Bitterly Scored.

In presenting the English side of the war to the City Club at its luncheon yesterday in the Union League Building, Edmund Mitchell, president of the British-American League, received the heartiest applause of the occasion in his scathing arraignment of the "Irish-German," who, he said, reminds him of the dachshund and was not inspired by his love of Germany but by his hatred of England. He deplored the absurdity of Ireland, a little country struggling for liberty, hobnobbing with a great military tyrant engaged in crushing out the liberty of Belgium. Mr. Mitchell insisted that the ward politician of American cities should not speak for Ireland, but that we should listen to the words and note the example of the 250,000 Irish volunteers who were quick to turn to the mother country with their leaders in the present extremity. The loyalty of the Irish at home is paramount and offsets anything the expatriated may care to say or do.

If England had been wrong, Mr. Mitchell said, it never would have received the unqualified indorsement and support of Australia, Canada and New Zealand, great dominions of fair men who are all lovers of liberty and not blinded by prejudice.

Most of Mr. Mitchell's remarks were directed in answer to a prior address before the City Club by Dr. Kuehnemann, who had set forth the case of Germany. Mr. Mitchell said he was proud to see England stand as a sacrifice to those national ideals which hold honor above profit and which respect such a treaty as must be the very basis of civilization and the only guarantee of peace.

He said that Lord Salisbury fifteen years ago brought France and England to a commercial understanding that would preclude the possibility of war between these nations and that Salisbury's successors had applied this plan to cement the friendship between Russia and England, but when an attempt was made to bring about this good understanding with Germany, the Fatherland's only answer had been an increase of armament and a greater navy.

Mr. Mitchell ridiculed the idea that if Germany could destroy and annex Belgium, despoil France and force Russia back upon itself, Germany and the United States could then proceed in the peaceful pursuits of commerce. It would, he said, be a case of the lion and the lamb, with America distinctly in the role of the lamb and a badly frightened little lamb it would be at that.

In Mr. Mitchell's opinion Germany's only hope of success lies in a complete destruction of Great Britain's navy and its power to prevent England from rebuilding that navy.

Russia's position, Mr. Mitchell declared, is only refusing to stand by and see a little fellow devoured by a big bully. France had acted only in self-protection. Turkey had simply been shanghaied by the Germans and dragged into the war. England had been compelled by its own treaties to resent the violation of Belgium's neutrality.

At the outset of the war England had sent a note to both France and Germany asking them if they would guarantee to respect the neutrality of Belgium. England had asked the same question of these two nations in 1870, when both had answered in the affirmative. This time France answered in an hour that she would keep out of Belgium, but Germany made no reply. When the English Ambassador to Germany had presented his government's position to the Emperor the Kaiser's only guarantee was that at the close of the war any damage done to Belgium would be made good, provided Belgium had taken neither side in the meanwhile.

The speaker denied that England had fabricated the German atrocities to arouse the world's indignation and said that those outrages only illustrated the hate, fury and bloodshed that dominate when the passions of war are released. Had England sat still, following a selfish preference for peace and for commercial advancement, it would have been in the role of a silent witness, a willing accomplice, to a world crime.

Mr. Mitchell was introduced by former Lieut.-Gov. Wallace, who was in a hurry to get away to speak to the Nebraska State Society at Sycamore Grove. A pro-English paper was read by Dr. Edward P. Bailey, president of the Canadian Club, who spoke on "British-American Solidarity Essential for World Peace." Dr. Bailey stated that there are more than 100,000 subjects of Great Britain residing in California, more than one-fifth of whom live in Los Angeles.

BIG INDUSTRY HERE IS SAVED.

FIX DUTY ON JAPANESE WHITE-OAK FLOORING.

American Dealers in Hardwood Win Big Victory Through Order of Secretary of the Treasury—Oriental Stuff had been Admitted Free—This the Port of Entry.

Local and American dealers in hardwood won an important victory yesterday in the promulgation of an order by the Secretary of the Treasury fixing the duty on hardwood flooring, made of Japanese white oak, at 15 per cent.

About a year ago a ruling placed the duty on Japanese white oak logs at 10 per cent., the tariff on cabinet wood, and the second ruling still further protects American dealers in hardwood from the ruinous competition in Japan, where the lumber is plenty and almost worthless and where the cost of labor necessary to prepare the wood for shipment amounts to nothing.

Los Angeles receives more hardwood from Japan than any other port in the United States, and the question of duty is an important one to local manufacturers and dealers. At a score of hearings held in the Federal Building by members of the general Board of Appraisers of New York the question has been brought up and discussed, but up until the promulgation of the 10 per cent. order a year ago millions of feet of Japanese hardwood were landed here free of duty.

The flooring, to which the latest ruling applies, is tongued and grooved, kiln-dried, sawed and planed in Japan, and the hollow-back that prevents the warping of the wood when placed in a floor is in evidence, but all done at a figure with which an American workman could not compete.

The fact that up to the first ruling classifying Japanese white oak as cabinet wood, and making it dutiable at the rate of 10 per cent., it was impossible for American manufacturers to compete with the Japanese, caused a number of Pacific Coast dealers to open manufacturing plants in Japan, for their product was admitted free. With the tax levied by the Treasury Department on hardwood flooring, it will be found that the enterprise in Japan will be a losing proposition.

The order received gives the local customs authorities the right to assess the duty on all future cargoes of hardwood lumber, whether in the shape of cabinet wood or flooring, and it is understood that the Japanese interests will fight the legality of the order issued covering duty on these two varieties of lumber from the Orient.

The next session of the Appraiser's Court at the Federal Building will be held in June, when Judge McClellan, the timber expert of the New York Board of Appraisers, will hear the protests of the Japanese timber merchants against the levying of the duty. J. L. Bley, customs broker of San Francisco, who was here yesterday in the interest of Japanese lumber shippers, says that if the decision of the Board of Appraisers, following the taking of testimony before Judge McClellan, is adverse to the claims of his clients, that there should be no duty on Japanese lumber, the issue will be taken up to the highest court of appeal.

"We believe," he said, "that under the Underwood law Japanese hardwood should come in free. We may be mistaken, but the matter will be tested."

The famous twenty-five-mile Coney Island cycle path bicycle race, which was an annual fixture until about five years ago, is to be revived on Decoration Day, May 31, under the auspices of the Empire City Wheelmen of Brooklyn.

Rehabilitation.

from total inundation, Col. Randolph was asked his opinion of the project, now under way, of raising the level of the Volcano Lake levee at a cost of $200,000.

"The Southern Pacific offered to put the Colorado back in its original channel and insure the levees, all for $1,750,000," he replied. "It will cost $6,000,000 to do similar work as they are now doing. There is but one solution of the Colorado River trouble and it is the cheapest—put it back in its original channel and keep it there."

Col. Randolph's observation is particularly pertinent at this time, as, while others have vacillated, he has stood fast to his original premises on the Colorado River problem. Incidentally, Secretary of the Interior, Lane, whose general plan for flood control is of a piece with that of Col. Randolph, is to spend today in the Imperial Valley.

FRIENDS HELP HIM.

Orvey R. Turnbaugh, the embezzling clerk employed in the postoffice at Ontario, indicted on the charge of stealing $56 government funds, pleaded guilty in Judge Trippet's court yesterday, and was sentenced to four months in the County Jail, and pay a fine of $56. A number of friends of the accused were in the courtroom when sentence was passed, and sympathized with him deeply. A purse was made up to discharge the fine.

NEW THOUGHT CONFERENCE.

Sessions Tonight and Tomorrow Will Present Varied Programme, Open to General Public.

Under the auspices of the Southern California New Thought Exposition Committee a new thought conference will convene in Los Angeles this evening, and will continue its sessions tomorrow. The meetings are open to the general public.

The first session will be at 8 o'clock tonight, in Cumnock Hall, No. 1500 South Figueroa street. John Milton Scott will be chairman. Myra C. Frenyear, of the House of Blessing, San Diego, will speak on "The San Diego Exposition from a Metaphysical Standpoint." Annie Rix Militz, editor of "Master Mind," will also give an address.

The second session of this conference will be at 12 o'clock noon tomorrow in Symphony Hall. This will be a "success psychology" meeting for business men and women. Harry Gaze will be the chairman. Dr. Hall, of the Emerson Institute of Efficiency, will be the principal speaker and there will be short talks by others.

The second Monday session will be at 3 o'clock in Symphony Hall, with Annie Rix Militz, vice-president of the International New Thought Alliance, as chairman. The topic will be "New Thought Definitions and Demonstrations; Just What New Thought Is, and What It Is Doing for Humanity."

Among the speakers will be Mrs. M. J. Merrill, of the Home of Truth; Miss Julia M. Cooke of New York City; Mrs. Rosalind G. Peasley, of the Center of Living Truth; Mrs. Adeline Becker and Mrs. Betty Simonds.

Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in Symphony Hall the final meeting will be held, with Maud Fletcher Galigher of the College of Divine Science, Annie Rix Militz and Harry Gaze as the speakers.

FOR SCOTCH PIPERS.

Under the auspices of the British Overseas Club and the Canadian Club a concert will be given in Blanchard Hall Wednesday evening for the benefit of the "Scotch Pipers." An elaborate programme of sixteen numbers has been prepared, to be followed by dancing. On the programme will appear a quartette consisting of English, Irish, Scotch and Welch men, and there will be Scotch and Irish dances and music by the pipers.

BEAUTY DOCTOR TELLS SECRET.

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To half a pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the hair, relieve itching and scalp diseases, and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."

QUIT MEAT IF YOUR BACK HURTS. FLUSH YOUR KIDNEYS WITH SALTS.

Meat forms uric acid, which clogs Kidneys, irritates Bladder or causes Rheumatism.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid, which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood, and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life-saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

CITY TO HONOR GOTHAM EXPERT.

ADVISER TO NEW YORK'S HEAD, A GUEST HERE.

Mayor to Name Reception Committee for Big Gathering to Hear Chamberlain on Municipal Progress—Officials of Southern California Cities to be Invited.

Henry Bruere, City Chamberlain of New York, is to be the guest of Los Angeles and Southern California next Friday and Saturday when a great civic outpouring will be addressed by him upon the latest steps in municipal progress.

Mayor Rose yesterday called the Council's attention to the fact that Mr. Bruere is coming and asked for permission to name a committee of citizens to arrange a big reception to the adviser of the Mayor of the largest city on the continent. The Council indorsed the Mayor's suggestion, and plans for the reception will be made at once.

A formal invitation will be extended to the Mayors and other city officials of Southern California cities.

For ten years Mr. Bruere has been closely associated with Mayor Mitchel of New York. He was one of the founders of the Bureau of Municipal Research of New York and was director of that bureau from its beginning until his appointment on Mayor Mitchel's cabinet.

Mr. Bruere is probably the best-posted man in this country on the subject of municipal efficiency and how to obtain it. He knows how to investigate everything from the burnable energy of coal to the records of Mayors and department heads. His fundamental principle is that reform in city government cannot come without facts and that the possession of the facts is nine-tenths of getting things improved. He took up the task of improvement in municipal government where the muckrakers left off. The constructive spirit of his work with the Bureau of Municipal Research opened to Mr. Bruere the doors of practically all municipal departments and for eight years he worked in closest touch with one after another of the departmental heads.

He has always avoided the attitude of the detective and prosecutor and has consistently conducted himself as a servant to the conscientious public servants of New York. He was very largely responsible for the creation of the modern municipal budget for New York City, which has so greatly advanced public enlightenment with regard to municipal affairs. It has resulted in immense reductions in operating expenses and correspondingly improved extensions of efficiency service in many departments of the government.

WHAT IS "STAND?" RULING ON JITNEY BUS.

The City Attorney made a ruling on the bondless bus to the City Council yesterday which may result in demands from permit-holders that the city refund half of the money they have paid in for licenses. The City Attorney reports that the legal charges for passenger autos are under two heads—one charge of $60 a year for autos for hire that stand upon the street; the other a charge of $30 a year for those which do not stand upon the street.

The jitney bondless bus owners contend that they do not stand their cars upon the street and that they have been required to pay at the rate of $60 a year, whereas they should have paid just half that.

City officials familiar with the ordinance regulating passenger autos assert that the $30 permit, which the jitbus operators assert applies to them, is intended for garage owners who keep their cars for hire in the garages and not at street stands.

Following the ruling of the City Attorney it is expected that the bus drivers will ask for a refund, which is said to amount to about $30,000.

People Beautify Street.

The City Council yesterday adopted a resolution calling for the beautifying of the parkways on both sides of University avenue, from Exposition boulevard to Jefferson street. Trees will be planted and other work done to make this a very attractive street. It will not cost the city any money, however, as the Medford-street improvement district will stand the expense.

Restroom for Women.

For the first time in the history of Los Angeles there is a ladies' restroom at City Hall. That cramped old building has never had enough space for half the city offices, let alone for restrooms, but now that two annexes—one on the north and one on the south—are occupied by city offices, the old building has a bit of breathing space, some of which has been fixed up by Commissioner P. P. O'Brien of the Board of Public Works for the women.

ABATEMENT ACT IS UNDER TEST.

FIRST CASE OF ITS KIND HERE; MANY INTERESTED.

Owner, Proprietor and Lessee of Notorious Rooming-house on South Spring Street Named in Temporary Restraining Order—Ten Days Given to Answer Charges.

Judge Wilbur yesterday issued a temporary restraining order against H. H. Ford, real estate dealer; Mrs. Victoria H. Trask, wealthy property owner, and Mrs. Louise Baker, proprietor of a rooming-house at No. 625½ South Spring street, forbidding the latter from conducting her house on the ground that is is being used for immoral purposes and that under the redlight abatement act the nusiance should be abated.

This is the first test case under the Grant-Bohnett Redlight Abatement Act of 1912 in Los Angeles county and the outcome of the court proceedings will be of interest to scores of prominent owners of buildings in this city and county.

In issuing the temporary injunction Judge Wilbur gave the defendant, Mrs. Baker, ten days to file an answer. The complaint, drawn up by Deputy District Atorney McCartney, charged that the rooming-house was, in reality, a house of prostitution and asked that the place be closed for one year. Also that the personal property and chattels of Mrs. Baker be sold to pay the costs of the suit and if there is anything left that it go to Mrs. Baker.

Mr. Ford and Mrs. Trask in their answers asserted that they did not know that Mrs. Baker was running a house of ill fame and that if the court should find that it is a place of that character, that it also hold that it was so conducted without the knowledge of Mr. Ford, the lessee, and Mrs. Trask, the owner.

Depositions made by Police Officers Cherry, Schaeffer and Davies to the effect that Mrs. Baker's resort was one of the most notorious places of its kind in Los Angeles were read by Deputy McCartney. The officers alleged that Mrs. Baker boasted that she had cleaned up more than $40,000 in Los Angeles and "I will use that amount to fight the police force, if necessary." Their depositions were most damaging.

Complaints against the owners and proprietors of six other downtown rooming-houses and hotels charging them with conducting nusiances may be issued within the next few days. Recently the District Attorney notified the owners of the building in question to appear before him and show cause why injunctions under the redlight act should not issue against them.

HELD TO ANSWER. MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE.

William Hudson, a direct descendant of Hendrick Hudson, was held to answer to the Superior Court yesterday by Justice Summerfield on a charge of manslaughter. He was released in $1000 bail. Mr. Hudson is a prominent contractor and is wealthy.

While driving his machine along Compton avenue on December 1, last, it struck William L. Cobler, who was riding a motorcycle. According to eyewitnesses, Mr. Cobler was dragged about 180 feet before Mr. Hudson stopped his machine. Mr. Cobler was terribly mangled and died the following day. His relatives have brought suit for $50,000 damages against the accused contractor.

TRIAL DATE SET.

Trial of Mrs. H. E. Marshall on a charge of complicity in a "badger" game alleged to have been worked on William Polsen, a contractor, ysterday was set by Judge Willis for April 14.

The aged defendant is the mother of Mrs. Andrew J. Scholz, who with her husband, mysteriously disappeared from Los Angeles several weeks ago. The missing couple are wanted by the Sheriff's office and police in connection with the alleged robbery of Mr. Polsen.

COURT PARAGRAPHS.

HE THE WIFE. Mrs. Helen Edith Carnes asked Judge York for a divorce yesterday from Lee Ward Carnes, a telegraph operator, on the ground that he had failed to provide for her. The husband also asked for a divorce alleging that he was compelled to do most of the housework by his wife and that she got all of his weekly earnings. Judge York refused to grant either party a divorce and continued the case until November 1, in order that the parties may establish a residence here.

THOM ESTATE. The State Controller yesterday filed suit in the Superior Court against Mrs. Beele C. Thom, widow of former Mayor Cameron E. Thom, asking the court to appoint appraisers to appraise the large estate left by the deceased. This will be done for the purpose of fixing the inheritance tax. Mr. Thom left more than $1,000,000 in real estate and stocks.

BUSINESS WOMAN PASSES.

Owned and Operated in Real Estate for Many Years—Long-time Church Member.

Mrs. Sciota Hammer, a well-known business woman, died of heart failure night before last at her home, No. 947 Winfield street. She owned considerable real estate in Los Angeles, including business property on Sentous street. She leaves two sisters, one of whom resides in the East. The other, Miss Margaret Culumber, lived with Mrs. Hammer and the latter's son, Laurence Hammer, at No. 947 Winfield street.

Mrs. Hammer was a member of the First Christian Church of this city for nineteen years. She was well known in business and church circles. The funeral will be held at Bresee Bros.' undertaking rooms tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid, which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood, and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life-saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

No Pressure Avails

Upon a responsible trust company like Title Insurance and Trust Company no pressure is availing. It inevitably and inexorably does the right thing at the right time.

Among human institutions, there is nothing more absolutely dependable than a corporation such as this, authorized and supervised by the State, experienced, financially strong, ably manned, impartial, impersonal, the embodiment of integrity and efficiency.

Consider these facts if you are about to make your will and appoint an executor.

CITY TO HONOR GOTHAM EXPERT.

ADVISER TO NEW YORK'S HEAD, A GUEST HERE.

Mayor to Name Reception Committee for Big Gathering to Hear Chamberlain on Municipal Progress—Officials of Southern California Cities to be Invited.

Henry Bruere, City Chamberlain of New York, is to be the guest of Los Angeles and Southern California next Friday and Saturday when a great civic outpouring will be addressed by him upon the latest steps in municipal progress.

Mayor Rose yesterday called the Council's attention to the fact that Mr. Bruere is coming and asked for permission to name a committee of citizens to arrange a big reception to the adviser of the Mayor of the largest city on the continent. The Council indorsed the Mayor's suggestion, and plans for the reception will be made at once.

A formal invitation will be extended to the Mayors and other city officials of Southern California cities.

For ten years Mr. Bruere has been closely associated with Mayor Mitchel of New York. He was one of the founders of the Bureau of Municipal Research of New York and was director of that bureau from its beginning until his appointment on Mayor Mitchel's cabinet.

Mr. Bruere is probably the best-posted man in this country on the subject of municipal efficiency and how to obtain it. He knows how to investigate everything from the burnable energy of coal to the records of Mayors and department heads. His fundamental principle is that reform in city government cannot come without facts and that the possession of the facts is nine-tenths of getting things improved. He took up the task of improvement in municipal government where the muckrakers left off. The constructive spirit of his work with the Bureau of Municipal Research opened to Mr. Bruere the doors of practically all municipal departments and for eight years he worked in closest touch with one after another of the departmental heads.

He has always avoided the attitude of the detective and prosecutor and has consistently conducted himself as a servant to the conscientious public servants of New York. He was very largely responsible for the creation of the modern municipal budget for New York City, which has so greatly advanced public enlightenment with regard to municipal affairs. It has resulted in immense reductions in operating expenses and correspondingly improved extensions of efficiency service in many departments of the government.

WHAT IS "STAND?"
RULING ON JITNEY BUS.

The City Attorney made a ruling on the bondless bus to the City Council yesterday which may result in demands from permit-holders that the city refund half of the money they have paid in for licenses. The City Attorney reports that the legal charges for passenger autos are under two heads—one charge of $60 a year for autos for hire that stand upon the street; the other a charge of $30 a year for those which do not stand upon the street.

The jitney bondless bus owners contend that they do not stand their cars upon the street and that they have been required to pay at the rate of $60 a year, whereas they should have paid just half that.

City officials familiar with the ordinance regulating passenger autos assert that the $30 permit, which the jitbus operators assert applies to them, is intended for garage owners who keep their cars for hire in the garages and not at street stands.

Following the ruling of the City Attorney it is expected that the bus drivers will ask for a refund, which is said to amount to about $30,000.

People Beautify Street.

The City Council yesterday adopted a resolution calling for the beautifying of the parkways on both sides of University avenue, from Exposition boulevard to Jefferson street. Trees will be planted and other work done to make this a very attractive street. It will not cost the city any money, however, as the Medford-street improvement district will stand the expense.

Restroom for Women.

For the first time in the history of Los Angeles there is a ladies' restroom at City Hall. That cramped old building has never had enough space for half the city offices, let alone for restrooms, but now that two annexes—one on the north and one on the south—are occupied by city offices, the old building has a bit of breathing space, some of which has been fixed up by Commissioner P. P. O'Brien of the Board of Public Works for the women.

ABATEMENT ACT IS UNDER TEST.

FIRST CASE OF ITS KIND HERE; MANY INTERESTED.

Owner, Proprietor and Lessee of Notorious Rooming-house on South Spring Street Named in Temporary Restraining Order—Ten Days Given to Answer Charges.

Judge Wilbur yesterday issued a temporary restraining order against H. H. Ford, real estate dealer; Mrs. Victoria H. Trask, wealthy property owner, and Mrs. Louise Baker, proprietor of a rooming-house at No. 625½ South Spring street, forbidding the latter from conducting her house on the ground that is is being used for immoral purposes and that under the redlight abatement act the nusiance should be abated.

This is the first test case under the Grant-Bohnett Redlight Abatement Act of 1912 in Los Angeles county and the outcome of the court proceedings will be of interest to scores of prominent owners of buildings in this city and county.

In issuing the temporary injunction Judge Wilbur gave the defendant, Mrs. Baker, ten days to file an answer. The complaint, drawn up by Deputy District Atorney McCartney, charged that the rooming-house was, in reality, a house of prostitution and asked that the place be closed for one year. Also that the personal property and chattels of Mrs. Baker be sold to pay the costs of the suit and if there is anything left that it go to Mrs. Baker.

Mr. Ford and Mrs. Trask in their answers asserted that they did not know that Mrs. Baker was running a house of ill fame and that if the court should find that it is a place of that character, that it also hold that it was so conducted without the knowledge of Mr. Ford, the lessee, and Mrs. Trask, the owner.

Depositions made by Police Officers Cherry, Schaeffer and Davies to the effect that Mrs. Baker's resort was one of the most notorious places of its kind in Los Angeles were read by Deputy McCartney. The officers alleged that Mrs. Baker boasted that she had cleaned up more than $40,000 in Los Angeles and "I will use that amount to fight the police force, if necessary." Their depositions were most damaging.

Complaints against the owners and proprietors of six other downtown rooming-houses and hotels charging them with conducting nusiances may be issued within the next few days. Recently the District Attorney notified the owners of the building in question to appear before him and show cause why injunctions under the redlight act should not issue against them.

HELD TO ANSWER.
MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE.

William Hudson, a direct descendant of Hendrick Hudson, was held to answer to the Superior Court yesterday by Justice Summerfield on a charge of manslaughter. He was released in $1000 bail. Mr. Hudson is a prominent contractor and is wealthy.

While driving his machine along Compton avenue on December 1, last, it struck William L. Cobler, who was riding a motorcycle. According to eyewitnesses, Mr. Cobler was dragged about 180 feet before Mr. Hudson stopped his machine. Mr. Cobler was terribly mangled and died the following day. His relatives have brought suit for $50,000 damages against the accused contractor.

TRIAL DATE SET.

Trial of Mrs. H. E. Marshall on a charge of complicity in a "badger" game alleged to have been worked on William Polsen, a contractor, ysterday was set by Judge Willis for April 14.

The aged defendant is the mother of Mrs. Andrew J. Scholz, who with her husband, mysteriously disappeared from Los Angeles several weeks ago. The missing couple are wanted by the Sheriff's office and police in connection with the alleged robbery of Mr. Polsen.

COURT PARAGRAPHS.

HE THE WIFE. Mrs. Helen Edith Carnes asked Judge York for a divorce yesterday from Lee Ward Carnes, a telegraph operator, on the ground that he had failed to provide for her. The husband also asked for a divorce alleging that he was compelled to do most of the housework by his wife and that she got all of his weekly earnings. Judge York refused to grant either party a divorce and continued the case until November 1, in order that the parties may establish a residence here.

THOM ESTATE. The State Controller yesterday filed suit in the Superior Court against Mrs. Beele C. Thom, widow of former Mayor Cameron E. Thom, asking the court to appoint appraisers to appraise the large estate left by the deceased. This will be done for the purpose of fixing the inheritance tax. Mr. Thom left more than $1,000,000 in real estate and stocks.

INCORPORATIONS. Alert Law and Adjustment Company, incorporators, Frank Herald, L. L. Burns and L. R. Burns, capital stock, $5000, subscribed $50; Burlesque Wheel, Inc., incorporators, John. H. Blackwood, William Ervast and W. C. Meek, capital stock, $10,000, subscribed, $500.

BUSINESS WOMAN PASSES.

Owned and Operated in Real Estate for Many Years—Long-time Church Member.

Mrs. Sciota Hammer, a well-known business woman, died of heart failure night before last at her home, No. 947 Winfield street. She owned considerable real estate in Los Angeles, including business property on Sentous street. She leaves two sisters, one of whom resides in the East. The other, Miss Margaret Culumber, lived with Mrs. Hammer and the latter's son, Laurence Hammer, at No. 947 Winfield street.

Mrs. Hammer was a member of the First Christian Church of this city for nineteen years. She was well known in business and church circles. The funeral will be held at Bresee Bros.' undertaking rooms tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock.

UP WITH THE FLAG!

Decorate with American flags! This is the plea of the 1915 General Committee to all owners of business blocks, stores and residences. Do it now! Distinguished visitors will be in the city all the year, and about forty conventions will meet here. Old Glory is the official decoration for the 1915 celebration and everyone is urged to display the flag from now until the last entertainment of the celebration is history.

Secretary of War.

HEADQUARTERS ARMIES OF U. S.,
April 9, 1865—4 p.m.

To Hon. E. M. Stanton,
Secretary of War:

Gen. Lee surrendered the Army of Northern Virginia this afternoon upon terms proposed by myself. The accompanying and the additional correspondence will show the conditions fully.

[Signed] U. S. GRANT,
Lieutenant General.

April 9th, 1865.

GENERAL: I received your note of this morning on the picket line, whether I have come to meet you and ascertain definitely what terms were embraced in your proposition of yesterday, with reference to the surrender of this army. I now request an interview in accordance with the offer contained in your letter of yesterday for that purpose.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

[Signed] R. E. LEE.

April 9, 1865.

To Gen. R. E. Lee,
Commanding Army C.S.A.:

Your note of today is this moment received, 11:15 a.m. In consequence of my having passed from the Richmond and Lynchburg road to the Farmville road I am at this writing about four miles west of Walters Church, and will push forward to the front for the purpose of meeting you. A notice, if sent to me on this road, where you wish the interview to take place, will meet me.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
U. S. GRANT, Lieut. Gen.

APPOMATTOX C. H., April 9, 1865.

To Gen. R. E. Lee,
Commanding C.S.A.:

In accordance with the substance of my letter to you of the 8th inst., I propose to receive the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia on the following terms, to-wit: Rolls of all the officers and men to be made in duplicate, one copy to be given to an officer designated by me, the other to be retained by such officer or officers as you may designate. The officers to give their individual paroles not to take up arms against the Government of the United States until properly exchanged, and each company, or regimental commander sign a like patrol for the men in their command. The arms, artillery and public property to be packed or stacked, and turned over to officers appointed by me to receive them. This will not embrace the side arms of officers, nor their private horses or baggage.

This done, each officer and man will be delivered, to be returned to their homes, not to be disturbed by the United States authorities so long as they observe their parole and the laws in force where they may reside.

Very Respectfully,
U. S. GRANT, Lieut. Gen.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY NORTHERN VIRGINIA,
April 9th, 1865.

To Lieut.-Gen. U. S. Grant,
Commanding U.S. armies:

GENERAL: I have received your letter of this date containing the terms of surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia, as proposed by you. As they are substantially the same as those expressed in your letter of the 8th inst. they are accepted. I will proceed to designate the proper officers to carry the stipulations into effect. Very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,
R. E. LEE, General.

OPEN NOSTRILS! END A COLD OR CATARRH

How to Get Relief When Head and Nose are Stuffed Up.

Count fifty! Your cold in head or catarrh disappears. Your clogged nostrils will open, the air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. No more snuffing, hawking, mucous discharge, dryness or headache; no struggling for breath at night.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist and apply a little of this fragrant antiseptic cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothing and healing the swollen or inflamed mucous membrane, giving you instant relief. Head colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed-up and miserable. Relief is sure.

WOOLWINE SAYS HE STARTED IT.

GRAND JURY INQUIRY A PLOT, COUNTERS POLICE CHIEF.

"Hatched by Political Enemies to Ruin Me," Declares Sebastian of Charges Affecting Him—District Attorney Formally Denies it and will Personally Direct Probe.

Dist.-Atty. Woolwine announced yesterday afternoon that the grand jury will convene the latter part of this week and resume the investigation of the charges against Chief of Police Sebastian. Mr. Woolwine stated that he will take direct charge of the investigation. Chief Sebastian is accused by two girls, delinquent wards of the Juvenile Court.

Chief Sebastian has demanded that the inquiry be carried on without delay. He declares it is a plot hatched by "political enemies to ruin me." He answered the investigation yesterday by filing his nominating petition for Mayor. He strongly denied the report that he would withdraw from the Mayoralty contest. "I am in to stay, win or lose," declared the Chief. "They can't drive me out."

The next persons to appear before the grand jury will be Chief Deputy District Attorney Dean, John Luckenbach, jeweler and manager of Mayor Rose's campaign, and "Larry" Sullivan, former prize fight promoter and private detective.

These three persons will appear because of statements made by Chief Sebastian, in which he expressed a desire that they be questioned. Mr. Dean declared yesterday that he had met Mr. Luckenbach but once in his life and that Mr. Luckenbach knew no more about the investigation than any other person outside the District Attorney's office and grand jury room. He said he was surprised that Chief Sebastian had made such a statement and characterized it as "piffle."

Mr. Luckenbach said:

"Chief Sebastian's charge that I am in a plot to ruin him is pure rot, and nothing else. He can't prove his charges and he knows it. His statement is untrue. I will glady appear before the grand jury. Why should I try to ruin Chief Sebastian? I am not in politics and besides, if I were, I would fight clean and Sebastian knows it."

Miss Lucille Livingston and Miss Victoria Desparte, the girls in the case, will probably be called before the grand jury this week.

Dist.-Atty. Woolwine issued yesterday a statement, that says in part:

There have been charges made in the public press that the grand jury investigation, involving Charles E. Sebastian, Chief of Police, has behind it a political motive, and, while I am not charged directly with improper motives, the same are attributed to my chief deputy, Harry E. Dean.

I have made every effort to keep this entire matter secret, until acted upon by the grand jury, and have refused to be interviewed, and have at all times instructed Mr. Dean, who conducted the matter before the grand jury, not to be interviewed upon this matter, as I do not believe that the reputation of a citizen should be put in jeopardy previous to some decisive action by the grand jury. The circumstances, however, at this time, I believe justify me in making a public statement in relation to this matter.

For a considerable time prior to my trip to Sacramento, information came to me that made it an imperative duty to lay this matter before the grand jury. I did not proceed hastily, but ordered an investigation, which was made, and, after most deliberate and careful consideration, I instructed Mr. Dean to take the matter before the grand jury. This was done shortly before my departure for Sacramento. I wish now to assume full and complete responsibility for the same, as it has been laid to the door of my chief deputy, where it should not rest. When I ordered the matter taken to the grand jury, I knew that a great number of people would charge me with a base and improper motive, inasmuch as Mr. Sebastian is a candidate for Mayor. It was a responsibility that I did not shirk, but dreaded. I simply treated the matter as any other of like nature. I have always said that no man, no matter what his station, should be above or beyond the law, and I mean what I say. If I am to be condemned for what I have done, I would much prefer such condemnation by the public to self-condemnation, and if I should hesitate in a case of this sort, I would not be fit for the office to which I have been elected. If Chief Sebastian has been guilty of wrongdoing, he should suffer the consequences, and if he is not guilty, he should be swiftly and surely exonerated. I am neither base enough to use this office for a political purpose, nor to have it used for the purpose of granting immunity to any wrong-doer.

I have not the slightest bias or prejudice against Mr. Sebastian. I am not interested in his or any other man's candidacy for Mayor, and I shall take pleasure in issuing subpoenas commanding the persons named in his public statement to appear before the grand jury and tell what they know about it.

Ring up your favorite candidate in "The Times Automobile Circulation Campaign," and tell her you are going out and get at least one new subscription for her on "Times Day," next Wednesday, March 31. It will help her to win an automobile.

Hollywood Woman's Club.

The Woman's Music Study Club of Long Beach, which holds the cup awarded by the General Federation of Women's Clubs for merit, gave a delightful programme of songs and violin selections at the Hollywood Club last Wednesday afternoon. Members presenting the programme were Miss Lucy E. Wolcott, lyric-soprano; Mrs. W. L. Camp, soprano; Mrs. Bert Ensminger, mezzo-soprano; Miss Dorothy Cranston Hess, violinist, and Miss Ethel Willard Putnam.

Dr. Jessie Russell addressed the civic section, speaking upon some bills now pending in the State Legislature of special interest to women.

Miss Zona Gale, authoress, who is spending the winter in California, has been secured for the regular session next Wednesday.

Brownson House.

On Friday, the Women's Neighborhood Club, met at Brownson House and were addressed on the subject of tuberculosis by Dr. J. Alvarez and on the care of babies by Miss Breed of the city nursing department. Both lectures were in Spanish.

The Brownson house orthopedic dispensary, which was organized to give free treatment to the poor crippled and deformed children of Los Angeles, reports it has treated 194 patients since the opening of its doors in November. It is located at the settlement house, No. 711 Jackson street, near Vignes, and is open to the public on Mondays and Thursdays from one to three o'clock. The dispensary committee comprises: Mesdames Charles M. Masson, George N. Warwick, Mary Young Moore, James T. Murray, George Allan Hancock, S. O. Houghton, Jr., Louis A. Cartier, W. F. Brennan, Henry W. Keller, Miss Marie Rose Mullen, Miss Mary Kenealy and Miss Lita Murrieta.

College Woman's Club.

The April meeting of the College Woman's Club will be held at the club rooms No. 300 Trinity Auditorium Building, next Saturday, at 2:30 o'clock. Miss Zona Gale will give a Friendship Village reading, "Exit Charity." The meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Ella Hamilton Durley, chairman of the public affairs section.

CLARK IS ARRESTED.

Manager of "Physicians' Protective Association" Held for Lack of Bail Money.

Marion M. Clark, indicted with Mrs. Anna J. Smith, for using the mails to carry on a scheme to defraud in connection with the affairs of the "Physicians' Protective Association," was taken into custody yesterday, and in default of $2500 bail was sent to the County Jail. Mrs. Smith gave bonds in the sum of $1000 for her appearance.

Postoffice Inspector C. E. Webster, who worked up the case against the pair, said yesterday: "I have information that Clark has quite a record before coming to Los Angeles, and I am running it down." The inspector also says Clark and Mrs. Smith have been living at the Mercer Hotel, No. 1347 South Hill street; that Mrs. Smith is a divorcee, and Clark a divorced man. A daughter of Mrs. Smith, a Mrs. Lee, lives at No. 149 West Forty-eighth street, this city, and is now at the Angelus Hospital, quite ill.

THEY LIKE CHICKENS?

Two Men Arrested Are Alleged to Have Stolen Approximately Thousand Fowls in San Gabriel.

George Ramirez and James Manning were arrested yesterday by deputy sheriffs, charged with stealing 200 chickens from the chicken farm of Paul Drislane, near San Gabriel. They strongly denied their guilt when arrested, but later in the day confessed. They implicated a Los Angeles butcher.

According to the Sheriff's office, Ramirez and Manning have stolen more than 1000 chickens within the past six months in the San Gabriel Valley. They are said to have sold them to a butcher in this city.

Swish! Corns Gone! We Use "GETS-IT!"

2 Seconds, 2 Drops—Corns Vanish!

For everybody with corns there is in every drug store in the land one of the real wonders of the world, and that's "GETS-IT" for corns! It's the first and only corn-cure ever known that removes any and every corn or callous without fail, without fussing with thick bandages, toe harnesses, corn-swelling salves, irritating ointments. It's applied in 2 seconds—bing, bing—2 drops, the work is done, the corn shrivels up, your corn agony ends and the corn leaves forever! All the limping, the pains that dart to your heart's core, the crucifixion of having to wear shoes over screaming corns, the danger of blood poison from making them bleed by using knives, razors and scissors—are gone at last! "GETS-IT" is the new way, the sure, simple, painless way. Try it for corns, callouses, warts and bunions.

"Some Foxy Trot, M'amselle, What? Corns Gone? Yes, I Used 'GETS-IT.'"

"GETS-IT" is sold by druggists everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. Sold in Los Angeles and recommended as the world's best corn-cure by the Owl Drug Company.

ARE WE SOON TO BECOME A RACE OF BALD-HEADED MEN?

PROF. JOHN H. AUSTIN,

Hair Specialist, of Chicago, who is now at Hamburger's, talks most interestingly about the hair.

He says that baldness is increasing rapidly among men and points out some of the reasons. Prof. Austin is probably right in saying that about one man in every hundred ever thinks about his hair at all, except to comb it two or three times a day. If it falls out, he looks anxiously at the falling hair, and then promptly forgets about it until the next time he uses the comb.

A man will give the utmost attention to his teeth, because he knows that when trouble arises he will have more trouble, and probably lose his teeth if he doesn't go to a dentist promptly. But his hair doesn't ache. It just gradually dies, and when it is nearly gone and the roots are dead he anxiously tries a dozen different remedies at once, and then resigns himself to baldness.

According to Prof. Austin, there are something like sixty different diseases of the scalp and hair. Some are contagious. Others develop from neglect. Practically all of them are curable in the early stages.

Prof. Austin examines the roots of your hair with a powerful microscope. He finds out just what is the trouble with YOUR HAIR. And then he tells you what to do for that trouble.

It doesn't cost a penny for the examination and it puts you under no obligation to follow his advice if you don't want to do so.

Prof. Austin has devoted thirty-five years to studying the hair and scalp. Surely it will be worth the few minutes it takes to let him turn the microscope on your hair.

He will make FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATIONS of the hair and scalp daily in his private office on the second floor at Hamburger's—hours 10 to 12 a.m., and 2 to 4 p.m.

FAMOUS DANCER "BOBS" HER HAIR

A famous dancer recently startled New York by introducing "bobbed" hair. The fashion will hardly become popular with people who admire beauty rather than novelty. Beautiful hair will continue to be woman's most prized crown and the hair which gets the best care will always be the most beautiful. In washing the hair it is not advisable to use a makeshift, but always use a preparation made for shampooing only. You can enjoy the best that is known for about 3 cents a shampoo by getting a package of canthrox from your druggist; dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water and your shampoo is ready. After its use the hair dries rapidly, with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much heavier than it is. Its luster and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth.

COCOANUT OIL MAKES A SPLENDID SHAMPOO

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, the less soap you use the better.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

To Remove First Signs of Old Age

"The infallible first sign of age is the sagging cheek muscles," says Mme. Cavallieri, whose fame as a beauty culturist is scarcely less than that of a singer. "There are more serious and difficult to treat than wrinkles," she continues. "The sagging muscles indicate they have grown too weak to remain in place; they must be assisted, strengthened."

The best way to strengthen them is by using a wash lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint witch hazel. This creates a freer circulation to the parts, besides causing muscles and skin to contract. Saxolite, procurable at every drug store, has long been known by complexion specialists to possess remarkable tonic and astringent properties valuable in treating flabby tissue and wrinkles.

A Los Angeles Mermaid in the Making.

Now for a dive!

Prof. T. Wilkinson and Jemima Walters, one of the two hundred and sixty-three thousand pupils who have received instructions from him in forty years. He believes a person should be able to swim farther than walk.

WALKING HARDER THAN SWIMMING.

AND AMERICAN WOMEN TAKE TO WATER MORE THAN MEN, SAYS TEACHER.

After giving instructions in swimming to more than 263,000 pupils in forty years, Prof. T. Wilkinson believes one should be able to swim a mile more easily than he can walk that distance. The more than one-quarter of a million of his pupils included seventeen world champion swimmers.

"The great secret in swimming, which few persons know, is to be able to rest on the stroke," Prof. Wilkinson declared yesterday. "When in the water one should rest more than he works. I have been called a lazy swimmer, but I believe swimming should be done with the minimum amount of labor and the maximum of grace.

"Two many people mistake splashing for swimming Naturally it is hard work to splash. One should be able to swim much farther than he is able to walk. In walking all the weight of the body is on the feet, but in swimming the water supports the weight of the body evenly."

Prof. Wilkinson is a native of the Oldham, England. His work in the Royal Life Saving Society of London attracted favorable comment from the late King Edward. After teaching swimming in his home city many years Prof. Wilkinson went to Montreal eight years ago. He has been at Bimini five years.

"In England the public is much more interested in swimming than in America," Prof. Wilkinson continued. "There 90 per cent. of the people know how to swim. In this country 90 per cent. of the populace does not know how to swim. In my native country there are about an equal number of men and women swimmers. In this country the great majority of the swimmers are women. In Los Angeles I have 100 classes of girls to one class of boys. I can't explain the difference. Naturally, the boys would be expected to take the greater interest in the sport, but for some reason they do not.

"In England swimming is a part of the public school curriculum. I believe this is good common sense. Interest in aquatic sports in Southern California is increasing rapidly, however. This is due partly to the general appeal of the vigorous, out-door life."

NEEDS CARE AND LOVE.

Probation Officers Seek Good Home For Smiling Baby Boy of Poor, Deserted Mother.

Several of the probation officers are making a diligent search for a home for Henry Stroletsky, 6 months old. His mother, Mrs. Guthrie Stroletsky of No. 715 Court street, has placed the destinies of the bright-faced, brown-eyed infant in the hands of the department. She has been deserted by her husband and finds she cannot support herself and her son.

When Henry was taken to the probation office in the Hall of Records yesterday he showed no anxiety about the future. He had a twinkle in his eye and a refined little smile for every one who came near. His mother, however, was quite sad. She said if she had a livelihood she would not part with Henry for several billion dollars, but misfortune makes the situation different. She had decided to give the child over to a kind and prosperous foster mother—if one can be found.

COME IN DROVES TO CALIFORNIA.

INCREASE OF PERSONALLY-CONDUCTED TOURS A FEATURE OF PRESENT TRAVEL.

The unusual number of personally-conducted parties is a striking feature of the present tourist travel in California. These parties are arriving in Los Angeles at the rate of about ten a day. One of the interesting parties which arrived yesterday was composed of twenty-five persons of prominence from Eastern cities. It includes Surgeon William H. Bell, U.S.N., and Mrs. Bell of Philadelphia and other successful professional and business men and their wives.

"People in California are just beginning to realize how many thousands of tourists are traveling in personally-conducted parties," said John F. McCoy, manager of the tour. "This form of travel is increasing in popularity since it obviates the responsibility of planning itineraries, buying transportation and arranging for hotel accommodations.

"Not singly but in parties of five to 500 will many of the tourists come to California during the present exposition year. Thousands of parties, many of them composed of persons of prominence and wealth, have been booked from Eastern points for California. They are coming in droves to the exposition."

ARREST REALTY DEALER.

Los Angeles Man Accused of Embezzling Three Diamond Rings of Woman—Caught in North.

Richard McIlwaine, a realty dealer of this city, is under arrest in San Francisco on a charge of embezzlement, according to dispatches received yesterday by the District Attorney's office. McIlwaine, according to Deputy District Attorney Stafford, who issued the complaint against him, is alleged to have stolen three diamond rings, valued at $690, from Mrs. Mary F. Sallada, No. 815 West Ninth street.

According to Mr. Stafford, Mr. McIlwaine formerly had an office at No. 617 South Hill street. He lived at No. 1370 Shatto street. Mr. McIlwaine will be brought to Los Angeles tomorrow.

TRAMP AN INGRATE!

A. C. E. Cook called at the home of Fred Fetzer on West Adams boulevard six days ago, saying he was penniless and hungry and asked assistance. The Fetzer family took Cook in and fed him and gave him clothes. Friday Cook is alleged to have looted the home of Mr. Fetzer of money and jewels. A complaint charging him with burglary was issued yesterday morning. Later in the day he was arrested.

How To Fight Tuberculosis

In a paper read last year before the Bexar County Medical Society and published in part in the Louisville "Medical Progress," Dr. J. W. Carhart, of San Antonio, Texas, a physician who has devoted much time to the study of tuberculosis, said: "Since lime salts constitute three-fourths of all the mineral substances of the human body, they must be supplied in the foods or supplemented in mineral preparations, or natural starvation ensues with tuberculosis unchecked. The widespread and unchecked spread of tuberculosis and other preventable diseases is due largely to the decalcified (lime lacking) conditions of multitudes throughout the civilized world."

Thus from another authoritative medical source comes justification for the use of lime in the treatment of tuberculosis.

Since this is one of the ingredients of Eckman's Alterative, much of the success attending the widespread use of this remedy doubtless is due to the combination of this salt in such a way as to render it easily assimilable. It causes no stomach disturbance, and since it contains neither opiates, narcotics nor habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try.

Eckman's Alterative has effected remarkable results in numerous cases of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) and allied chronic affections of the throat and bronchial passages. In many instances such conditions, apparently, have yielded completely to it.

Reward Hides in Hat.

Seventh and Broadway, Mickey nailed him.

First he recovered the purse and then he started to drag the thief toward a policeman, but the thief jumped to one side and, twisting Mickey's arm, dodged low, hit Mickey in the center of the back and rushed through a bevy of women into the store and out another door.

Mickey went to the brougham and as he came up he found that the woman had retrieved her dog at the same time he had retrieved her purse.

She thanked him effusively. Then she asked him if he had an immediate appointment. He said no.

So she asked him to accompany her to her hotel, that she might get the dog home without further chance of loss. When she asked Mr. Sullivan how he happened to discover the thievery, he said deprecatingly that he always kept his eyes open.

They went to a fashionable family hotel and presently the woman, who gave her card bearing the name "Mrs. Harrington Waters," handed Mickey a bulky box. She said it was a little gift of thanks and trusted he would enjoy it. Mrs. Waters is a tourist from Cleveland.

A WHITE ELEPHANT.

Mr. Sullivan returned at once to Venice. He went to his room, opened the box and found it contained a silk hat and nothing else but a card bearing the message, "To my friend who is always alert."

Mr. Sullivan has less use for a silk hat than for a barbecue pit. He sat down and couldn't even smile.

The sun was still high so he donned his bathing suit and started toward the strand. Then he thought it would be a good novelty to wear the silk hat on the beach, just for the entertainment of the boys.

His approach in bathing suit and silk hat was a signal for a joyous reception. They asked for a speech.

Mr. Sullivan bowed low and made a graceful sweep with his hat. Then he began: "Ladies and gentlemen. . ."

As he talked a sudden nervousness made his fingers creep around the leather band in the hat. They crept and then they clutched. Slowly he turned the hat over, and looked within, and there under the band were three $10 bills.

Mickey gazed, fascinated.

"Speech! speech!" came the calls.

For an instant Mr. Sullivan hesitated, then he said: "You can just bet your life Mickey Sullivan is alert. Three times ten, you bet he's alert."

And he stopped and everyone thought it a queer sort of speech, and due to bashfulness.

Looks better.

Easter Eggs.

call for the quaint conceits of the day. The material is largely donated. Hundreds of crates of eggs are used, the great majority the gifts of the large city markets. But this season, so far, not enough eggs have been promised, and a famine is faced.

Doing this work in a spirit of charity of the season are Mrs. Sunde, who became the mother of a baby girl four days ago, her neighbors and associates. From her hospital room Mrs. Sunde is directing the details of the labor.

Eight years ago, while she regularly visited the Children's Hospital with little gifts such as balloons, on Easter Sunday she took colored eggs. The delight of the little prisoners of ill health was so wonderful that the following year she decided to make more children happy.

With bewildering rapidity the movement expanded. From a hundred unexpected sources came the call for some of the colored Easter eggs for the little ones handicapped by sickness, birth or poverty. Mrs. Sunde asks her friends to assist.

Then the distribution on Easter Sunday grew to be a labor of magnitude. The nurses of the city, under the direction of Mrs. Margaret F. Sirch, came to the rescue and agreed to distribute the eggs in the multitude of homes where they knew the Easter offerings would be most appreciated.

Automobiles came to be used until this season a fleet of cars, donated by persons in sympathy with the movement, will be at the service of the egg givers. The Municipal Charities Commission has given its official endorsement to the work of Mrs. Sunde and has promised all possible aid. The churches have offered what help they may be able to give.

GIVES A GENTLE HINT.

Railroad Commission Recommends Cut in Cement Rates by Calling Attention to Previous Order.

With the recommendation, amounting almost to a pre-emptory order, that the Santa Fe reduce the carload rate on cement from Oro Grande to this city from $1.75 to $1.25 a ton, the State Railroad Commission issued an order yesterday dismissing the complaint of the Golden State Portland Cement Company against the common carrier.

In a recent decision in the case of the Riverside Portland Cement Company against the Salt Lake, the commission orders a similar reduction. The Santa Fe's attention is called to this order, with the observation that, distances being the same in both cases, commensurate reductions in the rate should be made. It is also recommended that the Santa Fe readjust the rail and water rates based on San Diego.

MUSICAL SHOW AT MAJESTIC.

"High Jinks" Jollity Here with New York Cast.

"Abe" and "Mawruss" Still on Deck at Mason.

Jane Cowl in "The Songbird" at Burbank.

"High Jinks," Arthur Hammerstein's musical comedy production, which has been running at the New York Casino for an entire season, comes to the Majestic this week, commencing tonight. Otto Hauerbach and Rudolph Friml are joint authors of this "musical jollity," and are known for their "Naughty Marietta" and "The Firefly."

The New York cast brings the piece to the Majestic, and is an elaborate one. The music promises to be far above the average musical comedy harmony, and is said to have set New York awhistling. There is a beauty chorus of sixty-eight.

The story centers round the effect of a magic perfume, "High Jinks," the career of an American nerve specialist residing in Paris, who comes under its spell. There are some amusing complications induced by the perfume's influence. The story is rather Frenchy. The specialist kisses a patient, whose volatile husband challenges him to a duel, but is appeased by the offer of a chance for equal familiarity with the doctor's wife. Another woman is substituted, and the plot becomes still thicker when an American enters looking for his lost wife.

The catchy melody of "Something Tingle-Ingling," runs through the play, and there are a dozen other tuneful numbers.

In the cast are Stella Mayhew, who plays the lead; Eugene O'Rourke, Billie Taylor, Philip Ryley, Emma Francis, Adele Ardsley, Paul Porcasi, Irene Duke, Bernard Gorcey and many others.

Mason.

Abe and Mawruss in "Potash and Perlmutter," have won such success at the Mason that they will remain another week.

The Montague Glass stories have been spliced, packed and harmonized into a play delightfully representative of the author's genius. The amusing characterizations, the naive humor, the funny dialect, are all there, and the quaint characters you loved in the stories come to life before you on the stage.

"Damon and Pythias," under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias Lodge, and played by a professional cast, will be the attraction at the Mason April 8, 9 and 10. The play promises to be a great dramatic spectacle. The public is requested to remember that the production is neither a motion picture nor an "amateur affair."

Burbank.

What promises one of the most important productions of the year will be "The Songbird," commencing this afternoon at the Burbank.

The piece is by Frederick Hatton and Fanny Locke Hatton, authors of the well-known play, "Years of Discretion," and Manager Morosco has spared no expense in its production.

Jane Cowl, who has been playing to capacity houses in "Within the Law," will assume the leading role—Lily Morran, an American prima donna. It is said to give her a splendid opportunity for the display of her dramatic talent.

The remainder of the cast is an unusual one. William Courtleigh, a well-known New York actor, and George Le Guere, one of America's best known juvenile men, will have the leading masculine roles. Others in the cast will be Orme Caldara, Louis Bennison, Grace Travers, H. S. Duffield, Beatrice Nichols, Donald Bowles, Florence Oberle and Winifred Bryson.

Orpheum.

Ray Samuels, "the blue streak of ragtime," and MaBelle with her coryphees, will be the two headliners on the Orpheum bill beginning tomorrow. Miss Samuels first made "He's a Devil" famous, and promises another new song of equal worth; and MaBelle was premiere danseuse at the Hippodrome, New York, and is said to have brought out the most beautiful girls in that ballet for the present vaudeville act, which is divided into seven suites, each said to possess rare beauty.

Mae Melville and Robert Higgins bring a new act entitled "Putting on Airs;" Bertish does an athletic stunt; Bill Dooley and Evelyn perform in "Vaudeville of Today;" and the holdovers include "The Edge of the World," Hussey and Boyle, and Whiting and Burt.

"Mission Play."

APRIL PROMISES MUCH MELODY.

OUTLOOK GOOD FOR RECITALS AND CONCERTS.

Julia Culp and Barrere Ensemble to be Philharmonic Attractions. Local Artists are also Planning Appearances—Woman's Orchestra Popular Concert Today.

BY EDWIN F. SCHALLERT.

April will yield a large number of interesting musical attractions this year, and although the month usually marks the end of musical activities for the season, 1915 will be an exception, on account of the festival in June. Several important concerts, like the presentation of the Beethoven "Choral Symphony," are also scheduled for quite late in the season.

The philharmonic courses will close during the coming month with the appearances of Julia Culp and the Barrere ensemble. The former will give her programmes early in the month. A pleasant surprise will be the concert of Constantino a week from Sunday.

Among the local artists, who will give recitals during April, are Archibald Sessions, organ; Jaimie Overton, violin; Mr. and Mrs. Thilo Becker, piano and violin. The Ellis Club will give a concert about the middle of the month, and the Brahms Quintet's last appearance for the regular season will occur during the month.

The present week will be even quieter musically than the one just past. The Woman's Orchestra will give its second concert this afternoon at Clune's Auditorium, and Thursday the Matinee Musical Club will present a programme.

The corner-stone in a musical way was laid for the festival in June this week when chorus practice for the opera "Fairyland" was started. An effort is being made to gather together the largest and most excellent body of singers that ever appeared on the local operatic stage.

A number of the members of the Ellis, Lyric and Orpheus clubs will join the chorus, as well as a large number of professional musicians, it is stated. The costumes are of a subdued order, so that no one is objecting to taking part.

To Draw Musicians.

The local board of the National Federation of Musical Clubs is busy with the technical details of the preparation for the festival. Mrs. Frank Garrett, president of the local board, plans to reach thousands of Federation members with chain letters, telling of the convention here in June and plans for entertainment.

The idea outlined is that each musician in Los Angeles shall write five letters to eastern friends, inviting them to attend the festival and opera production, and request them to write five more letters. In this way it is believed that 337 musical organizations, representing 120,000 members, will be intensely interested in the convention, and that they will be the means of bringing many thousands of visitors with them.

Julia Culp Recitals.

Julia Culp, the distinguished lieder singer, will be heard in two recitals in this city at Trinity Auditorium, Thursday evening, April 8, and Saturday matinee, April 10. Of the hundreds of musical artists, who are introduced to the American public every year, it seems but once in every ten years that a really great artist appears far enough over the horizon to make a lasting impression upon the mass of music lovers.

Julia Culp possesses a voice of extraordinary quality, rich and smooth throughout its whole range; as an interpreter of Brahms, Schubert, Wolf, Schumann and other famous writers of lieder, she is unsurpassed. Another asset, which has greatly endeared her to the public of this country, is her singing in English.

Her programmes include the famous lieder of Schubert, Brahms, Beethoven, Schumann, Hugo Wolf and Richard Strauss, as well as groups of miscellaneous English and French songs. Two settings of Tagore's poems by John Alden Carpenter, who holds the foremost place among the American song writers who have recently come to the front, will also be given.

Constantino in Concert.

Arrangements have just been effected for a farewell appearance of Florencio Constantino April 11 at Clune's Auditorium. The noted tenor will shortly afterward leave for the East. The National Grand Opera Company has just closed its season in San Francisco, and Constantino has been enjoying the fair. He has declined to accept any long engagements, owing to his fear that Spain may be involved in the war, and he desires to be ready to respond to the call for his services at any time. He will include a number of artistic selections on his programme. The seat sale begins tomorrow.

Mercedes Ziesielska,

Soloist with the Woman's Orchestra this afternoon at Clune's Auditorium, who will present a group of Japanese and Russian songs.

Matinee Musical Club.

What promises to be a delightful programme will be given next Thursday evening under the leadership of Minnie Elizabeth Matheis by the Matinee Musical Club at Cumnock Hall. The following are the numbers announced:

Miss Matheis is the youngest member of the club and this will be her first leadership.

Concerts This Afternoon.

The second concert of the Woman's Orchestra will be given under the direction of Henry Schoenefeld this afternoon at Clune's Auditorium. A programme of light and popular numbers has been arranged.

Lillian Ammalee Smith, the charming pianist, and Mercedes Ziesielska, clever Russian vocalist, will be the soloists; Bessie Fuhrer, concert mistress of the orchestra, and Minnie V. Percival, flutist, will also have solo numbers.

The following is the programme:

1. "Merry Wives of Windsor," overture.....Nicolai

"The Home Coming"......A. Dargomyski
Mercedes Ziesielska.
6. Piccolo solo, "Silverbird"..........Thiere
Minnie V. Percival.
7. "Stars and Stripes"..........Sousa

Molly Wilson Recital.

Krotona Institute, Hollywood, will have at its meeting this afternoon at 3 o'clock, Molly Byerly Wilson, dramatic contralto, who will render the following selections:

"Ave Maria"..........Bach-Gounod
"In a Persian Garden" ("Rubaiyat")..Liza Lehmann
"Largo"..........Handel
"Ueber Nacht"..........Wolf
"Der Freund"..........Wolf

Among Miss Wilson's recent engagements was the Bessie Chapin morning musicale at the home of Mrs. Erasmus Wilson, Chester place. The music of Germany and Austria was featured on this programme, Miss Wilson contributing two groups of German lieder as follows:

First group by Schumann:
(a) "Du bist wie eine Blume."
(b) "Im wunderschoenen Monat Mai."
(c) "Aus meinen Thraenen."
(d) "Wenn ich in deine Augen seh."

Second group, consisting of:
(a) "Ich trage meine Minne"..........Strauss
(b) "Marie"..........Franz
(c) "[illegible]"..........Brahms

Miss Wilson will be heard tomorrow evening at the musicale at the Fowler apartments, to be given by Mrs. Jane Catherwood.

Musical Service.

A musical service will be given this evening at the Westlake Methodist Episcopal Church on the corner of Eighth street and Burlington avenue, under the direction of Sibley G. Pease, organist-director. The public is invited. The programme follows:

Organ:
"Marche Militaire"..........Roland Diggle
"Du bist die Ruh"..........Schubert
"Berceuse in G"..........Faulkes
Anthems:
"Behold the Day's Come"..........Woodward
"Cantate Domino"..........Buck
Quartettes:
"Sabbath of the Soul"..........Bohm-Schnecker
"Prayer at Evening"..........James F. Howe
"Softly Now the Light of Day"......Sibley G. Pease Solo by Robert Russell.

Gives Piano Recital.

An interesting piano recital was given on Wednesday by Claire Ruyter McGregor at her studio, No. 2117 West Eighth street. Miss McGregor, who has put in four years of private work with Alberto Jonas in Berlin, has made Los Angeles her headquarters during the past two years. This is her second recital this season. The programme was as follows:

Chromatic fantasie and fugue..........Bach
Nocturne, F sharp major.
"Berceuse."
Scherzo, B minor..........Chopin
Intermezzo in octaves..........Leschetizky
Prelude in C sharp minor..........Rachmaninoff
"Ich liebe Dich" (transcription by composer) Grieg
Rhapsodie, Hongroise..........Liszt

Turnverein Concert.

The maennerchor of the Germania Turnverein will give a concert under the direction of Henry Schoenefeld tonight at Turner Hall, No. 321 South Main street. Two of the numbers to be given at the saengerfest this summer will be included on the programme, namely, "An Altare der Wahrheit" (Mohr,) and "Germanenzug" (Lund.) The chorus will also sing "Fremden Legoniaer" (Wengert,) and "Wasserrose" and "Die Nacht" (Abt.) Soloist will be Mrs. H. Frederickson, soprano, who will sing "Im Herbst" (Franz,) and "Die Widmung" (Schumann,) and Lawrence Tibbett, baritone, who will sing "The Evening Star" from (Tannhaeuser.)

New Musical Magazine.

An interesting article on "Some Aspects of Modern Music," by W. H. Hadow, is included in the first issue of the Musical Quarterly, published by G. Schirmer. Scriabine of all the "advanced" composers seems to find the most favor with Hadow. He treats of Schoenberg at length.

Very interesting personal reminiscences of Edward McDowell by T. P. Currier are also given in the issue. Other articles and contributors are as follows: "On Behalf of Musicology," by Waldo S. Pratt; "The Delights of Chorusing," W. J. Lawrence; "The Function of Musical Criticism," by W. J. Henderson; "Ensemble," by J. H. Fuller-Maitland; "America's First Grand Opera Season," by Francis Rogers; "Music Reform in the Catholic Church," H. T. Henry; "Is Musical Reservation Justifiable?" Francis Toye, and "The Measurement of Musical Talent," by Carl E. Seashore.

Pupils' Recital.

Pupils of Miss Mary E. McDuell gave a recital last night at Morosco Recital Hall in the Majestic Theater building. Piano, violin, mandolin, guitar and vocal numbers made up the programme. The following took part in the recital: Edith Laderman, Helen Worth, Gladys O'Connell, Helen Scott, Otis Dennis, Lillian Hensen, Estella Balch, Charlotte Woods, Thomas Kates, Bernice Graves, Glenn Busic, Rosie Fishkin, James Burke, Erma Crawford, Maxine McQuerry, Marie Anderson, George Mann, Kenneth Carwin, Charles Baumgarten, Grace Peck, Edith Harris, Blanche Carlson, Mrs. Dryge, Esther Anderson, George Knight, Helen Brandstetner, Signey Swanson, Mrs. H. Varey, Della Hessong and Remus Dunn. Bernice Graves, 6 years old, the youngest pupil, played two violin pieces, as well as in two ensemble numbers.

Music Notes.

Marcella Craft, our own California girl, has been chosen to create the role of Rosamund in Horatio Parker's prize opera, "Fairyland," which will be produced here July 1 to 6. In securing Miss Craft, the Music Committee consider themselves extremely fortunate, for not only is she a native daughter, but is an artist of world-wide reputation.

Mrs. Thilo Becker (Otie Chew) the violinist, will be heard in a joint recital with her husband, Thilo Becker, April 15, at Trinity. These two artists are well known in local musical circles.

The next Ellis Club concert is scheduled for April 13 at Trinity.

Jaimie Overton, one of the most gifted young violinists of this country, and incidentally a native of California, will be heard in recital April 12 at Trinity Auditorium. Young Overton has had the advantage of a splendid musical education, both at home and abroad. He has appeared both in Europe and in the East, in every instance attracting more than favorable comment from the press and public.

A unique entertainment is in store for are lovers in the Barrere ensemble concert to be given April 20 at Trinity, under the direction of the distinguished flutist, George Barrere. The ensemble will appear also in San Francisco, Sacramento, Santa Barbara, San Jose, Fresno, Redlands and Claremont. It is an orchestra in miniature.

The San Francisco Symphony Orchestra recently closed its season with the presentation of the Rachmaninoff Symphony in E Minor. The soloist was Efrem Zimbalist. The season was ended earlier than usual in order to allow a number of the musicians to join the Bendix orchestra, which plays daily in the Old Faithful Inn.

Mrs. Jane Catherwood will give a reception and musicale tomorrow night at the Fowler apartments. The programme for the evening will be given by Molly Byerly Wilson, contralto; Mme. Heloise Desiree Coutoleno, violinist, and Lillian Ammalee Smith and Mildred Rouse, pianists.

Miss Margaret Goetz gave a musicale for her junior pupils Thursday at her residence, No. 688 Witmer street. The Oriole girls composed of Misses Madeline Wadsworth, Grace Morgan, Gertrude Pentland and Helen Bruhn, sang solos and part songs of various nations in costume. Other young singers joined them in Wagner's "Spinning Chorus" and Spanish folk songs. Last night the Oriole girls gave a programme at Rest Haven.

Enrico Caruso, singing in Monte Carlo, is donating half his salary to the fund which is being made up for the wounded soldiers of the allies. He continues to get $1200 a performance, however. He recently opened his engagement at the operahouse, singing the part of Rhadames in "Aida."

The season of popular concerts given by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Hub City is to be shortened this year, on account of the engagement which that organization has to fill at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition. These "pop" concerts have been a feature of the musical life of Boston for thirty years.

The most striking offering at the recent concert of American music given by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra was Adolf Brune's "Sea Music," a ballad for baritone and orchestra. Musical America says it disclosed the greatest familiarity with orchestral manipulation, ripe musicianship and more originality and a finer vein of melodic invention than any of the other symphonic pieces on the programme.

In spite of the war, Teresa Carreno has been having an unusually successful season in Europe. She has been giving concerts in Germany and Holland recently, including many of the numbers which have previously won her favor. Next season he expects to tour America.

Mrs. Jane Catherwood, soprano, and her pupil, Thomas Govan, baritone, gave a very successful recital Wednesday evening at Santa Ana.

The Y.M.C.A. Orchestra is planning to give two public concerts some time this year. The orchestra was organised last fall, and has been rehearsing every week under the direction of E. B. Valentine, with an average attendance at rehearsals of sixteen. Before each weekly rehearsal, as well as every Sunday afternoon, the orchestra plays for thirty minutes in the lobby of the Y.M.C.A.

Mrs. Frank Garrett,

President of the local board of the National Federation of Musical Clubs, who is the active spirit in superintending preparations for the coming great musical festival in this city.

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

Dr. James Brier Cochrane of Dover, Me., believes he is the only man living in his county, if not in the State, who ever heard Daniel Webster make a speech. Dr. Cochrane also recalls that he cast his first Presidential ballot while a student at Bowdoin College, walking the entire distance from Brunswick to his home in Fayette, fifty miles, to vote for Abraham Lincoln.

Chancellor George T. Humphries of Heber Springs, Ark., has during the last twelve years granted 4186 divorces, of which 2342 were negroes. He invariably grants a divorce to a person who is honest enough to state that he is desirous of trying another leap into the dark. The judge seems to like to see fellows leap thusly.

Representative Joshua W. Alexander of Missouri is recovering rapidly and satisfactorily from an operation which he underwent recently in Washington.

Judge Robert E. Jeffrey of Newport, Ark., recently appointed United States Minister to Uruguay, is the only Arkansan in the diplomatic service at the present time.

Thomas Benton Howard, who has just attained the rank of admiral, under the operation of the new law creating this rank, commanded the Pacific fleet at Mazatlan, West Coast of Mexico, last summer. He graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1873. He took part in the battle of Manila Bay as navigator of the Concord, and later served with the Charleston and the Monadnock during the Philippine insurrection. Admiral Howard holds membership in the Military Order of Loyal Legion, Society of Manila Bay, Order of Carabao and the American Society of International Law.

Senor Dr. Carlos F. Gomez, envoy extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of the Argentine Republic to Chile, is a man of high culture, engaging personality and of wide experience in public affairs. Prior to his diplomatic appointment he had gained prestige and renown in the legislative branch of the Argentine government, while his intimate knowledge of international affairs eminently qualifies him for the successful prosecution of his new duties.

Maj. Joseph C. Cartner, who superintended the greater part of the construction work on Angel Island and was the organizer of the first company of Philippine Scouts under Gen. Lawton, has been appointed adjutant-general of the organized militia in the District of Columbia. His rise in the army has been rapid. He received his commission as second lieutenant in 1891 and his commission as major in 1913. During the Spanish-American War the government sent him in charge of an exploring expedition into the heart of Alaska. In 1899 he was FREAKS.

Robert Boyle, the philosopher, could never overcome his aversion to the sound of water splashing from a pipe, and he has put on record the case of one of his servants who could never bear hearing a knife being sharpened or a sheet of brown paper torn without bleeding at the gums.

Of the eight children of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Harper of Ellsworth, Kan., six were born twins and each pair consisted of a boy and a girl. At the birth of the first pair Col. Roosevelt sent the Harpers a silver loving cup, which was not to become a permanent trophy until at least another pair of twins was born.

Several weeks ago Mrs. Essie Coyan of Fort Scott, Kan., brought divorce proceedings against her husband, Marion F. Coyan. A few days ago she disappeared, and after a two days' search her attorneys found that she had eloped with her husband, having settled all their differences.

Mrs. Frank Scott of Highland, Kan., surprised the conductor by presenting one railroad ticket for herself and her thirteen children, who are all under 5 years of age. She has had nineteen children, although married but ten years, having given birth to triplets five times and to twins twice.

Lew Fields, the well-known comedian of the famous firm of Weber & Fields, has succumbed to the lure of the movies, and will be seen at the Woodley during the coming week in "Old Dutch."

Mr. Fields, in this film, plays the part of Ludwig Streusand, "Old Dutch" in a photoplay version of the Shubert production, which was such a success a few years ago.

The character is an old inventor who, having achieved success with an appliance enabling one to see the person he is telephoning to, goes to Palm Beach with his daughter. He there loses his money and identity and meets with some disagreeable but diverting adventures before matters are set right. Vivian Martin, the famous little star of the "The Wishing Ring," also plays in "Old Dutch."

I saw Truth hovering just inside of a white gate that looked like twin harps and appeared to be located somewhere in Elysian Park. I wanted to take a car out to the park afterwards and see if I could find the lady at home to seekers, but I was afraid of running into the rest of the audience.

In the show Truth, at one point, was wandering along in the altogether on the banks of a blue stream in the moonlight. It was very pleasant to see Truth bathed in moonshine. If you could convince all women that a robe of moonlight would be as becoming to them as it is to Margaret Edwards, I tremble to think of what would happen to the dressmakers.

I take it that the silver stream we saw in the picture is the Los Angeles River. I congratulate it on changing its character as I hitherto have known it. Possibly this magic was performed by the eyes of Truth, or perhaps I have never before been able to see the river in its true character on account of the absence of Truth. I have no doubt that we could all see the red Colorado or the muddy Mississippi in any color they chose to be if we saw naked Truth hovering among the wild roses and the ferns on its shadowy brink.

While Truth gazed clear-eyed into the river's mirrored depths (it is about an inch deep, and Charlie Loomis says somewhere that a minnow would have to stand on its head to get its gills wet,) I gazed at Truth, and never before did I so nearly realize the supreme advantage of living an upright life. Truth on her native heath was a revelation to me. I saw at once that beauty unadorned is a truly esthetic delight. The life of the esthetic must be a pleasant one.

A little later I saw Truth holding up a mirror to some politicians, society people and homebodies. The picture was not pretty. Neither are all politicians nor society people.

I have never owned a mirror like the one in the hands of Truth. They are not for sale in any drug store. All I can do is to take the lady's word for it. Nor can I blame the public because Margaret Edwards owns the only mirror of this kind in the world. I can regret that the rest of us are all hypocrites, and I must, in spite of the picture, retain a sneaking suspicion that the few women on earth who could bear the test of the naked truth might not care to make a public review of the fact.

I don't in the least mind that Miss Edwards has her own ideas of modesty, but I cannot help wondering whether she would care to parade them at from 25 to 50 cents a seat at the Superba and other theaters if the truth, as we see it in her, were any less beautiful. It may be easy to be unashamed if one is sure of being regarded as perfect. In other words, the altogether has no terrors for one who is altogether lovely.

No, if Miss Edwards enjoys being beautiful, I can assure her that I enjoy having her beautiful and that I consider it a great privilege to have gazed upon that beauty unveiled.

My brother Jim has written a short story of a sculptor who made nothing out of stone, but who simply took living things and froze them into stone by injecting a chemical into their veins. I am glad that this genius of Jim's creation never discovered Miss Edwards before she made this picture of "Hypocrites." If I can get a statue of motion and imagination, I much prefer it to one who cannot lean over singing rivers or flit through Arcadian forests.

Miss Edwards is all right when she says that the body is the temple of the spirit. This much has been suspected before now. It has not always been thought necessary to make a public exhibition of the temple, however much the fact of its existence may have been appreciated. Some people hold to the idea mentioned in a quiet fashion, when it would make them quite uncomfortable to be compelled to confess as much on a motion-picture screen. They have found it possible to respect their bodies without a wide exhibition.

Don't understand me as quarreling with Miss Edwards or her picture. There is absolutely nothing shocking in the young lady's appearance and the show was over before it dawned on me that the management or anybody else had expected me to be shocked.

Even if I had never been prepared for the young minister's death dream by seeing the statue of Truth chiseled by the young monk, Gabrielle, I still would have found no cause for alarm or distress in the sudden shadowy appearance of this exquisite creature of frank grace.

I cannot say much for "Hypocrites" as a photo-play. It is a rather clumsy affair, not very large or forceful—rather thin-waisted as a production. It is barely adequate as a background to carry the revealed beauty of Miss Edwards, and its lesson is neither new nor startling. It is not particularly adapted to motion pictures and is not sensationally perfect, by any means in the manner of its presentation; but it is worth the price.

There is nothing about it for censorship and it deserves no such extreme advertisement. Hundreds of pictures of greater dramatic value have been produced. One may see films which are just as entertaining at almost any picture-house any day in the year. Its whole value lies in the uncovered loveliness of Miss Edwards's stunning figure and in the sumptuous delicacy with which this is presented.

I will not make the theme itself the text of any sermon. We all know more of the truth than we are willing to live. We all know where we are lying to ourselves and to everybody else. We all realize how disagreeable and even unnecessary the plain truth generally is.

draw large crowds at its ideal home in San Gabriel, where the surroundings all lend to the atmosphere of the big California pageant.

Pantages.

A great naval spectacle is promised as the feature of the Pantages show beginning tomorrow. This includes a review of naval warfare from the days of the Constitution's famous victory to the bombardment of the Dardanelles. All the engines of war, from the fighting frigates of 1812 to the modern aeroplanes and submarines are shown, and the battles of the Monitor and the Merrimac, sinking of the Alabama, and the battle of Manila are among the spectacles displayed. The feature is produced by a mechanical device.

Allen's Cheyenne Minstrels, a bunch of cowpunchers; Leona Guerney, the "Siberian Songbird;" Gelmour and Romanoff in acrobatics; Knapp and Cornella, comedians, and the Carr Thomas Trio, complete the bill.

Empress.

The dancing girl, Elsie Gilbert, star in "The Top o' The World" production, headlines the new Empress bill which goes on tomorrow. She brings a troupe of dancing girls and acting canines.

Others on the bill will be Bessie Le Count in songs and imitations; Reddington and Grant in pantomime; Frevoli, shadowgraphist; Charles and Sallie Dunbar in patter and song; and a surprise comedy feature.

Hippodrome.

A bunch of baboons, the funniest animals in the world, will head the new Hippodrome bill tomorrow. Morris' Baboons feature an ape who has learned to walk on stilts, among other achievements. Norris has traveled round the world and delighted millions of people with his charges.

Other attractions will be two girls, names not announced, but said to be very pretty, in songs and dances and patter; Francesca Redding and company in "The Cattle Queen;" the Jubilee Comedy Four; Upty and Mole, cycling comiques; Bailey and Collins, in a musical act, and Campbell and McDonald, in imitation.

Republic.

"Tillie's Punctured Romance," the screen comedy which kept 'em laughing for several weeks, a while ago at the Republic, is again to be produced this week. The piece has met with the greatest success of any film comedy.

There are six new acts of vaudeville, besides the film, the headliner among the turns being "the canine Svengali,' 'the dog with weird mental powers.

Century.

The swimming tank on the stage of the Century will be called into use for the burlesque "By the Beautiful Sea," which will be the chief attraction this week. Up-to-date mermaids will desport themselves in the tank, some of them being expert swimmers.

"The Hotel Topsy Turvy" burlesque is another number which promises to please.

The Soldier's Wife.

She stood amid a meadow's bloom,
Above the terror-ridden world;
Beyond blue hills and their perfume
Gold 'broidered sunset clouds unfurled.

There, as she watched the fading day,
Far from the frenzied, blood-drunk mart,
She felt—at last—that she could pray,
And peace laid hands upon her heart.

Born of the quiet hills, new calm
Enwrapped her, gently. For a blessed space
She held it, shield-wise, to her soul—
Till, home once more, she saw his empty place!

The Bright Side of Sunshine Land—People and Their Doings—a Hundred Happy Affairs

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, March 26.

Georgie dearest: It is so jolly writing to a girl with a boy's name, one gets the soupcon of excitement with none of the necessity of discretion. Things have been a little slow socially this week, but positively palpitating sartorially, for everybody is giving the matter of new clothes their undivided attention. It doesn't matter whom you call up, they always begin by telling you they have the dressmaker in the house and creations are being evolved at the rate of 1000 a minute all over the town. Golly, we ought to be able to do some damage on that!

Of course there have been one or two little flutters at the big hotels—somehow they are not expected to consider Lenten penances—or perhaps they regard those affairs as very genuine penances, some of 'em certainly are. The persistent hotel guest seems to lack vitality and interest, don't they? There is a floppy, listless air about the girls who mostly look weighed down with luxuries and comforts.

The affair out at Beverly was rather a lark. The Lombards gave a party for that highly entertaining person from New York, Mrs. Kearney Selfridge, who manages to combine culture and intellect with a social presence. She has a weakness for Mary Queen of Scots, who was a very experienced woman, so that her lectures partake of the genre of approved scandal and society gossip, which does not sound a bit like improving one's mind. Avery McCarthy and George Cole have been elevated to the role of assistants and the Woman's Club House is to be the scene of a certain cultured, mellowed, social distinction tomorrow, with such nice girls as Katherine Banning and Katherine Mellus selling programmes.

Did you hear about Katherine Ramsay, the daughter of Mrs. William E. Ramsay? She has been having some little nervous trouble so they have decided that a two-months' sojourn in fascinating Japan will effect the desired cure. She sails on the Mongolia tomorrow morning with Miss Elizabeth Cross. Marjory Ramsey is still up at San Francisco having no end of a good time.

Isn't young Agnes Britt a lucky girl? Just returned from a sumptuous two-years' tour of the world under the most comfortable and luxurious conditions and will make her stylish debut into society directly after Easter, April 9, when mamma will effect the entre with an afternoon affair that promises to be all that a debut should be.

Wasn't that an alarming experience for the Morgan Adams's? They certainly are managing to be thoroughly original both as regards their courtship and marriage and their honeymoon. Since all were saved they are able to review the terrifying event with a light heart, but fires at sea are altogether too realistic to be copied by the vulgar herd.

This next week, being Holy Week, social events as such will be nil, but a great many society people are planning to go to Riverside for that wonderful dawn service on Mt. Rubidoux on Easter Sunday morning. The Rands are going up, as are numerous others, for the lure of a Marcella Craft solo under those delightful conditions is irresistible to lovers of music. You remember Dr. Henry Van Dyke read his wonderful poem on a similar occasion there two years ago. So all the limousines will be hieing them towards the San Bernardino Mountains on Friday and Saturday.

Dr. Cameron of Riverside was in town this week, fearfully keen about the restored and improved golf links for the invitation tournament, which comes off five weeks hence. He seems to have taken over the Victoria Club up there and it is blossoming into revived social activity under his wing. Meg Cameron is becoming a real golfer, too, and will be figuring among the champions in another year or so.

Most of our nice men are going up to Redlands for the four-day tournament beginning next Friday. The pater said I might go, too, if I would promise to make myself scarce at the psychological moments. I just love that Redlands tournament, it is one of the merriest little country clubs we have.

You knew Katherine Harley, the golf champion, who always entered from the Redlands club while she was West, married last year, didn't you? She is now Mrs. Jackson of New York and still a contender for national honors. Her brother married Mrs. Henry Fisher's niece at Redlands last summer.

Hostesses have had plenty of time to air their grouches lately and the young men have been coming in for some scathing criticism. Their manners are too utterly utterful and the mater has been shocked to rebellion point at the failure of no less than three recent bachelor dinner guests to pay their dinner calls. She found plenty of sympathetic disgust among other hostesses, I can tell you. It surely is rather outrageous when these young men accept every ounce of hospitality that comes their way, providing it is of the first-class inclusive order, and then find that their energy is insufficient to enable them to crawl round a few days later to pay a polite call. The fact of the matter is they are all hopelessly spoiled and do not recognize any social obligations whatever.

Another grouch which mammas are airing is the habit the young men have of calling girls by their first name at the very outset of an acquaintance. It is not so bad when they are talking personally to the fair ones, but when they call up on the phone and ask the servants for Mary or Isabel or Gerty as the case may be, it tends to lesson domestic discipline at home. Especially as English servants are fashionable just now, the kind that have a very strict knowledge of and regard for proper conventions.

Pauline's very dear friend from Ohio arrived last Saturday. His name is Harry Brown and he is a very nice boy. Not at all interesting just now though, because he hasn't eyes for anyone but Pauline unless they are prepared to talk Pauline indefinitely. He has only about two weeks here before he goes on to the exhibition, so something definite must positively happen before he goes. By the way, Pauline's papa has wired that she may get herself a little five-passenger machine and they have had such a disappointment for although the house they have rented has a fine garage, the house has been built so that nothing can pass up the driveway bigger than a baby carriage. As collapsible machines are not yet on the market they will have to keep it at the nearest public garage, which is ever so far away.

Have you noticed how every tallish young man simply must lie about his height? Try it on all those you know. You will find that not a one will confess to a fraction of an inch less than 6 feet. If it is quite obvious they are 5 feet 10 inches, they will assure you they are just an even 6 feet. They lie on this score just as consistently as the woman of near-forty lies about her age. They hate to acknowledge anything higher than 39, until they are 53.

Well, so long, dear. Give my love to all those jolly sisters of yours at Santa Monica.

Your loving,

BETTY.

Chang-Hsu-Henry Wang, winner of the Ten Eyck prize for speaking, one of the most highly-valued at Yale, is a native of Ningpo, China. He is a member of the class of 1916. His subject was, "China and the European War." Adding interest to the event was the fact that Morris Hadley, son of President Hadley, was a contestant. The Ten Eyck prize is the income of a fund of $2000.

THE WEEK.

PARTIES, RECEPTIONS, DINNERS, WEDDINGS AND THE LIKE.

EASTER! The very word at once brings to us visions of the smartest, the newest, in fashion's style shops, linked as it is with the one acknowledged dress parade of all the year.

And following close upon the heels of Easter, when all the world centers its interest in milady's wardrobe, comes the announcement of our Los Angeles Fashion Show, which is fast assuming perfected plans under the guidance of some of our most prominent social leaders of the city.

It is quite the topic of conversation wherever we go—this coming Fashion Show.

How could it but create interest when our loveliest young society girls and stately matrons are to exhibit the frocks and hats which are to be displayed!

The LaFayette Kit, which has engrossed the leaders of the land in its splendid aims, has for its Southern California executive committee such persons as Mrs. George J. Denis, Mrs. Allan C. Balch, Mrs. Ernest A. Bryant, Mrs. William Ellsworth Dunn, Mrs. John Barnes Miller, Mrs. Huntington Miner, Mrs. Granville MacGowan, Dr. Walter Jarvis Barlow, John Barnes Miller, Carleton Burke, Michael J. Connell, John S. Cravens, James C. Drake, Frank S. Hicks, Sayre Macneil and Henry E. Huntington.

Mrs. Erasmus Wilson.

Mrs. J. T. Fitzgerald.

Mrs. Frank Sherwood Wise.

Portraits by Matzene.

In addition, our most prominent people are supporters to the cause.

The Fashion Show is to be patterned after the Ritz-Carleton show of New York, and will be an event of Friday and Saturday, April 9 and 10, at the Alexandria.

Evening gowns costing small fortunes, tub frocks, polo garb, riding togs—all are to be displayed. Living models formed by groups of our fairest society girls and most exclusive matrons—all co-operating for the success of the interesting event—does sound alluring. The professional manikins of Paris and London will pale in comparison to our models, who magnanimously will lend their assistance for the two days of the show. In New York, Washington and other eastern centers the movement has engrossed society to the extent of all other affair,s and Los Angeles promises to add its name to the list.

LaFayette Kit spells aid to the wounded soldiers in the trenches, and the kit has only American-made goods, which means our goods are sold and the money remains at home—a two-fold benefit.

Assisting the local executive committee are:

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ainsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Hector Alliot.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan C. Balch, Mr. and Mrs. Guy B. Barham, Dr. and Mrs. Walter Jarvis Barlow, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Banning, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Bryant, Mrs. M. A. Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. Laurence B. For Mrs. Peyton.

A delightful feature on the week's social calendar was the informal luncheon which was given on Thursday by Mrs. W. D. Woolwine, who thus extended to Mrs. Charles Peyton a pretty social courtesy.

Within a month the Woolwines are to have as their guest, Mrs. Hugh Graham Millar of New York, a niece. And in June, Mrs. Woolwine's lovely daughter, Mrs. Thomas Weeks Banks, is expected from Nashville, to make her future home in Los Angeles. That this charming woman is to become a permanent acquisition to the social life of the city will be welcome news to her illimitable number of friends. Of course, the Woolwine home, always one of real hospitality, will then be the center for much social activity.

The Marshalls for Guests.

A dinner will be given by Dr. and Mrs. R. P. McReynolds at their home in Berkeley square on Wednesday evening, when the Vice-President of the United States and Mrs. Marshall will be honor guests. Dr. McReynolds's brother, Mr. Justice McReynolds of the Supreme bench, and the Marshalls are intimately associated in the national capital, and it is indeed a delightful courtesy which the Dr. and Mrs. McReynolds will extend, when several personal friends will be invited in to meet the distinguished guests.

The Depews' Visit Too Brief.

Dr. Hartwell Depew and Mrs. Depew of Seattle, who were expected to be guests of the Erasmus Wilsons for a time, and for whom some brilliant functions were in the planning, arrived Friday, and are leaving tomorrow, much too short a visit to get in any really large affairs. During their stay they have been informally entertained, though much of the time has been spent in motoring to interesting objective points.

An April Debutante.

One of our loveliest debutantes, Miss Wickfield Britt, is to make her formal bow to society at a brilliant tea which her mother, Mrs. E. W. Britt of No. 2141 West Adams street, is giving on the afternoon of April 9. Among the matrons who will assist are Mmes. David S. Barmore, W. M. Lewis, William C. Read, William T. Johnston, William F. Staunton, Henry Kinsley, W. J. Hunsaker, A. J. Chandler, William Brill, J. H. Call, John Wolfskill, Erasmus Wilson, E. H. Barmore, E. H. Barmore, Jr., W. D. Woolwine, C. Q. Stanton, R. P. McJohnston, Arthur Wallace Fias, Rose Hunsaker Lashbrook, and Miss Katherine Ebbert, Miss Florence Hunsaker, Miss Carrie Waddilove and Mrs. E. W. Smith, will also be parlor hostesses. A bevy of stunning young ladies are also to lend their presence in receiving, as follows: Misses Florence Johnston, Marie McCoy, Sylvia Moore, Byna Kingsley, Mary Hughes, Mary Scott, Constance Byrne, Dorothy Lindley, Dorothy Williams, Helen Chandler, Jane Richardson, Helen and Adelaide Duque.

The Britts returned early in the year from an absence of a year and a half abroad, during the time their charming young daughter was receiving her finishing education in travel. Her entrance into the social gaieties of Los Angeles will signal many dinners, teas and dances, for she is extremely popular and attractive.

Brilliant Future Event.

Fresh from forty days of rest and quiet, society will be ready to enjoy to the fullest the elaborate California supper dance to be given two days following Easter, under the auspices of the Los Angeles chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, at the Bryson.

Five hundred guests will make merry in the beautiful ballroom, where California decorations will be used exclusively. Baskets of tempting oranges, hanging from a canopy of poppy lights and placed upon pedestals, will lend a brilliant touch of color to the deep brown of the walls in the ballroom, while Confederate, California Bear and United States flags will be used in the supper-room. The official seal of California will decorate the programmes which are arranged for sixteen dances, four of which are old and familiar steps. The refreshments, even, will carry out the California motif in ices, salads and like dainties wrought in the shape of tiny bears, oranges, gold nuggets and other things characteristic of the Golden State.

The completed list of patronesses includes Mrs. Eramus Wilson, Mrs. James T. Fitzgerald, Mrs. Addison Bentley Jones, Mrs. Frank Sherwood Wise, Mrs. Drew Pruitt, Mrs. Matthew S. Robertson, Mrs. Harry Robinson, Mrs. Frank David Shephard, Mrs. C. Q. Stanton, Mrs. A. G. Stocker, Mrs. Edward T. Sherer, Mrs. Olin Wellborn, Mrs. Charles Wellborn, Mrs. C. H. Hance, Mrs. Fred C. Hartman, Mrs. Eugene Hawkins, Mrs. William I. Hollingsworth, Mrs. R. H. Howell, Mrs. Walter Hughes, Mrs. Grantland S. Long, Mrs. Bessie MacGoodwin, Mrs. Orra E. Monnette, Mrs. William H. Millspaugh, Mrs. Harrison Purdon, Mrs. Charles L. Wallis, Mrs. W. D. Woolwine, Mrs. Victoria Perry, Mrs. L. C. Brand, Mrs. Roland Bishop, Mrs. Wesley Clark, Mrs. Burton E. Green, Mrs. W. J. Chichester, Mrs. Samuel Cairy Dunlap, Mrs. Nathaniel Dryden, Mrs. A. E. Ellington, Mrs. J. K. Ellison, and Mrs. Jefferson Davis Gibbs.

An Easter Affair.

Over 150 invitations have been issued for the dancing party which Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Fitzgerald are giving the evening of April 9, in compliment to Mrs. Marguerite Buckler Stevenson. The spacious ballroom of the Little Theater will be the scene of the festivity, which is eagerly anticipated by those bidden. The Fitzgeralds are charming hosts.

Post-Lenten Luncheon.

Mrs. Owen Churchill has issued invitations for an auction bridge luncheon which will be given at San Gabriel Country Club on April 7. Mrs. Churchill has been a visitor in La Jolla recently, having returned Friday to her home.

To Spend Easter in Riverside.

Mrs. Charles Wellington Rand and daughter, Miss Lillian, are going over to Riverside soon, where they will spend Easter at Mission Inn. The Rands anticipate staying for perhaps ten days.

Easter Party for Kiddies.

Her very first party in her life (though not many summers old,) was a most important event which was given by sweet little Willodeane West, daughter of the Guy Berry Wests of No. 5415 Pasadena avenue, on Thursday evening, when thirty little friends were entertained. It was doubly important because the kiddies were allowed for that one night to remain up far beyond their bedtimes, and somehow they didn't notice the sand man that one occasion, so engrossed they were in games and play—and supper. Bunnies and fluffy yellow chicks and wonderfully colored Easter eggs were everywhere about, even to the favors at each cover (for the perfectly mannered guests sat at table for their refreshments)—the cards having broods of chickens and dressed bunnies upon their surface. Easter flowers formed a pretty background for the white filmy frocks of the little ladies, sashed and rosetted in bebe blue and pink ribbons. It was with reluctance that Willodeane's friends accompanied their elders to their respective homes, tired, but oh, so happy!

Back from Honolulu.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Douglas Campbell have returned from an extended honeymoon trip, most of which was spent in tropical Honolulu, and are now cozily domiciled at the Rampart, where they are at home to their many friends. As Miss Gertrude Tyler, the bride was a popular member of the younger set. The Tylers reside at No. 1970 La France, in South Pasadena.

To Compliment Bride.

Miss Gladys Bovard, who is to become the bride of Charles Warren Swiggett on April 23, will be the recipient of many additional courtesies in the interim of the nuptial date. Two of her bridesmaids, Miss Queen Masters and Miss Ada Parrish, are to compliment Miss Bovard w

Purdy is a descendant of Mil-
Fillmore, former President of United States; also cousin of Roscoe Conklin, former United States Senator, and statesman of New York, for whom he was named, and is a Civil War veteran, having gained distinction at Vicksburg with Gen. Grant.

Mr. and Mrs. Purdy were married in Lewiston, Ill., and are the parents of six children, three of whom are living—Mrs. Taylor Wright of Peoria, Ill., I. L. Purdy of San Juan Capistrano, and Mrs. Louis Randolph Mellus of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Purdy came to Southern California twenty-five years ago, and for twenty years Mr. Purdy was connected with the Santa Fe Railroad Company.

Dinner was served to thirty guests. Table decorations of jonquils carried out appropriate color scheme.

The guests were, Mr. and Mrs. F. Scott Purdy, Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Purdy, Mr. and Mrs. Le Roy Peterson, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Miss Grasse to Pomona.

Miss Eulalie Grasse, whose marriage to Clinton William Evans of Pomona will be an interesting event of April 21, has gone over to her future home, where she is to be showered with some delightful prenuptials by Pomona friends. She left in company with her sister, Lillian, on Friday, in time to attend a dinner-dance that night.

Some Visitors.

Among the prominent arrivals at the Beverly Hills, who will add much to the pleasure of social affairs in Los Angeles during the spring season, are Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Morgan of Chicago and their daughter, Mrs. R. C. Day of St. Louis; Mrs. Rose W. F. Kennedy, Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Christiancy of New York, who are friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Cook of Los Angeles.

Well Known Here.

Capt. R. E. Benson of London, who has been awarded the Victoria Cross by the King of England for bravery in action during the recent battle of Munn, and who is away from military duty on sick leave, is visiting friends in Los Angeles and vicinity. Capt. Benson has spent considerable time in the United States and has a host of friends in California. He is making his home at the Merritt-Jones Hotel, where he expects to be the host at several affairs before he leaves to return to the service.

Formal Ball.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Kendis have issued invitations for a formal ball, which will be an event of April 10, at No. 1710 West Sixth street.

Informal Dinner.

Among those who entertained recently at dinner were Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Drake, who, on Thursday evening, had as special guests, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kellogg and George Kellogg, the latter of Hartford, Ct.

The following evening, Mrs. Drake gave a surprise dinner to her husband, to which were invited six intimate friends.

The Drakes but recently returned from San Francisco, where they spent several days at the exposition.

Five Hundred Party.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Elmer Brown of No. 1818 North Kenmore avenue were hosts at a "500" party a few evenings ago. Following cards, supper was served and dancing enjoyed. The decorations were in green.

Personal.

Kenneth Baldwin Keats, son of Mrs. Charles Grant Gobel, has arrived from Chicago, where he has been attending school, and will make his home in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howe, formerly of Los Angeles, but who have been residing in San Francisco since their marriage, which took place at Santa Barbara last June, have returned to this city, and are now at home to their friends at No. 1214 Lake street.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Jerome Luther of Medina, N. Y., are guests at the Clark. Mrs. Luther, nee Macauley, lived in this city several years, and has many friends, who are extending a warm welcome to both herself and husband.

A merry party of eastern visitors to California, who are making their homes at the Beverly Hills, motored to Coronado last week, and visited the fair at San Diego. Among those going were Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Butchart and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Staples and Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Lee.

To Entertain Informally.

Mrs. J. A. Fairchild, always a gracious hostess, will contribute an informal luncheon on Saturday to the coming social calendar.

Thursday Luncheon.

A veritable bed of growing daffodils ran the entire center of the handsomely appointed luncheon board, over which Mrs. A. R. Fistus presided on Thursday, at the Pepper. Auction bridge furnished a pleasant diversion. The invitation list numbered Mmes. R. L. Clark, F. M. Hunt, Manning, McCutcheon, Leroy Robinson, O. H. Robinson, McQuiston, McLinn, Harris, Sherman Upham, Ella Hamilton Durley, A. L. McCarty, Fred Huttenlocker, Miller, Gertrude Coleman, Edna Miller, Charles Green, Van Horn, Biesto, Warren Young, Hoffman, O. C. Vogel, J. Waggoner, McClennan, Cheney, Spangler, Neutvell, C. B. For Today.

At their pretty bungalow home on Crescent Heights boulevard, Mr. and Mrs. George Stelle are entertaining at dinner today, with covers for Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Cutting of Illinois, Mr. and Mrs. George Stamm of Upland, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Warren, Miss Elizabeth Warren, H. D. Stelle and the hosts. Poppies and ferns are to be employed decoratively.

Midwick Shooting Contest.

Midwick Country Club keeps up its activities throughout the Lenten season, scarcely a day passing that does not record some charmingly informal society dinner or dance.

Next Saturday in particular is to be gay. The cups, which were put up by the Richard J. Schweppes, are to be awarded, and the fair members of Midwick colony are all expectancy. They are working hard at target practice, hoping to win one of the trophies. The rifle tournament will take place on the rifle range near the tennis courts, commencing at noon, Saturday, and will be finished the same day, closing the scores about 5 o'clock. The cups are to be awarded, one to the highest ladies' score, and one to the highest gentlemen's score. Twenty-twos are to be used.

Informal Dinner.

Three young matrons were entertained at dinner Thursday night by the Misses Nina Moise and Ethel Phillips at the Cumnock School. Mrs. May Wood Jess, Mrs. Ernest Phillips, and

The New Wall Papers at the "California"

THE awakening of spring with its buds and blossoms and nature newness always suggests the refreshing of the home, and there is no way in which this can be accomplished so effectively and so economically as by the repapering and redecorating of the walls.

Home-lovers who are interested in really artistic, new and unusual wall coverings will find much of interest in the wall paper department of the California Furniture Co.

All the new importations are here now—the very latest ideas direct from Europe, as well as the master creations of American designers.

Especially attractive are the new schemes in crown effects for living rooms, halls and bedrooms. These crown effects are particularly popular and offer unlimited scope for effective wall treatments. There is real satisfaction in selecting wall papers from such stocks as you will find here, for the commonplace is entirely eliminated, and yet, you can buy exclusive wall papers here for as little money as you can buy the ordinary at other stores in Los Angeles.

The "California" also offers an exceptional service in Fresco painting, both in relief and flat effects—hand work by artists who have no peers in this country. We welcome the opportunity to co-operate in the working out of decorative plans, and are glad to submit suggestions and estimates.

We direct your attention to the interesting display of new wall papers in one of our windows this week. This display merely reflects the important showing on our second floor.

A Monday Sale of Easter's Smartest Hats $4.95 and $7.50

The unprecedented success of our Easter Hat Sale Friday and Saturday will most likely be eclipsed by tomorrow's event. The generous approval accorded the styles and assortments will probably be given in greater measure than then. To satisfy the demand for these popular-priced creations we have doubled our force in the designing rooms and will be equipped to meet tomorrow's demand with greater assortments and bigger values than we have EVER before shown. None of those to be offered Monday have been on display before, nor are there any two alike—each is exclusive.

We have convinced the women of Los Angeles—correctness and exclusiveness being our motto—that the place to buy the smartest hats for the least money is Blackstone's.

See Sunday's window display.

SOCIETY.

Mrs. Bruce Bliven were the guests of honor.

Pink Luncheon for Bride-elect.

Mrs. Arthur L. Hill of Melbourne avenue gave a beautifully-appointed luncheon for ten guests on Wednesday, with Miss Eulalie Grasse specially honored. Pink Cherokee roses and white lilacs formed an attractive floral motif for the resplendent board, with streamers of pale pink tulle falling gracefully from the flowers. Place cards were hand done in Cherokee rose design, and the baskets for confections and nuts were of pink, tied fetchingly in pink tulle bows. The bride-to-be was led blindfolded into the room and showered with attractive parcels wrapped in white and tied in sprays of orange blossoms, each of which disclosed some article for the boudoir. Guests numbered Miss Grasse, Miss Lilian Grasse, Mrs. William Malin, Mrs. Raymond Banks, Miss Phyllis Richardson, Miss Irene Combe, Miss Rachael Hargreaves, Miss Ann Russell and Mrs. William Russell.

On Monday of next week the same coterie of intimates are to enjoy a box party at the Orpheum, with tea later at the Alexandria.

Off to Panama-Pacific Fair.

J. E. Hamlin, a wealthy New Yorker, who has been enjoying Southern California for several weeks, left early in the week for San Francisco in company with Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hopkins and Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Thompson, also of the eastern metropolis. The party motored to the northern city, and, after enjoying the exposition, will continue their trip home.

Iowans Here.

Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Tone, who are among the most prominent citizens of Des Moines, arrived a few days ago and are house guests of Mrs. M. A. H. Bostwick of No. 423 West Adams street.

Many social courtesies are to be extended the Tones during their visit, among them a dinner which Mrs. Bostwick is giving in a few days.

Two Events of Interest.

"Havenhurst," the lovely home of the W. H. Hays in Hollywood, has been the scene of two really delightful social affairs the past week. Early in the week a dinner was given, with covers for Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Kenney of Montana, Mrs. Edwin Bilrahz and Miss Mary Walburn of Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bilharz, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Toy, Mr. and Mrs. George Stelle, Mrs. M. C. Norton and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Clark. Quantities of jonquils and stocks beautified the rooms and adorned the perfectly-appointed board.

On Wednesday Mrs. Hay presided over a luncheon, with members of the Hollywood branch of the Drama League as guests. Spring flowers formed a central mound, which rested on a base of ferns, and at table were Mmes. Frederick J. Old, Ingle Carpenter, Seward Cole, Forbes Lindsay, W. R. Wharton, O. T. Roen, Darlot Densmore, Robert Kemp, T. A. O'Donnell, J. S. Stotler of Santa Monica, L. M. Griffith, W. H. Sweet, Herbert Clark, Johnston and Miss Ianthe Densmore.

At York Country Place.

A really delightful event occurred on Saturday last, when about forty relatives and friends of the W. L. Yorks gathered at their beautiful country home laden with baskets of good things to eat and surprised that worthy couple. It was the twenty-fifth wedding anniversary of their marriage and the secret had leaked out. Several gifts of silver were presented them and felicitations extended. Impromptu speeches and music were enjoyed, and an original poem by Mrs. William C. Blee, a sister of Mrs. York, gave a humorous account of the marriage of the bride and groom of that long ago. Lunch was spread under the spreading oaks and the day was one full of pleasant happenings.

Entertains Al Fresco.

That gifted and charming visitor to Los Angeles just now, who is the motif for much of the Lenten entertaining—Mrs. Marguerite Buckler Stevenson—gave a tea stamped by its informality at the Alexandria on Thursday evening. Covers were laid for Mrs. William Irving Hollingsworth, at whose home Mrs. Stevenson is a guest, and Mrs. Erasmus Wilson, Mrs. George J. Birkel, Mrs. Charles McFarland, Mrs. William Wylie Johnston, Mrs. J. C. Anderson, Mrs. Dwight Hard, Mrs. J. T. Fitzgerald and Mrs. John N. Russell. The affair was al fresco, and spring flowers formed an attractive center.

To Marry This Week.

On Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock will take place the marriage of Miss Katherine Leonard and George W. Clemson at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Leonard of No. 611 Carondelet street, the Rev. Laurence Idleman of Christ Church officiating. Miss Elizabeth Judah will attend the fair bride, while Francis Davidson is to serve as best man. Until recently Miss Leonard has been a student at Stanford University, and is a popular member of Alpha Phi Sorority. Miss Judah also is a sorority sister and has been a close friend of the bride-elect since early childhood. The young couple are to make their home at El Modelo Rancho, in Owensmouth, where Mr. Clemson, who is the son of the Richard W. Clemsons, No. 620 Oxford boulevard, is engaged in agricultural pursuits.

For Mrs. Stevenson.

Mrs. Marguerite Buckler Stevenson of Paris has been the recipient of some charming social courtesies since her arrival, but none of which gives promise of greater enjoyment than the soupre dansant which the William Wylie Johnstons are giving in her honor at Hotel Maryland on Tuesday evening. The affair promises to eclipse any former function which has been extended.

Steckels Dancing Party.

Mr. and Mrs. George Steckel have issued invitations for a dancing party which is to be given the evening of April 10, at No. 336½ Broadway.

Foleys Give Wedding Dinner.

Miss Elsie Ara Waggoner and Dr. Henry Waldo Coe, who were married on Thursday evening, formed the delightful motif for a handsomely-appointed dinner given by the James Foleys at the Alexandria on Wednesday evening. The Foleys are lifelong friends of the newlyweds. Mrs. G. A. Rawlings and daughter, Miss Ruth, of Bismark, N. D., were also among the guests. Roses and violets formed an exquisite floral table decoration, while appropriate verses from the clever pen of the well-known poet marked the covers, and caused much jollity. These delightful visitors are planning to leave Los Angeles this week, going north to the Panama-Pacific Exposition before they are called to New York, to confer with the publishers of the poet's books.

Week-end Party.

A merry crowd of society people are members of a week-end party at the Los Angeles Country Club today, having motored out last night in time for the dinner-dance. The J. F. Sartoris and other prominent devotees are along. They will return to the city tonight.

Engagement Made Known.

The engagement is announced of Miss Flora Walter of San Francisco and Albert L. Walter of Los Angeles. Of the same name, the principals are no kin whatever. The wedding will be a near-future event.

Dinner at the Masons.

Mrs. John T. Mason of Sierra Madre presided over a handsomely-appointed dinner on Wednesday evening, her guests numbering Dr. and Mrs. Minor and Mrs. Thor Sanborn of Kansas City, Mr. and Mrs. Erasmus Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Letteau and the hosts. Purple and white iris formed an exquisite floral decoration for the board.

To Entertain Soon.

Mrs. G. Hildreth Jones of the Seminole will entertain shortly at luncheon, to be followed by cards, in honor of a trio of visitors—Mrs. E. C. Van denburgh, Mrs. C. A. Lisle and Mrs. George Wever of Iowa. The same hostess contributed two pleasant affairs to the social calendar recently, giving a luncheon of twenty-four covers on Saturday last, and a dinner. At the former affair were Mrs. Edward Bilharz, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kuhn, Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Phelps, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Stafford, Miss Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Dutton, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bilharz, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lisle, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Beard, Mrs. Agnes R. Stotts, Miss Myrtle Stotts, Mr. and Mrs. Benton W. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burnside, Mrs. G. B. Russell, Mrs. George Wever, Mrs. Huchendorf, Miss Mary Walburn, L. D. Phelps and J. L. Stafford.

The dinner guests numbered Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Cornell, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Franklin of Minneapolis, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. MacLagan, Mrs. Huchendorf and the hosts.

Yellow jonquils formed an attractive table decoration.

Home Wedding.

A very pretty home wedding was celebrated at the home of Mrs. Mary L. Porteous on Thursday evening, when her daughter, Alta, became the bride of Richard Marks Biss, Rev. Hugh Walker officiating. The bride was attired in white satin with veil of tulle, held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a shower of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Edward Porteous as matron of honor wore blue charmeuse and lace. Edward Porteous was best man. The house was artistically decorated in pink and green. Miss Florence Radbone played the wedding march from "Lohengrin," with harp accompaniment by A. L. Miller. After a visit to the exposition Mr. and Mrs. Biss will be at home at No. 1941½ Estrella avenue.

Announcement Party.

Announcing the engagement of her sister, Miss Lucile Savage, to Dr. Joseph K. Williams, Miss Ruth Savage of No. 1724 Hobart boulevard entertained with a tea yesterday afternoon, which was attended by forty friends. Pink roses and smilax were employed to decorate the lower floor of the home. The Misses Hargis, Ruth Hart, Veria Hart and Bernice Tibbens assisted in entertaining. Little Miss Florence Creamer, daintily gowned in a sheer frock to represent Cupid, with eyes veiled in bridal veiling, announced the betrothal, carrying a basket with cards of the engagement upon them. The wedding is of special interest to their large circle of friends. The marriage will be an event of August and will take place in Trinity Auditorium.

DANCING
Guaranteed $3

If you wish to learn all the very latest and modern dances in a first-class private academy where there are no public dances given and where you will meet with respectable people and learn from America's best professional lady and gentlemen instructors, take advantage of our reduced rates for this week only and call at once at Prof. De Honey's Private Dancing Academy, 203 Mercantile Place (near Spring.)

Strictly a Private School—No Public Dances. The Only First-Class School in the City.

Dancing Guaranteed

We are now forming new classes for all old and new dances every evening this week and will sell a full term of 8 lessons for $3.00, to all calling this week and will positively guarantee to teach all the very latest and modern dances in one term. All lessons are three hours long, conducted by Prof. De Honey and a number of expert assistants. With the best music you will not become embarrassed and are sure to learn.

You should secure your tickets at once as our 8 lesson term will positively cost you $5.00 after Easter but a ticket purchased this week is good any time. You can take one or six lessons a week as you like.

A Dancer of Experience

Prof. De Honey has erected and conducted dancing academies in St. Louis, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and New York. He has given normal instructions in almost every city in the United States and Canada. He dances and teaches every known ballroom and stage dance. He is acknowledged by all associations of masters of dancing to be one of America's best instructors, most graceful dancers and leading authorities on dancing. If you learn from us you will not learn fads or versions of dances but the correct dances as approved by the American and National Associations of Masters of Dancing. Prof. De Honey has taught more people to dance than any other teacher in America and is now teaching more people than all other teachers in Los Angeles.

Strictly Private Lessons

Are given all hours with music, lady and gentlemen instructors, normal instructions for teachers and exhibition dancers. We can teach you from 2 to 4 dances in one lesson.

Avoid Inferior Teachers

Almost every apartment house and public hall contains people who call themselves dancing teachers and exhibition dancers, yet they do not know the first rudiments of dancing. That is the reason you see the new dances danced in so many different ways. All other professions are protected by law but such people are allowed to call themselves dancing teachers and to sell knowledge and ability which they do not possess. Avoid such teachers, learn from professional instructors of experience and ability.

LIKE a gorgeous, glorious butterfly emerging from its chrysalis of darkness and delicately trying its fragile wings, Easter is breaking through the gray, shadowy veil of Lent and in another brief week will greet us once again in all the fullness of its pristine glory. Dame Rumor clad in her most alluring robes happily tells of many wedding parties and announcements of the happy inroads made into the hearts of lads and lassies by wilful, wayward Cupid. Of particular interest to society during the past week was the shower party given by Mrs. Joseph E. Whitehouse of No. 569 North Michigan avenue, on Monday afternoon as a gracious compliment to Miss Edith Prough, who will be one of the early spring brides. Mrs. Whitehouse it will be remembered, was one of the charming brides of the early winter, and since her marriage has been hostess at many delightful entertainments. In anticipation of the pretty event the house had been attractively embellished with a profusion of cut flowers and greens and in this pleasant environment the honored bride-elect and her friends had a most enjoyable afternoon. A delicious light collation was served at the close of the day and was enjoyed by Miss Eva Mabley, Miss Margaret Burton, Miss Emma Hall, Miss Eleanor Clemons, Miss Alice Hall, Miss Edna Evans, Miss Edith Mettler, Miss Henrietta Castleman, Miss Helen Roenhauser, Miss Genevieve Garland, Miss Arena P. Beale, Mrs. Harry Peterson and Mrs. Roy Parks.

Miss Marian Fox was the charming hostess to a coterie of card devotees on Monday evening at her home, No. 786 Sunset avenue. The rooms were attractively embellished with a profusion of spring blossoms and greenery and in the pretty setting a number of enthusiastic games of Five Hundred were played. Later the guests were regaled with a delicious light luncheon. Those enjoying the pleasant occasion included Miss Elsie Allgor, Miss Ruth McConnell, Miss Priscilla Atlee Putnam, Miss Irene McConnell, Miss Alice Gage, Miss Dorothy Pool and Miss Evelyn Foss. Miss Alice Gage will entertain the club at its next meeting at her home, No. 603 Prescott street.

On Friday night one of the most delightful concerts were given in Neighborhood House. The affair was one of the most charming occurrences and was given by the members of the Tuesday Musical Club as a compliment to Neighborhood House. Exquisite selections, sympathetically rendered were given by a number of the talented members, and were preceded by an elaborate dinner.

Society is much interested in the charity card party that is to be given at the Hotel Maryland Tuesday evening, April 6, by the Pasadena Charitable League. Plans are being made that will insure the occasion to be one of the most delightful functions recently given in charity's name. Mrs. F. W. Kellogg of Altadena is chairman of the committee having the details of the affair in charge, and is ably assisted by Mrs. Theodore Welch, Mrs. A. J. Crance, Mrs. Henry Ramel, Mrs. F. G. Bartlett, Mrs. H. I. Stuart, Dr. E. P. Clapp and Lee McLaughlin.

Miss Priscilla Putnam, who is one of the charming bride-elects for whom the wedding bells of early spring will ring, was the honoree of a delightful affair on Saturday afternoon, the form of the entertainment being a china shower. Miss Mable Sturtevant was hostess at the pretty party which was given at her home, No. 240 North Los Robles avenue. The house had been effectively embellished with quantities of spring flowers and blooms, jonquils and daffodils occupying a conspicuous place in the floral arrangements. In the attractive environment the merry guests had a charming social day, and Miss Putnam was the recipient of many lovely bits of china from her friends among whom were Miss Helen Holcomb, Miss Anna Carter, Miss Gertrude Carrie, Miss Dorothy Pool, Miss Irene McConnell, Miss Mary Hamers, Miss Elsie Allgor, Miss Marian Fox, and Miss Rose Foss.

The concert given in the Romanesque room of the Hotel Green on Friday night for the benefit of the Belgian baby fund, was one of the most artistic and financial treat successes of the present season. The beautiful room was crowded with a host of music lovers anxious to answer to charity's call, and one of the most charming of programmes was rendered under the capable direction of Miss E. Marie Elliott. Miss Doris Levings was one of the talented entertainers of the occasion as was Miss Frieda Peycke, and James Foley.

The Sunday evening concert given at the Hotel Raymond was one of the most artistic events of recent date. The La Palett Quintette gave a number of delightful numbers, and Mrs. Walter Raymond, Miss Alberta Davis and Miss Leone Davis were among the talented musicians who contributed largely to the decided success and brilliance of the affair.

One of the most pretentious of the early spring weddings was that of Miss Bessie M. Link, daughter of Mrs. C. M. Link, who was married on Thursday evening to Raymond Mattoon of Troy, N. Y. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a host of the friends of the popular young couple at the home of Mrs. Link on North Fair Oaks avenue. The home had been most profusely decorated with a quantity of fleur de lis and ferns, callas and camellias finding a conspicuous place in the floral arrangement. The bride was beautifully gowned in a shimmery silken gown wearing a veil of beautiful lace and an arm sheaf of roses. Miss Elva Link was the charming bridesmaid and Mr. Mattoon was supported by J. Howard Broadbent as best man. The simple service was read by Rev. Frank G. Tyrell of the First Christian Church, and at its conclusion a reception followed in which the many guests took occasion to shower the happy young people with congratulations and good wishes. At the conclusion of their wedding trip the itinerary of which will include a visit at the expositions, the young people will journey to Troy, where a handsome home is awaiting the bride.

The annual meeting of the Pasadena Music and Art As one of the important week and was held at the Mr. and Mrs. Scoville Colorado street. On the occasion which was atten of the largest assemblage people during the season Hutchison, president of the Art Institute, was the gues or. During the evening Bacheller delighted the g rendition of a number on the pipe organ recently in the Scoville home. The of the organization George E. Hale, president; Bacheller, secretary, and tington, vice-president.

Living-room and Dining Tables

These are patriotic days; our flag flutters in every street. You are proud that you belong to a peaceful nation. Let your patriotism and good taste proclaim themselves in the selection of COLONIAL—the distinctively American—furniture for your home. In response to the present vogue for things Colonial, we have a very complete line of this particular style, and are featuring especially beautiful mahogany Colonial style tables, having provided an unusually large assortment of different sizes, shapes, designs, etc., for your selection.

The beautiful table illustrated above at left of gate-leg table is one that will add grace and elegance to your living-room. It has an oval top, 24x36 inches, and is distinguished by the historical lyre base and scroll foot. Special price this week at................ $27.90

Notice the beautiful table shown above on right of work table. It is also an oval-top style, but has the double lyre base and is suitable for a larger interior. This is specially priced at $36.90

For your dining-room, the Colonial extension table pictured above on extreme right is in good taste. Genuine mahogany, with top 48 inches in diameter and six-foot extension. Specially priced at...... $43.65

If the rest of your dining-room furnishings are in oak, you may prefer the handsome English oak table—shown above at right of the spinet desk—in the quaint and massive Jacobean style; top 48 inches in diameter extends to six feet. Specially priced at...... $37.50

Spinet Desk

Your great-grandmother wore a poke bonnet and voluminous skirts with pockets. She drew tinkling strains from the soft-toned spinet, or spent hours beside an exquisite old mahogany sewing table, fashioning the dainty needle work she loved.

Modern fashions have brought again those demurely coquettish costumes; and the exquisite furnishings of great-grandmother's day—though always in excellent taste—are enjoying a revival of popularity.

Half-forgotten melodies seem to haunt this spinet desk illustrated above—an exact replica of the quaint musical instrument—the writing surface taking the place formerly occupied by the keys. You will revel in the beauty of its rich brown mahogany, its octagonal legs, and the convenience of its many pigeonholes and receptacles. The price of this distinctive desk, this week, is special at $77.50

Beautiful Axminster Rugs!

It is with great pleasure we call your attention to our present large collection of high-quality, artistic Axminster floor coverings—the most representative display we have ever shown, and the most comprehensive showing to be seen in any store in Los Angeles.

We have over eighty-one absolutely different patterns to select from in all conceivable kinds of designs. Many new patterns and motifs never seen before in the city, including the following:

—Small conventional figures;
—Plain center, band border, two-tone effects in grays, browns, greens, blues and mulberry;
—Many new patterns with rare old rose colors predominating, now so universally popular—the season's color;
—Delicate floral effects for bedrooms, in soft tans, grays, greens, pinks and blues.
—Oriental patterns, lavish with rich colors on dark blue grounds.
—Some extremely handsome medallion effects;
—And many others.

We show a complete range of sizes, from 22½x36 inches up to 11 ft. 3 ins. by 15 ft.—some seamed, others seamless. These handsome Axminster rugs are very inexpensive, considering the artistic effects attained.

You'll like the way we display our rugs, and the helpful advice and courteous attention afforded. Inspection invited. Rug Dept., Second Floor.

General Utility Tables

Of "infinite variety" are the many different kinds of tables needed in a home, yet one can always find room for another one. In our large assortment you will find many designs in Gate-leg and Folding-top varieties.

The drop-leaf sewing table pictured above is in mahogany, of Colonial lines, and is most fascinating in the arrangement of the various compartments for holding all your sewing equipment. This is a veritable "treasure" at the special price of $20.70

The Colonial style gate-leg table shown above, would be charming for your living-room, or from which to serve the hospitable cup of tea. It is of dull mahogany, has the characteristic drop-leaf and oval top, and is specially priced at $30.60

Taste and discernment should govern your treatment of the hall, which is the guest's introduction to your home. Most pleasing for hall use are the folding-top tables of the style pictured above at right of the gate-leg table. The classic lines of the Adam style are shown in this table, which is in beautiful mahogany. Specially priced at $37.80

Living-room Rockers

Your living-room will breathe forth a delightfully informal hospitality, if a few comfortable rockers are scattered about—

The comfy low one, for instance, as shown in center of group, of Sheraton type, with solid mahogany frame, is a very handsome pattern and special at $21.60

The larger rocker, shown at left in group, with solid mahogany frame of English Puritan design, and comfortable high back covered in beautiful tapestry and seat seat to match, is specially priced at......... $25.65

SOCIETY.

Compton.

THE largest and most prominent function of the week was the Eastern Star banquet given Saturday evening at the Masonic Hall. Exquisitely springlike were the decorations, with masses of peach blossoms everywhere — a veritable fairyland that called to mind pictures of Japan in its most attractive season. The four tables were centered with large bouquets of peach blossoms, while at each end smaller sprays were artistically arranged, and over the snowy cloth lay scattered the fallen bloom. The color motif of pink was carried out in all the appointments and was particularly noticeable in the menu served at 11 o'clock at the conclusion of a business and social evening. Covers were laid for 125 guests, and the refreshments included chicken sandwiches, olives, pickles, coffee, ice cream, cake an candies. Ray Belleu of Watts and a teacher in the High School here was initiated to membership with beautiful and appropriate ceremony. Mrs. Charles McComber of Buena Vista Park rendered several vocal selections during the social hour. Among those present were Dr. E. L. Brown of Los Angeles, Grand Associate Patron; Elden Perry Mains, Worthy Grand Patron, and Miss Carrie E. Musselman, District Deputy Grand Matron. The different out-of-town chapters had their coterie of representatives, including San Pedro, Inglewood, Gardena, Watts and others.

One of the largest and most brilliant affairs of the social season was given on Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kallmeyer at their suburban home in East Laurel street, in celebration of the birthday anniversary of the hostess. The attractive home had been elaborately decorated with great boughs of pepper, ferns, smilax and a variety of flowers. Stretched from the four corners of the living-room were strands of smilax, interspersed with violets and pansies, which culminated in the center with clusters of pepper berries. Marigold and asparagus plumosus filled several vases about the room, while the chandelier was nearly hidden in smilax and violets. The table beneath was centered by a mound of pansies and a dainty boutonniere of the same flower was used at each plate. Covers were laid for eighteen. A delicious four-course chicken dinner was graciously served by the hostess. There were two birthday cakes, one iced in white with "A. E., 1851," the initials and birth of the hostess, done in marshmallow. The second was decorated with candied pansies, roses and jonquils from England, and both aglow with the required number of candles. With two exceptions the guests were of the immediate family, who showered many attractive gifts on their mother, grandmother and aunt—three in one—their beloved hostess, and were represented by Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Kallmeyer and daughter Stella, with their niece and house guest, Miss Lydia Bowen of Glasco, Mo.; Mrs. Grover Cleveland, John Cleveland, Mrs. Callie Cleveland and Miss Mary Swanson, all of Los Angeles; Miss Ida Skinner of Hollywood, Miss Lois Choate and Rufus Choate of El Monte, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Dondenville and Miss Frances Dondenville of Watts.

Mrs. William Truan of Imperial Valley, who with her children are the house guests of Mrs. Arthur Carpenter, was the complimented guest at a 12 o'clock dinner Thursday given by Mrs. E. N. Weller at her home in West Compton avenue. Calla lilies were effectively used for the table decorations and covers were laid for ten. Mrs. Truan received during the afternoon at an informal reception. Many of her friends called to renew the friendship of former years when the Truans were residents of Compton. Besides the hostess and honoree the guests at the dinner were Mrs. Arthur Carpenter, Misses Dorothy, Pauline and Irene Truan, William Truan and Kenneth Carpenter.

Mrs. D. R. Myers was hostess recently to a number of her relatives at her home in Olive street. The charming home had been decorated with cut flowers, a pretty color scheme of pink being effectively used throughout the rooms. Pink roses and smilax centered the table and a four-course dinner was served at 1 o'clock. Covers were laid for ten. The afternoon was spent in social intercourse with the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Myers of Burbank, Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Pomroy and the Misses Mary, Elizabeth, Margaret and Louise Pomroy of Glendale.

Watts.

AMONG the prettily-arranged social events of the week was the dinner party Friday evening at the charming new home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Wilms, with the duet of hostesses, Mrs. Wilms and her sister, Miss Zella Marks. The occasion was in honor of Millard and Earnest Marks, the motorists from Glendale, Ariz., and who are en route for their new home in Watsonville, Cal. Deep red roses and smilax centered the table, where a four-course dinner was served at 7 o'clock. The evening was happily spent with instrumental and vocal music, interspersed with dancing. Beside the host, hostesses, and honorees, the only other guest was E. S. Moore of Highland Park.

Charmingly informal was the 1 o'clock dinner Tuesday, given by Mrs. L. J. Bailiff at her home, No. 232 West Diller street. The large, pleasant rooms of the Bailiff home were fragrant with flowers, and the Wandering Jew trailed its waxen leaves from post to floor. A large basket of California fruit centered the table and covers were laid for the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. James Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Cleve Luce of Los Angeles, and Louis Ward of Edendale, who motored down from Los Angeles.

The birthday of I. E. Carter afforded a pleasant motif for a happy gathering of relatives Sunday at his home, No. 775 Emily street. The hostess, Mrs. I. E. Carter, served a three-course dinner at noon. The affair was marked by the usual felicitations of a birthday event, including several surprises in the way of gifts, but none more appreciated than the filling of a long automobile lunch box complete with every necessary article for picnic use, from a thermos bottle to a spoon, and all inclosed in a leather case. The afternoon was spent automobiling and included the hostess, honoree, Mr. and Mrs. George Wood, Miss Lola Wood, Edward and Edwin Carter, twin babes of the host and hostess, and Edward Choate.

E. S. Moore was host in a motoring party recently, when his guests, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Wilms, Winfried Wilms and Miss Zella Marks of Aurora avenue, joined him in a trip to Lankershim, Van Nuys and within a few miles of Santa Barbara. A slight variation in the return trip occurred near Lankershim on the State highway, when a five-passenger Studebaker was consummed by fire started from the lighted pipe of the driver of the car. The flames spread so rapidly through the top that he and his companion barely escaped with their lives. The futile attempts to put out the fire only added to the danger of life by explosion, which fact seemed to effect but little the motoring [illegible]

In looking back upon the extravagant models of other seasons it's a joy to see the truly artistic creations in "1915" styles in—

Easter Millinery!

—In them is the art of simplicity — the graceful lines of a well-designed shape, a flower or two, an ornament that is original in conception, and a ribbon. But that ribbon,—sometimes a mere suggestion; sometimes an old-fashioned, flowing streamer—that ribbon is the culmination of the artist's handiwork.

—And the prices are no longer beyond your purse, miladi, for less than $20.00 one may be hatted in unison with the most exquisite gown of the Eastertide.

Hats at $17.50
In our French Room

—"Surely your profit must be very small on these hats," a customer remarked the other day. "I notice you do not make them in duplicate,, either," she continued.
—Her observations really told the story of Hamburger's Millinery. The hats are wonderfully pretty, the prices conservative, and for Easter we've prepared for you the greatest surprise of the season—these hats at $17.50.

Dress and Tailored Hats at $10.00

—So great is the favoritism shown our $10.00 millinery that we have spent several weeks in preparing models for this special Easter showing tomorrow.
—These are of leghorn, Milan hemp and novelty straws—all cleverly designed, and daintily finished. At once they give the impression of being much higher priced.

Easter Neckwear, Veils and Accessories

—For the past week mysterious looking boxes in the receiving room have been cautiously opened. Their contents,—well 'twould be hard to conceive anything prettier, more alluring, than the veils, ribbons, bits of neckwear, handkerchiefs, scarfs and laces brought to light—25c to $3.00.
—"It's my Easter purchase," said the buyer when he saw our delight. "Los Angeles women will go into ecstacies over them all. And just wait until you see the prices I can make on them." We waited—impatiently—and here they are, the biggest surprise of all.

Easter Veilings

—On these he had put prices from 35c to 75c—no wonder he was enthusiastic over the purchase. There are strong departures from the old novelty meshes of former days, and novelty veils are faddish conceits impossible to describe. Let your Easter veil come from Hamburger's.

Lace Tunics, $5

—Having just a dozen of these handsome tunics, coats and drapes remaining in one lot, we have marked them three and four times below what their companions sold for a bit ago. For enhancing after-Easter party frocks and gowns they'll be beautiful—and think how little the expense.

All-Silk Net Guimpes, 50c

—In associating a 50c price tag with guimpes, one usually thinks of the ordinary cotton net, but these are of all-silk net—there's a difference in quality, but not in price. Full size guimpes, designed like a waist, with high military collar.

Handkerchiefs, 25c — Dainty, all-linen 'kerchiefs, hand-embroidered—an Easter gift that intimate friends will truly appreciate.

Mary Pickford Caps, $1.25

—It embodies style and comfort not often found in a motor cap. It covers the entire head, the deep visor protects the eyes and veil straps hold veil and cap in place. And pretty, too—as dainty as little Mary Pickford herself, and it is in silk—almost any color you want—now think of the price, $1.25.
(Hamburger's—Main Floor)

With Easter comes the need for—

Exquisite Laces

—For 'tis then that one begins to think seriously of cool, frilly togs for the summer time—garments that are always trimmed with lace.
—A new shipment brings us all that is new in Oriental, Brussels, hand-run Allencous, silk Chantilly and metal-run laces. You'll enjoy seeing them tomorrow.

Real Seal Hand Bags, $3.95

—To accentuate the beauty of her Easter costume a smartly-dressed woman will carefully consider her hand bag. She chooses real seal because it will be smart and attractive. Many of these we are showing at $3.95 have jeweled catches and are silk lined in dainty colors.

Oriental Lace Flouncings, 95c yard

—Now that sand color is so much the fashion these exquisite flouncings in the two-tone effects will be a delight.
—Were they from full bolts instead of factory lengths they would be at least twice this price. Widths 27 to 36 inches; no duplicate patterns.

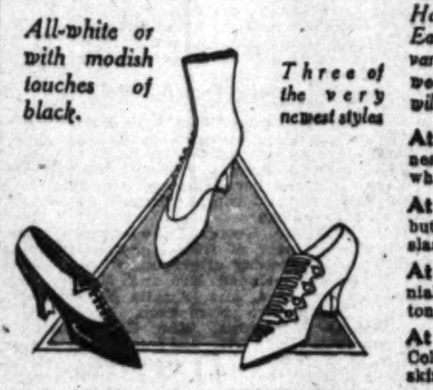
Smart Easter Footwear



All-white or with modish touches of black.

Three of the very newest styles

—It's Fashion's decree, miladi! And the Hamburger Shoe Store is making a very Easter-like showing in a wonderfully fine variety of new and charming styles—footwear decidedly better than the same money will buy elsewhere.

At $4.00—the "CORONADO," a neat 2-strap pump of white nubuck with white heels to match.

At $4.00—the "MELBA," a dainty button slipper of white nubuck with slashed vamp and instep.

At $5.00—the "ASCOT," a Colonial of fine white buckskin; with small tongue—a perfect design.

At $5.50—the "RIVIERA," a neat Colonial design of fine, smooth white calfskin—perfect in every detail.

At $5.00—the "PICCADILLY Boot," a fine white canvas button boot, with white covered Louis-Cuban heel.

At $5.00—the "HEMPSTEAD," a patent leather vamp, white top, lace oxford with leather Spanish-Cuban heel.

(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)

Wool French Serge at $1.00 yard

—As the result of a quantity purchase, Hamburger patrons can buy it at $1.00 the yard instead of a half more. One of the new season's most popular and wear-worthy fabrics. In wanted street shades, full 48 inches wide, too.
(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)

Easter Cards

—Two tables full of the very newest gifts of courtesy for the Eastertide — novelties in abundance and Easter cards, from post cards at one cent each to handsome, hand-colored cards at 50c. See them early while assortments are at their best.

—Bibles, Prayer Books and Gift Volumes — what makes more acceptable Easter gifts than books.

(Hamburger's—Book and Stationary Dept.—Main Floor—Monday)

Perfumes!

—The Easter toilette would not be complete without the charm and allurement of delicate perfumes. Hints:

Coty's Violette Perfume—the exquisite odor of real violets, $2.50 an ounce.

Carolina White—a most delightful and lasting odor; imported from V. Rigaud, Paris—$2.00 an ounce.

SOCIETY.

who gathered and watched the blaze to its smoldering embers.

A little birthday surprise was given Mrs. John Underwood at her home, No. 845 Rosella avenue, recently; when several of her neighborhood friends walked in unannounced at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, carrying gifts and refreshments for the honoree. Those included in the pleasant surprise were Mrs. Leon Blackman, Miss Selma La Gue and Mrs. J. A. Wolski.

Graham.

PROFUSELY decorated with quantities of Shasta daisies, verbenas and asparagus plumosus ferns, the suburban home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Jordon took on a gala appearance Thursday evening when they entertained with a dinner dance in honor of the birthday of their son-in-law, Fred Stohler. Red was the color motif used in the table decorations. Red verbenas and greenery made an attractive centerpiece and the large white cake was ornamented with red candles, and the candles that told the number of years of the honoree. Mr. Stohler was the recipient of many useful gifts. The evening was spent in dancing and singing. Mr. and Mrs. F. Euge rendered several guitar and mandolin selections, accompanied by Miss Flora Brain on the piano. The guests present were Mr. and Mrs. W. Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. F. Euge, Mr. and Mrs. B. Jordon, Mr. and Mrs. C. Jordon, Mr. and Mrs. F. Stohler, Mrs. M. Votruba and Mrs. Elizabeth Brain and daughter, Miss Flora Brain.

The members of the Pedro Club met Saturday evening in their clubhouse at four tables of progressive pedro. The first prize—a beautiful breakfast cap—was captured by Mrs. Jack Weston. William Hutter drew the second prize—a silk necktie. The consolation prizes were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Morrison in the form of Mr. and Mrs. "Chandecleer." Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the games which was followed by dancing a happy hour away. The club members are Mr. and Mrs. George Meade, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Caslander, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Jordon, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Martin, Mr. and Mrs. William Hutter, Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Brainard, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Morrison and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Weston.

Miss Eva Steinberg was the charming hostess recently to a few of her friends at her home, No. 1804 New Hampshire avenue. Bright and cheerful in its pretty decorations of red carnations and smilax, the house made an attractive setting for the social function, and the hours flew by all too speedily with dancing and piano, violin and mandolin music. The dainties of refreshments were served before au revoirs were said, ending most pleasantly an outing for the following guests: Misses Amy and Levene Powell, Ella and Lillie Smocky, Mary and Ella Steinberg, Edward Smocky, and others from Los Angeles.

Duarte.

FRIDAY evening Mrs. Ludie Gerhart Cross gave a pleasant company in honor of Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Brown of Long Beach, who were spending a few days in Duarte. Dr. and Mrs. Brown were residents of this section for years and on Friday evening enjoyed the opportunity offered by Mrs. Cross to meet and greet the following old friends: Mr. and Mrs. William Beardslee, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Radabaugh, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sarwine, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Gerhart and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fowler.

Mrs. Walter Kane Shaw gave a very handsomely-appointed luncheon Thursday at her home on Fallingleaf avenue, at 1 o'clock. The table decorations were lovely spring blossoms and about the hospitable board visiting and the recounting of stories was enjoyed. The guests were Mrs. Hal Siemons, Mrs. F. O. Sager, Mrs. George Blake and Mrs. Alexander B. Downe.

Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ryder of Buena Vista avenue were the genial host and hostess of a congenial party of ladies and gentlemen at a 6 o'clock dinner. The guests were seated at a large table, which was graced with a centerpiece of beautiful pink camellias and greenery. The after-dinner hours were spent with games and other pastimes, and an atmosphere of jollity and happiness characterized the affair. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Walter K. Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene D. Northup, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Sarwine, Mr. and Mrs. William Beardslee, Mrs. Charles Shrode, Mr. and Mrs. Freeland H. Hunter, and daughters.

Mrs. C. F. Moore was the pleasant hostess Wednesday at a luncheon given in honor of Mrs. Alexander Moncrief of Huntington Park. The ladies who were invited to share Mrs. Moore's hospitality were Mrs. Bruce Radabaugh, Mrs. C. H. Sarwine, Mrs. Joseph Fowler and Mrs. William Beardslee.

Miss Alice McPhail, assisted by her mother, Mrs. H. L. Ellsworth, gave a delightful bridge party Tuesday at the Ellsworth home, in honor of the members of the Fortnightly Bridge Club. Beautiful roses and ferns embellished the living rooms where the informal reception which preceded the games was held. After the cards had been laid aside a tempting repast was served by the hostesses. Those who enjoyed the afternoon were Mrs. C. D. Holmes, Mrs. Ludie Gerhart Cross, Mrs. A. Boyles, Mrs. Park Densmore, Mrs. Frank Ferguson, Mrs. A. B. Downe, Mrs. E. S. Hulme, Mrs. B. H. Morgan, Mrs. E. B. Radabaugh, Mrs. Andrew Ryder, Mrs. W. K. Shaw, Mrs. F. E. Shafer, Mrs. C. H. Sarwine, Miss Morgan and Miss Julia Holmes.

Mrs. Kate Wirzbarger, who has been the house guest of Mrs. J. Allan Munro at her country home on Duarte avenue for the past two months, left Saturday for Honolulu.

Sunny Slope.

REFLECTING the glory of California at her best the home of Mrs. Archibald Evans Pierce took on a gala air on Thursday afternoon when an entertainment was offered as a charming courtesy to Mrs. J. M. Dando of Dayton, who is a guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Henry Douglas on Orange avenue. The attractive home was beautifully embellished with exquisite spring flowers and greens and a delightful afternoon was spent by the guests, who were all happy to take advantage of the occasion to meet the honored guest. Late in the afternoon a delicious light collation was enjoyed, and informal pleasantries, conversation and music were appropriate adjuncts of one of the happiest of the early spring days.

Mrs. J. R. Alexander was hostess to the members of the Sunny Slope Club at a delightful at home recently. A large attendance of club members passed a delightful day at the hospitable home and late in the afternoon a delectable luncheon was served the guest.

Mrs. Louise M. Merritt of Huntington, Ind., who has been wintering in Sunny Slope as the guest of relatives and friends, will leave early in April for her eastern home.

San Gabriel.

THE redolent perfume of myriads of orange blossoms, the budding of buds and blossoms and the soft lilting notes of the larks are bidding a radiant welcome to the Easter-tide that will be with us in the fullness of its glory in one more week. Then society, which has been officially in sackcloth and ashes, will be regaled with many brilliant functions, one of which will be the early spring wedding of Miss Elsie Waggoner, a frequest guest at "The Lodge," the Rollins home in Arroyo drive. As a charming prenuptial courtesy Miss Waggoner and Dr. Henry Waldo Coe of Portland were guests of honor at an elaborate affair on Sunday afternoon. The occasion was marked by the usual informal charm that is characteristic of the entertainments given by Mr. and Mrs. Warren E. Rollins and was enjoyed by a coterie of seventy-five guests from other cities. Among the guests present besides Miss Waggoner and Dr. Coe were: Mr. and Mrs. Guy Rose, who have recently returned from an extended sojourn abroad, Mr. and Mrs. Carroll White, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bell, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lawton, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stott, Mrs. Sarah Marshall of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. George Gillette of Beverly Hills, Miss Mary Colls of Paris, Mme. Murat of England, Mr. and Mrs. William Wendt, Mrs. E. R. Brainerd, Mrs. Maurice Low, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wylie, Mr. and Mrs. Didier Peelee, Miss Lucretia del Valle, and Messrs. John O'Shea, George Osborne, William Hopper Howells of New York, and Anthony Anderson.

One of the delightfully happy and informal occasions of the week was the entertainment given by Mr. and Mrs. Didier Peelee at their San Marco-street home, honoring Miss Esther Yarnell and Miss Knutson, recently. An elaborate breakfast party was enjoyed among the trees in the delightful environment, and decorations were of orange blossoms and California poppies. Mr. and Mrs. Peelee are recent acquisitions to the artist colony here, and will be among the informal hosts, whose gatherings are hailed with pleasure.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Yens of Pasadena have joined the artist colony in the city and are establishing their studio in the old Muller site, where they plan to do much artistic work in the spring months.

Miss Ruth Rollins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren E. Rollins, will appear at the Little Theater in Los Angeles early next month as Juliet in "Romeo and Juliet." Miss Rollins made her debut recently in "Merely Mary Ann" and her clever work won her the heartiest congratulations of a host of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dake entertained a number of friends delightfully on Wednesday afternoon, when their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Messmore, Mrs. Amelia Barbour, Miss Olive Nordstrom, Miss Josephine Nordstrom, Miss Crystal Nordstrom, Dr. Will Barbour and Mrs. G. Nordstrom. The Nordstroms are all from the East, and are enthusiastic over the glories of California.

Casa Verdugo.

THE FOOTHILL CLUB was entertained by Mrs. L. D. Oliver of No. 1314 North Central avenue at her beautiful home, and was assisted by Mrs. George E. Larkey of North Central avenue, on Friday last. The house was more attractive than ever, with its decorations of Easter lilies and wild flowers, which were used in profusion throughout the house. The ladies having brought their fancywork, the afternoon was spent in social converse, and in listening to the musical numbers rendered by two young artists. Little Marie Oliver sang with especial sweetness of voice and manner, "Star of the East," and Gavonia Gergoria, a 5-year-old Italian boy, sang several selections from the Italian operas, with remarkable effect for so young a musician. Dainty refreshments were served during the afternoon. The next regular meeting will be on April 16 at the home of Mrs. Bassett, who will be assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Richard L. Phister.

Mrs. Louis R. Abele of No. 315 North Maryland avenue is entertaining her mother, Mrs. Alma Lafferty of Denver, Colo., who will probably remain during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Gray of No. 301 North Maryland avenue entertained on Friday evening, the occasion being their sixth wedding anniversary. Music and dancing afforded amusement and entertainment for the evening. At a late hour light refreshments were served. About ten guests enjoyed this delightful little function, and departed in the "wee sma' hours," wishing their hostesses many, many more aniversaries to come.

ALL the glad things that early summer weather offers is being enjoyed by the socially inclined, and many pleasant times amid a setting of redolent buds and blossoms will be the order of things from now until the joyous Easter bells have rung their wondrous tidings. Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Smith provided a delightful entertainment to a merry coterie of friends on Tuesday evening when Mrs. Smith, Miss Johanna Poage, and Mrs. S. E. Skidmore entertained the members of the Tuesday Afternoon Club and their husbands at a pleasantly arranged bridge party. The living-rooms were prettily decorated with shamrocks, and other verdant greenery in honor of St. Patrick, and at the conclusion of a merry evening at cards an attractive collation was served.

Mrs. Mary A. Fuller of Citrus avenue is entertaining Mrs. L. B. Robedeau of Minneapolis, who, after a brief visit here, will continue on her trip to San Diego, where she will spend the spring and summer and view the exposition.

One of the merriest of the many charming parties of the week was the 6 o'clock dinner given by the young men of the Berean class, the guests of the occasion being their young lady associates of the same class. The splendid collation, which was provided by the hosts, was thoroughly enjoyed, and at the end of the fete the semi-annual election of officers was held, resulting in the election of Charles Stewart, president; Miss Mabel Morgan, vice-president, and Floyd Rickard, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hanes have recently been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kurrle and their daughter, Miss Edna Kurrle of Los Angeles, who accompanied by Mrs. G. Giese have been at the Hanes home for several days.

Availing themselves of the perfect evenings about twenty-five young people drove to Covina on Tuesday night, where they were the guests of the Ladies of St. Francis Church at an elaborate Spanish supper. The affair was one of the most pretentious ever given in the Woman's Club House and there were over 150 guests in attendance at the charming and unusual gathering.

Accompanied by their daughter, Miss Florence, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hanes are spending a few weeks at Venice, where they are getting an early breath of ocean air.

A delightful foothill picnic was recently enjoyed by the teachers from the grammar schools, who went to Glendora, where the ranks were reinforced by the Glendora teachers. From there the merrymakers left for the hills south of Glendora, where amid a profusion of beautiful wild flowers, a camp-fire dinner was enjoyed, followed by informal games and conversation. The picnic was one of the merriest ever, and it was early evening before the party was homeward bound.

THE Misses Baily of Grand View avenue were hostesses Tuesday afternoon when they entertained with a Kensington in honor of their sister-in-law, Mrs. E. N. Baily, who is visiting them from Iowa. The afternoon was spent in chatting and doing fancy work. Twelve ladies were guests.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Baily of Postville, Iowa, are visiting the former's sisters, the Misses Baily.

On Monday afternoon Mrs. Edward Siebke of North Ellenwood drive gave a charming luncheon in honor of Miss Louise Walker and Mrs. E. N. Baily, who are visiting here.

Miss Myrtle Boyle of Santa Fe, N. M., is a house guest of Miss Ruth Colborne on Acacia street.

The senior class of the Lincoln High School spent Saturday evening pleasantly at the home of their president, Howard Mason, on Ridgeway avenue. Mr. Rice and Miss Fortune of the faculty were present. The class colors, green and white, were in evidence in class banners, floral decorations and the girls in white middies with green ribbons. School songs and yells terminated the enjoyable evening.

Santa Ana.

MRS. O. S. CATLAND, who leaves in the near future for Goler Wells, near Randsburg, where she will join her husband, who is extensively engaged in mining in that locality, was the guest of honor at a charming affair, given for her on Friday at the parlors of the beautiful First Baptist Church with Mrs. Carey R. Smith and Mrs. George W. Minter as hostesses. The spacious rooms, decorated in a distinctively California way with splendid yellow poppies and lovely ferns, were filled with friends of this estimable lady, who is prominent in church and philanthropic circles, as well as in social and club work of this city. Musical numbers were contributed by Mrs. Percy K. Lusk, Mrs. Mit Phillips, Miss Mayme Havens and Mis Jewell Hickox. When a dainty collation was served, Mrs. Carey R. Smith introduced the following ladies, who have been closely associated with Mrs. Catland in her splendid public service, and who eulogized her successful work along various lines: Mrs. G. P. Hill, Mrs. Z. B. West, Mrs. W. D. Baker, Mrs. W. Gordon Gould, Mrs. W. Frank Harris, Mrs. Horace McPhee and Mrs. Warren Brakeman. Lovely flowers were presented to Mrs. Catland during this feature of the informal programme, suggestive of the fragrant memories she will leave, and of the ardent affection she has inspired among a large circle of friends in this community.

The chevaliers and ladies of Santa Ana Canton, I.O.O.F., to the number of nearly sixty, were most handsomely entertained on a recent Friday evening at the Westminster home of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Pyle. Both host and hostess are well known throughout the county, Mr. Pyle as a successful ranch owner and man of affairs, and Mrs. Pyle, whose reputation as a club woman is State wide. Their elegant home is a model with library, music and billiard rooms and all the modern equipment that make suburban California homes the admiration of the world. The iinvitation was for a "corn bread and bean supper," but incidental luxuries of hot rolls, delicious sweet ham, luscious olives and jellies and an apparently endless supply of apple pie with whipped cream, to say nothing of the toothsome cakes of superb taste and variety, made up a feast not soon to be forgotten. The house was brilliantly illuminated and was gay with streamers of yellow and purple, the Canton colors. Joy was supreme throughout the evening, dancing, which included the Virginia reel and individual skits, being one of the most favored amusements. After the singing of old songs and hearty congratulations to host and hostess for the splendid entertainment, the happy guests enjoyed a moonlight ride to their homes in Santa Ana, a delightful ending to the festivities.

Mrs. R. N. Rowell of Berkeley, president of the California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, was the complimented guest at a recent elaborate banquet tendered by the Parent-Teacher Associations of Orange county. Long tables in the goldroom at Taylor's Grill were gorgeously decorated with foliage and daffodils that harmonized with the gilded furnishings of the room. Covers were laid for forty guests, representing the educational interests of every section of Orange county.

The Dragon balcony was the scene of a most pleasant reunion recently with Mrs. Frank Ey and Mrs. Henry Diers as hostesses. The function was in the nature of a luncheon and the table was centered with pink and white carnations and covers were laid for twelve, those at the table being Mrs. Elizabeth Berlin and Mrs. Frank P. Rimpau of Alhambra, Mrs. George P. Ey of Los Angeles, Mrs. Ada Rimpau and Mrs. O. E. Olmstead of Anaheim, Mrs. Max Reinhaus, Mrs. Arthur Pease, Miss Josephine Alexander, Miss Theresa Reinhaus and Miss Pauline Reinhaus and the hostesses. A delightful auto ride preceded the luncheon and the out-of-town visitors greatly enjoyed the beautiful scenery around Santa Ana. A theater party was the interesting conclusion to the day's pleasure.

THE tea given Saturday by the Dickens Fellowship Society for the benefit of the Bowerhights Maternity Home was a charming affair and was well attended. The large wistaria vine on Scenic Point at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Fennel attracted much attention, and the tea tables were set under its shade, and many of the blossoms decorated the tables. The ladies of the Dickens Society appeared attired in fancy costumes depicted by Dickens. Toasted muffins, tea and marmalade were served to all guests.

Wednesday night Mrs. J. T. Mason was hostess at a dinner party for Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Minor and Mr. and Mrs. Thor Sandom of Kansas City, Mr. and Mrs. Erasmus Wilson of Crester place, Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Letteau.

ALVIN VAN STEEN- 7 years old Saturday celebrated the anniversary of his birth at his home, No. on that day, be- by his mother, Mrs. F. Master Alvin was the presence of Helen Helen Lloyd, Edward Robert Reeve, Robert Haddon, Mary Compton, Asden Burk. Games and amusements were indulged in, after which a delightfully dainty luncheon was served the little party.

Mrs. W. R. Hackney and little son are now at home with Mrs. Hackney's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Phillips, of Clubhouse avenue, having arrived from Minneapolis to spend the summer at the beach. Mrs. Hackney was before her marriage Miss Lilian Phillips, the elder of the two popular sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Vawter, their daughters, Marjorie and Edwina, Mrs. Vawter's sister, Miss Mabel Channell, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Mellen and son, Sylvester McDowell, left Thursday morning for a trip by automobile to San Diego, where they will view the exhibition and spend a few days in taking in the city.

Mr. Ralph Ritchie, who has been seriously ill for a week, is much better. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ritchie of No. 833 Victoria avenue, and his many friends will be glad to learn of his recovery.

Mmes. Hoyt, James, Cullen and H. M. Anderson were lucky winners at the Monday afternoon meet of the Five Hundred Club in the lobby of the St. Marks. The latter winner drew the coupon for the day, while the others were the fortunate high scorers. The tournament for double scores will be played tomorrow, while that for single scores will be played on the following Monday.

The Walgrove Improvement Association gave a big and merry card party Friday evening at the Country Club at which whist, Five Hundred and auction bridge were played for six prizes. After the games delicious refreshments were served. The affair was given as a benefit for a needy family, and a great crowd responded to the invitations.

CARD parties and dancing fetes comprise most of the social functions of this week at this beach. The Five Hundred Club gave a very attractive affair at the home of Mrs. Frank Durlin at the La Neptune apartments. The rooms were tastefully decorated with lilies and red geraniums. Luncheon was served promptly at 1 o'clock and the afternoon was spent mostly at cards. Mrs. Charles McGehee carried away first prize, a handsome cut-glass perfume bottle; the hostess, Mrs. Durlin, won second, receiving a sugar tray; Mrs. Richard Wolsfberg captured third place and received a cut-glass salt and pepper shaker. Mrs. Mueller took the consolation prize, a Japanese tray. Mrs. E. G. Butt took substitute prize, a hand-painted plate. The members of the club present were Mrs. L. Cholvin, Mrs. F. Tower, Mrs. Charles McGehee, Mrs. W. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. C. Mosier, Mrs. Mueller, Mrs. Jack Funk, Mrs. Harry Broiaski, Mrs. Richard Wolfsberg and Mrs. Frank Durlin. The guests were Mrs. E. G. Butt and Mrs. McNickey of Tennessee.

Considerable interest is being taken recently in affairs which are social in their nature, but comprise some feature that makes the gathering worth while otherwise. A number of beach matrons of the younger set have recently formed a needlework circle. Members of the circle were entertained recently at the home of Mrs. H. H. Wilson, No. 200 South Catalina avenue. Light refreshments were served, the hostess being assisted by her mother, Mrs. Fritz, and Mrs. William Scott. Members present were Mrs. Harry Seaton, Mrs. Roy Heath, Mrs. J. F. White, Mrs. C. S. Pickens, Mrs. J. L. Mitchell, Mrs. Hansen, Mrs. Adkins and Mrs. Wilson. Miss Emily Bone was a guest of the circle.

Shortly after being feted as honor guests at a party Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. R. Moore of Hollywood left Monday for their home. The Moores have been the house guests of Mrs. Earl Whiteside, Mr. Moore being the brother of the hostess. Saturday afternoon Mrs. Moore was entertained as guest of honor at a card party, the other guests being members of a Five Hundred club to which the hostess belongs. Beach poppies and ferns made the rooms attractive and balmy. A dainty luncheon was served the guests, who included Mrs. T. B. Whiteside, Mrs. Louis Heath, Mrs. Fred Lee, Roy Heath and Ernest Heath.

THE Breakers' Club board of control met Monday evening in the lobby of the Windermere Hotel and discussed important plans for the summer season. It was decided to do away with the admittance fee for the formal cotillion ball Tuesday evening, and to make the event one of the grand final farewell events before the retirement at the annual election which was held Saturday night. The party as a result of the decision of the board, was a grand success. Mrs. John T. Dennis was appointed hostess for April. A children's party will be held again on the 24th of next month and will be made one of the biggest events of the whole season. Those members who were present at the impertant meeting were Mrs. Charles Damerel, Mrs. F. J. Wagner, Mrs. Earl Fraser, A. A. Peterson and J. C. Cribb.

Miss Alice Fox charmingly entertained a number of young folk Friday evening at the Gerard apartments, where she is sojourning, being the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Davis. She is their niece and is visiting from Burlington, Ala. Miss Fox celebrated her fourteenth birthday anniversary by having present many young school friends, who enjoyed the games and dainty refreshments.

Dr. and Mrs. George Harrison have returned to their home from a merry trip to Needles, where they spent two weeks with their son and his bride. They were accompanied by their little daughter, Marguerite.

H. R. Hills was the lucky winner of the trophy at the Saturday evening session of the Breakers' card players, fourteen tables of bridge being in operation. Mrs. H. L. Anderson, hostess, served supper just before the close of festivities. Dancing was then enjoyed until a late hour.

Messes. James Brown, Harry Wasson, Alex Franklin, Norton Forbes and M. Murray Combes made up a party of Stanford students who attended the merry formal party at the Breakers Club Wednesday evening. The boys were the guests of Mrs. I. E. Brown of Hollywood, as were Misses Hilda McCarthy, Lillie James, Arleene Hicks and Nelson Phillips and Herbert Hicks.

A WEDDING which excited great interest socially was that of Miss Bessie Ellis and James Baker, which was solemnized Tuesday evening at the home of the bride's brother, O. T. Ellis, No. 1030 East Ocean avenue. Rev. C. J. Coulter of the Burnett Baptist Church officiated. Vivian Ellis, a flower girl, was the only attendant. Miss Kitty Coulter sang "A Perfect Day." Under an arch of smilax and white ilium, studded with pink carnations, the bridal couple stood while the lines were spoken. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served in the dining-room.

The marriage of Miss Helen Bowdish and James Turrentine was solemnized Tuesday evening at the home of Rev. O. H. L. Mason, pastor of Calvary Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Mary Bowdish, mother of the bride, and Harold Bowdish, a brother, accompanied the pair to the rectory. The young people, who are well known here, will reside at No. 410 West Fourth street after a wedding journey.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Osborne entertained a group of eighteen who gathered on the beach at the foot of Alamitos avenue Wednesday evening. Guests of honor were Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Sherer of Denver, who will soon leave for their home after spending the winter here. Wieners were roasted and other appetizing viands served, games, songs and story-telling enlivening the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewellyn Bixby are planning a trip across the continent, Long Beach to Maine, in their auto. They have felt the call of spring and will leave with their two small children for the North in a few days. They will visit the San Francisco exposition and then strike across country. When they are unable to proceed the machine will be shipped by rail, but they do not anticipate that this will happen many times.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Van de Water motored a party composed of Miss Emily F. Wheeler, Mrs. E. H. Jackson, Mrs. B. T. Maltby and Miss Carrie Atwood to the "Mission Play" at San Gabriel Tuesday. The party noticed a decided improvement in the play over the presentation of two years ago.

Members of the Seaside Social Club to the number of ninety-two were present at the meeting this week, the event being in honor of the club president, Mrs. Anna Rice Hawkins, who recently became a bride. Her chair was elaborately decorated, it being twined with flowers and ferns, while above it dangled an arrow-pierced heart. The club held an all-day outing at Portuguese Bend Thursday.

The season of gaiety at Hotel Virginia is at its height. The hostess, Mrs. Ethel Thomas, and Manager Nestle have conceived several enjoyable occasions for the guests during the past week. This week there was a Spanish dinner on Wednesday and on Friday afternoon an amusement lecture was given. The new clock golf game on the hotel grounds occupies the attention of many of the guests. Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Myers danced on many occasions for the delectation of the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Fuller celebrated the forty-fourth anniversary of their marriage on Monday, when a group of members of the Immanuel Baptist Church, laden with good things in lunch baskets, surprised the couple in their home. Rev. Bryant Wilson, the pastor of the church, spoke on the life of the couple feelingly after the feast.

The members of the Gilt Edge Club were entertained Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Alice Gardiner in her apartments at the Fredericks. Those enjoying the party were Mrs. O. A. Nichols, Mrs. Eugene Lockwood, Mrs. Barney Brown, Mrs. Mary Rutlidge, Mrs. C. L. Kelley, Mrs. Emma Sanger, Mrs. O. L. Spencer, Mrs. H. C. Faxon, Mrs. J. J. Jones, Misses Nettie Upton, Jessie Upton, Carrie Jones, Mabel Cruse and Viola Kelley.

Hermosa Beach.

WITH Easter still a week away, many important social functions are being planned for after the Lenten season. Two interesting and attractive visitors to the beach are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ballantine, who are the house guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Ballantine. Mr. Ballantine was for many years American Consul at India. After twenty years in the Consular service, Mr. Ballantine has acquired a wonderful store of information of the Orient. He and Mrs. Ballantine have with them some wonderful pieces of Indian oriental tapestries, and these have attracted much interest during their stay here. They will leave shortly for Miami, Flor., where they expect to make their future home.

Probably the most interesting recent event here was the dance given by the Ladies' Guild of the Children's Hospital Society. It was given at the home of Mrs. John McCourt and was the occasion of a notable gathering. The guests danced to the lively tune of piano music and were served dainty refreshments by the girl members of the Guild. Many other entertainments of this nature are being planned for after Easter. The patronesses of the dance were Mrs. A. W. Ellington, president of the Guild; Mrs. John McCourt, Mrs. Kingsley and daughter, Miss Byna; Mrs. D. Allen, Mrs. Matthews and daughter, Miss Margaret; Miss Grace Corbin, Mrs. William Ballantine, Mrs. Alexander and Mrs. Bale.

Social events of the next few weeks bid fair to have many society notables of Los Angeles among the guest lists, for already summer cottages are beginning to be filled up. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Haneman of Los Angeles are now occupying their bungalow cottage.

Judge and Mrs. Wilbur of Los Angeles are now visitors at the beach. Mr. and Mrs. Cliffton J. Platt of Pasadena have been regular visitors at the beach and will probably soon move to the beach.

Mrs. M. E. Hixon was hostess Monday at an all day quilting bee in honor of Mrs. Claude Selvidge, formerly Miss Blanche Hixon. Members of the Deusieme Club attended during the day and other guests arrived in the evening, which was spent with games and music. Mrs. Selvidge, who was recently married, was the recipient of many gifts.

ABOUT seventy-five guests enjoyed the musicale given by members of the Literary Society at Seal Beach Inn on Friday night. Musical numbers were presented by Mrs. A. E. Swain, Miss Donnell Little, C. A. Little, Messrs. Storts and Adams. At the conclusion of the programme, refreshments were enjoyed and a social hour ensued. Mrs. Merrill Russell, Mrs. I. A. Patterson and Mrs. A. B. Snow, with the club's president, Mrs. Herbst, constituted the committee in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Staples, with their daughter, Marjory, passed several days here during last week, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Gillies at their home on Eleventh street.

Judge Walter Bordwell of Los Angeles, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Helen Bordwell, and her guests, Miss Jessie Holt of Imperial, Miss Margery Ginsdale of Redlands and Miss Hazard of Whittier, comprised a merry party that stopped here on Sunday, en route to Whittier. The party was entertained at the bachelor home of Philip A. Stanton.

Mrs. Walter Parker, with her sons, Frank and John, visited at their home here on Saturday.

Huntington Beach.

MISS BERTHA PROCTOR had as her Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Haskell, Mr. and Mrs. J. Proctor, Mrs. Anna J. Simonds of Long Beach and Miss Marian Proctor and Miss Flora Jones of Janesville, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Lavering and family expect to motor to San Diego next Tuesday and attend the exposition.

Week-end visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Paine were Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Paine of Long Beach, parents of Mr. Paine. Saturday was the elder Mrs. Paine's birthday anniversary and Monday was the anniversary of the marriage of Mr. Paine and herself.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Rigdon entertained Miss Amy Wheeler of Anaheim and Miss Birdie de Long of Talbert last week. The visitors were both schoolmates of Mrs. Rigdon.

Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson had as their guest last week their daughter, Mrs. H. E. Finney of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Gillespie of Pasadena were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Dow last week.

The members of the D. A. Club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. J. W. Walker next Thursday afternoon.

Miss Cornish, accompanied by Los Angeles friends, visited the Mission Play at San Gabriel Sunday.

Miss Spangler visited with Mrs. M. E. Johnson of San Pedro Sunday.

Richard Menzel of Los Angeles, who was a member of the Huntington Beach band last season, was in this city Monday. Mr. Menzel is selling band instruments.

R. C. Parker and Miss Lucile Wehrenberg were in Los Angeles Monday.

Mrs. Louis A. Cronk has returned from a week's visit with her sister, Mrs. Fred J. Emmons of Los Angeles.

This is the Interesting Redfern Lady.

Another lady recently remarked in the hearing of an expert in corset designing that she did not know what she was going to do for a corset this spring since she could not get her special French corset.

Special French corset! She doesn't need one. American designed corsets are far superior for American women.

Take our Redfern Models, for instance. They are designed by designers of years' experience in corsetting. To be sure the style inspiration comes from Paris, but it is actually put into practical designing in this country.

We have heretofore presented to you the Redfern Models, but in no season have we invited you to look at a line of Redfern Models that are so compelling in their surface attractions.

We know through practical tests that every Redfern style we have—if the right one for you is placed on your form—will create the fashionable line and curve.

—and there must be a curve at the waist line this year with the military straight front line.

You may select a Redfern for its style, and appearance, but the instant you wear it you realize its comfort and the longer you wear it you learn its value from the wearing point of view, as well as the viewpoint of style.

Redfern Corsets are not high priced, quite the contrary. We can suit you with a Redfern from $3 to $25.

SOCIETY.

worthy of the location. She has already taken the matter up, with architects and artists and there is a possibility that work will be started very soon.

Mr. and Mrs. F. I. Pemble of Wapello, Iowa, arrived in Corona on Saturday to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Barth. They are old friends, having located in Dana, Iowa, years ago, when there was but one store in that place. They were regular old chums in early days and as they have not seen each other for a great many years, the meeting at this time was a particularly enjoyable one. Mr. and Mrs. Pemble have been in San Diego for the past two months. They will spend a week or more in Corona and then go on to Los Angeles, where a little time will be spent, and then on up the Coast, stopping at various places on the way, where they have friends and relatives. They expect to spend about a month at San Francisco before their return to Iowa.

Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Paulson of Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. Holly Mercereau of Long Beach spent the day Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Vail, who live on Olive street. Mr. and Mrs. Mercereau are relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Vail.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Reid of Citron street entertained Monday night a number of friends. The meal was a four-course affair and was quite elaborate, after which the company spent the evening playing cards. Mrs. Walter S. Clayson was the winner of the prize for the ladies, while Harry L. Lyman won the prize for the gentlemen. Those who were present on this delightful occasion were Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Bedford, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Lyman, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Clayson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kuster, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Phillips and Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Reid. A very enjoyable evening was spent.

Broke Her Husband of Drinking.

An Illinois Wife Broke Her Husband from Drinking with a Simple Recipe that She Gave at Home.

That the liquor habit can be banished secretly is the claim of a well-known Peoria (Ill.) woman whose husband was a heavy drinker for years. In a recent statement she said: "I broke my husband from drinking with the following simple, inexpensive recipe which I gave secretly: To 3 oz. of water add 20 grains of muriate of ammonia, a small box of Varlex Compound and 10 grains of pepsin. Give a teaspoonful three times a day at meal time in the food or in the coffee, tea or milk. This recipe can be filled at any drug store, is perfectly harmless and has no color, taste or smell. Any wife or mother can stop their dear ones from drinking the same as I have done and at very little expense."

Upland.

MRS. S. G. MOORE most happily surprised her husband on Friday evening with a 6 o'clock dinner, the occasion being Mr. Moore's birthday. Shamrock was used in decoration and places were laid for twelve. Those who enjoyed the hospitality of the Moores were Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Palis, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Spicer, Mr. and Mrs. N. I. Hamer, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Stewart, Mrs. Nellie Hoffman and Paul Moore.

Miss Ida Caldwell was the surprised party on Tuesday evening when the teachers of the Upland grammar school came in a body to the F. H. Manker home, where she was stopping, and spent the evening. The time was passed rapidly away in working on fancy work and in conversation. At a late hour refreshments were served the guests, a birthday cake being the chief center of attraction. Those who came to wish Miss Caldwell many happy returns of the day were Miss Fannie Noe, Miss Ella Hallawell, Miss Elsie Lhuillier, Miss Elsie Adams, Miss Fannie Hollins, Miss Iva Dell Mur Miss Bertha Watson, Miss Clara Williams, Miss Harriet Riley, Miss Irma Coleman, Miss Gladys Riley, Miss Maria Lindberg, Miss Ruth Riley, Miss Ruth Young, Miss Edith Hitchcock, Mrs. Carrie May, Miss Lela McClelland, Miss Emily Merritt.

The Upland City Council, the Upland volunteer fire department and a few invited guests were the guests of Mr. Snyder of the S. C. Co., at a 9 o'clock dinner at the headquarters of the construction company, Wednesday night. The chief thing on the menu was roast pig with all the trimmings, to which the men did full justice.

The marriage of Miss Helen Eymann to W. R. Goerz of Los Angeles was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. H. A. Eymann of Washington boulevard, on Tuesday evening. The home was beautifully decorated in marguerites and smilax, the ceremony taking place in front of a rustic wall of plumosis covered with marguerites. The bride was gowned in white crepe meteor and carried bride roses and lilies of the valley in a shower bouquet. During the ceremony Miss Onnie Eymann presided at the piano, rendering the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin. Following the ceremony a musical programme was given, after which a lunch was served to the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Goerz left immediately for Los Angeles.

Colton.

A BETROTHAL of pleasant interest is that of Miss Maud Genevieve Moran to Thomas J. Murphy of Bisbee, Ariz., the happy secret being revealed at a pretty tea given Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride-elect's sister-in-law, Mrs. John L. Moran, at La Cadena Park. Friends from San Bernardino and Colton composed the guest company, to whom the announcement came as a decided surprise. Miss Moran is the eldest daughter of T. J. Moran of East Colton and has "grown up" in this city with many friends to wish her happiness in her new life. The groom is a Stanford graduate and now holds the position of private secretary to one of the officials of the Copper Queen Mining Company at Bisbee. As he cannot be spared at this season of the year the bride will go to Bisbee and the wedding will occur there the latter part of April.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Lawrence, bride and groom of recent date and instructors in science and English at the local high school respectively, were made the guests of honor at a pleasant little session of the Neighborhood Club Tuesday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Wallace McHargue. Cards and music lent diversion and a feature of the evening was the presentation to the newly married couple of a handsome cut-glass bowl. Special guests of the club included Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton D. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Palmer and S. A. McHargue of Los Angeles.

One of the merriest events of the week was the informal dancing party Thursday night at the spacious J. E. Harper home, a contingent of the younger set being happily entertained by Miss Evelyn Harper and her brother, Eddie Harper. The affair was complimentary to Roy Klinker, who left the following day with his father, C. J. Klinker, for Nevada City.

A small group of friends assembled Tuesday evening on the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Elgan to meet Rev. and Mrs. James Mathews and daughter, Miss Vera, who visited in Colton en route from their home at Banning to Fresno, where they are to spend some time with relatives. Chatting, music and refreshments contributed much enjoyment.

L. E. Cartmill, superintendent of the Pacific Fruit Express, and Mrs. Cartmill, are entertaining as guests Miss Lanford Huelin, Miss Cordelia Benton and J. D. Garner, grandfather of Miss Benton of Kearney, Ill. The visitors came West to attend the two expositions.

San Fernando.

THE beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Plummer was the scene of a dainty wedding, Wednesday evening, when their youngest daughter, Eudora, became the bride of Mr. Thomas Holyoke of Long Beach. Pink candles shed a soft radiance over the spacious rooms, attractive bowers of pink roses, pink carnations and feathery ferns. In this beautiful setting, to the strains of Mendelssohn's "Wedding March," softly played by Miss Rivena Shanklin, the pretty bride gowned in a charming creation of white crepe meteor and shadow lace, with a court train, and carrying a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies-of-the-valley, entered on the arm of her father. Miss Byrd Rodden of Los Angeles, wearing pink crepe de chine and lace, carried pink roses and was the only attendant. She preceded the bride, who was met beneath a shower of roses and ferns by the groom attended by Mr. Roy Scott of Los Angeles. Rev. E. Stanton Hodgin of Los Angeles read the marriage service. During the reception and dance which followed, the young couple made their departure, successfully avoiding the ardent attentions of their friends. After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Holyoke will reside in Los Angeles, where the former, who holds an important position with the Pacific Electric Railway, has prepared a home for his bride. Mrs. Holyoke is a native of Southern California and a popular member of the Sigma Beta Sorority.

Honoring the house guest of Mrs. Julia M. Powell, Mrs. J. T. Stilson, former State Regent of the D.A.R. and now regent of the Cabrillo chapter of the same order, Mrs. Jack Egbert was hostess at a charming luncheon Tuesday at her beautiful country home. The table was bright with California poppies and appropriate cards marked covers for Mrs. Henry C. Hubbard, Mrs. Julia M. Powell, Mrs. John L. Egbert, Mrs. J. T. Stilson, Miss Ellen Egbert and the hostess.

An informal dancing party was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Livingstone Polk Ferris, on Brand boulevard, Wednesday evening. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. R. G. McGurdy, Miss Wilda Carpenter, Miss Mildred Sprague, Miss Marguerite Nicholas, Miss Ada Ballou, Messrs. Gerald Curran, R. W. Mastick, D. I. Conne, F. E. Ford and Harry Bevis.

Poppies, the golden flowers of California, grace many tables these days and they were used with particularly good effect at the pretty dinner at which Miss Bertha Bowling was hostess at the Porter Hotel, recently. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. John L. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Egbert, Miss Louisa Foster and the guest of honor, a childhood friend of the hostess, Mr. John Weber of New York City.

Tustin.

COUNTY SUPERVISOR JASPER LECK and Mrs. Leck, who recently returned from a trip to the San Francisco exposition and to Sacramento, where Mr. Leck was Orange county's representative to discuss legislation on road control and road maintenance, were hosts on Thursday evening at a dinner party where Dr. and Mrs. Zaiser were guests of honor. The pretty dining-room at El Elcanto, the beautiful new Tustin home of the Lecks, was interestingly decorated with emblems reminiscent of the season devoted to good St. Patrick. A mound of greenery centered the table and rollicking Irish lads and lassies smiled from the place cards. A green and white color motif prevailed throughout the several courses and a shamrock design was seen in the after-dinner mints. Conversation and music beguiled the evening following.

"Hobble races and Easter egg hunts were among the merry pastimes enjoyed by the guests of little Miss Beulah Phinney at a jolly birthday party recently given for her by her mother at the Phinney home. Prizes given in the lively contests were won by Norma Nordstrom and Thelma Artz. Miss Beulah's guests were Lillian Satterbee, Pansy Sawyer, Grace Lehman, Marguerite Smith, Elsie Wilkins, Thelma and Louise Artz, Marjorie Cranston, Elizabeth Utt, Norma Nordstrom, Dorothy Ladieu, Ida Thorman, Thelma Morgan, Elida and Nora Phinney. These, with the small hostess, enjoyed a birthday feast of which the favorite features were delicious ice cream and a prettily-decorated birthday cake.

Another merry birthday celebration was that where little Miss Mabel Landis was the central figure, her aunt, Mrs. C. M. Becker, entertaining with a juvenile party in honor of her third birthday. The little tots had a jolly time with out-of-doors games, later trooping into the pretty dining-room where the ever-present birthday cake was the principal attraction of an inviting array of goodies spread on a prettily-decorated table. Her little friends showered Miss Mabel with gifts and were eager for her to have more birthdays and birthday parties. The small folks invited, and their mothers, included Verda Williamson, Evelyn Holford, Alice Smith, Clyde Becker; Mmes. J. F. Smith, C. M. Becker, C. Smith, D. B. Hilton, W. P. Smith and Holford.

Mrs. Maude King of the San Joaquin ranch was lately hostess at a charming whist party held at the home of her sister, Mrs. Claude Stearns of Santa Ana. The whist games were played progressively and at their conclusion a dainty hand-embroidered dresser scarf was given to Mrs. Agnes Noble for best score, a hand-embroidered handkerchief going to Mrs. Ruth Hossler as consolation award. Double marguerites were used in decoration of the attractive tea table, where cards in Japanese design marked covers for Mmes. Ida King, Ruth Hossler, Agnes Noble, May Herd, Jennie Smith, Claude Stearns, Miss Mildred McNeil and the hostess. Later in the evening the ladies were guests at a theater party with Mrs. Jennie Smith as hostess.

San Dimas.

THE Entre Nous Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. T. Roe Hobbs last Tuesday afternoon. The house was decorated with Cherokee roses and spirea. Mrs. E. W. Hart delightfully entertained the club by a recital of some of her experiences on the Rhine, which was very much appreciated by all. Mrs. Gilman gave a very interesting talk on her visit to the San Francisco exposition. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. A. E. Montgomery on Tuesday, April 12.

The Study Club met Monday afternoon with Mrs. H. E. Walker with Miss Emma Hawks as leader. The study of Holland was continued, the topic for this meeting being The Hague. Mrs. C. E. Stickle gave a review and outline of the origin of the opera, "Lohengrin," which was intensely interesting.

Mrs. E. W. Hart entertained the original members of the Wednesday Afternoon Club on Saturday in honor of Mrs. H. E. Cannon, who was one of the original members of this club.

On Monday Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Walker entertained two friends, Mr. Ed Heldrich of Peoria, Ill., and brother, Mr. Charles Heldrich of Dayton, Ky., who are spending several weeks in California doing the fairs.

San Bernardino.

MAJ. O. P. SLOAT, secretary of the Elks lodge in this city, was the genial host Tuesday evening at a brilliant social event complimentary to a group of Oneonta (N. Y.) guests, all mutual friends of years' standing. In the party, all of whom have been staying at Pasadena, were Mr. and Mrs. George B. Baird, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Elmore, Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Ford and Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bugbee. At 7:30 o'clock the party sat down to an elaborate dinner, other guests being Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Ham, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Owen, W. E. Lyman, F. A. Maginnis. At 9 o'clock the dinner party assisted Maj. Sloat in receiving the guests for the dancing party, which was held in the ballroom, adorned with a wealth of floral bloom. Refreshments were served.

At a pretty function given by Miss Bonnie Owmbey at her home at No. 656 K street, Tuesday evening, the secret of the engagement of Miss Cora S. Hayden and Mr. Robert C. Belt, formerly of Illinois, but for the past eight years of Los Angeles and Southern California, was unfolded to an interested group of friends. The romance of the couple started in Bear Valley, where Miss Hayden was spending the summer and Mr. Belt was connected with the Talmadge ranch. The date for the wedding, which will occur in the early summer, will be announced later. Miss Hayden is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hayden, formerly of Indiana and recently residents of Chino, where Miss Hayden taught in the schools before taking the position of music instructor here.

Mr. and Mrs. George Dearborn of New York City are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Sewall of the beautiful Aloha ranch in East Highlands. Mr. Dearborn is head of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Company, which operates a fleet of thirty-five huge boats and occupies an important place in the shipping world. The Dearborns will spend some time here before going to Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Miss Ruth Lawrence and Mr. Wesley Williams of Glendora came to San Bernardino this week and were married by Rev. A. P. Brown, pastor of the First Baptist Church, at the parsonage at Eighth and D streets. The couple will return to Glendora after a short stay at the Arrowhead Hotel near this city.

Ontario.

THE Ramblers Club entertained the members of all other local women's clubs Wednesday with an afternoon on Robert Burns at the Current Events Club. The chief feature of the afternoon was a lecture on Burns and a costumed impersonation and readings of his poems by Dr. James McLaren of Claremont. Dr. McLaren's talk was preceded by a group of Scottish ballads sung by Robert J. Stinton, baritone, of Los Angeles, and another similar group was rendered later by Mrs. Leonard Baugh Fowler, soprano. The clubrooms were decorated in red and white carnations effectively combined with green foliage and potted palms. The lecture was followed by an informal reception and refreshments were served. Clubs represented included the Current Events, the Friday Club, the Round-Table, the Shakespeare Club, the Dial Club and the Ramblers Club.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Lembke entertained Saturday evening at their home in East I street in honor of their son, Arthur Lembke, the twenty-first anniversary of whose birth it was. The evening was spent at games and music. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Lembke, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Bivins, Mrs. G. Russ, Miss Effie George, Miss Doris Rowe, Miss Florence Pardee, Miss Esther Liller, Miss Loretta Scherbert, Miss Louisa Knoffmeier, Miss Freda George, Albert Melchow, August Peiper, Charles Shields, Olive Sachs, Will Peifer, Carl Baker, Frank Curby, Mack George and Arthur Lembke.

M. T. de Jean celebrated the eighty-eighth anniversary of his birth Wednesday evening with an informal gathering at his home, No. 514 Vesta street. The guests numbered Mrs. Hatty Bever of Norwalk, Mrs. Katheryn Hodgson of Arlington, Mr. and Mrs. Warren de Jean and son, and Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Williams and family.

It being the occasion of the anniversary of the birth of the latter, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Montonez entertained a party of friends Sunday afternoon with a Dutch luncheon at their home in East D street. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Frank Foster, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Lehman and Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Roberts.

Santa Monica.

MRS. T. H. DUDLEY entertained at luncheon Friday afternoon a small party of friends who greeted Miss Laura Chase Smith, formerly of this city, who is now here on a brief business trip, her home now being in Ypsilanti, Mich. Those who met Miss Smith were Mmes. E. C. Wilkinson, George Waring, B. O. Bruce and John Hickman.

One of the most select of dancing parties of the early summer was that given Friday evening by Mrs. Katherine M. Tootle of Brentwood Park, who entertained for her son, John Tootle, and his daughter, Miss Katherine Tootle; the affair being as a farewell to the folks who are returning to their home in St. Joseph, Mo. Mr. Tootle is returning direct to his home, while Miss Katherine will stop over at Colorado Springs to visit. They leave Tuesday for the trip homeward. While here for the winter Mr. Tootle and his daughter have been enjoying a wide friendship in this city and many will regret to learn of their departure. Guests were asked also to meet Mrs. Tootle's daughter, Mrs. Edward Caswell Dameron of St. Louis, and her daughters Katherine and Frances. Mister Duckworth Tootle, a grandson of the hostess, was also one of the honored guests.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Dale of New York, the former a well known artist and author, are spending the winter at the seaside, having taken an apartment at the Windermere. Henry Woodruff, the noted actor, is also a resident here, having come to this city to star in a series of moving pictures for a studio in the canyon up the coast.

Mrs. Robert Dollard of No. 957 Fifth street entertained many guests the past week, among those who enjoyed her hospitality being Mrs. Cornelius Cole of Colegrove, Mrs. Stewart of Newton, Kan., a sister of Senator Cole; Mrs. Noboting and her daughter, Miss Annetta of San Diego.

Miss Georgia McCall, one of the popular daughters of Mr. Thomas McCall of Second street and Idaho avenue, was the clever winner of the handsome silver trophy which was awarded a first prize at the Sunday golf tornament at the Los Angeles Country Club links. Mrs. McCall also won another cup in a different event. Mrs. Robert Farquhar later entertained the players at supper.

Rialto.

MRS. A. H. MORGAN paid deference to the Golden State in the joyous springtime, when she adorned the rooms of her beautiful home on San Bernardino avenue with quantities of the dainty wild mustard blossoms and rich yellow poppies, on Wednesday afternoon. Nearly forty guests were entertained at the library tea benefit. Chat and needlework filled the pleasant afternoon, which was closed with the serving of the delicious repast. The hostess was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Ware, and Mmes. Frank Berg and L. E. Newcomb.

Some Beauty Secrets Worth A Fortune to Every Woman

Valeska Suratt, America's Self-Made Beauty-Actress, Tells How Surpassing Beauty May be Simply and Easily Attained.

By MISS VALESKA SURATT.

TIME is the essence of all things. Every day that is gone is gone forever, never to return. Make the most of every day. Many women spend years trying to beautify themselves and before they are through wrinkles come to eradicate all their previous efforts. The methods employed at the present day for removing wrinkles and beautifying the complexion are meager indeed. The ordinary prepared creams used for this purpose are merely weak subterfuges, as many women know only too well. It comes with much surprise, then, to many women to realize that real beauty is a matter of but a few weeks faithful effort, as a resort to the following formulas will fully prove. I will give here the recipe for a cream that is astounding in its quick results in clearing the skin of all impurities and blemishes, such as red spots, freckles and the like. This is made by mixing one tablespoonful of glycerine, one ounce of sintone, which can be procured at any drug store, and a pint of water. This makes a satiny cream. Used every day liberally, it soon renders the skin as velvety, pure and spotless in tint, as the petals of a rose. It never fails.

"Exquisite Beauty Is Within Reach of Every Woman—a Few Good Formulas Will Do It."

BERENICE T. M.—I know many women of over 45, who have made themselves look like young girls, by the simple use of the following remarkable wrinkle eradicator. The main point is that it acts promptly. You will find all deep and little wrinkles, the thousands of little cross-lines, crow's feet and the sagging of flesh will quickly disappear and that the skin will become plump, youthful and vigorous. Mix two ounces of eptol, which can be obtained at any drug store, and two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a half pint of hot water. One of the secrets of the success of this formula is in the liberal use of it. Use a lot of it at one application. It is very economical. Use it every day, all over the face. The results will not long be delayed. Begin using it today.

MISS CHAGRIN—Soap is not effective as a thorough remover of dandruff, and it is only a partial cleanser. A suprising head wash is a mixture of a teaspoonful of eggol in half a cup of hot water. As it contains no alkali whatever, it actually dissolves all fatty accumulations, and dandruff completely disappears. It cannot be surpassed as a cleanser. Is also economical, since you can obtain enough eggol at small cost, at any drug store, to supply you for a dozen or more of these luxurious shampoos.

MRS. FANNY S. O.—If you want a really exquisite face powder, without the chalkiness of nearly all face powders, I suggest you try my own, made after my own formula, and now sold in drug stores as "Valeska Suratt Face Powder." It will give a tint and softness you never before experienced.

REBECCA T. S.—The growth of hair can be quickly forced and its falling stopped. To use mere hair tonic for this purpose is a waste of time and money. A mixture of half a pint of water, half a pint of alcohol (or one full pint of bay rum instead of the water and alcohol), and one ounce of beta-quinol, applied liberally makes a hair-forcer of extraordinary power. It is also far more economical than the ordinary hair treatments used and which are not so effective. It makes hair grow quickly, and I have never known it to fail to do the work. It gives the hair wonderful life, it grows more fluffy and thick and there will be no more wisps of hair coming out on your brush or comb. Without any question it solves the hair problem.

Miss F. O. N.—You can get rid of blackheads in a few minutes by simply sprinkling on a sponge, made wet with hot water, some neroxin which can be obtained at any drug store. This, rubbed on the blackheads, removes them almost as quickly as it takes to tell it. All blackheads, little and big, disappear. Do not pinch out blackheads.

MY DAISY—One of the great problems in removing superfluous hair has been to do it thoroughly without injury to the skin or leaving a mark. The only way to do it successfully is to apply simple sulfo solution, obtainable at any drug store, or if not, then get the sulfo powder. It is the same thing, only the powder is wet with a little water just before using. This has the remarkable property of dissolving the hair instead of burning it. It never leaves a mark or red spot, and does not injure the most delicate skin. It removes heavy and light hair with equal ease and leaves the skin soft and smooth.

THEODORA M. O.—No one can assure you positively that you can develop the bust. Some use mechanical contrivances, but these are dangerous. However, a mixture of two ounces of rustone, half a cup of sugar and half a pint of cold water, taken in doses of two teaspoonfuls after meals and one at bedtime, should result in a natural and vigorous development. This treatment has resulted very successfully in many cases, and it is perfectly safe.

MISS TRUMP—I am sorry you could not obtain the "Suratt Face Powder" at your druggists', but if you will address Secretary to Valeska Suratt, Thompson Bldg., Chicago, and enclose fifty cents, saying whether you want white or flesh tint, my secretary will see that you get it at once.

THEODOSIA M. G.—You can stop excessive arm-pit perspiration very quickly by simply applying hydrolized talc liberally to the arm-pits. This is the most satisfactory article known for the purpose. It keeps the perspiration constantly under control, prevents fading and ruining of garments at the arm-pits and it immediately destroys not only all perspiration odors but other body odors as well. It is also unexcelled for perspiring feet. Hydrolized talc can be secured at any drug store and is very economical.—[Advertisement.

Beauty and the Beasts.

ing the truth is an individual problem and that it is not up to any one of us to act as the conscience of anybody else.

It is partly the fault of biology that we do not all stand uncovered more often in that greater presence. The brain, as far as it is developed, will bear only so much of the light. There is a holy of holies which men suspect but may not enter.

All of us have thoughts that should wear veils upon their faces. Most of us touch points of revelation which mortal vision is unable to behold. Our eyes are lifted to the heights, our feet must touch the clay. We must not despise the earth we trod because off there in the purple beyond are the fiery meadows of the skies. I love the stars—but the daisies at my feet are very sweet. I cannot look at the sun, but a drop of dew lingering in the early morning upon the blushing rose holds for me an unfathomed glory.

I feel the same way about the "Kreutzer Sonata," which has been done rather feebly into a motion-picture study. I have no great patience with supreme renunciations. I do not wonder at Voltaire's cynicism when he felt that an absolute religious pose rather belonged to the age that can no longer sin and enjoy it. I never decry the crimson tide. I am never impatient with the normal inappetite. I have never even thought of anger as anything other than a sign of health. The passions of men have been to me a proof of fitness, an excellence of energy.

It is not through suppression, but by right direction, that men are saved. We are tremendously human, if we are in the least healthy, and our success and happiness depend upon both the will and the ability to organize our forces into a massive honor and a steady purpose.

You cannot co-ordinate qualities you do not possess. You cannot dominate faculties that are not inherent. You cannot achieve by killing out that which accomplishes. The thing in a man that knows to believe is better than the belief. No matter what your faith, you are always better than what you believe. You must never crucify the believer.

You will never become divine so long as you are afraid of being human. You will never realize spiritual supremacy until you are physically potent. Being dead is not being good. A show of impatience at the world's way of doing things will never procure for you a pair of wings. Hating the earth will not bring you the skies.

Los Angeles pays itself a fine compliment in the appreciation in which it is holding "Potash and Perlmutter" at the Mason, and I am glad that this excellent production is to run here for another week. My approval of the show is chiefly based on something I avoided mentioning in my criticism of the first local performance—a wonderful exposition of the American attitude toward Russia's bitter race persecution. This is suggested by the indirectness of true art. It does not take this fact for its avowed theme. It does not insist upon this point to the exclusion of humor and other values. The idea simply comes out as a sort of by-product, yet the point is driven home and every heart feels it.

"The Yellow Peril" wanted to do this, but ended in a miserably cheap melodrama. It posed as tragedy, but was only laughable, whereas "Potash and Perlmutter" is offered as pure fun, but ascends to a mountain-top of dramatic feeling.

We are to have Miss Jane Cowl in another production at the Burbank which will have its premiere performance this afternoon. "The Songbird" will have to be pretty bad not to be a beautiful performance with this charming woman to illumine its passages. Her presence is like a song, and it finds an echo in every heart. I have already taken occasion to say that I think the Burbank audience deserves a leading woman of power, and that Miss Cowl has an ability equal to the best patronage of any theater in the world.

CHURCHMEN, EDUCATORS.

Dugald Christie, missionary-doctor, who has labored in bleak Manchuria for thirty-three years, is the only man in civil life who has ever been decorated by four rulers—those of China, Japan, Russia and Great Britain. He is a native of Scotland, a veteran of the United Free Church of his home land, and has lived to devote himself to the work at hand. He distinguished himself during the Chino-Japanese and Russo-Japanese wars, and led in the fight against he pneumonic plague in 1910-11. Dr. Christie has found time to write many interesting articles, but his great literary effort is his new book, "Thirty Years in the Manchu Capital."

The Rev. William H. Haupt, who is registrar and histriographer of the Episcopal diocese of Kansas, has been engaged in gathering material for a history of that church in Kansas for four years, while at the same time doing the work of archdeacon, and the last two years as rector of the parish at Independence, Kan.

Prof. C. G. Chinard of the faculty of the University of California has been awarded a special prize of f.1500 by the French Institute as an honorarium for his book, "L'Amerique at La Revue Exotique dans La Literature Francais au Septieme et au Huitieme Siecles." The prize is one of the higest honors in French literary circles and Prof. Chinard is among the few Americans who have attained the distinction. His book is a study of the influence of stories of travel in America on the literature and current ideas of France during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

Dr. Richard P. Strong of Harvard Medical School is considering a visit to Servia to study the eradication of typhus and cholera. Dr. Strong has had wide experience in his field of tropical medicine, having been with the government College of Medicine and Surgery in Manila before going to Harvard in 1913. Soon after his Harvard appointment, Dr. Strong headed an expedition to study tropical diseases in Ecuador, and the results of that expedition have contributed much therapeutic knowledge.

To Make Soldiers Invisible.

[L'Information:] Invisibility may become the sixth arm of the French land services if Maj. Kopenhagne's invention for making troops invisible to the enemy observer before or above them is adopted by the General Staff. The invention has been submitted after trials beginning in April, 1913, at Saint Cyr. On trial the new method made twenty-five French soldiers on an open field so invisible that an aviator circulating over the field at a height of 1000 feet had to report at the end of twenty-four minutes' search he could not locate them. The inventor refuses to give any description of his work before the military authorities have reached their decision as to its adoption.

SOCIETY.

tials solemnized at the Methodist Episcopal manse Saturday morning, uniting Miss Fay Klophenstine and Harold Bray. The ring service was read by Rev. O. W. Reinius in the presence of near relatives and friends assembled for the occasion. The pretty brunette bride looked charming in a blue tailored suit with becoming blouse and hat in the sand tone, with harmonizing trimmings. The bride and groom left at once for Los Angeles and San Diego, where they will spend a few days before departing on a six weeks' eastern trip. Upon their return they will reside in the vicinity of San Diego, where Mr. Bray will be in charge of a Santa Fe office. Many pretty social affairs were given for the bride-elect during the week. Her aunt, Mrs. J. T. Canady, and Mr. Canady, were host and hostess at a charmingly-appointed family dinner party Monday evening. Seven guests were seated at the table, graced with sweet peas and ferns. Tuesday evening a number of intimate friends of Miss Klophenstine entertained with a delightful informal evening at the hospitable eFrguson home on Date street. Thursday evening the members of the Philathea class of the M. E.S.S., of which the bride-elect had been a member for the past year, complimented her with a shower and farewell affair.

Mrs. Fred Jonas of Los Angeles was the honoree at a pretty informal card party, which her sister, Mrs. Frang Berg, gave Friday last. Two tables were filled for the games, the prize falling to Mrs. C. W. Longmire. The artistic rooms were brightened with rich-colored nasturtiums.

As a compliment to their son, Earl Humphrey of Wyoming, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Humphrey entertained with a family dinner of ten covers Sunday.

Josiah Millard, 89 years old, a personal friend of Abraham Lincoln, and foreman of the jury that convicted Jefferson Davis of treason, was married at Baltimore a few weeks ago to Miss Martha E. Strecks, 63 years old.

BRIGHT YOUNGSTERS.

Probably the youngest composer in Maine is little Dorothy Nye of Skowhegan. Though but six years old, she has composed two pieces for the piano and recently played them at a D.A.R. entertainment.

The youngest orchestra in Maine is that of the Newport grammar school. The members are Mary Emery and Virginia Wardwell, violinists, each aged 13; Katherine Carson, accompanist, aged 12, and Donald Newton, trap drummer, aged 12.

Max Israel, aged 15, a pupil in the eighth grade of the Warren public school, who has been in America but one year, his written a book in English on Russian schoolboy life. When he came from Russia a year ago he did not know a word of English, and now he has a better command of the language than most native-born boys of his age.

Marquette is believed to have a musical prodigy in the person of Theresa Mahoney, 4-year-old daughter of John L. Mahoney, and a pupil in the kindergarten of the Olcott school. The other day before her school teacher, a Marquette music teacher and a small assemblage she performed the remarkable feat of playing with ease and expression the airs of several classical and popular selections. As she has never had a days' instruction, her performance was the cause of much astonishment.

THE UNCHLOROFORMED.

Charles Beverung, one of Milwaukee's pioneers and one of the few living survivors of the Lady Elgin disaster on Lake Michigan in 1860, recently celebrated his eightieth birthday anniversary. Twenty-four members of the family were guests at a dinner. Mr. Beverung is in splendid health, which he attributes largely to tobacco, of which he is a confirmed devotee, smoking never less than ten cigars a day and often more. He was born in Braunschweig, Germany, and in 1846 came to Milwaukee with his parents. He has lived there ever since.

A Newburyport (Mass.) resident, in an afternoon, visited three local inhabitants whose ages aggregated 288 years. They were Mrs. Abigail Morrill, aged 106; Mrs. Hannah Ingraham, 93, and Capt. Luther Dame, 89.

Samuel W. Albertson, 86 years old, was married recently at Dalton, Ga., to Miss Elizabeth Thomas, who gave her age as "about 72," explaining that the "Bible" in which her birth was recorded was burned in the Civil War. Albertson is believed to be the oldest man ever to apply for a marrige license in Georgia.

Joel B. Morris, aged 82, and Mrs. Frieda Peterson, aged 62, were married at Xenia, O., recently. Morris is a veteran of the Civil War and draws a pension. It is his second matrimonial venture and his bride's third. The couple met by correspondence.

Cotton Sale Unprecedented.

Not cotton in bales, but cotton woven into the most desirable of dress and coat fabrics, for this the most cotton-popular season of many years; and cotton to sell at prices which would be far from high for the most ordinary of productions! Every woman who means to cotton up her wardrobe—and cotton it must be—at least a part of it—for the coming season, will be interested in this sale.

Of Modish Make.

Some coat suits have long coats with self sashes.

Sports suits are often made of creamy homespun.

Most of the new silk petticoats have four flounces.

Parasols are in any number of geometrical shapes.

In children's coats the waistlines are low and normal.

Some suits of black serge have tan serge trimmings.

One new fitted suit is an exact copy of a riding habit.

Bell sleeves are among the most charming of the new styles.

Tan-colored beads are seen on some of the tan serge suits.

Organdies are in high favor, but voiles are said to take the lead.

Charming wash dresses for little girls are made of cotton crepe.

Light bodices are veiled with chiffon.

Marquisette is much favored with taffeta.

The zebra stockings have stripes at the top.

Batwing linen collars are among the novelties.

Many blouses are made with adjustable vests.

One of the most useful suits for out-of-town wear is white corduroy.

A few—very few—kimono sleeves are shown among the spring waists.

The tendency toward simplicity in little folks' clothing is very evident.

The small hats of the spring tend toward making veils even more popular.

THE LATE COUNT WITTE.

AN OBITUARY.

"De mortuis nil nisi verum."

WHEN in April, 1906, Count Witte retired into obscurity he became a hopeless political "has been," but for fifteen years and especially the two years preceding his downfall, he was one of the most conspicuous statesmen of that time in the world, his strong influence having been felt not only in Russia, but in the whole of continental Europe. In December, 1906, during a visit to Petrograd, at the request of Mr. Melville Stone, general manager of the American Associated Press, I interviewed Witte twice, and later met him socially, at the homes of common friends. He was possessed of a striking, even brilliant personality; very tall and handsome, with suave manners and great powers of conversation, even persuasive, he was perhaps more of the courtier than of the statesman type. He was pliant and versatile, a man of great erudition and quick wit, who was always ready to discuss anybody and anything, but did not impress one as a person of firm convictions and settled principles. Emperor Alexander III was dull, even sluggish—and Witte undoubtedly owed his quick rise to power and his continuance in it during the whole reign of Alexander, not so much to his intrinsic worth, as to the hypnotising influence of his captivating personality on this mediocre sovereign. It must be taken into consideration, however, that Russian statesmen always labor under unusually difficult conditions; their tenure of office is not determined either by law or usage, but depends exclusively upon their ability to satisfy their master, the Czar, and the court circles. Purely personal considerations and wishes, even the whims of all manner of men and women, often override grave reasons of state, and a Premier or a Secretary is usually at their mercy. Witte had no friends at the capital; he was a parvenu, a protege of the Czar, a hated favorite, and consequently was beset by rivals and enemies. Yet not he himself so much as the whole system of the Russian government was to blame for the undoubted duplicity of his policy. The constant fight for existence, and endless court intrigues, invisible to the people at large, yet exacting perpetual vigilance, probably occupied most of his time and consumed his energy far more than did state affairs. By the end of the reign of Alexander III, the reputation of Witte as a clever, but unprincipled adventurer and a double-faced courtier, was definitely established, and the present Czar, being aware of this, distrusted him and shelved him permanently at the first opportunity.

Witte belonged to no party; he flirted with all of them, and he growled at all of them, as the necessities of the moment required. Very often with his left hand he very cleverly undid what apparently his right hand was striving to achieve. While playing upon and flattering public opinion and its liberal tendencies, in reality he was invariably a staunch supporter of all the moves and measures of the late K. P. Pobidonostzeff, the acknowledged leader of the darkest reactionary elements of Russia. It was Witte, who, by his famous secret report upon the work of the Zemstvos, only recently made public abroad, destroyed its independence and usefulness. It is a mistake to state that Witte introduced the gold standard into Russia. He only stopped the further decline of the Russian paper rouble, which up to today is worth only two-thirds of its face value—and this reform was attained at a fearful cost, as all values were reduced by one-third of what people had paid in good faith, thus for a long time paralyzing the economic growth of the country. He introduced order into the budget, converted the state debt to a lower rate of interest, but under his rule the expenses of the country grew enormously, as he was reckless and extravagant in buying private railroads, and promoting wild-cat industry deals of all kindds, with state funds.

The state monopoly of the sale of alcohol was his pet scheme, and it was a decisive financial success, which helped him a great deal, while its moral aspect hurt him considerably. Yet, without it, the drastic prohibition now in force would probably have been an impossibility. It must be said in general that Witte's economical reform work, while many-sided and far-reaching, lacked cohesion and system, and was not based upon definite lines, but on sudden, sometimes even conflicting, impulses.

Up to today many of the Russian people, and especially the court and military circles, believe that the peace of Portsmouth was a premature surrender; that Japan was exhausted, and that Russia would have won the war had she waited long enough. Witte is blamed for the origin and the finale of this disastrous failure. On the other hand, thinking people ascribe both to other causes, and consider the peace of Portsmouth one of his greatest achievements. Everybody, however, conceded that he handled the case very cleverly and obtained the best results possible—and the prestige of this achievement brought him to the front of state affairs again, having coincided with the darkest moments of the revolution of 1905. During the fall of that year there was complete disorganization and demoralization of th government; a universal strike in which all the lower organs of the government machine participated, tied up the country—its railroads, telegraph, mails, schools, every industry. Petrograd for three days was without water, light, street traffic—a mob ruled the city. The popular version is that Witte, in company with the late Count Solsky, the president of the State Council at that time, by assuring Czar Nicholas that the army was disloyal and that the downfall of the dynasty might follow, wrested from him his signature to the manifesto of October 17, now known as the Russian Constitution, and Witte was appointed ed the first Prime Minister under that instrument. The publication of the manifesto stopped the revolution instantly, and Russia gave herself to jubilation over this victory of the will of the people. Both the victory and the jubilation were short-lived, and premature, however, as the ultra conservative elements went to work and used the respite for a thorough organization of their forces, led by the same Witte. Before the first Duma was convened, many of the essential points of the manifesto either were abridged or changed—by imperial ukases. Witte was distrusted by both reactionary and opposition forces, could not command support from anywhere, and was forced to resign the following April.

It may be stated justly that, while Witte undoubtedly was the creator of the manifesto of the 17th of October, he surely was also the man who destroyed its value. In its original form it contained all the essentials of a constitution, of a limitation of autocracy, more or less adapted to the political level of Russia; in its present form it is nothing but a "scrap of paper." Under the iron rule of the late P. A. Stolpin, the theory was advanced, and adopted by the government, that an autocrat granted it without ceasing to be an autocrat, and so could at his pleasure change it or even withdraw it altogether. All imperial ukases again begin with the oul title: We, by the grace of God, Nicholas II, Emperor and autocrat of all the Russias, etc.—and, for all practical purposes, Russia of today is again an autocracy, and not a constitutional monarchy, as the world generally supposes.

This failure—an intentional one, as the Russian people believe, and therefore a treason to the country—will never be forgiven to the memory of Count Witte. He left no friends to defend him and his place in history, no matter how prominent, will be at best a dubious one.

The last nine years of his life must have been a veritable torture to him. He was shunned by all, attacked from all sides, and resided mostly abroad, in almost complete seclusion.

INFLUENCE OF HEREDITY.

Numerous Instances Show that "Blood Tells" More Frequently for Improvement than for Degeneracy.

[Chicago Journal:] We have heard so much these latter days about the evils of bad heredity that it might be well to reckon for a moment some of the blessings of good heredity.

If it had not been for the descendants of Jonathan Edwards our eastern universities and colleges would be short their most distinguished presidents.

If it had not been for the descendants of a single Austrian who came to this country three generations ago Sir Thomas Lipton would have had pretty easy work lifting the yachting trophy. That Austrian's name was Herreshoff.

John Adams was a very mediocre President of the United States, but a first-class Minister to England, and a sound patriot. His son, John Quincy Adams, originated the Monroe doctrine, and for sixteen years led the fight against slavery in the House of Representatives.

In the third generation came Charles Francis Adams, War Minister to England, the only man who ever called Lord Palmerston down and made good with it; while scattered around the country are some hundreds of less-noted descendants of the original J. A., all of them remarkably above the average in intelligence and character.

In colonial days an Irishman of English descent and his wife, who was Irish without any explanations, came to Virginia. Their name was Preston. Four Governors of Virginia were descended from this Irish pair. Their seed gave Governors to South Carolina, Louisiana, Kentucky, New York, Missouri and California.

In the Civil War twelve of their descendants reached the rank of general in one army or the other; and the colonels they produced are almost too numerous to mention.

Heredity works both ways; but usually the right way.

IGNORANCE OF THE BIBLE.

Less Apparent Familiarity With the Sacred Book Among Young People Than a Generation or More Ago.

[The Atlantic:] One thing is undeniable: Knowledge of the Bible is far less general now than it was in the days of my childhood, says Washington Gladden. That amazing familiarity with the sacred book with which John Richard Green credits the people of England in the days of the commonwealth had persisted until my boyhood among the sons of the Puritans and the Scotch-Irish in New England and in New York State. It was not universal, but it was general. The kind of tests by which college students in secondary schools are frequently in these days made to display an ignorance of the Bible which is astounding could have been passed with credit by the majority of country boys and girls sixty or seventy years ago. But this thorough acquaintance of earlier generations with the Bible was not due to any considerable extent to the public school. All that we learned about the Bible in school would have added very little to our store of religious knowledge. It was in our churches and our Sunday-schools, but chiefly in our homes, that most of us learned what we knew about the Bible.

FRECKLES

February and March Bring Out Unsightly Spots—How to Remove Easily.

The woman with tender skin dreads February and March because they are likely to cover her face with ugly freckles. No matter how thick her veil, the sun and winds have a strong tendency to make her freckle.

Fortunately for her peace of mind the recent discovery of a new prescription, othine—double strength—makes it possible for even those most susceptible to freckles to keep their skin clear and white. No matter how stubborn a case of freckles you have, the double-strength othine should remove them.

Get an ounce from your druggist and banish the freckles. Money back if it fails.

Had Tuberculosis of Glands—Now Well

Glandular Tuberculosis has yielded to Eckman's Alterative when other remedies failed. Read what it did in this case:—

257 Lauriston St., Philadelphia, Pa.

"Gentlemen:—In March, 1908, my doctor pronounced my case 'Tuberculosis in the Glands,' and a number of operations in a hospital failed to benefit me. In the meantime a friend of mine advised Eckman's Alterative. The wounds in my neck were still open and in a frightful condition when I started to take it. After using two bottles I found I was improving, having gained weight, could eat and was able to sleep. I continued using it until I was well. On November 11, 1910, I started to work, and since that time have not lost one day's work through sickness. I highly recommend Eckman's Alterative to any one who is suffering from Tuberculosis." (Abbreviated.)

(Affidavit) JOSEPH B. WHITE.

Eckman's Alterative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and upbuilding the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Small size, $1; regular size, $2. Sold by leading druggists. Write for booklet of recoveries.

Bewitching new hats ready for Easte

What's new for Easter!

New frocks—in the garment store these last few days we've been unpacking a great many very stunning new frocks—some of rich silks and others of exquisitely embroidered nets and crepes—many of the skirts are full four yards wide.

Perfumes—Among the new Hudnut odors which we have just received to sell at 50c an ounce are Mona Lisa, Napoleon violet, sweet orchid, and Virginia rose.

Ribbons—velvet ribbons and the new wood fibre ribbons are demanding most attention right now. Some very striking Bayadere hat ribbons are shown in pretty combinations of blue, rose and green.

Parasols—a great many of them have just come—some are in plain regulation styles but in prettier silks and colorings than previous seasons have seen — others are in palm shapes, and in new models plaited between the ribs.

Veils—surely there is no woman but will want a new veil for her Easter hat. Especially when she sees what really fascinating new veils are ready.

Camisoles—sheer, dainty things of nainsooks, or of silk crepes with very delicate trimmings of lace. Nearly all of the new waists demand a camisole.

Hair ornaments — some really unusual ones in the new rock crystal effects set with rhinestones are ready. They're quite as becoming to the blonde or brunette as to Autumn's silver-haired lady.

Handkerchiefs—Among the newer ones are some of silk crepe in white and colors with hand embroidered or lace edges.

Silk stockings—practically every color on the Spring color card is represented among the new ones we're showing. Some clever new novelty stripes are here too.

Epingle cloth $1.50
A corded wool fabric in all of the new Independence blue shades—it is full 50 inches wide—a really wonderful value.

Main Floor—Jacoby's

If we had searched every little nook and corner of Styledom, we doubt if we could have found hats which would have appealed to you more than will these hats which we have assembled in this pre-Easter showing.

—There are hats—scores and scores of them with dainty flowered trimmings—there are others with dashing wings—there are some with ribbon trimmings—and there are others nearly plain tailored but which are wonderfully becoming.

—It will not matter whether it's the close-fitting little turban or the wide striking sailor that becomes you most, you'll find them both here, and they're equally strong in Fashion's favor.

—There are hats at $5.00—but they're not the kind of hats that $5.00 usually buys. Why! one lot of these hats which we offered yesterday caused a real sensation—one woman after another declared them to be "really extraordinary" values.

—And then there are hats at $7.50—a great many new ones were just unpacked late Friday evening—and another very unusual lot at $9.50 has just come, too.

—Then, of course, there are hats at $12.50, at $15.00, at $18.50 and on up as high as—you care to pay—each one of them wonderfully smart.

—Make it a point to see the new hats at Jacoby's Monday.

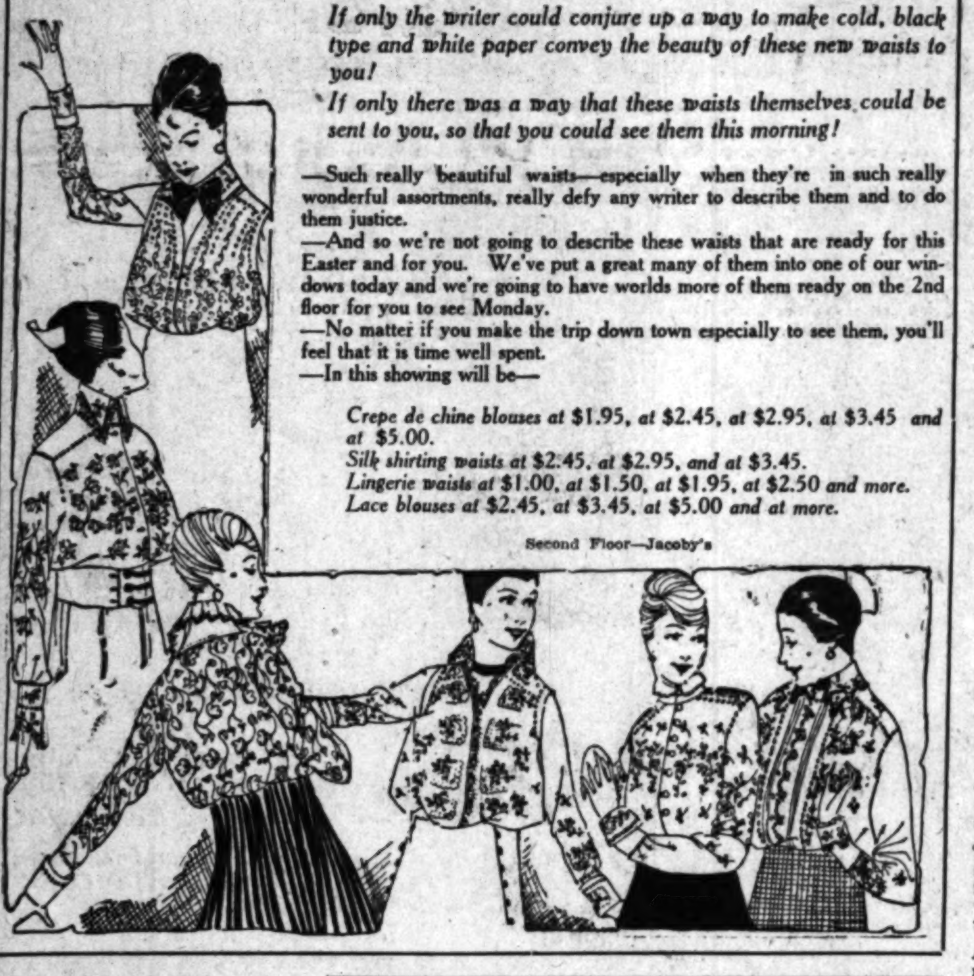
New blouses for Easter!



If only the writer could conjure up a way to make cold, black type and white paper convey the beauty of these new waists to you!

If only there was a way that these waists themselves could be sent to you, so that you could see them this morning!

—Such really beautiful waists—especially when they're in such really wonderful assortments, really defy any writer to describe them and to do them justice.

—And so we're not going to describe these waists that are ready for this Easter and for you. We've put a great many of them into one of our windows today and we're going to have worlds more of them ready on the 2nd floor for you to see Monday.

—No matter if you make the trip down town especially to see them, you'll feel that it is time well spent.

—In this showing will be—

Crepe de chine blouses at $1.95, at $2.45, at $2.95, at $3.45 and at $5.00.
Silk shirting waists at $2.45, at $2.95, and at $3.45.
Lingerie waists at $1.00, at $1.50, at $1.95, at $2.50 and more.
Lace blouses at $2.45, at $3.45, at $5.00 and at more.

New suits that are delightfully different—specially priced at $25

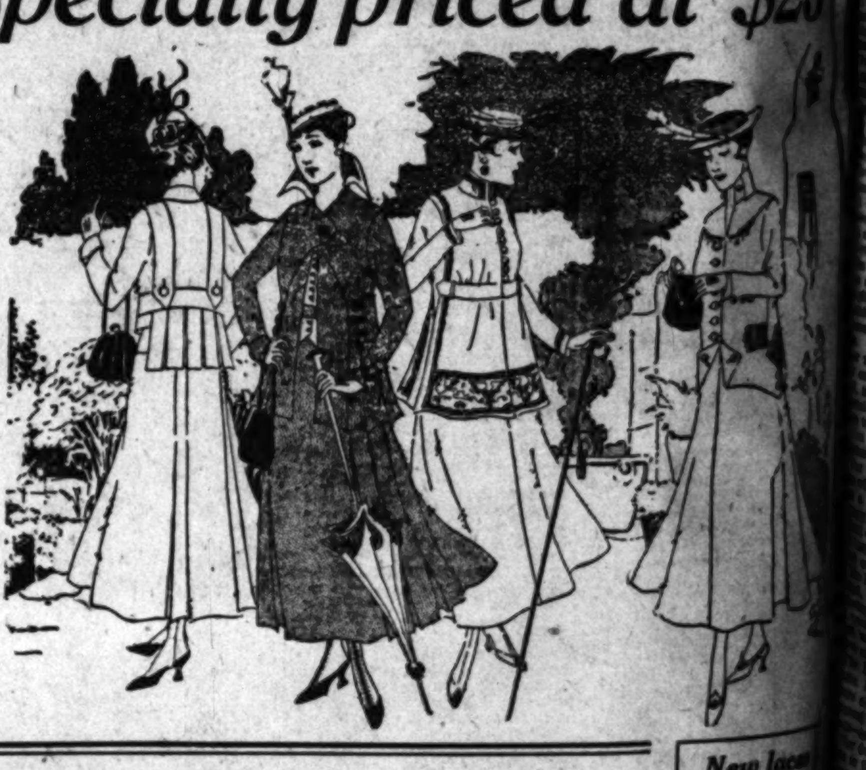
There must have been a very happy "get-together"—a splendid cooperation between the garment manufacturers, their designers and makers and our garment chief who is now in New York, for such suits as we are to feature Monday at $25 are seen only once in a long, long while.

Among them are suits of rich wool poplins, of fine men's wear serges, of sturdy gabardines, and of the very, very popular new shepherd checks.

There are suits tailored almost to a point of severity and there are others with just a touch of fancy needlework and some very quaintly plaited at the sides and at the back—there are models almost military and there are others delightfully feminine.

There are so very many different colorings and in such a complete range of styles that it will be easy indeed for you to choose one from among these that will please you quite as well as though you had it tailored to your order.

And note this! All alterations will be made and garments delivered on or before Saturday, April 3rd.



69 suits to go at $15

These 69 suits of serges, gabardines, and Covert cloths came to us at a special price—that's the reason we can sell them for $15.00. A complete color and size range. 3rd floor—Jacoby's.

Sale of 200 dozen "mill second" huck towels at 9c

No matter what way you look at it, this sale of towels is one of the most important that has ever been advertised in Los Angeles.

The manufacturers call them mill seconds and so, of course, do we—but in nine-tenths of them you'll be able to find nothing the matter except perhaps a few soiled spots or a knotted thread.

They're splendid, heavy towels—some half linen and some ¼ linen—some with blue borders—some with red borders and some in all white.

There are a great many different sizes ranging all the way from 22x44 inches to 17x34 inches.

There's not a towel in the entire lot that would sell in a regular way at anywheres near such a low price as 9c—many of them are half price and less!

If values count, this entire lot should go Monday.

Main Floor—Jacoby's

A sale of sample undermuslins at $1

There are included gowns, combinations, envelope chemise, corset covers and drawers of soft batistes and nainsooks attractively finished with laces and embroideries run with dainty ribbons—the combinations are in bloomer as well as wide effects.

I hate to admit it's true. In the Swedish sculpture I noticed a wonderful head, architecturally conceived, entitled 'The Sphinx,' and an equally wonderful study of a small boy, 'The Ship Builder.' Both are the 'big stuff.'"

"How about the Americans?"

"Whistler's paintings and etchings are shown against a smoky white background, very satisfactory, and the room devoted to Childe Hassam's work is also attractive. Hassam's 'Marine,' painted when he was out here doing decorations for the exposition, is one of the finest pictures in the whole show. What a colorist he is! And what versatility and power as a painter Frank Duveneck has! The color in his beautiful heads is fairly luminous.

"Another American painter that held me is Edward Redfield. His winter scenes are simply wonderful—the last word in plein-air effects. He has many imitators, and this imitation has given a certain monotony to the American galleries, for his magical powers have not been attained by his followers.

"Gari Melchers has a room that is alive and full of color; Frieseke has another, and I was very much impressed with Jules Page's huge canvas, 'On the Quay,' which is a fine and painter-like piece of work. There is an exhibition of early American paintings which interested me greatly, for it showed conclusively what horrors we have escaped from.

"These," Mr. Maxwell ended, "are only a few random impressions of the art side of a stupendous exposition. I may have to revise them much on a second visit."

When the Panama-Pacific becomes a big event of the past the best of the American pictures, with some others, will be brought to Los Angeles and exhibited in the gallery at Exposition Park. This is one of the important results of Curator Maxwell's recent trip. Others, no less important, will be revealed later.

Gloucester and Elsewhere.

Gloucester, once "the port of many ships," but now a quiet haven of rest for a few decrepit old sea captains and their peaceful wives, and now, too, a shining lure for the painter in search of the picturesque, laid its spell over Alice Beach Winter all last summer, and when she at last went back to her New York studio she was laden with precious plunder.

The most of that bright treasure trove is now being exhibited for our delectation in the Kanst galley, No. 854 South Hill street. There are several good California subjects—Mrs. Winter has visited in Pasadena for two months—and there are six or seven delightful studies of child life, but the pictures painted round Gloucester coast are the overwhelming attraction of the show.

Mrs. Winter's "idea" in art, her interpretation of the wonderful phenomena of the visible world, has gone steadily onward toward vividness and vitality. You can see that when you study the pictures, whose chronology is evident without any little dates printed in their corners. You do not have to be told that the child in "Beside the Sea" was painted some years before the impish little maid of "The Picture Book." And what a gain in freedom, in strength, in plangent purity of color! Good though the first picture is, it seems tame, colorless and ineffective when placed beside the other. One step more brings us to "Doris," whose technique and color suggest post-impressionism. In "Doris" there is no attempt at imitation of nature, only an effort at direct rendering of the impression it made on the artist's eye and mind. Before we come to "The Picture Book" and "Doris," however, we have "Annie" and "The Shower" and "Portrait of a Child," all charming records of the artist's reaching out for a deeper realization of her subject.

One of the California sketches is especially true and beautiful, "Almond Trees." The trees, in full blossom, must have been painted very recently in some lovely Pasadena garden. Their color is exquisite, and they fairly breathe their perfume. Those trees are a triumphant proof of the absolute fidelity of impressionism, so-called. (How I detest that misleading word! As if there could be anything but impressionism in art!)

But let us look at Gloucester with Alice Beach Winter. Then we shall miss none of the rich beauties of that quaint town. She will take us past the merely pretty things (if they exist,) bringing us to those "that really matter," as our English cousins say. She will show us the harbor itself, below terraced houses among green trees; Gloucester from the moors; East Gloucester village; a Spanish salt ship at the wharf; "The Old Pier;" "The Captain's House."

We move on with this most faithful and enthusiastic of cicerones, and come to "A Gray Day at the Coast," to "Bass Rocks," to "Sea Weed and Rocks," to "Ten Pound Island," and to "Cape Ann"—with the tang of the sea in our nostrils, the cry of the wind in our ears, all the way.

What splendid rocks are shown us in "Cape Ann!" What vividly green grasses in the fleet air above the tawny and purple rocks in "Summer Clouds!" And what gorgeousness of color, what solidity of construction in "Study of Orange Rocks," which to me seems the best picture in the entire collection—unless, indeed, I rank "Green Sea Moss" with it, which I am strongly tempted to do.

I hope Mrs. Winter will have time to paint at Laguna Beach, at Balboa and a La Jolla before she goes back to New York. Then she should visit Monterey and Carmell. I am curious to see her impressions of these wonder-places of the Pacific.

Exhibition by the Print-makers.

"Art movements" in Los Angeles are so many and multiform that even the reviewer on art sometimes finds it difficult to keep pace with them. They spring up in a night like mushrooms—but they don't die in a day. On the contrary, they are healthy and natural upshoots of the artistic spirit that is becoming strong among us, and they keep on growing to greater health.

I had heard of the print-makers, of course, but I supposed they were a little band of beginners still painfully submerged by the difficulties of pulling presentable proofs from overscratched and under-developed etching plates. Behold, they have emerged smiling and triumphant, all difficulties forgotten or hidden—if, indeed, they ever experienced any! Now they are holding an exhibition of their works in the College Woman's Club, Trinity Building, with no less than sixty-three entries by fifteen exhibitors. And they are, if you please, hardly a year old, the toddling age—yet walking as proudly erect as an art club of sixty years of service.

More marvelous still, they get away with the bluff. You have no suspicion of their infancy, no fear that they'll trip and fall. They are strong, hearty and capable, turning out work that is amazingly good. Don't miss their show. It's more than worth while, not only for its own sake, but also because it will convince you the constant cry of art that you hear on every side is not a false hope.

Here you will find etchings in black and in colors, monotypes in one color and many, wood blocks in color, dry points, and all of a quality that will give you joy. The print-makers need have no fear for their future. Decidedly, they have come to stay, and to be a powerful force in the art education of our community.

Benjamin Chambers Brown is president of the new club, and Mr. Brown's activities seem to be even more numerous in prints than they are in paints. It may be added that they are equally successful. I didn't see any wood blocks from him, but I saw an exceptionally vigorous monotype in one color, "The Surf," a soft-ground etching of great charm; "Santa Maria della Salute," a delicate aquatint; "Outward Bound," a boat in full sail silhouetted against a sunset sky, and a fine black and white etching, "California Street, Chinatown, San Francisco."

Howell Brown's etching, "The Old Altar," is beautifully drawn, and his "Bay Shore" is a dry point of exquisite charm. Arthur Dodge's drawing is well-nigh perfect in his three etchings, and in printing he has achieved a finale tonal quality. Both "The Bridge" and "Old Arcade Depot" have atmosphere and poetic suggestions. The wood blocks of Esther M. Crawford are clean-cut and effective, soft and pleasing in color, especially "Old Canal, Kioto" and that fine view of "Rothenburg."

W. A. Sharp shows some notable monotypes, "The Brook," in light brown color, and very painter-like; "At the Turn of the Tide," showing dark piles in the incoming surf, and done in a delightful gray tint; "Winter Hillside," beautifully true to the feeling of snow in the air. This artist also has a good color etching, "Florida Pines." Nell Brooker Mayhew's color etchings, which are large in area, are free and suggestive in technique, and one of them, "The Silver Sea," is especially beautiful in its quiet harmonies.

The wood blocks of Hilda Mutton are full of originality, and have the touch of imaginative fancy. "Quaint" shows us a woman in a flowered gown, which is blown like a balloon in the wind. "Youth" has two exuberant figures skipping over blue and black hills against a green sky. B. Kirk Smith's monotypes are full of a dreamy poetry, but without weakness—"Heath's Wood," "The Pool," "Morning." Lillian Drain's, always in one color, are finely vigorous and simple; this artist shows three, "Orange Afterglow" and two "evening" subjects. The color is good in Katherine Dukes's "In California," the study of an old mission. Vigor as well as charm are found in those of Bessie E. Hazen, "Eucalyptus Trees," "Late Afternoon." There is rich color in "October," by Katherine Pratt.

Hannah Thompson shows a number of etchings, characterized by great refinement of lines. The titles are "Cypress," "Aroyo Seco Bridge," "The Quad" and "Corona del Mar." The last-named is exquisite. R. Montalboddi has a well-drawn dry point, the study of a nude man, in which the action is fine; also a nude female figure in dry point, and a strong monotype in sanguine, "Old Garden." Barton Manbert appears on the catalogue, but I regret to say that etched heads ascribed to him were not to be found last Wednesday when I visited the exhibition.

ART NOTES.

An exhibition of the work of the students of the School of Painting and Illustration, which is conducted by John Hubbard Rich and William V. Cahill, opens tomorrow in the Royar gallery, on Hill street near Eighth, to continue for one week. This exhibition will prove to be one of the strongest by art students ever shown in Los Angeles, forcibly demonstrating what correct teaching will do. Both the men who have the classes in charge are painters and illustrators of talent and experience. Rich is a pupil of Benson and Tarbell, Cahill of Howard Pyle.

Hanson Puthuff is showing a collection of his landscapes of Southern California at the Shakespeare Club in Pasadena, where they will remain to the end of this month, possibly longer. Later the pictures will be exhibited in Eagle Rock City, where the artist has his home and studio. For the past few years Puthuff has been ranked among the strongest of the painters of California landscape, and an exhibition of his works is an event of such interest and importance that it will not be neglected by art lovers.

A coming event that will create pleasurable feelings is the exhibition of recent works by the brush of Helena Dunlap, which begins April 1 in the gallery at Exposition Park. This is one of the notable one-man shows planned for the park gallery through the year. Miss Dunlap is a vigorous exponent of impressionism. Her paintings, in figure and landscape, are always attractive and stimulating. Last year she took one of the cash prizes in the exhibition of the California Art Club.

Beginning April 2 landscapes and figures by J. Bond Francisco will be exhibited throughout the month at the Friday Morning Club. Francisco is one of the oldest and best-known of the painters of Southern California. His studies of our mountains are full of the brilliancy of light. He has not given a public exhibition for some years. This one will therefore prove highly interesting.

OVER THE SEA.

President Poincare of France, in declining to drink a glass of champagne with King George of England at their recent meeting, said he had made it a rule to drink no wine as long as the war lasted.

Gen. Von Hindenburg, probably the most noted German commander the war has produced, retired from the army in 1907, a veteran in years and experience. He is a tactician of rare ability, grim and laconic, and is known as "the cold old man."

Col. Alexandra Koudasheva, commanding the Sixth Ural Cossack Regiment, is the only woman who actually commands such a body of men at the front. She has seen exceptional service since the war began and has twice been wounded in encounters in East Prussia. At the outbreak of the war Mme. Koudasheva joined the Cossack regiment in which her husband had served years ago. Since that time she has received the Cross of St. George, the Victoria Cross of Russia, for bravery, and has become a lieutenant and finally a colonel. She has also been promised the military pension which her husband, who died several years ago, failed to receive.

The old Marquise d'Havrincourt, who has just celebrated her one hundredth birthday, is one of the most interesting and notable figures of the noble Faubourg St. Germain, in Paris, where she is treated as the universally venerated patriarch of the French aristocracy. Her husband, who died about twenty-two years ago, was one of the principal chamberlains of Napoleon III, while her father was the ninth Duke of Mortemart, head of the house of Rochechouart. She is therefore the grand-aunt of the present Duc de Mortemart, a man of 60, who is himself a grandfather.

Sueleiman Bin Musa, the Sultan of Selangor, has affirmed his loyalty to Great Britain and has issued an order to all the people living in his country enjoining them to entertain no evil intention against the British government.

King Emmanuel of Italy, though well shaped in person and good-looking, is very small, not more than five feet, two inches in height, but, resenting the dispensation, he has taken every care to increase his strength by constant exercise and is now a very fair athlete.

JAPANESE HOME CUSTOMS.

The Children Must Show Proper Deference to Their Superiors and be Helpful to Mother.

[Child Welfare Magazine:] "A Japanese child is rarely punished and never whipped, but the strong influence of the home training makes the average child obedient and self-controlled at a comparatively early age. He is taught to conceal his grief with the thought that if he does not he will give pain to others. Loyalty to Emperor and country, filial obedience to parents, respect for superiors, courteous consideration and politeness toward all are the lessons that are taught in all Japanese homes.

"The idea of deference to superiors is carried out not only in the daily life of the people, but in their language as well. Just when and how to use the honorific forms of speech is the bugbear of the student of the Japanese language.' Even one who knows the language well is sometimes guilty of using the impolite forms in regard to others and the polite forms in regard to himself.

"The children never leave the house, nor return to it, without going to their mother's room and there making the little bows and repeating the customary phrases used upon such occasions. In the same way, when the mother goes out, all the servants and the children escort her to the door; and when her attendant shouts: 'O Kaeri!' which is the signal of her return, children and servants hasten to the gate to meet her and do what they can to help her from her conveyance and make her homecoming pleasant and restful."

Benefit of Yawning.

[London Chronicle:] Dr. Naegeli, professor of medicine at Liege University, commends the practice of yawning. A good yawn, the Belgian professor maintains, is excellent for the lungs and for all the breathing organs; but there is an art in yawning just the same as there is an art in breathing. Every yawn should be as deep as possible, so as to bring all the muscles of the throat and chest into action, and also to fill the yital organs with a current of fresh air. Dr. Naegeli has known of many cases in which a sore throat has been alleviated by persistent yawning.

a pint of strong tea of hoar- strain, add two pounds of granulated sugar and boil until brittle when dropped in cold water. Pour in buttered tins and mark in squares.

Sea Foam Candy.

Into a saucepan put three cupfuls of granulated sugar, one-half cupful of corn syrup and two-thirds cupful of water; cook until the mixture forms a soft ball when a little is dropped into cold water. Then pour the candy over the stiffly-whipped whites of two eggs, beating vigorously and constantly until the mixture is stiff enough to keep its form when dropped from a spoon onto waxed paper. Add one cupful of chopped nuts or chopped candied fruits just before it is dropped on the paper, or a buttered platter or tin may be used, and leave the lumps of candy rough and rocky as they happen to be without smoothing them.

Molasses Candy.

Put into a sauce pan one cupful of brown sugar, two cupfuls of New Orleans molasses and one tablespoonful each of butter and vinegar. Mix them well and boil until the syrup will harden when dropped into cold water. Then stir in one teaspoonful of baking soda, which will whiten it, and turn into a buttered tin to cool. When it can be handled, pull it until white and firm, then draw into sticks and cut it into inch lengths.

Old-fashioned Taffy.

Put two and one-half cupfuls of sugar and one-half cupful of water into a saucepan and stir until the sugar is all dissolved. Then with a damp cloth wipe off the sides of the pan free from any sugar, and let boil without stirring for a few minutes, then add one tablespoonful of butter and let it boil until it will crack when tested in cold water. Add one teaspoonful of vanilla, and turn it out on a tin to cool. Mark off into squares before it becomes cold.

PAYING FOR THE WAR.

The British Chancellor Believes the Foreign Investments of the Nation Will Settle the Bill.

[London Statist:] In his speech on Monday the Chancellor of the Exchequer said that this country would be able to pay for the expenses of the war, even if it lasted for five years, out of its investments abroad. Questions have been put to us as to the meaning of the Chancellor of the Exchequer—whether, that is to say, he meant that it could be paid out of the interest derived from our investments or by means of sales of our investments. Sir George Paish, before the Manchester Statistical Society, calculated that the total Indian, colonial and foreign investments of this country a year ago amounted to £3,714,661,000. Our investments abroad during 1914, as we showed in our issue of January 2 last, reached about £214,000,000, thus raising our oversea investments to almost £4,000,000,000. Assuming the average interest on this total to have been 5 per cent., it would amount to £200,000,000 per annum and in five years to about £1,000,000,000.

SCIENCE, PROGRESS.

How Plants Resist Cold.

[Literary Digest:] Candy is not commonly fed to freezing people to save their lives, but it is well known to students of botany that hardy plants may owe their ability to resist cold to their sugar. In the fall they begin to manufacture it from their starch; in spring they reverse the process, and if a late frost catches them with their sugar supply turned back into starch they are killed, leaving their owners wondering why they survived the rigors of winter but could not stand a spring chill. It is all in the sugar, it appears. The studies on this subject are summarized by Dr. Fritz Bachmann in Die Naturwissenschaften (Berlin.) The appearance of green leaves in midwinter is always an interesting sight, and especially strange are the delicate-looking plants that come bravely pushing their way through the snow in early spring. How do they manage it? After mentioning early theories that failed to explain the facts, Dr. Bachmann informs us that for some time botanists have had the conclusion forced upon them that it is in the cell itself, and especially in its protoplasm, that the essential power of protection against freezing resides.

Then A. Fischer discovered that the starch present in the bark of the trees before the oncoming of winter is quite generally transformed into glucose; on the other hand, the starch present in the interior of trees disappears only in the so-called fat-trees, in which it is changed into fatty oils.

Lidforsz investigated the starch and sugar content of the leaves of a large number of hardy plants. A minority showed more or less sugar throughout the year; the others were almost all distinguished in summer by leaves rich in starch, which commonly reached a maximum in fall. At the approach of winter, mostly during November, the starch was dissolved and changed into sugar. Sugar is plentifully formed also in the leaves of the so-called fat-trees (linden, birch, conifers.) In many leaves (sorts of ilex, sedum, etc.) there was found a provision of stored-up sugar as well as of fat. In spring the sugar is changed back into starch.

"The observation that spring frosts often injure hardy plants which have stood lower temperature in the winter, the remarkable fact that those parts of a plant on which sunshine falls (which form starch even in winter on the warmer days) are less resistant than the shaded parts, and many other considerations make it probable that sugar plays a not unimportant role in the protection of plants from cold.

Metal Spraying.

[Engineering Magazine:] A new process for coating iron with protective metals is that known as the Schoop process, wherein some metal is sprayed by means of an air blast onto the parts which it is desired to protect. The apparatus for doing this is more simple than might be supposed and consists of a sort of pistol, in appearance not unlike an automatic revolver, having three hose leads, through which are conducted oxygen, hydrogen and compressed air. Inside the pistol the two gases are burned in a burner tube concentric to the air nozzle.

Metal is supplied in the form of a wire, which is drawn in by a suitable feeding device actuated by a small air turbine in the body of the pistol. When the wire reaches the flame zone the intensely hot oxygen-hydrogen flame instantly melts it, while at the same time a strong blast of air issues from the nozzle and blows the molten metal into a cloud or spray, so that it is discharged from the pistol with a velocity said to be around 2000 feet per second.

It might appear at first sight that the metal would reach its mark in a molten state, but this does not seem to be the case since a few inches from the nozzle it is of fairly low temperature, low enough to be directed upon the hand for a moment or upon silk or other cloth, or even matches. Perhaps the tiny particles are really solid when they strike the part under treatment, but are liquified by the heat of the collision. Whatever the action may be, however, the fact remains that a dense, strongly coherent coating is produced, which is said to be amorphous and vitreous, rather than crystalline.

Making Bread Nutritious.

[The Lancet:] Enough nutritive value is lost in the bread of 40,000,000 people in Great Britain by raising it with yeast to feed an army of 400,000 at the same rate of daily consumption. That is the statement of Dr. F. W. Tunnicliffe, who advocates that the dough be raised by aeration instead of by the fermentation process, which produces alcohol at a great rate. Aerated bread may be less appetizing, Dr. Tunnicliffe admits, but the price of wheat in Liverpool warrants consideration of a process that saves flour and produces bread quite as digestible and nutritious as the yeast-raised bread.

The Latest Metal Lamps.

[Boston Transcript:] It is a clear sign that changes are pending in the realm of electric incandescent lighting when we find for the first time in an engineering document the ordinary tungsten filament lamp described as of the "vacuum type," in order to distinguish it from the new "gas-filled" or "half-watt" lamp, which has recently been introduced. The distinction is drawn in the Engineering Standards Committee's "Report on the British Standard Tungsten Filament Glow Lamps (vacuum type) for Automobiles." It is intended to increase the scope of the report to cover the latest type of lamp—which is filled with nitrogen in the large sizes and argon in the case of smaller lamps—when further progress has been made with their manufacture. The use of argon for purposes of commerce is one of the romances of science. Until a few months since, the gas, which (along with krypton, helium, neon and xenon, had never been separated from nitrogen until after their discovery about twenty years ago) had no application though forming nearly 1 per cent. of the atmosphere by volume, is now regularly separated by fractional distillation from the liquid nitrogen resulting from the commercial production of liquid air. It was thought that the supplanting of the carbon filament lamp by the type using a metal filament marked almost the limit in incandescent electric lighting efficiency with a consumption of only one watt per candle, but the advent last year of the half-watt nitrogen-filled lamp indicated that even further progress was possible, and now we have a still more efficient lamp filled with a gas that yesterday was but a chemical curiosity.

Galvanizing Iron.

[Engineering Magazine:] In the hot or dip method of coating iron parts with zinc, the parts are cleaned by pickling, generally dipped in some acid flux, and then immersed in a bath of molten zinc. Sal ammoniac or other fluxing agent is used in addition to insure the clean surface requisite for perfect adherence of the coating. After the parts have become thoroughly heated and covered with the zinc, they are withdrawn and the excess of metal is shaken or wiped off, depending on their shape.

At first sight it would seem that a very pure coating of zinc is thus produced, but a little consideration will show that such is not the case. In the first place, the zinc bath is not strictly pure, but generally contains a fairly considerable amount of impurities in the shape of other metals, with perhaps slight quantities of dissolved oxides or oxy-chlorides. Iron, too, is more or less attacked by molten zinc so the galvanizing kettle and the parts themselves contribute a good deal of iron. A good deal of work is being done to improve the quality of hot galvanized coatings, in the way of employing harmless fluxes and keeping the zinc as pure as possible, so it is likely that much progress will be made, although the very nature of the process is such that a very pure coating cannot be produced, at least commercially. Nevertheless, this process is used very widely and enormous amounts of iron are finished by it.

Excavating Extraordinary.

[Memphis Commercial Appeal:] A drag-line excavator in Missouri has furnished an odd engineering experience. As the machine was traveling from the railway station to a drainage ditch two and one-half miles away, it came upon a creek sixty feet wide and nine deep, and no bridge offered safe crossing. In this emergency the machine, equipped with sixty-foot boom and three-yard bucket, filled up a roadway across the stream. Reaching the other side, the excavator was put to work to replace the borrowed earth, and every trace of the fill was removed. The entire delay on account of this obstruction was only one day.

Followed Friend's Advice

After trying Fruitola and Traxo, Mrs. L. C. Clark, 840 Melba St., Dallas, Texas, wrote to the Pinus laboratories as follows:

"I have been a sufferer from gall-stones, and Fruitola and Traxo was recommended and I am glad to say I took advantage of your most wonderful medicine, with wonderful results."

Fruitola and Traxo are two remedies that are used in combination. Fruitola acts on the intestinal organs as a powerful lubricant, softening the congested waste and breaking up the hardened particles so that easy elimination follows quickly, to the great relief of the patient. Traxo is a compound of splendid tonic properties, of special value in strengthening and restoring the system that has been weakened by constant suffering.

The Pinus laboratories have many letters on file testifying to the merit of Fruitola and Traxo; letters from people who have used the remedy and know from actual experience what it has done for them. For the convenience of the public, arrangements have been made to supply Fruitola and Traxo through leading drug stores. In Los Angeles they can be obtained at the stores of the Owl Drug Company.

The Doctor's Advice
by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character, the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers will apply in any case of simular nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Bldg., College-Ellwood Sts., Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The prescriptions can be filled at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Young Women:" "For several years I have doctored for distressing stomach symptoms, such as sour stomach, belching, accumulations of gas, heartburn, drowsiness after eating, sleepiness, coated tongue, bad breath, inertia, and I am getting thin and weak, my complexion is poor, and so far have not been improved by the medicines I have taken."

Answer: Your need is medicine to aid digestion, overcome dyspepsia and tone up the stomach, liver and bowels. I advise you to take "double-four stomach and bowel medicine," sold in sealed packets, by druggists, with complete direction.

Miss Adele writes: "My hair is combing out, my scalp itches and dandruff is very annoying, and I want something to cure these conditions."

Answer: For hair and scalp troubles I have never found anything to equal the beneficial results of a thorough treatment of plain yellow minyol. It is cooling, cleansing and invigorating, and thousands now use it regularly as a hair and scalp tonic.

Henry J. C. writes: "Something seems to be wrong with my system and I don't knew what it is. I have huge puffs under my eyes, my eyes are bloodshot in morning and my feet and ankles are swollen. Sometimes I have chills and feel weak and tired most of the time."

Answer: Your eliminating organs, such as liver and kidneys, are in need of treatment. Begin taking balmwort tablets at once. Get them in sealed tubes with full directions of any well-stocked druggist.

C. M. C. asks: "Please relieve me of a coated tongue, foul breath, headache, constipation and general ill health."

Answer: If habitually constipated, you should take three-grain sulpherb tablets (not sulphur) and arouse the organs which eliminate waste material from your body. These tablets purify the blood and improve the health by acting on the liver, kidneys and bowels. Obtain in sealed tubes with full directions.

"Sarah" says: "Can anything be done for one who is bothered with rheumatism? If so, please reply."

Answer: You can be relieved of your rheumatism if you take the following: Mix by shaking well and take a teaspoonful at meal times and at bed time and you will soon be relieved. Comp. essence cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; syrup sarsaparilla comp., 5 oz.; wine of colchicum, one-half oz.; sodium salicylate, 4 drams; iodide of potassium, 2 drams.

Miss Bertie L. asks: "What remedy can you recommend to reduce obesity safely? I want to reduce about thirty pounds."

Answer: I rely on five-grain arbolone tablets as being the most effective and convenient treatment to reduce abnormal fat. Druggists supply this in sealed tubes with complete directions. After the first few days a pound a day is not too much reduction.

Mrs. M. D. D. asks: "Do you think it is possible for me to increase my weight from 97 pounds to about 125 pounds?"

Answer: Yes, I believe that the regular use of a special tonic tablet will do this for you, as it has for thousands of others. Aks your druggist for three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets in sealed package with full directions. Take them for several months to get the full benefit.

"Ray" writes: "Can a sufferer from bronchial trouble be relieved?" Doctors do not seem to help me. What would you suggest?"

Answer: To relieve chronic cold, sore throat, bronchitis, I would advise the use of concentrated essence mentho-laxene. Purchase this at any drug store in 2½ oz. packages and mix according to directions given on bottle and you will very shortly be relieved of all bronchial trouble. This will not only relieve, but will correct, and is very pleasant to take.

M. G. W. asks: "What can one do for a bad catarrh condition? I have suffered a long time and am unable to find relief. In addition to catarrh in throat and nostrils, I am also affected with Pelvic Catarrh (or leucorrhea.)"

Answer: A good tonic and builder such as three-grain hypo-nuclane tablets, should build up your vitality, while using antiseptic Vilane Powder for local treatment. Get either a two or eight-ounce package of the powder and complete directions with package will tell you how to use.

John C. L. writes: "I find my natural strength and nervous system failing me. I do not recuperate as of yore. My food and rest seem not to benefit as they should. Am weak, despondent and unable to perform the duties which were assumed earlier in life, while my ambition for work and pleasure is slowly going.'

Answer: I think a powerful, harmless tonic and nervine medicine will rejuvenate and restore the functions of digestion, assimilation and elimination by invigorating the nervous system. Obtain three-grain cadomene tablets, packed in sealed tubes, and take as per directions accompanying.—[Advertisement.

The Ladies of Los Angeles Enhance Their Personal Charm By the Use of

Newbro's Herpicide

It is a significant fact that the people of Los Angeles use more Newbro's Herpicide than any equal number of people elsewhere.

Desiring always to appear at their best the ladies of Los Angeles have been quick to recognize the great excellence of Newbro's Herpicide as they know that its intelligent use will add more to the beauty of their hair than anything else. They are justly proud of the radiance and luster of their tresses made possible by having hair that is clean and healthy and a scalp free from dandruff. It is by saving and beautifying the hair growing on their own heads that the Los Angeles ladies add so much to their personal appearance.

Fifteen years ago Newbro's Herpicide was the only germ remedy for dandruff in America. At that time, both the remedy and the theory were ridiculed. But since then Herpicide has achieved an almost marvelous success and the story of its astonishing merit has penetrated to every corner of the globe.

Now the Herpicide claims and Herpicide advertising have been freely copied by the manufacturers of other scalp remedies. Bear in mind, too, that during this change of front the remedies themselves have not been changed, simply the claims for them. Here is the point. Why should you experiment with something, claimed to be as good as Herpicide when genuine Herpicide, the Original Germ-Remedy, may be purchased in every drug and department store in Los Angeles.

The "just as good" kind is good for the substitutors' cash register but is not good for your scalp.

Application of real Herpicide can be obtained at any good barber shop. Sold and guaranteed at all toilet goods counters.

A trial bottle 10c—A booklet FREE—Send for both to the Herpicide Co. Dept.—102 B Detroit, Mich.

Very Effective Method for Banishing Hairs

(Modes of Today.)

At very little cost any woman can rid her face of hairy growths if she will use the delatone treatment. This is made by mixing some water with a little powdered delatone. This paste is spread upon the hairy surface for two or three minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed, when every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm results from this treatment, but care should be used to buy real delatone.

NATURE STORIES.

Song of the Whitethroat.

[Chicago Post:] In the shelter of the country thickets and of the city park bushes in late April and early May the white-throated sparrows are found. Then they drop down at sunrise from their night journeyings to rest, to glean the seeds and perhaps to sing. The spring white-throat is bound for his northern summer home in the land of the balsam forests. If he consents to sing while exercising his stop-over privilege the song carries us to the camping ground under the trees that shadow the spring-fed streams, and thought comes of the coolness and the clarity of far northern summer days.

The whitethroat on his summer journeyings passes unnoticed of the people, but he deserves the attention which he doesn't get. He dresses soberly in ash gray, white and brown, with a crown of black divided in its center by a narrow strip of white. The bird gets its name from its snow-white square throat patch. The white throat has small place in literature, but he has found his way into the heart of the woodsman, and with that probably the bird is content, for he makes the woodsman his close companion.

The books have attempted to reproduce the song of the whitethroat in words, and the books have failed. In one place we read that the sweet and at times almost ecstatic song of the bird is but an effort to repeat "Old Sam Peabody, Peabody, Peabody," and in another place we read that the whitethroat is advising the farmer thus: "Sow wheat, Peeverly, Peeverly, Peeverly." This reduction of the song to words brings it down to absurdity. Neither the fame of the philanthropist Peabody nor the industry of the farmer Peeverly can justify the coupling of their names with the pure music of this white-throated bird of the wilderness.

The notes have in them something of the song of the stream and something of the whisper of the trees. They are clear and true at all times. The song may lack the spiritual quality of the notes of the bird's wilderness companion, the hermit thrush, but it is a happier song, as the whitethroat seemingly is happier than its shy hermit friend.

Some day one of the poets will wander into the wilderness and will hear the whitethroat sing, and then if the song doesn't move responsive song the poet is no true singer. The whitethroat is a confiding bird. It will come to the entrance of the camper's hut and tell him in song of the wife and the household on the ground, or in the low brush, where the raspberries grow in the clearing. He will pick up the crumbs which fall from the camper's table, and before he will eat as many as one of them he will see to it that the wife on the nest in the clearing has a satisfying share. As affection is the keynote of the whitethroat's song, so it is the keynote of his manner. Small wonder that the woodsmen love him, and more wonder is it that the poets have not sought him out.

THE WORLD AT WAR.

Three-fifths of the Land Area of the Globe is Controlled by the Warring Nations.

[Washington Star:] With the virtual alignment of Portugal with the allies, three-fifths of the land area of the globe can now be marked red on the war maps. The total area of the land surface of the earth is 49,574,646 square miles. The total area at war is 30,189,830 square miles.

Practically the same proportion holds for the population of the globe now at war. The most recent census figures of the various countries of the world make a total of 1,644,870,000 people of whom the total now at war is 955,009,000.

This represents a population practically ten times that of the United States, and the land area involved is practically ten times the area of our country.

Of course, the overwhelming preponderance both in land and in population is on the side of the allies. The figures for these total 800,758,000 in population and 27,530,481 square miles in extent of territory involved. The combined population of Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey and their colonies is 154,651,000 on an area of 2,649,349 square miles.

Against this the flag of Great Britain alone waves over 435,572,000 of population and 13,781,776 square miles of territory. But three-quarters of the British population is represented by her Indian subjects, and there is grave fear that the religious suzerainty of the Turkish Sultan as the head of the Mohammedan faith may play an important part in this portion of the British realm.

Russia stands second on the side of the allies with a population of 171,060,000 on an area of 8,505,957 square miles. Then comes France with a population in Europe of 39,602,000 on 207,129 square miles of territory, but with colonies enough to increase her total population 89,435,000 on 4,205,842 square miles of land. Belgium 842 square miles of territory. Japan's contribution to the strength of the allies is 70,602,000 of population on 245,641 square miles of land. Belgium contributes 27,579,000 on 924,500 square miles of land, but of this 20,000,000 are credited to the Belgian Kongo, which has an area of 913,127 square miles.

POETS WERE BAD BOYS.

Several of the Noted Literary Rhymsters Were "Sacked" When at College, for Various Reasons.

[London Tit-Bits:] A good deal of newspaper comment was aroused lately by the dismissal of a boy from Eton, his mother contending that the circumstance would be a standing disability to him in all his future career. But he is in remarkably good company.

Robert Southey, who became poet laureate of England, was dismissed from Westminster school by the famous Dr. Vincent. The school at that time had a magazine called the Flagellant, and in this the budding poet published an article on flogging which quite failed to please the chief administrator of corporal punishment. In fact, it incensed him to such a degree that Southey was expelled.

In consequence he was refused admittance to Christ Church, and had not Balliol given him a home he would possibly have had to forego that university career which he afterward adorned.

Poets have had quite a penchant for getting "sacked," as they call it at Harrow. Byron was expelled from Harrow three times for being rebellious and defiant. Shelley was "sent down" from Oxford.

Today the poet who wrote the great "Ode to a Skylark" is the chief glory of University College. All traveling Americans want to see his room, and if they have seen that they go away content. Yet he was ignominiously expelled as an unfit associate for the hard-drinking, hard-swearing young bucks of the regency.

He was charged with writing and privately circulating a fly sheet entitled "The Necessity of Atheism," and the college records show that he was expelled for "contumaciously refusing to answer questions," and for "repeatedly declining to disavow" the authorship of the offending document.

ANIMALS' WEATHER SENSE.

Spiders and Sea Gulls Forecast Approaching Storms, and Many Animals Give Signs of Uneasiness.

[Farm and Fireside:] The spider upon the approach of rainy or windy weather will be found to shorten and strengthen the guys of his web. When the storm is over he will lengthen them again.

Sea gulls predict storms by assembling on the land, but this is merely a search for food. They instinctively know that the rain will bring the earthworms and larva to the surface. A similar instinct teaches the swallow to fly high in fair weather and skim the ground when foul weather is coming. They simply follow the flies and gnats which remain in the warm air.

Swine will carry hay and straw to a hiding place, oxen will lick themselves the wrong way of the hair, sheep will bleat and skip about, hogs turned out in the woods will come to their pens squealing and grunting, colts will rub their backs against the ground, crows will gather in flocks, crickets will sing more loudly, frogs will croak and change color to a dingy hue, dogs will eat grass and rooks soar like hawks.

In all probability these many actions are due to an uneasiness similar to that which all who are troubled with corns or rheumatism experience just previous to a storm, and are caused both by the variation in barometric pressure and the changes in the electrical conditions of the atmosphere.

Better Than a Letter.

[Cleveland Press:] After an absence of thirteen years Charles Able returned to his home near Roundhead and met and discussed crops with his father, John Able, without being recognized. It was only when his mother entered the room that the young man's identity was revealed.

The elder Able met his son on his way back from the mail box near his home and invited him into the house. "Perhaps there will be a letter from Charles," Mr. Able remarked as he left the house. Charles Able had been in Summit, Or.

Telephone Line Across Continent.

[St. Louis Globe-Democrat:] With the completion of the line from Denver to San Francisco, there is now a continuous commercial telephone line stretching across the continent from New York to the Pacific Coast, says the Popular Mechanics Magazine. Construction parties working westward from Salt Lake City and eastward from San Francisco met in the desert at the Nevada-Utah State line June 17, 1914, and the junction of the two lines was made at a pole erected on the State line. Flags were unfurled and the work of making the last splice was accompanied by a ceremony much like that of driving the last spike on a transcontinental railroad.

SETTING THE FASHIONS AT NATION'S CAPITA

Well-dressed Women of Washington's Smart Soci Their Gowns, Their Hats, Their Furs, Their La

BY MARGARET WADE.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Even war clouds have a silver lining for the favored optimist, both men and women, who are passing these early spring days in Washington. Just as Senator Depew once said "London was the best summer resort he knew," so is Washington becoming the great American resort of the Western Hemisphere from October to June. Even that small portion of the polite world which President Wilson describes as high society, and says we could very well do without, is paying tribute to Washington as it returns from the artificial summer sports of Lake Worth, and the exaggerated amusements that put forth their claims for attention all the way from that misnamed lake to the threshold of the capital.

As the Constitution of the United States insures each citizen the right to pursuit of happiness (in no place does it guarantee the success of this pursuit,) there is, of course, no reason why the frivolous or extravagant should prefer Washington to Palm Beach, yet it is a gratifying reflection to all good Americans that the best representatives of every part of this big country incline to the Federal city, when on pleasure bent, and they have the price to pay.

Several large houses, notably Mrs. Marshal Field's, Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson's, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean's, closed for the greater part of the winter, have been reopened for the post-Lenten season, to follow an unusually early Easter. There are also many spring visitors promised at the leading hotels, with all Washington feeling the "see America-first" movement, that appears to find a response from the most experienced European travelers of other years as well as from the spring vacationists who follow the man from Cook's.

The Italian Embassy has a great acquisition to its social as well as official character in the new first secretary and his wife, the Marquis and Marquise Arrigo Tacoli. The latter is an extremely youthful personage for her rank, with a slender, girlish figure and particularly attractive coloring, a very fair skin, with dark hair and eyes being her unusual type, which somewhat resembles that of the young Mme. Dumba, wife of the Ambassador from Austria-Hungary. The Marquise Tacoli at her first large Washington dinner party wore a trained gown of white satin, draped about the figure in the new high effect with V-shaped sleeveless bodice and superb jewels in the form of necklace and tiara of diamonds. At the opera a few nights later, where she occupied a box with Ambassador and Countess di Cellere, she wore a black satin gown, with top and short tunic of old church lace. This was the ideal toilet of the brief opera season. The top, while showing the usual fashionable low neck, was round rather than V-shaped, with the lace forming a drapery that covered the arm to the elbow. No jewels were worn on this occasion, for which the Marquise wore her hair parted in the middle and drawn back in soft, loose waves to form quite a large coil at the back of her well-poised head. This coiffure was in contrast to the now too popular close fashion that admits of neither coil or braid.

Mme. Dumba, one of the smartly attired figures wherever she appears, at a recent symphony concert, occupied the front seat in the German Embassy box, wearing the latest thing in white and black. This was presumably a jacket suit of black satin, or satin serge, which on removing the jacket showed a silver white satin blouse that does not blouse in the least, but appears to be laid over a fitted lining that gives the new idea in the separate waist of the coming summer. This garment opens in front and has a long narrow collar of the satin over a flounce of French lace that is several inches wider than the collar, thus continuing the collar to the waist line. Topping this, the Ambassadress wore a round, crowned straight-brimmed hat of high luster black barnyard straw, trimmed only in two round black silk pompons. This hat differs from its smart neighbors of the sailor family only by a hair line, just as the blouse differs from other and earlier blouses, yet both are chic to a degree that puts them entirely in a class by themselves. They also point the way for women clever enough to achieve individuality in dress from the most conservative materials.

Mrs. Reynolds Hitt, who was born a Miss Gray of New York, and passed the earlier years of her married life in the diplomatic circle, while her husband served as secretary of embassy in Paris, Rome and in Berlin, is now permanently established in their new Washington home, where she is giving a series of well-appointed dinners quite as smart as any entertainments of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Robert R. Hitt, long one of the recognized leaders of Washington society, at its best period. A beautiful gown worn recently by Mrs. Reynolds Hitt is a yellow brocade satin, opening over a petticoat front of lace. The skirt has a train, as have most of its companion gowns of this wardrobe, while the drapery is slightly suggestive of the pannier, but without the fullness thereof. Pink roses of a shade to melt right into the rich yellow tones form the only trimming.

At the same dinner at which Mrs. Hitt wore her yellow gown two young belles from Cincinnati, Miss Helena Elliott and Miss Jean Hinkle, appeared in very smart gowns, showing the western city quite abreast of the times. These young women are nieces of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas T. Gaff, now permanent residents of Washington, but formerly also of the Ohio city. Miss Elliott wore a gown ruffled from waist to ankle entirely of white tulle on a foundation of the same with under foundation of delicate pink satin. The bodice was also underlined with pink with the tulle folded about the figure. Miss Hinkle, who is still wearing light mourning for her father, the late Charles Hinkle, wore a white tulle gown with white and black satin introduced into the girdle and corsage. Miss Hinkle is a much-traveled young person, who, with her mother, sailed for Europe last summer on the German liner Cecelie to land a week later literally at the door of their summer home at Bar Harbor. Mrs. Hinkle and her daughter have taken a house in Washington for the season.

Mrs. H. Morgan-Hill, whose return to Washington is a matter of congratulation to scores of old friends, is wearing very smart black gowns showing a great range of material. At the opera Mrs. Morgan-Hill wore a trained gown of dull black ly without embellishment, smart lines with surplice the new close sleeve coming low the elbow. She, like the Tacoli, adheres to the but in place of parting her tains the small waved pomp other days, without looking least old-fashioned.

Mrs. Thomas Laughlin of burgh, who is occupying one of the Pinchot residences on Scott one of half a dozen young contributing greatly to the the spring season. Mrs. La the youngest daughter of Judge Herron of Cincinnati, sequently a sister-in-law of President Taft. Mrs. Laugh looks quite as youthful and as when she visited her sister opening of the last admini wearing a coral pink dinn that has every ear-mark of is a round skirt, dancing flounced from waist to ank material is chiffon on the net with a foundation of bodice is low and sleeveless high self-colored girdle and a decoration of black velvet Laughlin should never be as a newcomer in Washin though her residence here cent date, as she made her to the White House an infant where, at the request of the dent of that day and Mrs. ford B. Hayes, she was chris the Blue Room and named President's wife.

Another bright-hued dinner at a recent smart party satin, worn by Miss Laura daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Delano, formerly of Chi now permanently located in ington by reason of the head family being a member of the eral Reserve Board. The Miss lano, who graduated from Mawr last June, are distinct tions to Washington, where cousins, the Misses Price- New York, they have been many charming attentions.

A significant sign in the season in Washington is the the incoming fashions best-known women are feminine. The military nounced in the past scant favor even at that for the very young or women, while now that for the soldiers has ceased ionable pastime, one the most pacific fashions recent afternoon company Edward Douglas White, Chief Justice of the wearing a taupe suit with ventional medium-sized ostrich plumes of Henry Dimock wore a cloth with great expanse about the front of hat almost of the pic in a sweeping plume new bright blues.

Mrs. Charles L. rarely attends luncheons from this rule to join pany recently entertained by Marshall Field, when satin tailored suit of manship with a round of blue straw that upturned brim new shade of gray

Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh way to California made her last Washington at a concert at the just before starting piece gown of round hat of the and crown shape straw. The trimming foliage and berries shades of purple Height was given Walsh wore fairly top of her head, ing cluster of foliage the left front.

Mrs. Mahlon Pitney, sociate Justice of the formerly of Morristown, Mrs. Joseph W. Folk, mer Governor of Missouri, the well-known matrons new mauve tones most attractive of the colors. Mrs. Pitney the National Theater last week in a toilet with smart round hat colored straw trimmed garden flowers of the predominated shade of the is of broken lines, mauve orchid. Mrs. Folk's same color is one of the made with severely tailored a jacket that is fitted to the whence it takes the toward the knees. Her hat hemp of the same color matching velvet.

The costume hat, as a relief small black hat so during the past season, signs of the times worth woman who cares to be rank of fashion and at the never conspicuous for dress.

MEN OF NOTE.

Von Hindenburg's Modesty.

[New York Times:] Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, the famous commander-in-chief of the German armies in the east, does not desire to be the Kaiser's Minister.

"When the question came up as to what the general was proposing to do after the war was over," writes Dr. Goldmann, a correspondent of the Vienna Neue Freie Presse, "he asked: 'Well, what do you suppose I should do after the war?'

"The suggestion was made that there were numerous high positions which Von Hindenburg could have for the asking. Among others the position of chief of the General Staff was mentioned.

"'We have an excellent man in that capacity,' said the general.

"'How about the Minister of War?' was asked of him.

"'We have an excellent Minister War, too,' he said, and then added a smile. 'Anyway, to quarrel the Reichstag? Not for me, nk you.'

"'Well, what will happen, general?' the next question.

"'Nothing will happen. I shall go to Hannover and be a pensioned er, just as I was before the war ke out. There are younger men want a chance.'

"Saying this, Von Hindenburg ted smilingly to Gen. Ludendorff others of his staff.

"'There is nothing more beautiful a man reaches my age,' coned the general, 'than to leave the after the job is done and make for the younger ones.'

"Nor is the general ambitious to literary laurels. Some day, how he will write his reminiscences, as a literary work, but to leave children a memory of their fath"

"I was raised on a farm, and I like feel of the soil. It's good to hoe toes and radishes and plow corn," added.

"You got away from it about as kly as a farm boy ever did," his -mate suggested.

"Yes, and I was a rattle-pated ster, with mighty little gump too," he returned.

Hoyt's Hospitality.

Cleveland Leader:] It was the of Charles H. Hoyt, the dram to invite almost everybody he to come up and spend a few with him at his summer home New Hampshire.

"Come up and stay a couple of with me," he would say, when had talked for a few moments. to have you. I need company there."

One night Hoyt, Ben Dasher, W. H. Frank McKee and several oth guests of Hoyt's were sitting the veranda of Hoyt's summer waiting for dinner. The train just arrived and they saw an old and his wife coming up the

"Who are they?" asked Hoyt. "I saw them before."

"The dickens you didn't," replied . That is that old yap and his you talked to over at Springfield invited to visit you."

"Oh, well," said Hoyt, "may be they re just coming in to dinner. They will take the night train back."

Then he looked again and saw the hired man behind the farmer and his wife and wheeling a big trunk on a wheelbarrow.

"No, by George!" shouted Hoyt, "they are here for a run!"

And they stayed a month.

No Dry Ships for Kahn.

[Washington Post:] Representative Kahn of California yesterday noon journeyed from the Capitol nnsylvania avenue to the War, and Navy building to ascertain what plans are being made king the members of the Senate the House through the Panama to San Francisco next spring.

Mr. Kahn was told that plenty of would be chartered, and that all could be assured that they be perfectly comfortable.

"That's not the point," said Mr. "I merely want to know this pilgrimage to the Golden is to be run by the War De or the Navy Department. if the Navy Department will charge of the ships I am quite that most members will prefer overland."

"Why?" Mr. Kahn was asked.

"Why!" he replied, in disgust. "Do suppose that any one wants to a funeral trip through the canal? you ever hear of a certain order prohibits the use of cheering on board ships controlled by Navy Department? Why, indeed!"

To Remind You

—that next Sunday will be Easter Sunday—

—and that hundreds of women are planning on making this the busiest of all weeks of the early year at all the stores—

—If there is a hat to be made or a suit to be altered, but you can see how necessary it is to begin shopping Monday, seriously, and on a plan.

—Bullock's has made extra preparations to care for extra trade—and to maintain service at a high standard of efficiency, so that those who are delayed until the last minute will receive satisfactory attention—

—But again we wish to emphasize that there are

"$5.00 for these Parasols—Why It's Impossible!"

—"Just look at the silk they're made of (the fine quality of the messaline.)

—"Just see the folding handles.

—"Just see the Fancy Palms on the edge between the ribs (a characteristic of high priced, imported parasols.)

—"Just see the improved spring canopy top (another feature.)

—"I don't see how it's possible for you to sell them for so little"— —Scores of other customers will be astonished, too—

—If Bullock's hadn't determined to accomplish the extraordinary for Inauguration Month — these Parasols wouldn't have been possible. The handles, the silk, the workmanship—everything about them is unusual—even extraordinary — and women are going to buy them rapidly, Monday—

—All good colors—8 brass ribs—folding handles—Think of it! Then come to Bullock's —. Comparison proves—$5.00.

—The attention of every one who is planning the furnishing or re-furnishing of a room, or a series of rooms, is directed to Bullock's display of

Exclusive Wall Papers

—to which many new lines have recently been added—

—These wall papers range in price from 20c to $15.00 a roll.

—Special reference is made to the many patterns and ideas that are to be seen only at Bullock's.

—For this reason particularly they should appeal to every prospective furnisher—Bullock's 6th Floor.

"Easter Ribbons

—by Express

—"Lower prices on new velvets—Beautiful Quality"—this is the news from Bullock's Ribbon Section — the news scores of women will be delighted to receive.

The Reason!

—There can be no Real Sale without a reason as real as the sale—

—When goods are sold underprice, there is always a reason—Look for it! Ask for it! Analyze the sale you propose to patronize—

The Reason for this Great Distribution of Cotton Goods at 35c

—lies in the fact that One of New York's Oldest Importing Firms desired to move to a new location.

—They desired to transfer as little merchandise as possible from one building to another—They decided to make some exceedingly tempting inducements on certain lines grouped in large quantity lots.

—Bullock's was fortunate in securing one of these very specially priced groups—

—The fortune that was Bullock's will be yours on Monday—No woman should fail to "plunge" on these exclusive cottons at 35c yard.

COMPANION TO "RAMONA."

THE TRUE STORY OF RAMONA. By Carlyle Channing Davis and William A. Alderson. Dodge Publishing Company, New York.

"THE TRUE STORY OF RAMONA" is dedicated to Helen Hunt Jackson as "the most brilliant, impetuous and thoroughly individual woman of American literature," and, in the words of the authors, it identifies the originals of the characters in the novel, dissipates myths that have clustered about it, and brings to light many hitherto unpublished facts pertinent to the history of "Ramona"—a memorable novel, which not only quickened the conscience of our government to a recognition of equity for Indians, but for the last quarter of a century has sustained a popularity unrivaled (except by "Ben Hur") by any other work of fiction from an American author.

"Ramona" is essentially and completely a novel of Southern California. "The True Story of Ramona" is a companion volume—comprehensive and illuminating—disclosing, among other things, the structural facts which Mrs. Jackson clothed with romance.

Both of the authors are residents of Los Angeles. Mr. Davis, an editor and author of wide experience, was the personal friend of Mrs. Jackson, and Mr. Alderson, whose legal books are well known, have gathered into an attractive volume the results of a persistent, sympathetic and unhurried research.

One of the admirable features of their book is the illustrations. More than a hundred full-page photographs, most of which were taken shortly after "Ramona" was written, are reproduced.

Among the many interesting facts disclosed by "The True Story" is that Mrs. Jackson never saw Bianca Yndart (who is now living in Los Angeles,) "the one human document, who may in truth be regarded as the Ramona of the story," but heard of her—of the jewels—of her seafaring father—from Dona Mariana de Coronel.

Senora Coronel, who was Mrs. Jackson's closest friend in California, and is a member of an old and influential family, contributes a chapter that throws much light on the origin of "Ramona" and on the important part that Don Antonio, her husband, had in furnishing Mrs. Jackson with facts and inspiration.

On the advice of Senora Coronel and Don Antonio, the plot of "Ramona" was laid at Camulos—where tourists now annually gather as pilgrims to a shrine—"because it was one of the few remaining of the old Spanish homesteads where the original life of a California hacienda still existed."

Mrs. Jackson did not write "Ramona" or any part of it at Camulos, as has been insistently reported. According to the authors, she was at the rancho "but a few hours," yet not only "observed every detail of situation and environment, but while there evolved the chief incidents of the story."

Camulos was then owned, and still is, by the family of ex-State Senator Reginald F. del Valle, of this city, who is thought to have been taken as Felipe, as Senora del Valle was Senora Morena, but Mrs. Jackson made no effort to draw either of these characters true to life.

"The True Story of Ramona" has a unity and completeness independent of the novel; and recites many incidents and phases of romance that are new and interesting, such as the search for the buried Mission treasures, the imposture of Ramona Lubo with her baskets, facts pertaining to the valuable Coronel collection (now exhibited at the local Chamber of Commerce.) Many hitherto unpublished letters by Mrs. Jackson are also given.

Mr. Davis and Mr. Alderson have designed it as both a tribute to, and interpretation of, the work done by Mrs. Jackson; and a sketch of her life, with emphasis on her sincerity and the far-reaching effect of her influence, not only lends value to their own book, but will do much toward widening and deepening appreciation for "Ramona" and its author.

BOOKS ON THE DRAMA.

WAR DRAMAS.

WAR BRIDES. By Marion Craig Wentworth. The Century Company, New York.
ACROSS THE BORDER. By Beulah Marie Dix. Henry Holt & Co., New York.
MAKERS OF MADNESS. By Hermann Hagedorn. The Macmillan Company, New York.

THESE dramas a few years ago would have fallen flat before the feet of an unsympathetic public and probably have been kicked out of the way. They put aside the pomp and panoply of war; they are without ringing heroics and swaggering captains; they reflect the sentiments of a neutral nation less concerned with the destinies of Europe's countries than with the shadow-side of victory. Perhaps this is nothing more than a mood on the part of America, for, should our national existence be in jeopardy, it is likely that peaceful sentiments would be rooted out and cast away by passionate patriotism.

"War Brides" is the cry of suffrage raised where the emperors and generals are giving commands for battle. Mrs. Wentworth has only spoken what every neutral woman feels against the unhallowed practice of legalizing a loose morality for the benefit of the birth rate. The instant popularity of the play has been wholly due to the vivid, tragic and opportune expression of the revulsion that women of finer natures must feel at being hastily married off to breed babies. It merely vocalizes a horror, voices a popular feeling, and shows a disgusting, unnatural effect of war. But its inherent dramatic worth is not great.

"Across the Border," however, while less emotional than "War Brides," is dramatically artistic and by unique construction makes the peace arguments not only unobtrusive, unforced, but actually of structural value. A bold lieutenant is killed—crosses the border—and there learns what war is like. "Across the Border" blends a dream with action. It breaks what, for want of a better word, we may call the soul of the lieutenant into a dramatic prism that shows all the colors in his character.

"Makers of Madness" is hardly the sort of a play one expects from Mr. Hagedorn. The theme is much like a part of Alfred Noyes's "The Wine-Press," which exposes the alleged machinations of powerful, selfish men to bring on war. Mr. Hagedorn pictures determined chiefs and statesmen forcing their nations into a conflict that might easily be avoided by diplomacy. "Makers of Madness" is cold-blooded; the author perhaps intended that it should be, but there exists a sense of unreality—an unthinkable, murderous insolence on the part of the statesmen and financiers that we cannot reconcile as being truthful. It does not seem probable that these men would be so frank even with themselves.

Selfish, mercenary motives are indubitably often behind the propulsion that sends a nation into war; but we are confident, being familiar with much of Mr. Hagedorn's other work, that he could have shown this dynamic selfishness more artistically and just as effectively.

SOCIETY CASTIGATED.

FOUR PLAYS OF THE FREE THEATER. Authorized Translation by Barrett H. Clark. Preface by Brieux. Stewart & Kidd Company, Cincinnati.

WE CHOOSE to begin the comment on these plays with the bromidic statement that, while all such dramas are true to life, they are not true to all life. Domestic infelicity, agamy, deceitfulness and vicious hypocrisy are not eliminated, or even discouraged, by lack of acknowledgment on the stage or in novels; on the other hand, the world would be a miserable place if every time we poked our nose into a book we found ourselves confronted by a faithless wife and a prattling paramour.

Society may need the moral flagellation occasionally administered by uncompromising dramatists; and Francois de Cruel, Jean Jullien and Georges Ancey are uncompromising. There is no gilt, no softening humor, no making merry with vice, in "The Fossils," "The Serenade" and "The Dupe." These are brutal pictures—without a "lesson," but with a purpose.

"Francoise's Luck," by Georges de Porto-Riche, the other of the plays, is called a comedy in one act—but it is a comedy at which one doesn't laugh. A wretched wife considers herself lucky because her husband loses his mistress.

"The Dupe," by Georges Ancey, is also called a "comedy"—a mocking, ironic play that leaves us wondering whether the husband, who beats his wife to get a separation, or the wife, who loves him truly, is the dupe.

The other two plays are concentrated realism—the essence of moral defection—so intensely revolting that the normal person of any nationality turns from them with repugnance. Yet they have value; they take the beauty out of sin, strip it to its leprous nakedness. "The Fossils" is purely medicinal in effect; and there was probably never another play given to publicity like "The Serenade," in which a man knowingly sits down to a wedding dinner with a man who has been the lover of both his wife and daughter. It is not farcical; it doesn't seem even so very unreal, for the play is truly a psychological tragedy. In "The Fossils," father and son have the same mistress and, a child being born, the son is compelled to marry her so the family name may be snatched from extinction.

These plays were produced at the Free Theater in Paris by Andre Antoine; but there were not enough patrons to keep it alive.

Mr. Clark has been giving over his time to the translation of many French plays, and is also author of "The Continental Drama of Today." Perhaps he knows as well as anyone else that it has been largely a thankless task to bring these necessarily unpopular plays into English. But we take it that his purpose is to show what the dramatic work is among the more bold and conscientious playwright of France. The plays themselves are well wrought, but were they even of less quality the sponsorship of Mr. Clark would give them caste among the discriminating students.

A LIBRARY OF DRAMAS.

CHIEF CONTEMPORARY DRAMATISTS. Edited by Thomas H. Dickinson. Houghton Mifflin Company, Boston.

THERE is not much to be said of this volume, but that is to be said in the heartiest terms of praise. Any one well-edited, well printed and reasonably-priced book is entitled to strong commendation when it contains complete plays by Wilde, Pinero, Galsworthy, Barker, Yeats, Synge, Lady Gregory, Fitch, Moody, Thomas, MacKaye, Hauptmann, Sudermann, Brieux, Hervieu, Maeterlinck, Bjornson, Strindberg and Tchekhov.

The aim of Prof. Dickinson, who is connected with the English department at the University of Wisconsin, has been to present representative plays of representative contemporary dramatists, and in this he has succeeded. We regret—of course!—that more plays are not included; but twenty in one book is rather better than we had hoped for. The selections have been made with felicity: "Strife" of Galsworthy; "Riders to the Sea" for Synge; "The Weavers" by Hauptmann; "Michael and the Lost Angel" for Jones are particularly happy selections.

"Chief Contemporary Dramatists" is admirable from every viewpoint. We are really enthusiastic about it. A brief biographical sketch of the authors is given with a list of their plays—as well as of other contemporary dramatists whose plays are not in the volume; notes are given on the production of all the plays included, and a reading list of dramas and books on the drama also appears; and, too, there is given a complete list of the characters—a complete index, if you please—of the twenty plays. It is a pleasure, indeed, to get hold of an edition like this.

BOOKS OF FICTION.

SOCIOLOGICAL HUMOR.

BEALBY. By H. G. Wells. The Macmillan Company, New York.

"BEALBY"—pronounced Be-al-by—is the chronicles of a small English boy's escapades for one week. It has been many, many moons since Mr. Wells has shown himself to be in a good humor; but we can't fancy anyone getting much amusement out of this, though a butler trips the Lord Chancellor and the two fall down the stairs for all the world like comedians in a vaudeville skit.

It's heavy, sociological humor we find in "Bealby," though, as you may see, the farcical is not absent. The touch that played the keyboard of smiles in "Mr. Polly" seems to be gone from Mr. Wells; perhaps because he has borne down so heavily with his writing hand in that recent dreary book, "The Passionate Friends," and that more recent and ironic book, "The Wife of Sir Isaac Harmon," as well as in numerous other books of weight.

"Bealby" is tedious in action, ridiculous in situation and futile in conclusion. The psychology throughout is, of course, of the highest order. We understand the workings of the Bealby mind; we know just how he feels to be snatched from his dreams of being a sailor and put into the kitchen at Shonts as flunky to a tyrannical butler.

He meditates revenge on the butler, finally drives a toasting fork into the chin of the dining-room dignitary, and evades capture by darting into the forbidden rooms of the mansion with the butler in full pursuit. The butler and the Lord Chancellor collide, and Bealby escapes by getting into a secret passage where his tramping about during the night convinces the Chancellor that Capt. Douglas (one of the guests) is intentionally disturbing him.

Bealby takes to the open country and Capt. Douglas joins in the chase, being anxious to locate the boy, whose confession is needed to prove to the Lord Chancellor that Capt. Douglas is a respectable young man who doesn't indulge in practical jokes. The Captain is frantic in his effort to rehabilitate himself because—you may easily guess it—of a young woman.

Coming in the wake of "The Wife of Sir Isaac Harmon"—perhaps the finest novel Mr. Wells has written—this book can hardly expect anything like a warm welcome.

"—THE SADDEST STORY."

THE GOOD SOLDIER. By Ford Madox Hueffer. John Lane Company, New York.

"THE GOOD SOLDIER" is a good story, well written and all that, but Mr. Hueffer has told it sidewise—that is, he sidles across the theme, marks time, hesitates, takes a step forward, drops back, jumps ahead, then makes for the rear in double-time, recovers his courage and approaches the plot again. In other words, he writes like Joseph Conrad at his most tortuous. Hence, whether Mr. Hueffer intended it or not, interest is taken from the plot and concentrated on the character delineation.

Proprietor of Sherlock Holmes.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle had a new photograph taken about the same time his new book was published. This is a coincidence often noticeable where authors are concerned. "The Valley of Fear" (previously reviewed,) is among the very best detective stories that Sir Arthur has written, and is the first book in ten years presenting Sherlock Holmes.

The opening sentence sets forth: "This is the saddest story I have ever heard." Dowell, who tells it, has much cause to feel just so about the incidents and tragedies shadowing his life. Except for the wearisome repetition (which after all, is only a minor cause for irritation) of "poor, dear Florence" or "poor, dear" somebody else, and despite the self-imposed handicap of indirection, it is a story which the reader with some patience may soon come to admire immensely.

"The good soldier" is Capt. Ashburnham; and only through a broad-minded and charitable impulse is he allowed to be called "good." Some men kill others and are acquited in the courts through the nebulous but potent influence defined as "unwritten law," under circumstances which involve the Captain and Dowell. There are few wives as tolerant, as energetically tolerant we may say, as Leonora is in overlooking and straightening out the affairs of her susceptible husband, the Captain. And Mrs. Dowell, or Florence, with her secrets and ominous superstition regarding "August 4th"—yes, with all her faults, is the character for whom we feel a tender, though perhaps unmerited, sympathy.

"The Good Soldier" is an unusual book; unusually well written, too. Mr. Hueffer has put into it a subtle refinement which largely displaces the sense of turpitude naturally induced by the plot, so we are influenced to consider that what the characters do is negligible as against what they feel.

SIX CHARMING HEROINES.

THE SEVEN DARLINGS. By Gouverneur Morris. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

MR. MORRIS seems to have been possessed of the laudable determination to give the most capacious reader imaginable all the variegated and enjoyable romance desired out of one novel of fair length. Toward that end, he hits upon the ingenious idea of having six beautiful, witty and charming girls, suddenly pushed from the lap of luxury, cheerfully open an inn at a fashionable mountain summer resort.

The seventh member of the Darling family is a brother, but he is of minor importance, since his picture failed to appear in the advertisements, and only bachelors are attracted to the unique hostelry where prices are "rather high"—and gladly paid. But the brother has his romance, too, and counting that of the divorced mother, who being a princess by marriage, adds considerable romantic interest to the book, we have eight complete, different and interesting romantic threads to tie our interest hard and fast.

Now it so happens that Gouverneur Morris is a dextrous author, fully competent to handle six lithe, whimsical and not wholly conventional though perfectly modest heroines, so we have a plot that is not in the least complicated—thanks to the remarkable, and most romantic fact that no two men are bewitched by the same lovely sister.

Perhaps it is Howard Chandler Christy's pictures of them which helps us to visualize their charm; but Mr. Morris alone is responsible for the impression that all six are witty, elusive, yet slyly tempting, and altogether adorable.

It is a light, bright vivacious story—utterly unreal and entirely amusing; the repartee flashes, the mood is pleasant from "dedication" to "finis," and it is wholly without the triteness and cheapness usually found in the "popular" novel.

MYSTERIES AND MURDERS.

C.O.D. By Natalie S. Lincoln. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

IN "C.O.D." Miss Lincoln has twisted enough thread to make about fourteen ordinary detective narratives into one rope of a theme, furnishing enough complications to keep Sherlock Holmes sleepless for a month, and part of the way it seems that two or three separate mystery stories are being worked out independently; but they converge, and all have to do with the violent deaths that follow the appearance of a package marked: "C.O.D. 1020."

The book is well constructed, but the reader must be tolerant. There is much room for incredulity in the statement that a man can be strangled to death in a theater without the young woman beside him discovering that something out of the ordinary is taking place—especially when the death grip of the man breaks her wrist!

However, allowing Miss Lincoln plenty of "detective license," it may be rather enthusiastically said that she has constructed a stirring, mysterious romantic and puzzling novel that works out to a satisfactory and most surprising climax.

Lois Tremaine, as custodian of the "family skeleton" is forced into an engagement with a man who the whole of Washington, D. C., knows is unworthy of her. Even the strangulation of this man does not leave her free. Soon afterward another murder is committed and an innocent man accused; and shortly after this, Col. Tremaine is arrested for both murders, and falls dead upon seeing that a "C.O.D. 1020" package has been delivered to him.

Suspicions are rampant among all of those interested in the case; but the unexpected solution comes when a keen-minded and innocent member of the diplomatic department learns that many people think him the murderer.

"C.O.D." is much more clever, intricate and readable than most detective novels; Miss Lincoln keeps the action traveling at a hot pace and just where the reader's interest is likely to show symptoms of fatigue, some new situation is uncovered and the "plot thickens."

TRAINING A FLIRTATIOUS WIFE.

THE TAMING OF AMORETTE. By Anne Warner. Little, Brown & Co., Boston.

FEW men have the broad-mindedness of Girard and therefore wouldn't care to undertake to curb their wife's flirtatious propensities on the proverbial plan of giving the calf rope enough to hang itself.

Amorette, being a Yankee maiden of flighty affections, is rushed into marriage with the understanding that she shall not be hampered by the marital conventions limiting the activity of most wives. Girard, instead of keeping a jealous lookout and carrying a club for former and subsequent suitors, encourages their presence and rather belittles his own qualifications and attractions as a husband.

The climax comes when Amorette, partly through pique and partly through admiration for the suitor, dashes off with a swindler who is plucked from her side by the unsympathetic hand of Justice. Her husband, learning that she is all, all alone in a big city, sends word to numerous suitors and they flock ready to do gallant service.

Needless to say, Amorette, weary, repentent and happy, creeps into the arms of her husband and down comes the curtain on a thoroughly domesticated family.

There's a moral to the story if you care for such things; and if not, it can be regarded as a sprightly farce just as humorous as many others of Anne Warner's books, all of which are more or less extravagant in their situations.

WILL LEVINGTON COMFORT.

RED FLEECE. By Will Levington Comfort. George H. Doran Company, New York.

ONE OF these days—we have said this before—Will Levington Comfort will write a book that rises to the literary zenith. He has long been having difficulty in getting a balance—has been something of a shuttlecock between the gutter and the stars.

In "The Red Fleece" his hand is steadier, the novel's construction more symmetrical, than in any previous book—but still it lacks a "something" that makes it drive—makes it a truly big book.

Anyone who has followed Mr. Comfort's work knows that he is struggling patiently, indomitably toward a literary ideal that few have ever had the courage to reach out for. His pen has a conscience. He seeks to infuse spirituality into rank realism; yet he could write red-blooded stories that instantly would be widely popular—(almost any one of his books is enough to convince the discriminating reader of this) but he has more of a purpose than to entertain.

He handles the characters of men with a masterly, vigorous hand but his women are largely idealized creations—splendid—but scarcely normal; and in "Red Fleece" this characteristic is pronounced as ever.

Here again we meet Duke Fallows, who, in "Down Among Men," learned to love the Russians and brought the "plowman's message" to America.

Peter Mowbray, a young correspondent, is sent to the front with the Russian army when war breaks out with Germany; there he sees blood—"the red fleece"—as he never dreamed it could be poured out. His sympathy for the peasants and lowly class is intensified through his love for a young anarchist who takes her place as a nurse with the army. The anarchists are discovered urging the soldiers to malinger and repudiate the war and Peter—implicated with them—is set aside for execution. Then it is that Beylan, a rival correspondent, puts up a fight for Peter's life, and through sturdy courage, aided by the vicissitudes of war, is successful

But it is in Duke Fallows's new message to America that Mr. Comfort sounds the keynote to his purpose—not only the purpose of this book, but something of what seems to be the keynote to his whole literary purpose. That message, short in length but universal in breath, is perhaps the strongest and most colorful passage in the whole of Mr. Comfort's books and stories.

ENTERTAINS AND IRRITATES.

THE CHEERFUL BLACKGUARD. By Roger Pocock. Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.

RASCALS ARE always interesting—at a distance—and Jose de la Mancha y O'Brien, who recites his adventures in "The Cheerful Blackguard," is not so disreputable as his friends think, is frequently amusing, but also is often irritating.

He tells his own story and doesn't hesitate to make himself out as a misrepresented gentleman, while pleading guilty to many escapades which the reader is expected to condone.

Our personal opinion is that Mr. O'Brien is something of a liar—if it is possible for a fiction hero to be one. His adventures are incredible, though his wit is good; yet never for one-fourth of a half second could we be persuaded that any man—no matter how great his courage—could indulge in such impudence and come scathless among the Canadian frontiersman.

O'Brien, being the black sheep of an aristocratic family, plays the devil with social conventions and begins a new career through an adventure with a flirtatious Indian maiden. This eventually leads him into a ceremoniously conducted duel, where he appears as the chivalrous champion of the dusky maiden.

Most of O'Brien's adventures occur in the Mounted Police service, which he joins, and where he promptly encourages the enmity of an officer. Great complications arise involving O'Brien and the officer's wife; and Senor O'Brien "cusses out" his superior in a most extravagant manner.

Eventually marital troubles and a false friend, leave O'Brien free to return to the Indian maiden. Her tragic death catapults him into outlawry, and upon being arrested he takes occasion forcefully to call attention to the discrimination against the treatment of Indian women and white women. In the end he is hanged, but—

The book is, indeed, one th and irritates; and we fancy m

The Evidence in the Case
A Discussion of Moral Responsibility for the War of 1914, as Disclosed by the Diplomatic Records of England, Germany, Russia, France and Belgium
BY
JAMES M. BECK, LL. D.
Late Assistant Attorney General of the U. S.
With an introduction by
The Hon. JOSEPH H. CHOATE
Late U. S. Ambassador to Great Britain.
5th Printing—Revised Edition with much Additional Material
The new edition brings Mr. Beck's forceful, and now world-famous analysis of the diplomatic controversy down to the German Chancellor's explanation of the phrase, "A Scrap of Paper," made on January 25.
"A most remarkable presentation . . . most impressive is the narrative based upon official documents of the events immediately preceding the outbreak. . . . All intelligent citizens should read Mr. Beck's admirable argument."—London Spectator.
"Mr. Beck's book is so extremely interesting from beginning to end that is difficult when once begun to lay it down and break off the reading, and we are not surprised to hear not only that it has had an immense sale in England and America, but its translation into the languages of the other nations of Europe has been demanded."—Hon. Joseph H. Choate in the New York Times.
"Mr. Beck unravels the story with dextrous skill."—The London Times.

THE MODERN SPARTAN

HOW BELGIUM SAVED EUROPE.
Charles Sarolea. J. B. Lippincott
Philadelphia.
IN A MOMENT OF TIME. By Reginald
Kauffman. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York

"HOW BELGIUM SAVED EUROPE
a stirring and patriotic story gium's attitude, written by a closely associated with the government an eyewitness to the German invasion.
"In a Moment of Time" is an unrhetorical account of much of the ing and suffering in Belgium as seen Kauffman.

The story told by either is not the viewpoint of each is somewhat ent from any authors who have written on The War. Dr. Sarolea is but not abusive. He submits that Belgium's opposition, Germany would succeeded in overwhelming France; quotes in full the manifesto delivered gium by Germany "asking" for to pass through. He says the allies not ready to fight—if they had been would have come to the rescue of without allowing her to be sacrificed hopelessly unequal struggle. The campaign described step by step, and the feeling emotions of the Belgians through it revealed. The book closes with a description of the destitution, wreckage suffering in Belgium today—and also courage that remains.

In Mr. Kauffman's book all of the ers are interesting, but particularly Iron Rain at Scarborough." He was ing at Scarborough, having returned Belgium, when the bombardment and tells of it in simple narrative that one feel that "is just how it happened
's an art to write that way.

THE FRENCH REVOLUTION.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN THE TERROR.
Hector Fleischmann. Brentano's, New

JEAN PAUL MARAT—one of the of anarchy and "friend of the people encouraged wholesale executions such words as these: "A year ago six hundred chopped-off heads would made you free and happy. Today it necessary to chop off ten thousand.
a few months perhaps you will chop one hundred thousand, and you will marvelously well."

And, says Mr. Fleischmann, the nary thing about this is not that could write such atrocities, but that people put faith in them, and believed
Marat as they once believed in the Bible.

During the days of Danton, Robespierre and Marat, thousands upon thousands their heads between the teeth of guillotine. The prisons were crowded; graveyards filled and lime pits were receive the corpses flung away.

In "Behind the Scenes in the Terror"
Fleischmann, who has pored for years the records of that period and brought many interesting and unusual books, excerpts from the narratives of people lived at the time. Letters written by on the eve of execution, records of experiences and statements of witnesses, together with quotations from pamphlets the day, make a vivid, intimate picture those days of terror.

It is interesting to find that the is more than a good word, actually defense, for Robespierre; that Fouquier ville is regarded as a man of duty than the blood-lusting monster of report.

"We can't make war without a the phrase Mr. Fleischmann reports having inspired Citizen-Officer Rouget, stood watching the troops sullenly to write "The Marseillaise."
that song "the officer became France invincible."

The book is filled with curious telling of the last hours of the taking of the death mask of Barry and other little-known those uncertain times.

MRS. STETSON'S WARM ADVOCATE.

LOS ANGELES WRITER CHAMPIONS CAUSE OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LEADER.

BY LILLIAN GALE ARMSTRONG.

Since the publication of my last article written in defense of Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, I have been watching closely the action of the board of directors of the mother church, Boston, and those seemingly in authority of local churches throughout the States. Among other astonishing revelations my attention has been called to a newspaper article written by a representative of the board of directors of the mother church which attacks a public library for placing on its shelves Mrs. Stetson's books. The alarm of this representative is clearly shown when it is understood that these books contain correct views upon advanced teaching of Christian Science strictly in accordance with Mrs. Eddy's teaching, such as no other writer has written; also a full and complete account of unsettled questions that arose between the directors of the board of the First Church, Boston, and the First Church (Mrs. Stetson's church) New York.

I have just received a copy of the National Press Reporter, published in New York City, which is designed to supply the press with information concerning men of affairs and their achievements, in advance of publication of the same in the National Cyclopedia of American Biography; this being a guarantee of the truthfulness of the article, but conclusive evidence is added, as it is written and signed by R. E. Montague, Ph.D.

Mr. Montague says that he believes in granting to other people the same freedom of action that he should demand for himself; he quotes the librarian in answer to the unjust request that Mrs. Stetson's books should be removed from the shelves. The quotation follows:

"The library furnishes material on both sides of every question, and leaves the inquirer to do his own thinking. Mrs. Stetson and her followers have just as much right to be heard as the representatives of the mother church."

I have for some time past been cognizant of the fact that in one instance members of the local church formed a committee, each member being authorized to take out Mrs. Stetson's books and keep them two weeks, returning them, when they would at once be called for by another member of the committee, and thereby prevent their circulation.

As Dr. Montague says: Are not the people who compose the membership of the Christian Science church capable of judging for themselves whether Mrs. Stetson's writings are not in accord with Mrs. Eddy's teachings? Mrs. Stetson herself has no fear of condemnation from those who understand what Christian Science is.

Before publishing his article Dr Montague made a thorough investigation relative to this deplorable situation, and does not hesitate to express his views regarding the conspiracy in the form of boycotting against the books as reported by the librarians in various parts of the country; and says the methods appear to him dishonorable ecclesiastical maneuvering, which is condemned by all honest and just people. (However, the authorities of the State library, which at once perceived the intention of the Christian Scientists to boycott Mrs. Stetson's books, directed that these volumes remain catalogued, be left upon the shelves, and given to all who desire to read them.")

As he writes, we know that the world's opinion, at the time of Mrs. Stetson's withdrawal from material organization which was indeed an inevitable result of her spiritual advancement) was that a grievous mistake had been made, not alone toward Mrs. Stetson, but the trustees of her church and its members, comprising some of New York City's prominent citizens.

I have never had the honor of meeting Mrs. Stetson, although it is generally supposed that I am a student of hers; I have no fear of the power of thought that is being directed against me by the church organizations; no true Christian Scientist fears that, any more than any other evil suggestion, and I have been told that members and practioners have been told not to read my writings. I am informed that one practitioner, whose name does not appear in the directory (for the reason that her financial condition prevents her from subscribing for all the periodicals published by the Christian Science Publish Company, which, under the rules of the Mother Church, is exacted from all practitioners, no matter how clear their understanding of the doctrine may be) has been told that even in compliance with this rule, should she have anything to do with me, or any other who upholds Mrs. Stetson, her name would not be eligible for publication. A most remarkable interpretation of our Savior's teachings.

And this fear of Mrs. Stetson that is prevalent among the followers of the directors of the Mother Church, is an astonishing feature of which I cannot refrain from speaking. It is a fact that all members and practitioners of the Christian Science churches have been instructed to work against the "Stetson Thought" as it is termed.

During a winter spent in New York City two years ago, I had the opportunity of witnessing the devotion and respect which was paid Mrs. Stetson by the people, and also by the press continually. I was aware then of the injustice of the accusations brought against Mrs. Stetson by the directors, but had no though at that time of writing in her defense. After my return to Los Angeles I determined to do so with others, who are quite as sincere and far more capable.

Allow me in closing to direct attention to a few facts as I observe them, and being on the outside, as it were, I am in a position to do so. There are many worthy and capable practitioners in Los Angeles, who are fulfilling, according to their clear understanding, the words of Christ, and who apprise themselves of the financial condition of their patients before accepting a gift of any nature; holding that the truth of so perfect a principle belongs to every one, and should not be held for a consideration of money; but the action of the professional practitioners in Los Angeles in raising their fees for treatments during the past few years (I speak of Los Angeles, because the knowledge of this came as a surprise to a prominent and sincere practitioner in New York City when I informed him of the fact,) has hurt the cause of Christian Science undoubtedly.

However, the hand of justice appoints those who shall lead the way; and thousands throughout the world are now turning to Mrs. Stetson for true Christian Science, advancing out of the organizations to build on a purely spiritual foundation, than which there is no other.

For the Prophets to Answer.

[New York World:] Marriages used to be regarded as a more certain barometer of the times than exports or imports. With nearly 2000 more weddings in New York in 1914 than in the preceding year, what have our prophets of calamity to say?

PROF. C. IRVIN ALTHOUSE,

NOTED ASTROLOGER AND PALMIST OF NATIONAL FAME AND REPUTATION,

STUDIO PARLORS, 621 S. BROADWAY.
A RESIDENT OF LOS ANGELES 20 YEARS.

PROF. ALTHOUSE is an experienced practitioner in the science of modern ASTROLOGY, by which he has made many REMARKABLE PREDICTIONS. The horoscope shows the powerful influence of the planets in ALL AFFAIRS OF LIFE. It shows diseases, deaths, love and marriage, financial affairs, investments, changes, talents, environments, about children, relatives, when and where to travel, what to seek or avoid, when in danger of losses, troubles, etc., etc.; also your good periods coming—GIVING DATES of these events for the FUTURE.

PROF. ALTHOUSE read E. H. Sothern, Nat Goodwin, Schumann-Heink, Gadski, Admiral Schley, David Starr Jordan, ex-Gov. Pardee, ex-Senator Clark, Senator Smoot, Baron Rothschild, Gen. Chaffee, Edison, Sousa, Modjeska, Capt. Hobson, Julia Marlowe, Anna Held, Jefferson, Sembrich, Lillian Russell, Calve, Admiral Evans, H. E. Huntington, etc.

EXPERT PALM READINGS. READINGS BY MAIL.

DR. J. A. LARSON writes: "Your reading was the most satisfactory I ever had in my life; I know a great deal about these sciences, and I consider your work the most THOROUGH and RELIABLE of any reader in the United States."

PROF. ALTHOUSE'S wonderful proficiency in the casting of HOROSCOPES and in HAND reading has brought him a LARGE and SUCCESSFUL PRACTICE. The most private confidences are reposed in him, and his advice is sought in the most difficult and critical circumstances. Personal attention given. STRICT PRIVACY. HIGHEST GRADE OF WORK that skill and many years' experience can produce. HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

Daily and evenings. Sundays 10 to 4.
STUDIO PARLORS, 621 S. BROADWAY.

PERSONAL—
MRS. MASSON, the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 SOUTH SPRING STREET, by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in every-day life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH-CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

PERSONAL—
IF ILL, IN MIND OR BODY,

HENLEY,

HENLEY,

LOS ANGELES' NOTED SUCCESSFUL SEER.

HIS ADVICE HELPED TO MAKE LOS ANGELES WHAT IT IS TODAY.

THE OLDEST PSYCHIC IN THE CITY, TWENTY-FOUR YEARS.

317 WEST THIRD, NEAR HILL.

REMEMBER, MR. HENLEY IS NOT A CARD READER OR PALMIST, BUT A NATURAL-BORN PSYCHIC.

Without asking you a question he gives dates, facts, figures. Are the people pleased? They are simply astounded! AMAZED! They say they never saw anything like it. Spiritualists, scientists, bankers, merchants and people of the highest class of society have had readings with him and pronounce him unequaled in his profession. Readings daily.

HENLEY,
LARGE PATRONAGE.

"I WANT A MAN."

If you are the man I want I will spend patience and time to teach you the real estate business. You can make a good deal of money while you are learning if you will do just as I tell you. A man alone is very often like a ship without a helm. I am the helm. If you have a little better than average personality, appearance and good manners, if you know what the value of sticking to the truth means, I will steer you on the road where other men are making from $5000 to $10,000 a year. This may be the definite chance you have been waiting for to shape your future to success. I want to talk to you any morning after 9 o'clock.

CLAUDE S. HAMILTON,
GENERAL SALES MANAGER,

How to REDUCE EXPENSES,
DOUBLE YOUR DOLLARS,
Avoid SICKNESS and WORRY,
INCREASE HAPPINESS.

JOIN the WASHINGTON BUNGALOW CLUB, close in, yellow or red car lines. You have the use of a new bungalow, furnished or unfurnished; you are a member of the CLUB, where meals are furnished AT COST when desired. Besides the social features of the CLUB there is a PLAYGROUND and NURSERY, with competent attendant. There is also a GROCERY and MEAT DEPARTMENT, selling goods at COST to MEMBERS, and a LAUNDRY and HELP DEPARTMENT, furnishing help by the hour AT COST. A GARAGE in connection furnishes auto service at reduced rates.

$20 a month secures NEW BUNGALOW and CLUB advantages. CLUB LIMITED to 125 MEMBERS. Promoters reserve the right to decline any applications that they consider undesirable.

HOMESEEKERS who prefer to OWN their property may buy same at $2000, which includes deed to one lot and all CLUB ADVANTAGES. A limited amount of 7 per cent BONDS, secured by TRUST DEEDS in this enterprise may be bought at $100 each, or would you rather leave your money in BANK at 4 per cent. and have us borrow it from them at 7 per cent.? If so, they can build a few more million-dollar buildings with YOUR money. The BOND on each $2000 BUNGALOW is limited to $800, which assures the safest investment possible.

If my plan for mutual service meets with your approval, will you encourage the enterprise by so advising me AT ONCE. You will not obligate yourself, but it will show me if the time is ripe to advance a co-operative enterprise for our mutual benefit. Please drop me a line NOW, giving your views and suggestions. Cut this notice out; it may not appear again. Address G. HOWARD, 4241 Marmion Way, Los Angeles.

MOVING DAY—

—every day in the week has been moving day since our spring business has come on with a bang.

—moving in and moving out—delivery cars—roadsters and family cars. Standard makes at reasonable prices have been our theory in the used car business—and the only practical theory that keeps business moving.

—look over our longer, better list of used cars—something new every day. If you were not exactly satisfied last Monday, come in tomorrow.

—responsible parties can get rock-bottom terms and prices—in addition to getting a guarantee that makes a used car an investment that you can always get your money out of.

MINING—

ARE YOU LOOKING FOR A GOOD FREE MILLING gold prospect? Extensive porphyry contact gold bearing ledges with shoots of ore assaying round $40 per ton, the kind of prospects that develop into great mines. Do you want to purchase outright lease and bond, or do a limited amount of development for one-half interest? You will find several such propositions along the California-Nevada State line, 4½ miles southeast from Nipton, Cal., on Salt Lake R. R. 3 per cent. grade to property. You can deal with the owners. This section will surely produce great gold mines as all geological conditions are favorable. Address R. P. HALL, Nipton, Cal.

MINING ENGINEER, WELL ACQUAINTED WITH eastern investors and in touch with persons who will invest in bona-fide western mining proposition upon his report. Will conduct financing campaign for one reliable company after inspecting property. Expenses of inspection of property and conducting promotion must be paid by the company, but engineer's fee to be paid out of proceeds of stock sales if property of merit. No attention paid to unsigned replies. Address E, box 269, TIMES OFFICE.

WE HAVE A BIG LOW-GRADE GOLD MINE, ledge thirty feet wide, will average $7 a ton. Have $5000 worth of work done. Water and electricity on ground. Will give one-year option for $1000, or sell an interest.

THE ART OF SINGING.
Voice culture is an asset which cannot be valued in dollars and cents. From a health standpoint alone it is a necessity. The deep breathing that singing demands makes red blood, quiets the nerves, and gives correct poise to the body. It will compel you to sing more beautifully, therefore enable you to take your place as a vocal artist.
We recommend our singers to good positions when they are qualified.
Convincing lesson free by appointment. Call any afternoon and let us see what may be done for you.
An interview will cost you nothing, and it may mean much to you. Lessons given before and after business hours if desired.

FIGHTING CLOSE TO SWITZERLAND.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

GENEVA, March 10.—Some of the fighting between the Germans and French has been so uncomfortably close to Swiss territory that in an artillery engagement recently five shells fell in Switzerland. Two Swiss engineers, who were working near by, were knocked down by the concussion, although not seriously hurt.

On the previous day, the French had established a battery of heavy guns near Point No. 510, close to the Swiss frontier. This was apparently located by a German airman, but the French observers had seen him reconnoitering and promptly moved their batery back a mile or two the same night. But early the next day the Germans fired for some hours on the spot where the guns had been, and five of their shells came across the border.

Nerve-racking.

HOSPITAL WORK IS NIGHTMARE.

An American Nurse Describes Terrible Experience.

Major Operations Performed in the Open Wards.

Conditions in Servia Almost Inconceivable.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, March 10.—A young American woman, who volunteered for service as a Red Cross nurse in Servia two months ago, has written letters to friends in London, urging them against following her example unless they are sure that their nerves and physique can stand the strain. "Many of the volunteer nurses collapse after a week or two," she says, "and the strongest of us are quite certain that we shall have to give it up after two or three months, or else go mad.

"Our hospital is not a large building, but we have 1300 patients and have to inspect 500 fresh cases each day. The congestion of the whole place is so terrible that major operations frequently have to be performed right in the wards with all the other patients around.

"The hospital is close to the railway, and men sent from the battlefields are brought in to be dressed before continuing their journeys to other towns. I call the dress-room the Hall of Pain. In it are Nine Tables of Agony, and there are benches all around on which sit the other men waiting to have their wounds dressed.

"The hall throbs with cries, groans and shrieks of pain, rising sometimes to a crescendo that the strongest nerves cannot endure.

"We have seen none of the glory of war—only the horror and suffering of the soldier, and the civil population, too. But I am sure no glory can compensate for all this. To see the refugee children and the wounded men and the suffering women is worse than any nightmare genius could dream.

"I asked a man nearly cured when he was going home. 'I have no home,' he answered, wearily. 'My house was in Shabatz; the enemy has destroyed it; my wife and children are dead.' Alter the name of the place for variety's sake, and that is the answer you would get seven times out of ten. One can only be silent before such sorrow.

"I have been up to Belgrade for three days to rest my nerves. It is a desolate city. Normally there are 120,000 inhabitants; now there are about 8000 returned. I worried the authorities until I got permission to visit the Palace. The enemy's guns had got the range of it very well. Moreover, an aviator's bomb had gone through the roof of the library and wrecked the library and throne room. The chapel royal, which had been made a sort of headquarters for the enemy's pillages, was in an indescribable state of chaos. Clothes, china, stuffed birds, pictures, state papers and thousands of other things were littered about. In one corner was a collection of unnumbered bottles of all sorts of medicine for the cure of rheumatism, which the looters had brought from the royal apartments—the old King is a martyr to rheumatism, and has apparently tried everything that is sold anywhere for it.

"It is an interesting fact that in the population of Servia men have always predominated considerably, and even this war, with its hideous losses, will only balance the proportion of sexes."

A Baker's Strategy.

[London Chronicle:] It was a baker's shop. From the perforated grating beneath floated a delicious aroma of cake to the great enjoyment of a number of small boys who were looking in the window. Presently the proprietor appeared with a load of steaming hot cakes fresh from the oven, and began to dress the window with artistic piles. Having finished, he went away, but reappeared a few moments later with a card in his hand, which he hung in the window, bearing the words, "boy wanted!"

Destroyer.

EITEL TO BE INTERNED, BELIEF AT WASHINGTON.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The German commerce destroyer Prinz Eitel Friedrich will be interned at Newport News by order of the Washington government within a few days, according to opinions expressed here tonight in official quarters. No one in authority, however, would discuss the ship's status.

There was a little doubt that a time limit for the making of repairs to the Eitel had been set by the government and that the limit is close to expiration. When the period granted shall expire, Commander Thierichens of the Eitel will be formally notified that he must either put to sea within twenty-four hours or his ship and crew will be interned during the war.

The German captain could appeal for time to make further repairs, but this only would be granted, it is thought, on a new and unexpected showing as to the unseaworthiness of his vessel.

It appeared to be the general opinion that Commander Thierichens would not ask that his ship be interned, but would wait out his time limit, and compel the government to act. Officials recalled the statement of Capt. Kiehne of the American ship William P. Frye, sunk by the Eitel, who declared when he reached shore from the cruiser that she would not put to sea again during the war. He refused to say on what he based his prediction; but officials believed his long association with the Eitel's officers after the Frye was sunk, qualified him to speak with some authority.

HORSE TRANSPORTS PLENTY.

It was suggested to officials today that the presence of numerous British horse transports at Newport News might serve to delay the departure of the Eitel, should her commander determine to attempt a dash to sea past the patrol of warships said to be maintained by the allies off the harbor and beyond the three-mile limit. Under neutrality laws, no belligerent warships, such as the Eitel may leave port within twenty-four hours after the departure of an enemy merchant craft. By sailing in and out of the harbor at frequent intervals the British merchant skippers could delay the Eitel's dash if they so desired. It was thought, however, that no such maneuvers would be attempted, as the conviction was general that the Eitel would not put to sea and the allies were not desirous of delaying the time of her internment.

With the ships released from the vigil off the Virginia capes, it is reported search will be made for the Prinz Wilhelm, another German raider, of which nothing has been heard for many weeks.

LOOK UP THE LAW.

Secretary Daniels and Acting Secretary Breckenridge of the War Department conferred today regarding the measures to carry out neutrality laws in the case of the Eitel as laid down by the State Department. The neutrality department has advised with the officials of the treasury, which under law is responsible for the internment of the Eitel if it should come to that or her departure from Newport News after notice.

Mr. Breckenridge said no orders had been given to the post commanders, and asserted that even in case of a naval battle within the three-mile limit, should the Eitel make the dash, there would be no firing from the forts without express orders from Washington.

Prince Hatsfeldt, counsel for the German Embassy, visited the State Department today to ask if all those aboard the Prince Eitel, except the crew, had been removed.

The embassy understood, the counselor told Counselor Lansing, that some of the persons whom the immigration authorities refused permission to land remained aboard. Prince Hatsfeldt was informed that the State Department's information was that everybody had left the Prinz Eitel, including the undesirables, who would be deported.

Rumors.

WILL CATTLE KING WED SURPRISE WIFE AGAIN?

SENTIMENT is playing queer pranks with the heart of "Big" Warren Holbrook, football hero, adventurer, hunter and Colorado cattle baron. Four years ago Mr. Holbrook, scion of a wealthy New York family, and Miss Avis Doebler, blonde, blue-eyed and striking, shattered all the marriage records in Denver when they met and were wed within twenty-four hours.

Their wedded life was not a success, and, after their honeymoon, lasting seven days, Mrs. Holbrook sought the divorce courts, and the knot, which was tied in record time, was broken. Three months later the former Mrs. Holbrook was again a principal in a romantic courtship and marriage. She became the bride of Max Botefuhr, a Portland (Or.) manufacturer, under a palm tree in Westlake Park in Los Angeles.

A few months ago Mr. Botefuhr died, and Mr. Holbrook has since been calling on the young widow, according to letters friends in Denver have received from her. the young widow writes from Los Angeles, "but Warren Holbrook has called to see me several times."

But her friends are not so sure "there may be nothing come of it," and with a smile they say they will watch developments and see if Warren Holbrook and his former bride will not again tread the path to the altar.

A gay party of friends gathered in the palm room of a hotel in Denver one evening in March four years ago. They were Holbrook, Georgia Crane of Chicago and J. W. Barthel of Hartford Ct., Soon they were joined by Avis Doebler. Mr. Holbrook was introduced and took a place at the table beside the pretty blonde girl. Later they went home in a taxi, but what was said probably will never be known by anyone but the two persons who sat within. Then next morning, the two friends who had introduced the couple were informed by Miss Doebler that Mr. Warren and she were going to be married. It was only a few hours later when the couple sought Judge Gavin. Then began their honeymoon.

MOSLEMS ON THE ALERT FOR THE RUSSIAN FLEET.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, March 27, 11:35 p.m.—The Sofia correspondent of Reuter's Telegram Company sends the following dispatch:

"According to news from Constantinople the cruiser Goeben (renamed the Sultan Selim) has been completely repaired and is again fit for service.

"The Ministry of War, it is stated, decided on a great raid with the entire Turkish fleet into the Black Sea today or tomorrow, with the object of seeking and engaging the Russian fleet.

"The Ministry of War has learned that the Anglo-French fleet will be reinforced by ten strong units to replace the battleships sunk or disabled. A fresh attack on the Dardanelles was expected today."

CITY OF WARSAW IS CARING LITTLE

What if There is a Great Battle Thirty Miles Away?

Don't People Want to Play Cards as Formerly?

Sure, but an American Scribe Thinks it Very Strange.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

WARSAW, Feb. 14.—The city of Warsaw, which is nearer to the actual fighting zone than any other city of its size in Europe, and which has lived for months under the continued menace of German occupation, wears the astonishing aspect of a disinterested observer, for whom the fortunes of war have but a casual interest. This is the capital of the country whose sons, almost equally divided, are fighting half on the Russian and half on the Austro-German side.

Warsaw is within thirty miles of that fierce, persistent and apparently untiring German offensive against which a large part of the entire Russian army has been massed, and is subject to all the ills which follow in the wake of battle, such as dearth of provisions and fuel, congestion and disease. The best farms and estates of Poland have been turned into vast burial grounds, her people are homeless and starving, and every day seems to darken the prospect of that regeneration of the Polish people into an independent nation, which is the dream of every Pole, whether he is a Russian, a German or an Austrian subject. From the accumulated filth of the trenches, from the thousands of shallow graves where Russian, German and Polish soldiers have been hastily buried, cholera, typhus and typhoid are said to be spreading, and in the opinion of military doctors, when the softening of the ground and melting of the streams begin in early spring, disease will run like fire through Poland.

Over a hundred thousand refugees, who have thrown themselves upon the mercy of the various committees of Polish relief in Warsaw, have brought into the city five known cases of cholera. The cases have been promptly isolated, and all who have been subjected to the contagion have been deported into the country. Warsaw is at present suffering from a dearth of coal, since the supply from Southern Poland in the Chenstokovau region has been cut off by the German invasion.

One, then, is entitled to a feeling of amazement at the undiminished spirits and the apparently normal life which exist in this city, which, one reasons, ought to be trembling on the verge of catastrophe. The streets are gay with laughter and song, the cafes are filled until late at night, and the opera and ballet are playing to full houses. It is curious, indeed, to see these audiences giving way to the imaginary troubles of the actors on the stage, while real trouble awaits them beyond the door of the theater. On the former German advance upon Warsaw, which approached within seven miles of the city, one theater continued its performance without interruption, while the booming of the enemy's guns could be distinctly heard over the voices of the actors.

Club life goes on as usual. An American correspondent was in the rooms of one of the best-known Warsaw clubs on the occasion of a recent aeroplane raid. Four men were playing auction bridge. Two bombs were dropped, one within 200 yards of the club. Two of the men strolled carelessly to the window and watched the two German taubes volplane recklessly from an altitude of about 5000 feet to a distance of approximately 2000, drop a bomb apiece and circle upward and westward, with two Russian aeroplanes in close pursuit. Russian shrapnel was directed at the two German aeroplanes from a battery on the outskirts of the city, but the speed of the aeroplanes was so great that the gray bursts of smoke fell harmlessly in the rear. The other two men in the bridge game were more interested in their hands. These aeroplane raids have indeed become such commonplace occurrences that instead of hurrying indoors, as the residents of the city used to do when the appearance of the German taubes was an alarming novelty, the streets are now crowded with mildly-interested spectators, who, if they have no other business on hand, make it a point to be on the streets on clear afternoons at 2 o'clock, at which time the German aeroplanes appear, weather permitting, with unerring regularity.

"Before we have tea," says a timid-looking Polish woman, "let's plan to go out and see the aeroplane raid." One might almost think that it was a sporting event of the season, which it had become fashionable to attend.

Meanwhile the wounded are brought back from the trenches, and a continuous line of soldiers, infantry, mounted infantry, cavalry and long provision trains, file through the city to take their place in the firing line. But the endless activity, the countless episodes, any one of which would, in ordinary times, provoke anxiety and alarm, seem only to act as a stimulant upon the overwrought nerves of this remarkable capital. One soon learns that the nervous laughter which one hears everywhere in Warsaw is not far from a sob, and the apparent unconcern only the pitiful bravery of a nation that has learned not to cry when it is hurt.

Are you a booster? You can boost some young woman towards success in "The Times Automobile Circulation Campaign," next Wednesday, March 31 — "Times Day." It's a day set aside for you.

PRISONERS OF WAR SEND FOR FAMILIES

CAPTURED AUSTRIANS SEEM TO BE HAVING GOOD TIME IN SERVIA.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

BELGRADE (Servia) March 12.—The party of surgeons and nurses which traveled from England on board Sir Thomas Lipton's Red Cross yacht Erin has found the country straining every resource to repair the damage of the past seven months of warfare. There is little fresh war news, but in the best-informed circles there is little disposition to believe that the enemy contemplates a serious attack on Servia before late spring.

The Red Cross unit will find plenty of work to do. All the hospitals in the country are crowded and there is a great dearth of surgeons and medical supplies.

One of the most remarkable sights here is the number of the enemy to be found walking about the streets, still in uniform. They are prisoners on parole, and all the Servian towns are dotted with them. Servia has neither jails nor guards for the large number of war prisoners that fell to her share, and she treats them, therefore, as uninvited guests, toward whom the usual forms of hospitality must be maintained. Conservative figures place the number of Austrian officers and men now roaming at large in Servia at 60,000. The question of their support causes some anxiety, but many of them have found employment and a few have even brought their families to live with them. The families, of course, have had to travel from Austria by way of Rumania, a neutral country.

Financial Review.

RECORD-BREAKING WEEK IN THE STOCK MARKET.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 27.—Stocks went this week to highest prices and were sold in larger volume than any time since the resumption of market sessions interrupted by the war. The speculative factor was revealed in the profit-taking sales on advances, especially for London and in the buying under pressure from uncovered shorts.

Starting from specialties affected by large war orders, the movement broadened to the whole list. Extraordinary foreign trade conditions were the prime influence. Chances of early ending of the war also were discussed. The fall of Przemysl and Italy's apparent readiness to take the field furnished added material for speculation and surmise.

Dominance of the bullish spirit was shown in the way contradictory factors were reconciled. Ending of the war and the war's requirements for our goods figured equally.

Increase of February net earnings of railroads were largely a result of drastic economics involving heavy cuts in orders for equipment and material. Reduced imports shared with expanded exports in the phenomenal trade balances depriving industries of material for production.

Operations of steel mills were increased by orders for war supplies. Large shipments of copper were made under agreement with British authorities assuring destination. Cotton continued to go under extension of time allowed for shipments to Germany. Copper and cotton both touched highest prices since the war. Prospects for an unprecedented wheat crop entered in calculations. Large orders for gold afforded partial relief to the depression of foreign exchange. Argentine secured a loan of $15,000,000 and Germany a loan of $10,000,000, and negotiations for credits to half a dozen other countries were under way.

El Centro.

TWO PROGRAMMES TO ENTERTAIN SECRETARY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, March 27.—On the eve of arrival here of Secretary of the Interior Lane plans for his entertainment have fallen into a maze of differences. Where the Cabinet officer will pass Monday is a question which he himself will probably have to decide with an exercise of much tact.

Upon receipt of a telegram from W. J. Doran of the Southern Pacific interests offering to furnish a special train for an excursion into Mexico, the board of directors of the Imperial Irrigation District accepted and arrangements for a formal invitation from the Governor of Northern Baja California, Col. Esteban Cantu, were made.

But the Imperial Valley Chamber of Commerce, through its special reception committee, has given to the press a programme which calls for sightseeing in the valley, but no visit to Mexico.

That Secretary Lane was to be "kidnaped" by the irrigation officials was suggested by the statements of Postmaster Collins, Frank Reading and C. E. Coggins of the chamber committee. Mark Rose of Holtville, president of the Imperial Laguna Water Company, was less reticent about the matter. He openly charged it as a fact. Rose's company is organized to put water on the East Side mesa and a bill is filed for action at the next Congress to open the land to entry.

Rose sought to secure a concession from the district for a canal right of way in Mexico, but no action was taken on the matter. It now develops that the board is framing a proposal to have the land transferred to it and opened to entry at a price to cover cost of constructing the canal system to serve it and a pro rata of the district's bonded indebtedness.

According to Rose and the committeemen, the irrigation directors seek to sequester the secretary in Mexico to get his ear. Secretary Berry of the district said tonight that a misunderstanding rather than a controversy had arisen.

HOME FOR GRAMERCY PLACE.

Residence One of Many to Be Started Immediately in Different Parts of the City.

Plans are being drawn by the firm of Morgan, Walls & Morgan for a twelve-room house to be built on Gramercy place near Sixth street by J. D. Bernard. The place will have rustic siding and shingle roof. It will contain three tile-finished baths. Among other new residence projects for different parts of the city may be mentioned the following:

The contract was awarded during the week for an eleven-room house to be built by F. B. Winters at No. 411 South Kingsley drive. The place will have plastered exterior walls and will contain three baths. R. N. Lamberth is about to start a nine-room house at No. 1647 Fifth avenue. Work will begin in a few days on a nine-room house for K. D. Smith at No. 4919 Pasadena avenue. H. M. Allen has taken out a permit for an eight-room house he will build at No. 5747 Melrose avenue. C. M. Neely took out a permit during the week for an eight-room residence at No. 526 Brittania street.

Work is to be begun this week on a bungalow court of ten buildings for Miss Rae Sugarman on Isabel street near Merced street. E. B. Rust drew the plans. John McClure is having plans drawn for a bungalow court of eight houses he expects to build on Elder street. Four bungalows are to be started in a few days by Hubbard & Gardner on Fifty-sixth street near South Park avenue.

Leonard P. Alcombrach is about to start a six-room bungalow at No. 5333 Lexington avenue. A. G. Sanborn will build a six-room bungalow at No. 927 Lucile avenue. J. E. Crouch has taken out a permit for a six-room bungalow he will build at No. 361 North Reno street. Fred E. Ward has had plans drawn for a seven-room bungalow for a site at No. 970 West Forty-second street.

TO MONTANA WOMAN.

The McCarthy Company reports the sale of seven parcels of land in the Garden Acres Tract, near Inglewood. Following are the buyers: Mrs. M. Kyler, of Conrad, Montana, lot on Garden avenue, $690; J. A. Enkel, lot on Palm street, near Prairie avenue, $1050; Miss Catherin Cherrel, lot on Garden avenue, $7000; C. E. Willar, lot on June street, near Redondo boulevard, $750; C. Cooke, lot on Patton street, $685; Eric E. Ehkile, business lot on Prairie street, $550; R. D. Brown, lot on Palm street, $1050.

NEW FILM PLANT.

An extensive moving picture plant is to be built by the Bostock Jungle and Film Company at the southwest corner of Washington and Main streets. R. D. King of this city has been commissioned to prepare plans for three structures, an arena, a film building and a building containing stages and dressing rooms.

NINTH AND VERMONT.

Lee A. McConnell, of McConnell and Irvine, has just completed a brick block of five storerooms at the northwest corner of Ninth street and Vermont avenue. The firm has leased the Dresslar Hardware Company two of the rooms for a term of years.

IMPORTANT EXCHANGES.

San Jacinto Ranches Traded for Santa Ana and Los Angeles Holdings During Past Week.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN JACINTO, March 27. — The highly improved twenty-acre ranch of A. E. Ballard, on the mesa west of town was bought this week by Santa Ana buyers for $9000. As part of the purchase price, Mr. Ballard secured a residence in Santa Ana.

Miss Cora F. Smith, of Los Angeles, this week bought the Frank A. Sanders twenty-five acre ranch on Mountain avenue, the consideration being a house and lot on West Adams street, Los Angeles, valued at $15,000. Mr. and Mrs. Sanders and family will remove to Orange.

HOLDS SOCIAL UNION.

The social union of the Christian churches of Los Angeles and vicinity met in an all-day session Thursday, last, at the First Christian Church. Mrs. A. H. Bagby, the president, was in charge of an interesting programme that included a paper on "High Ideals" by Mrs. F. J. Chapman; instrumental selections by Mrs. Fulfs; a social hour at noon, with Mrs. E. L. Piper presenting the toasts, and responses by Messrs. Darsey, Alexander, Wiesey, Thompson and Cooper. The afternoon devotions were a memorial service to honor the late Mr. Douthett and were led by Mrs. C. Monical. Miss Snyder gave a solo; Mrs. Mattie Pounds spoke on her missionary work, and Miss Foley, State teacher for the blind, told of her experiences in this field.

Dealers in Costumes Take Long-term Lease on Two Floors of Broadway Building—Other Transactions.

Through the leasing department of the W. Ross Campbell Company, represented by S. C. Thomas, the Goldstein Company of this city, dealers in theatrical and masquerade costumes, secured, during the past week, a long-term lease on the entire third and fourth-floor lofts of the building formerly occupied by Lyon-McKinney Smith Company at No. 652 South Broadway.

The Campbell company also reports leases of space in the Grayco Building, No. 752-754-756 South Los Angeles street, to the following: F. W. Swartz, manufacturer of novelties; Edward L. Conine, manufacturer of toilet supplies and X-ray machines; Mission Chemical Company, manufacturers of medicinal novelties; Los Angeles Fire Alarm Company, and Colton & Collins, manufacturers of medicines.

TRADE GROVE FOR RANCH.

Among the larger real estate deals reported during the week was the exchange of a thirty-five-acre full-bearing navel and Valencia grove at West Riverside, known as the Johnson, Robinson and Simms grove, for 280 acres of highly-improved Imperial Valley land, northeast of Brawley, owned by Edward L. Wiest of Nordhoff. The total valuation on both sides is reported at $93,000. J. W. Logan and E. C. Wagner represented both parties to the transaction.

TWENTY NEW SCHOOLS NOW BEING PLANNED.

Board of Education to Hurry Construction of Urgently Needed Buildings as Rapidly as Bonds Can be Disposed Of—Ready to go Ahead with the Large Intermediate Institution.

ONE form of building activity in Los Angeles is bound to make up in importance for any falling off in general construction operations that may be witnessed here this year. Los Angeles will beyond any doubt erect more public school buildings during 1915 than any other city in the United States.

The enormous sum of $6,500,000 was voted last fall by the people of Los Angeles to provide urgently needed school structures. The overflow from the existing schools has been a growing problem for years. Makeshift methods of meeting the situation had by 1914 begun to prove inadequate even as makeshifts.

Every kind of temporary building imaginable has been erected or leased by the Board of Education during recent times. A year ago voters began to awaken to the fact that children in many parts of the city were being denied the privileges that every American boy and girl is supposed to be heir to.

Thousands were being forced either to attend overcrowded schools far away from their own homes, to pick up instruction at irregular sessions or even to stay at home for lack of school accommodations. The result of the complete public awakening was seen last fall when the big school bond issue was the only one of a long list of public bonding propositions submitted to carry.

OBSTACLE OVERCOME.

For some time after the bonds for new schools were voted, it appeared that financial conditions would so militate against the sale of the issue that after all the needed relief in the educational field would be delayed another year or two. Fortunately, a happy solution was found.

It was determined by the board that the bonds, instead of being lumped in one huge parcel, should be separated into more easily handled lots. Under the plan arrived at, certain portions of the general issue were to be disposed of as they might be needed for the erection of buildings demanded in various localities.

Nearly every architect in the city was given a commission to plan one or more of the new schools. All were instructed to await the order of the board to begin plans. Then there was taken up the question of the relative urgency of different buildings.

As rapidly as given buildings have been determined upon, efforts have been put forth by the board and by the architects themselves to find buyers for the necessary bonds. The success of the scheme may be realized from the fact that to date plans have been ordered and bonds placed for twenty schools, with every prospect that others will be authorized in the near future.

READY TO BEGIN.

The first of the larger buildings to be started under the big bond issue will be a fine new structure for the Fourteenth-street intermediate school. Complete working plans for this splendid building were officially accepted by the Board of Education last week and contractors are to be asked for bids within the next few days. C. H. Russell is the architect.

The school will occupy a part of the old Fourteenth-street site, together with several lots on Fourteenth street and Naomi avenue, purchased in order that the grounds might be enlarged. The present frame structure will be left standing for the time being, although it is eventually to be replaced with a brick building, which will constitute the third and last wing of the school that is about to be started.

The structure for which Mr. Russell has prepared plans will front 245 feet on Naomi avenue, by 165 feet on Fourteenth street, and will be three stories in height. It will have the shape of an "L," each wing being about forty feet in depth. The style of the building will be a modernized Italian. Of brick and concrete construction, the walls of the structure will be faced with buff brick laid up in white mortar. The roof will be of red clay tile. The cost is estimated at $125,000.

The main entrance on Fourteenth street will be in the form of a loggia, with columns and arches. Open-air corridors will extend along the Naomi-avenue front. The building will contain twenty classrooms, principal's and teachers' rooms, rest-rooms, mechanical drawing rooms and a complete science department. The school will be one of the largest and most modern in the city.

FOR THE SOUTHEAST.

Of the other schools for which plans are now under way, the magnificent new high schol for Southeast Los Angeles will be the largest. The institution will comprise several brick buildings grouped around a campus and will occupy a large site at Hooper avenue and Thirty-eighth street. Approximately $200,000 will be expended on this school. Norman F. Marsh is the architect.

Plans for one other high school are now in course of preparation. This is to be known as the Garvanza High School and will occupy a sightly piece of ground on Avenue Fifty-four. Elmore R. Jeffery, the architect, is drawing plans for five large buildings of concrete and brick construction. With its site, the school will represent an outlay of about $160,000.

Under the bond issue, there is to be erected an auditorium for the present Lincoln High School group at North Broadway and Prichard street. Plans for this structure, which is to be of an imposing classic type in keeping with the two present buildings, are now being completed by Needham & Cline. The new building will contain, in addition to an auditorium seating 1500, a library, four classrooms and a large lecture room. It will cost about $90,000.

AT THE HARBOR.

One of the important buildings called for under the bond issue is a large, brick grammar school for the harbor district. The structure, which is being planned by Joseph Bell de Remer, will contain sixteen classrooms, a large auditorium, sloyd-rooms, domestic science department and kindergarten. It will cost about $75,000.

A twelve-room school is being planned by Hunt & Burns for the unoccupied portion of the site of the Virgil-avenue intermediate school at Virgil and Third. The structure will correspond in design with the present school, which was completed about two years ago.

Plans for an eleven room brick grammar school to be erected on Twentieth street are now being drawn by Eisen & Son. The appropriation for this structure is about $50,000. A new building to be erected on the present site of the Macy-street school is being planned by A. C. Martin. The building will cost $40,000. Withey & Davis are preparing plans for an eight-room grammar school for the site of the present Rowan-street school. Edelman & Barnett are designing a grammar school to be erected on Sixty-sixth street.

A grammar school for the present Twenty-fourth-street school site is being planned by Dennis & Hewitt. Train & Williams have just completed plans for a grade school to be erected on the Miramonte school grounds on West Seventy-first street and for another to be built on Manchester avenue, near Hoover street. Montgomery & Montgomery will be the architects for a grammar school on Buchanan street. Lester H. Hibbard is planning a school to be erected at the edge of Elysian Park. C. F. Skilling has a commission to plan a grade school for Hostetter street. Plans for a new school on Micheltorena street will be drawn by A. T. Large. Krucker & Deckbar are drawing plans for a large addition to the present school at Western avenue and Fifty-fourth street.

Many additions to various schools in the city are being planned by the architectural department of the public school system. One large grammar school, a brick structure to replace the old Los Feliz school at Vermont avenue and Hollywood boulevard, which was recently destroyed by fire, is also being planned by the board's own designers.

MORE BY ANNEXATION.

Two splendid high schools and a number of modern grade schools will be added to the Los Angeles system without cost to the taxpayers of this city upon the annexation of that portion of the San Fernando Valley included within the scope of the aqueduct irrigation provisions. At the town of Van Nuys there has just been completed a fine high school planned by Allison & Allison and this will come under the jurisdiction of the Los Angeles Board Education immediately upon the annexation of the valley territory. At Van Nuys also is a new grade school.

Architects Dennis & Hewitt are now completing plans for a magnificent high school at Owensmouth and for a grammar school at Chatsworth. Both, under the annexation plans, will ultimately come into this city. Another fine grade school is to be built within the present year at the town of Marian, just south of Owensmouth.

MAY ENLARGE HOTEL.

Owners of South Main Street Hostelry Plan Addition of Extra Stores to Suit New Lessee.

To Eugene and Frances A. Severance has been transferred the lease of the Santa Rita Hotel at the southeast corner of South Main and Eleventh streets. The Santa Rita is a three-story, seventy-five room brick building and was erected about seven years ago by the Hicks Hager Estate. The foundation and walls were built sufficiently strong to permit of the addition of two or three more stories and it is announced that this addition will probably be made during the year to suit the requirements of the new tenants.

The Severances are reported to have paid Mrs. A. C. Brubaker, the former tenant, $10,000 for the lease and furniture. The lease has four years more to run. Mrs. Severance is also the owner and proprietor of the Dagmar Apartments on Hope below Ninth. A five-year lease on the St. Margaret Apartments at No. 415 West Twenty-second street, has been secured by Emma L. Manske. The lease calls for a given total rental of $16,000. W. E. Mount of San Dimas is the lessor.

Both leases were made through the agency of Whilton & Hahn.

BUYS LOTS FOR IMPROVEMENT.

Realty and Building Concern to Carry on Extensive Operations in Westmoreland Park.

An important residential district transaction was closed a few days ago when Henry C. Jensen subdivider and real estate man transferred twenty-four lots in the Westmoreland Park Tract to the Edwards & Wildey Company for a reported consideration of $48,000, or $2000 a lot.

Under the terms of the deal the buyers agree to improve all the lots within the period of two years with houses costing from $3000 to $5000 each.

The Westmoreland Park Tract is one of the many sightly subdivisions in the northwest part of the city. It surrounds the new State Normal School on three sides and the property has eighty-foot improved streets, with sewer and gas mains completed. Many attractive houses are now under way in the district.

NEW "ROBINSON'S" ALREADY UP FIVE FLOORS.

Contract for Ornamental Metal Work in Million-dollar Department Store Awarded During Week. Huge Emporium will Boast Many Novel Features.

Another large sub-contract in the construction of the mammoth new $1,000,000 department store of the J. W. Robinson Company at Seventh, Grand and Hope, was awarded during the past week. This was the commission for installing all the ornamental metal work in the big structure and was secured by the Bayer-Rothgeb Company of this city. The contract calls for an outlay of approximately $25,000. Handsome bronze doors for all the elevators and iron balustrades and grills in large numbers are included in the order.

The award in question brings the total of contracts for interior fittings and finishings in the new store structure up to nearly $300,000. The figure will be still higher before the appointments of the building are all provided for. The awarding of a number of the more important contracts, aggregating $150,000, was reported in The Times two weeks ago. All of the details of the interior finish are of original design and are being made to order by Los Angeles manufacturing concerns.

The proprietors of the store have, in conjunction with the architects, made a careful study of the leading department stores of the United States and will incorporate in the new Seventh-street building up-to-the-minute ideas gleaned from these investigations. Many new ideas never before put to use will also be introduced.

One of the features determined upon is a large basement storage room for the electric machines of women shoppers. Electric carriage calls with letters fifteen inches in height will flash simultaneously on the three fronts of the building for the convenience of chauffeurs. Provision is made on the seventh floor for a beautifully appointed cafe, tea rooms, rest rooms and roof gardens. A massive stone balcony projecting out over Seventh street will offer visitors an opportunity to view the busy city below while sipping their tea. In another part of the building are to be established fully-equipped "beauty parlors" and hair-dressing rooms.

Rapid progress is being made in the construction of the building itself, the framework now being up to the sixth floor level. The contractors are making every effort to have the structure under roof April 15. It is hoped that the entire store will be ready for occupancy by September, when the autumn trade will begin.

The store is to contain in all about 336,000 square feet of floor space and will rank in size with the largest in the country. The owners have decided upon a "velvet" surfaced terra cotta brick for facing material. Nine passenger elevators were recently purchased from an eastern concern and these are to be shipped at once. From the Baker Iron Works in this city the company has ordered one of the most powerful freight elevators ever constructed on the Coast. This "lift" is to have a platform of sufficient size to carry a large loaded truck.

WITH THE BUILDERS.

Brick Store and Apartment Buildings Projected for North Broadway and West Jefferson Sites. Other Enterprises.

An attractive brick store and apartment building is projected by J. W. Hannihan for a site on North Broadway near Alta street. Plans have been drawn by Rex D. Weston. The structure will contain two stores on the ground floor and six apartments on the second floor. The contract was let during the week for a two-story brick store and apartment building to be erected at West Jefferson street and Raymond avenue, from plans by Elmore R. Jeffrey. Work is to be begun this week on a store and apartment building of frame construction for Frank Johnson on Vermont avenue near Fifty-fourth street.

Following are some of the flat projects now taking definite shape in various parts of the city: The Cooper-Pyle-Clopine Company has taken out a permit for a flat which it will erect for S. M. Cooper at No. 245 South Hobart boulevard. S. Gitelson secured a permit during the week for a flat he will build at No. 2001 North Bronson avenue. The contract has been let for a flat to be built by Minnie L. Becker on Thirty-seventh street near Moneta avenue. Mrs. L. V. Arnold has had plans drawn for a flat she will erect on Manhattan avenue near Washington. Work is to be begun this week on a flat for Lillian McLaughlin at No. [illegible] West Forty-first drive.

NEARLY CLOSED OUT.

Sale of Eight Lots at Kensington Terrace Leaves but Few Unsold Sites in Santa Monica Subdivision.

Carl J. Schader of the Schader-Wells Company reports the sale of eight lots in Kensington Terrace, Santa Monica, during the past two weeks. The purchasers are Mrs. Jennie Livingston, J. S. Stotler, E. Gamberie, G. Gal and L. M. Pence. The aggregate consideration is given at $40,000.

Improvements will be started immediately on each lot, according to the brokers. The sales reported leave the shore subdivision practically closed out, but a few unsold lots remaining out of the original subdivision put on the market by the Schader-Wells Company a year ago.

FOR SALE—

Wilshire Bungalow Sacrifice.

This seven-room bungalow is located on a big northwest corner, in a fine neighborhood, and a restricted district. Convenient to the very best car service. It is undoubtedly one of the most attractive and artistic bungalows both interior and exterior in the city. A wide porch extends across the front and clear around one side, with French doors opening into the breakfast-room, and a large mahogany door opening into the living-room. The roses and vines are trained in such a way on the porch as to make a very pleasing effect. The living-room extends across the front, in one end of which is an artistically built-in mantel and fireplace. Opening off the living-room and one bedroom is a large sun sleeping porch or conservatory, open on two sides and covered on top with glass. Two large nicely decorated bedrooms, all conveniently located to modern large bath. Also maid's quarters. Modern cabinet kitchen and daintily decorated breakfast-room. Basement, furnace and automatic water heater. The fixtures are of the best. This is a rare bargain. The place has been held for $7500 and is worth it, but the owner is compelled to sell and we can deliver this place to you at the ridiculously low figure of $5800. There is a first mortgage of $4000 drawing 7 per cent., due in two years. Just one block west of Vermont. Think it over, and call up MR. NORWOOD, House and Lot Department.

FOR SALE—

MAKING IT EASIER FOR MEN WITH SMALL CAPITAL TO OWN AN ORANGE, LEMON OR GRAPEFRUIT GROVE.

We are putting into effect a NEW PLAN for the combination of the Poultry Business with the growing of citrus trees, at FONTANA.

This plan is based upon a careful study of the difficulties and disappointments, the failures and successes of the poultry business in Southern California.

By our plan, the man who engages in the poultry business at Fontana will become a unit in a 25,000-hen-power egg factory. He will get his feed at car lot prices, sell his eggs and broilers above the general market, and will have at all times the advice and assistance of a practical man who has proved that he knows how to make the hen business PAY.

We want some specially diligent men and women as the foundation of this plan, and can quote special terms to the right people.

A good deal of building is now going on at Fontana. There is a steady demand for the services of

A PLUMBER.
A PAINTER.
A PLASTERER.

The opportunity to start a hen ranch at Fontana, to get profitable employment part of the time, and finally to own a bearing citrus grove in one of the best locations in Southern California is open on easy terms to one each in these trades.

FOR SALE—COUNTRY.
SPLENDID UTAH FARM LANDS.
IMPROVED AND UNIMPROVED.
WITH ABUNDANT WATER.

Do you want to raise hogs, or alfalfa, or produce alfalfa seed that pays $40 to $75 per acre NET, or grow wheat or fruit? We have the land you need and want. Why pay $100 or more per acre when you can get the very best with oceans of water at 10 cents per acre per year, at $35 to $70 per acre and on favorable terms. The great land opportunities of the period are in Utah. Buy while you can buy cheap at prices of California lands 5 and 10 years ago.

SOME EXCHANGE.

We have 40 to 320-acre farms, improved, at $85 to $125 per acre, ready to move on to, fine producers, some for part, some all exchange.

One particularly fine 160 acres with 80 in alfalfa, at $100 per acre, clear. Take residence or suburban here.

Splendid 2300 acres, 740 in grain, all fenced, buildings, some stock, $20 per acre, clear, part exchange.

800 acres, 25 miles from Salt Lake City, $30 per acre, clear. Owner will make very fine proposition to man who will furnish money to develop and will go with him to work the land.

SPECIAL BARGAIN.

270 acres, part highly improved, buildings, fenced, horses, cows, full equipment, implements, abundant cheap water, ready to move onto. Only $120 per acre, clear for clear.

FOR SALE—

STOCK RAISING LAND IN THE HEART OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

There are magnificent opportunities for stock raising right in the heart of Southern California, within 35 miles of Los Angeles.

What's the use of paying $100 an acre for land in Utah, which raises crops 5 months in the year, when you can get land, with superabundant water, within 35 miles of Los Angeles, which produces crops 12 months a year, for $200 an acre.

What's the use of going into the super-heated interior valleys to raise hogs, and then losing 25 per cent. (at least) on every hog, on FREIGHT and SHRINKAGE, when you can stay where the sea breezes blow, raise just as many hogs to the acre, get your feed just about as cheap, and when you sell your hog, you get the WHOLE HOG?

We believe that the sale of the remaining irrigable lands of the Chino Rancho, which we are conducting, is going better than any campaign now in progress in Southern California. Our land is staple, standard, surrounded by producing farms, facing on permanent county boulevards. It is LOW IN PRICE, the TERMS ARE VERY EASY, and it appeals to sensible men.

We have sold a lot of land. Have land for sale just as good and just as cheap as any we have sold. Are keeping the price down to make it move fast. Better look into this THIS WEEK. It's a short, easy, pleasant, one-day trip to go see CHINO.

LOW-PRICED WHEAT LAND.
ON THE FAMOUS
LEVAN RIDGE,
OF UTAH.

Why pay more when you can get land in the banner wheat section of the United States for $20 and up.

There is only one JUAB VALLEY.

LEVAN RIDGE WHEAT MADE IT FAMOUS.

Domestic water a proven quantity.

Never a crop failure.

Best railroad facilities.

HERE ARE SOME LEVAN RIDGE BARGAINS—

1340 acres, improved, fenced, wells, spring, for stock and free range. Every acre tillable. Part seeded to grain. Railroad cuts through. Good wagon roads also intersect the place. Neighboring ranches all good grain producers, priced for the poor man who wants a start. We are cutting this into small tracts and making exceptional terms. No "sale contract," but a mortgage covers your balance and you can have all the time you want by paying 6 per cent. interest. The crops bring independence.

HERE IS ANOTHER—

640 acres that we will cut into quarter sections (160's,) and sell to you for $20 per acre. This too, is a Levan Ridge farm, and the terms are right.

FOR SALE—
ABSOLUTELY A SACRIFICE.
200-ACRE FOOTHILL RANCH
SAN GABRIEL VALLEY.
Eureka lemons, Valencias, Navels and Alligator pears. An income producing ranch at a price that will interest you. This ranch, owing to its ideal frostless location, independent water supply and soil, will bring an income per year of $50,000 when full bearing. I do not know of any foothill vacant land with ample water that can be bought at the price asked for this ranch with over 150 acres planted and nearly all bearing. Owner has other interests taking his time and has not the time to look after this valuable ranch and will sacrifice. The ranch is clear and can make any terms desired. Owner has given me the sole agency to sell at the best price possible, but to sell it is what he wants. Make me a proposition, or better yet, let me show you the property first. Good improvements, stock, implements, etc.

FOR EXCHANGE—
If you desire to turn your city property into a good live proposition in the country, read the following. They are exchanges of merit. We make a specialty of country property:

A tract of land in ORANGE COUNTY consisting of nearly 300 acres, over half of which is the finest kind of FROSTLESS citrus, avocado, or vegetable land, with water developed and piped over the property; beautiful landscape; located on paved road. PRICE $70,000. Would take city income to not over $70,000, or would consider clear eastern income to $60,000.

25 acres AT ANAHEIM, good location, abundance of water; all in oranges, mostly Valencias; estimated to be about 3000 packed boxes on the trees; house, barn, etc. PRICE $70,000. Want good city income to fifty or sixty thousand. Owner going away.

320 acres 4 miles west of Alpaugh, Tulare county, silt soil, perfectly level, free from alkali; water stocked in the Homeland Irrigation Co., pumping water available at shallow depth. PRICE $24,000; mortgage $4750. Will exchange for So. Cal. property to same value. Prefer unimproved acreage.

11½ acres CLOSE IN AT ANAHEIM; set solid to VALENCIA ORANGES, excepting about an acre of Navels; part of the grove is bearing, all in fine condition; good pumping plant, house, barn, etc. PRICE $22,000; mtg. $8000; 2½ years, 7 per cent. Will consider city property or cheap land for equity.

20 acres NEAR ANAHEIM, elegant DARK SANDY LOAM; 8 acres set to 2-year-old lemons; 10 acres, 2-year-old Valencias. Cal. house, born, nice bearing orchard for family use; good pumping plant, pipe lines. PRICE $20,000; mortgage $1700. Want improved, or partly improved, ranch in Tulare Co.

100 acres in Perris Valley, 12 miles south of Riverside; 10 acres, good stand of alfalfa, 20 more ready to seed; balance all good land. Abundance of water developed; small house, barn. PRICE $20,000; mtg. $8000, 6 per cent., 2 years to run. Want city property; would consider clear eastern income for equity.

6 acres NEAR FULLERTON, on paved boulevard, ELEGANT DARK SANDY LOAM, set to young Valencia oranges, interset with small fruit and berries; interest in pumping plant, house, barn, etc. PRICE $7000; mtg. $800. Want ranch in San Joaquin Valley or improved place in Salt River Valley, Arizona.

10 acres, 2-year-old apples, one mile from Beaumont; will bear some next year. Water stock, on good roads. Price $6000; mtg. $1200. Wants residence property.

2½ acres BEARING VALENCIA ORANGES, one of the finest little groves in the country; on good street, close in at ANAHEIM; neat little house, small barn, etc. PRICE $4600; mtg. $1000. Will take clear house in S.W. Los Angeles for equity.

IN EXPOSITION PARK.

Music to Suit All Tastes Promised at Band Concert to be Given This Afternoon.

Music to suit all tastes will be played by the Los Angeles City and County Band in Exposition Park this afternoon. The concert will begin at 2 o'clock. All of the buildings and exhibits will be open free to the public.

The concert is the fifth of the popular series inaugurated by the 1915 general committee for entertainment of residents and visitors during exposition year. Following is the programme:

Choral, "O Sanctissima;" "Greater Los Angeles" march (Musso;) "Wine, Women, Song" valse (Strauss;) "La Giaconda" (Ponchielli;) "Fra Diavolo," overture (Auber;) "The Outlook" march (Donatelli;) Echoes from the Metropolitan Operahouse (Tobani,) (a) "Kukuska," Russian Peasant Dance (Lehar;) (b) Indian War Dance (Bellstedt;) "The International Congress," Grand Fantasie (S...sa.)

Finn-Ryan.

FISH ACTS TO PROVE COSTLY.

So Say Dealers in Things Piscatorial.

Prepare to Fight Proposed Legislation.

Prices will Advance if it Goes Through.

"If they legislate against the fishing industry as proposed by the Finn-Ryan companion bills in the State Legislature which will empower the State Fish and Game Commission to control the buying and selling of fish, it merely means that the consumer will have to stand the extra expense," declared W. L. Creciat, president of the Fish Dealers' Association of Southern California yesterday.

"The bill would practically put the State into the business in this line which would mean the establishment of fishing stations, securing fishing equipment, putting into operation distributing markets and becoming general dealers in the finny tribe. The majority of fish dealers would dislike giving up their business because of such a measure," said Mr. Creciat.

What the State should really do, according to the well informed fishermen, is to advance the use of fresh fish among all classes of persons, not only as an excellent food but as a help to solving the high cost of living, since fish, purchased at the real fish markets or distributing stations, is by far the cheapest meat food obtainable. There are practically 200 edible varieties of fish in Southern California waters.

POPULAR VARIETIES.

Of these the most popular and well known are the halibut, sole, sand dab, barracuda, yellowtail, mackerel, sea bass, rock cod, smelt and pompano. The fishermen for barracuda, rock cod, bass and the ordinary varieties of the finny tribe get only from 2 to 4 cents a pound. The distributing stations, of which there are half a dozen in the city, sell to the retail dealer, the same fish at from 5 to 7 cents a pound. The retail dealers charge anywhere from 15 to 30 cents a pound for the same product, bringing the cost to the ultimate consumer almost as high as the cost of meat would be and netting the middleman from 200 to 300 per cent., which is unquestionably an unfair profit.

Retailers declare that there is so little call for fish that the small amount they handle must bring a high figure in order to compensate them for their trouble. Consequently it is up to the consumer to increase the demand for this food and use it not only on Friday or during the short period of Lent, but throughout the year. The consumer can also do much toward keeping the cost down by asking for fish that are in season.

WATCH SEASONS.

During the three or four months that certain varieties of fish are appearing in their great schools off the shores of Southern California, they are very cheap. The other months of they year they advance, but few people know or realize that this is the case and they ask for sole, or for halibut, or any one of the varieties throughout the year no matter what they may be costing.

All of the industries as well as the sports that attach to things piscatorial have been in closer harmony during the past month than at any time in the history of the State. The Rod and Reel Club of Southern California, the Tuna Packers' Assiciation, the Fish Dealers' Association of California have been having joint meetings to which even the commercial fishermen have been invited and matters pertaining to all sides of fishing been amicably discussed.

The fishermen of Southern Californi want the same privileges which those in the waters of the northern part of the State enjoy, the privilege of the drag net, which they declare will not destroy the finny tribe because of the fact that they are all migratory and few spawn in this territory. The trammel net has been substituted largely for the drag, but this increases the cost of the fish. A net of this character costs $500 while a drag net averages about $40. The trammel net takes only the big fish, while the drag net catches practically everything that comes before it, the size of the catch decreasing the cost of operation.

DESIRE CATALINA.

Down at Newport, the drag net is in vogue and annually brings in 200,000 pounds of smelt a season. When the seine has been ruled out, the price of smelt will undoubtedly go to 5 cents and more a pound, increasing the value of the fish at least one-third, which comes out of the pocket of the ultimate consumer. The same is true of other varieties.

One of the objects which the fishermen are trying to accomplish at this time and also one of the reasons they are not opposing the majority of legislation that is up, is to secure the reopening of the Catalina district, allowing them to fish again with nets, something that has for several years been prohibited in order to give the waters around the island, entirely to the sportsmen who care little for the food value of their catch, usually destroying these or having them mounted as trophies.

WILD "NICKEL CHASER."

"Jitney" Bus in Many Smash-ups Before Curb Stops It—Two Men are Injured.

Running amuck at Seventh street and Towne avenue yesterday afternoon, a "jitney" bus smashed a delivery wagon and another automobile and sent its driver and one passenger to the Receiving Hospital with severe cuts and bruises. John F. Cavett, real estate dealer with offices in the I. N. Van Nuys Building, sustained a deep cut over the left eye that took ten stitches to close, and his left shin was minus several square inches of epidermis. F. E. Allen of No. 516 South Ditman avenue, driver of the "jitney," had several deep cuts on both hands and wrists.

Witnesses said the series of collisions started when a horse attached to a delivery wagon swung around the corner and its head was struck by the windshield of the "jitney." The windshield crashed down over the steering wheel and the automobile "ran wild," sideswiping the delivery wagon and then cutting across the street just in time to catch the front lamps and fenders of another automobile and bringing up against the curb. Cavett was thrown to the pavement, while Allen was pinned under the steering wheel.

NOISE FROM TOMB OF "PRESS CLUB."

LEFT BY MEMBERS BURIED IN DEBT, SINGS NEW DITTY OF DOLLARS.

The recently defunct so-called Press Club of Los Angeles has made a noise in its coffin. The board of directors now frankly announces that after the demise last August, the members—who were in large part almost anything but bona fide newspaper men—forgot to pay the post-mortem expenses of about $3600. So the club is to be plucked from its grave and installed in rooms at No. 814 South Spring street and the unwary of almost any calling may find themselves paying $25 or so of funeral debts still outstanding.

The story of events following the closing of the debt-infested old poker rooms at No. 327 South Hill street is sad, as the directors relate it. There was $3600 to be paid. An assessment of $10 was levied against each member, to meet the loss charged to "operating expenses," that previously were "exceeding the income." Here's the sad part: "There was practically no response." So, say the directors, they paid off $2800 by "other measures." That leaves $800 unpaid.

The old members, who left the sinking ship, are officially declared quitters and out of it. That leaves a "club" with some directors, some furniture and some debts. But it is confidently expected the "club" will begin its second incarnation debtless. How? Well, the old members will be forgiven and may come back if they will pay monthly dues henceforth. The new ones may pay initiation fees, as in the past. And a very cordial invitation to join is out. Business men and others with $25 to throw away to become "associated" are particularly "wanted."

These are reminded of the fact that a lot of money paid over for membership heretofore disappeared when crooked collectors of the club dropped from sight.

Nothing is said as to how $2800 was paid off nor, definitely, how the club is to be reborn free from debt. Some creditors are not so secretive and things have been said about pleas that debts be forgiven because the debtors are "journalists" of "infloo-ence."

The remaining heads of the "busted" non-press Press Club have gone to the extremity of turning a professional promoter loose on the unsuspecting public to rehabilitate the outfit.

BETTER BABIES' PRIZES GIVEN.

SMALL BOY AWARDED PERFECT SCORE BY JUDGES.

Others Reach Near Ideal Mark in Official Markings of Recent Congress—Many Gather to Congratulate Proud Parents—May Instruct Permanently in Child Culture.

Announcement of the official score and awards for the "Better Babies Congress," held in the Mozart Theater March 8 to 14, was made yesterday at the Lankershim Hotel by Mrs. L. L. Livingston, Mrs. Harriet Barry and Mrs. George Baker Anderson, who were associated in the promotion of this show in which there were more than 700 babies entered as contestants.

Robert F. Bonner, sixteen months old, scored 100 points in Division 1, and had a close follower in Sherley May Listenwalter, seven months, who scored 99.5 in the same division.

To the mothers of these two prize infants there were presented yesterday "Better Babies" medals of bronze, designed by Laura Garden, sculptor.

The 100-point baby, Robert F. Bonner, is the son of Elmer and Emma Bonner, No. 720 Manzanita street, Pasadena. Both are Americans.

Sherley May Listenwalter, the 99.5-point baby in the first division, also has American parents, C. E. and Daisy Listenwalter of No. 824 Kensington road.

The mothers of these babies were showered with congratulations yesterday by the persons attracted to the Lankershim to witness the announcement of the results of the contest.

Six other babies were awarded diplomas for their high scores in the various divisions.

Charles R. Minton, in the first division, scores 99 points. He is the son of Charles and Ada Minton, No. 1423 North Main street. Mr. Minton is a merchant.

Two babies in the second division scored sufficiently high to receive diplomas. They are Dorothy England, with a score of 99, daughter of George and Blanche England of Inglewood, where Mr. England is engaged in poultry raising, and Margaret Louise Dorr, with a score of 99.2, daughter of George William and Mary Dorr, No. 443 East Thirty-first street. The father is a postal clerk.

In the third division, Marian E. McDougall scored 98.8 points. She is the daughter of Stuart and Elsie McDougall of No. 1417 Normada street. The father is a clerk.

Alma Louise Brown was the score winner in the fourth division, receiving a marking of 99 points. She has for her parents Charles and Anna Brown, No. 69 Hammond street, Pasadena. Her father is a farmer.

Virginia Langstaff was the winner in the fifth division, with 99 points. Her parents are W. E. and Flora Langstaff, No. 115 Wooster street, Pasadena. Her father is an electrician.

Mrs. Livingston, who came to Los Angeles to conduct the "Better Babies Congress," was assisted in this work by Mrs. Harriet Barry, editor of the Woman's Bulletin, and Mrs. George Baker Anderson, president of the Woman's Alliance. It was stated at the gathering yesterday that the outcome of this baby contest would be the organization within a short time of the "Central Parents' Educational Bureau," for the purpose of giving practical instruction on child-culture to fathers and mothers. At the recent contest the judges were Dr. A. J. Scott and Dr. H. C. Rees.

FRENCH PAPER CHANGE.

"L'Union Nouvelle," a local French newspaper, published in Los Angeles since 1879, which is one of the oldest papers of the Southwest and was until recently the property of L'International Publishing Company, has changed ownership. The editors now are Theo Gyger and Maurice Fog. Mr. Gyger has been connected with the paper over ten years, and Mr. Fog has been in the real estate business for several years.

PROMISED LAND FOR THE SWISS.

Seek Lower California as a Mecca for Farmers.

Scientists Come to Inspect Region's Advantages.

Forerunners of Big Influx After the War.

The first indication of an extensive invasion of Lower California by a European people developed yesterday with the arrival of a party of Swiss scientists and mineral experts at the Auditorium Hotel. They are the vanguard of hosts of immigrants who will come if these scientists find the land as they desire it.

Dr. Heinrich Arnold of Lucerne, heads the party and represents the money interests behind the project. With him are Drs. D. A. Heim, Friederich Erstrich, P. O. Hartmann, E. Kluth, O. B. Schibler, and Robert H. Schnyder. The entire party comes from Switzerland and includes among its members some of the most widely known scientists of that small republic. They will leave for Magdalena Bay Wednesday next on board the gasoline schooner Mary Dodge.

Dr. Arnold and his party were expected in Los Angeles months ago. Because of the war, however, they were delayed, having the greatest difficulty in getting to this country. A week ago they passed through Los Angeles, going into the Imperial Valley, where they made observations of the rich soil and fine climatic conditions. This was done so as to be able to make comparisons upon their arrival on the peninsula.

INTERESTING PROPERTY.

The land to be investigated is that strip of coast 550 miles long and eighteen miles wide that lies between parallels 23.50 and 29 deg. north latitude. This property was formerly owned by the Chartered Company of Lower California, and was at one time the subject of much interest. It was said that the Japanese government, through several steamship officials, was trying to purchase it for a coaling station. Since that time the ownership has passed into the hands of the Magdalena Bay Company, whose principals are John E. Blackman of Los Angeles, John Henry of Pasadena and Delbert J. Haff of Kansas City.

It is the intention of Dr. Arnold to form a colonization company in Switzerland and to bring immigrants to this new land in families. Each family will be given so much land to homestead. The bringing of the immigrants is to be commenced upon the return of the scientists from Mexico. It is confidently expected they will report favorably on the matter. The expedition will be gone three months or more.

The class of Swiss farmers to be brought in by Arnold Brothers & Co. is to be of the best. Intensive farming such as is done in little Switzerland, is expected to develop that part of Lower California into another Imperial Valley.

Some time ago the Mexican government was asked whether it would object to the Swiss people as immigrants. The answer was that no objection would be raised whatever. Despite the fact that the government of Mexico has changed much since then it is thought no matter which government is in power, the stolid, industrious Swiss farmers will be made welcome.

Dr. Arnold could not be located yesterday. The others in the party speak very little English. They admitted, however, that they are on the way to Magdalena Bay.

MUCH WAR TROUBLE.

In broken English they told of their trouble in getting to America, and of conditions in Switzerland.

"We are a divided people," one of their number said. "You understand, three different races make up the Swiss republic. They are German, French and Italian.

"We have an Italian as president, a Frenchman as Minister of War and a German as General in Chief of our army. No matter which way the war goes, we lose. And if we are drawn into this trouble it will mean a terrible civil war and a disintegration of the Swiss nation."

"But we don't have to stay awake nights watching for submarines," added one of the party.

It is generally understood by all members of the party that Lower California will be the Mecca of their countrymen after this war. They seem to think that the mighty conflict will be over by fall or early winter. Large numbers of Europeans will come to this country to escape the terrors of the reconstruction period that is bound to follow. Lower California, with its great stretches of undeveloped territory, seems to be the place they look to. It has been demonstrated by other scientists, who have investigated this land, that water may be found in abundance by digging. There are several demonstration wells on the land.

The center of this new community will undoubtedly be Magdalena Bay. The natural shipping facilities offered by this great harbor and its excellent location in regard to the Panama canal, will enable the producers of that region to ship their goods direct to all parts of the world.

Mr. Blackman stated some time ago that he had several demonstration ranches in operation growing all manner of fruits and vegetables.

KIND TO THEM.

Widow and Her Blonde Daughter Find Much Consideration from World in Many Travels.

The world is full of consideration and kindly interest for a widow and her attractive blonde daughter. Such has been the personal experience of Mrs. E. A. Dimmick and Miss Elizabeth Dimmick of Davenport, Iowa, who are guests at the Clark.

"I have lots of fun traveling around with my daughter," Mrs. Dimmick said yesterday. "We make a combination which seems to be appealing. The reason for this I do not quite understand. I notice, however, that when Elizabeth is not with me people are not so considerate. Since my husband's death we have traveled a great deal. In winter we go to the winter resorts and in summer to the summer resorts."

Miss Elizabeth is this side of 20. She has finished at a finishing school. She plays the piano and sings and knows something of golf and tennis. She says she is not interested in admirers.

WAR SPECIALTY A SENSATION.

BETHLEHEM STEEL RISES BY LEAPS AND BOUNDS.

Company's Annual Statement Showing Earnings in Excess of Thirty Per Cent. Applicable to Dividends Causes Tremendous Advance on the New York Market.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 27.—One of the so-called war specialists, Bethlehem Steel, furnished the sensation of today's active and broad market. On publication of the company's annual statement showing earnings in excess of 30 per cent. applicable to dividends the stock rose by leaps and bounds from yesterday's closing price of 67⅛ to 76, an advance of 3 points from its previous record, closing with a net gain of 7⅝ points. Dealings in Bethlehem Steel approximate 30,000 shares, making it the second most active issue of the session. General Motors also made another spectacular advance to the new high price of 120, a gain of 8 points, but yielded part of its gain in the later dealings. United States Steel, which changed hands in blocks of a thousand or more shares, sold up to 49⅝, its best quotation since the suspension of dividends. Anthracite shares, New Haven, Canadian Pacific and Great Northern led the better-known issues. Profit-taking in the latter dealings caused general recessions from best quotations at the close. The bank statement disclosed an actual cash gain of almost $15,000,000, and a reserve increase of slightly more than $10,000,000. Total sales of stocks amounted to 264,000 shares. Bonds were firm, New Central 6s being the only exception. Total sales (par value) were $1,550,000. United States bonds unchanged on call during the week.

COMMERCIAL.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

During the past week eggs have been lower in price than at any time in ten years in the same period. In 1913 the market came within 1 cent of the same basis and in 1911 also, but in the other years the quotations were as much as 8 cents higher. The local market might have gone even lower had it not been for the very steady and determined effort in the north in preventing a decline to less than 20 cents. Throughout the week there the quotation has been 21 cents. Contracts for Petaluma eggs for storage have been made on this basis and it is not probable that speculation will so absolutely stop as to cause a drop of the bottom out of the market. Receipts of eggs yesterday were 940 cases.

Butter has not as much as wavered during the past week, either here or north, creamery extra holding fast at 23 cents. Receipts were 47,280 pounds. Cheese has on the other hand been very uncertain and a daily change has been the rule for northern full cream. Receipts were 3056 pounds.

A slight advance was reported in the price of Idaho russets, these now selling up to $1.75 per hundred. The market is very firm at this time because of the small arrival during the week. Only 1949 sacks were reported in yesterday and there is little if any surplus stock to be found about Los Angeles. Onion arrivals were only twelve sacks. Some scrub Bermudas from Imperial Valley were reported in, but the good stock is not expected before another two weeks when both Imperial and Texas will start shipments. No changes were reported in beans.

Asparagus was slightly lower and this week will find the market down to a very reasonable price where consumption will become general. Spinach is plentiful and others of the spring vegetables are arriving.

WHEAT MARKET AGAIN NERVOUS.

INTERVENTION BY ITALY ONCE MORE IS RUMORED.

Report that Other Neutral Powers are Once More on Verge of Coming into the War Causes Great Apprehension Among the Speculators in Chicago Pit.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, March 27.—Notwithstanding indications considerable export business was being done under cover, bears ruled wheat today the greater part of the time. Intervention by Italy and other heretofore neutral powers was reported to have approached a little closer, and the market finished nervous at ⅛ to 1⅛ net decline. Other staples, too, all showed losses—corn, ⅝ to ⅝@½; oats, a shade to 1¼, and provisions 5 to 15. Corn showed heaviness throughout the session. Oats were unloaded quite freely. Liberal estimates of hog arrivals next week made provisions sag despite steadiness at the start.

CASH.

Corn, No. 2, yellow, nominal; No. 3, yellow, 70½; No. 3, white, 70½. Rye, No. 2, nominal. Barley, 71@78. Timothy, 4.50@6.25; clover, 8.00@12.25.

of the household displays are found in four of the eleven palaces in the central architectural group. These are the Palaces of Varied Industries, Manufactures, Liberal Arts, and Educational and Social Economy. Moreover, many of the foreign nations and a number of the States have displays of this nature in their own pavilions, as well as in the large exhibit palaces.

The exhibits in the Palace of Varied Industries and the Palace of Manufactures are closely related. In these two buildings are found displays of furniture, furnishings, fittings, carpets, heating, ventilating and sanitary apparatus and devices, hardware, tapestries, cutlery, and, in fact, most of the things that help to make a modern home in a civilized land.

Here, more than half of the space is given over to exhibits of appliances or materials that have to do with either the inside or the outside of the household. The furniture displays are especially complete, both foreign and domestic firms being well represented.

ENGLISH PERIODS.

One of the most noteworthy furniture exhibits is made by an American firm, presenting four rooms furnished in reproductions of English periods. Each room is distinctive and yet all of the colors of the different rooms blend well together. This exhibit is a good example of American work and interior color planning. The bedroom is in Chippendale design in old ivory finish. The wall paper is lavender; the drapes, wistaria; the rug and floor coverings, gray; and the fixtures, old ivory. The dining-room is Jacobean—Charles II period. The paneled walls are gray. The brown velour and silk drapes harmonize beautifully with the dark wood and dull walls. Cane panels are used in the chair backs. The ceiling is beamed and the panels of the walls are finished in the same shade as the furniture. The fixtures are dull brass. The den or reception hall is antique mahogany in an Adam design. The furniture is dark cane: the wall, dull gray. The living-room is the most beautiful of the collection. The color scheme is the same as in the reception hall, but the furniture is of the Georgian period. The woodwork is ivory and the hangings are blue velour. This blends well with the antique mahogany finish of the furniture. There are brass candelabra on the mantel and a carved floor lamp throws a rich glow over the whole room.

In the Palace of Varied Industries a San Francisco dry good company has a Marie Antoinette-room, which exhibits the work of the firm's interior decorating department. There is a good bit of gold used in this room and some of the pieces are antiques, but most of the furniture is of American workmanship.

In the Palace of Manufactures, an eastern concern has a splendid showing of the latest designs in upholstered furniture. In the collection are a music-room suite in gold, upholstered in pale blue silk damask and an Adam suite with Chinese Chippendale motif, upholstered in old rose silk damask. There is also a reproduction of the Charles II period, upholstered most luxuriously in rose silk Venetian velvet with gold applique on the cushions. The colors in all these pieces are exquisite. It would be difficult to find better exhibits of American upholstering.

HANDCRAFT'S PLACE.

Handcraft furniture has its place among the household exhibits. Recent years have seen a revival in this country of handmade house furnishings, and as the interest has grown the work has improved until at the present time only the most finished products are considered worthy of attention. One of these exhibits is that of the Biltmore estate industries in the Palace of Varied Industries. This display represents the work done by residents upon the Biltmore estate in Western North Carolina. Mrs. George Vanderbilt, who owns the estate, has taken an active interest in the work and personally directs the school. The industries originated in simple form of handiwork taught as part of the educational system established upon the estate. A number of the boys and girls soon showed a marked capacity for woodworking and carving, and they now design and produce not only such articles as book racks, glove boxes, trays and candlesticks, but all kinds of living-room and bedroom furniture. The woods used are principally walnut, oak, maple, cherry, and mahogany, all except the last named being native to that region. The exhibit room is most attractive, being built of redwood bark to represent a mountain cabin. This setting forms a splendid background for the various natural colors of the different pieces of furniture.

Another exhibit of handcraft furniture and hand-made household furnishings is found in the arts and crafts section in the Varied Industries Palace. This is a collection made of the finest products from the hands of representative workers in the United States. Upon Charles Frank Ingerson the interior decorator and superintendent of this department, depended the work of selection and arrangement of this collective display of wood dreams of many artists, each dream wrought into practical materials and forms. Pages could be written about each booth in this wonderful assemblage of the best of American handcraft. Here are none of the crudities so commonly associated with handmade furniture and hand-worked metals. Each object is finished in detail, design and workmanship.

THE HERTER LOOMS.

Of all the exhibits of household furnishings none is more extensive or magnificent than that of the Herter Looms in the Varied Industries Palace. It is worthy of the attention excited for here is shown one of the most notable collections of American woven textiles ever assembled into artistic scheme of decoration. It is almost beyond belief that these magnificent tapestries with all the appearance of fourteenth century antiques, this rich Aubusson carpet, these lovely hangings and furnishings are the products of American enterprise, representing an industry not yet ten years old. The walls are covered with tapestries typical of the Herter Looms, the finest single piece in the collection being the large wall tapestry illustrating the legend of "The Pot of Basil." This is indeed a masterpiece and is worthy of Albert Herter, the great mural painter. Mr. Herter's interest in tapestry was aroused at a moment when many magnificent homes were in the building here in the United States, and a more opportune time for the revival of an art aiming at the embellishment of the home could not have been chosen. In the case of American tapestries, Mr. Herter's transparent effects, with patterns woven upon the warp, and the simple hangings devoid of pattern, except as the loose open stitch is in itself a species of design, or ornamented with bands and stripes of contrasting color, are undoubtedly America's contribution to this textile art.

A list of the household furniture exhibits is not complete without the mention of the intensely interesting department furnished by students from the Philippines. This wonderful collection made entirely by native students and the beautiful designs and woods combined with the finished workmanship are certainly a revelation to the average visitor to the Palace of Education where this exhibit is to be seen. When the government of the United States took the Philippines, most of the industries, such as furniture-making, basketry, and weaving had been carried on in the homes of the islanders, but after our occupation of the islands, the trades were taken out of the homes and the parents who had formerly done the work were employed in the schools as teachers for the younger generation. The native woods used in the household furniture are marvelous in color and grain and the designs chosen are aptly suitable to these strange shadings. The very names of the woods, so unfamiliar to our occidental ears, seem to hold mystery and charm, and the visitor is loath to leave the matting-covered walls and the soft-tongued native teachers who tell so enthusiastically of the accomplishments of the students of the islands. When you do finally go on your way you struggle unsuccessfully to remember if it is the big table that is made of Narra—or is it Camagon?—and if that wonderful bedroom set is made of Accle or—well, in any case, they are all so lovely that any of us would be happy to possess just one piece made of the woods that combine so strangely the hardness of marble and the soft colors of rare velvets.

JAPANESE PRODUCTS.

After leaving the Philippine exhibit we go to the Palace of Manufactures where a Japanese collective display of household furnishings of a fine art character are to be seen, over 200 merchants from Japan having wares in this space. Each firm is represented by its finest products, in some cases there being only a half-dozen pieces, as in a pottery exhibit, and again there is a large department devoted to mattings that run from the coarsest straw coverings to the silkiest cloth-like weaves. But it is before the screens and draperies that one would be likely to spend the longest time. These are marvels of embroidery and painting, in many instances precious metals and semi-precious stones being worked into the designs to carry out a particular color scheme. Often it is difficult to believe that the embroideries are not paintings, so fine is the workmanship.

Among the Cloisonne vases are a pair that are attracting widespread attention, not only because of the fineness of the ware but because of the combination of colors used. These vases stand about two feet high and are a deep bronze tone with shadings of rose, dark red and dull blue. They have been given a good place in the display and deservedly so.

One can give days to this collective exhibit as there are thousands of objects shown, each piece noteworthy, and no two alike. Several of the firms have given a great deal of room to porcelain and pottery, but these exhibits are not so distinctive in character as is the department of Copenhagen ware in the Danish exhibit in the Palace of Varied Industries.

THE CLEAN BLUE.

This blue ware is so clean looking, so suggestive of all that is best and fine in the Scandinavian countries, that one unconsciously thinks of sweet-smelling cupboards and well-swept rooms. Each of the pieces in this collection is signed by the artist who executed the design. Besides the tableware there is a number of large vases and bowls, suitable for big flower masses and sprays. As in the Japanese dispaly there are Japanese to explain and answer inquiries, so in the Copenhagen exhibit there are Danish men and women who are familiar with the pottery and can talk understandingly of the various kinds of porcelain and the different processes of glazing, designing, etc.

Not very far from the Danish display in the same building is the pavilion of a famous silver company. Along the back walls are showcases of silverware now most generally in use in the typical American home, and on tables in the center of the space are full services of dinner and luncheon silver. The table arrangements are perfect in detail, fine linen and flower pieces being used to give the inviting displays completeness. At the front of the booth in an allegorical group designed and made by the company's artists and wrought from those metals which they use to the largest extent in the production of their wares, such as pure silver, pure gold, white metal and nickel silver. This group in commemoration of the opening of the Panama Canal, is a tribute to the spirit, achievements and destiny of the West.

In every home, whether it be in East India or in Western California, the floor coverings are important factors in the furnishings, and this part of the equipment is well represented at the exposition by every imaginable variety of carpets, rugs, mattings and wild animal skins. Each has its place. The Mohammedan prayer rug and the American Indian blanket are both housed in the same building. In the Palace of Varied Industries is a pavilion that is daily visited by throngs interested in the manufacture of Navajo Indian blankets. Here a Pacific Coast woolen mill is weaving the rare charm and queer beauty of Indian art by modern methods. Into these rugs and blankets go the brilliant and resplendant colors so dear to the Indian heart, the colors that are an expression of his interpretation of life. Here are the green of the earth, the blue of the heavens, the flight of a flock of birds, the sweep of the winds, and the splash of the waves. All the beauty and significance originally woven into fabrics by the Indian on his crude hand loom are retained in these art craft, machine-made blankets. Strange as it may seem, the principal Indian tribes in this country are supplied with these fabrics. The designs, made by men steeped in Indian lore, retain the most cherished native patterns.

WILD ANIMAL SKINS.

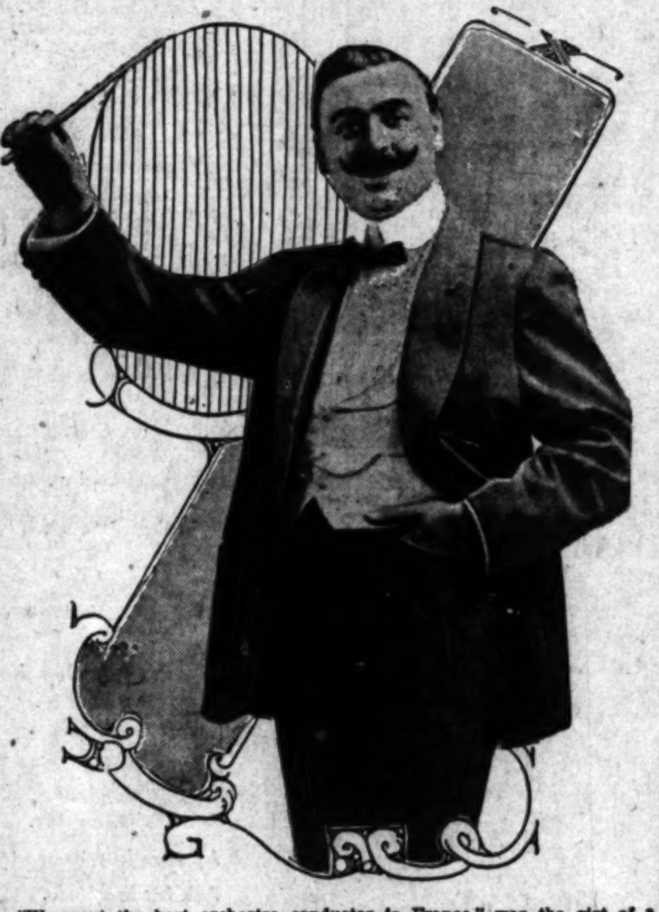
A few steps away from the looms that are turning out these Indian rugs are displayed floor coverings of another character. Here a New York company has a wonderful exhibit of man's ancient shelter and protection, the skins of wild animals in all their natural markings and shapes. Royal Bengal tigers, Nubian lions, Mongolian leopards, Alaskan polar bears, side by side vie with each other for supremacy in this beauty show of wild beasts. But magnificent as these are, there are two skins on display that hold first place for rareness. These, the snow leopard and the silver-tip bear, both from Siberia, have posts of honor. Although these skins are rugs, and so part of a household display, people in no way interested in house furnishings stand fascinated before their gorgeous beauty, for these strange animals suggest so vividly the romance of the hunt and the mystery of far lands.

A house to be a dwelling place for modern man, must have a kitchen, and the more advanced the stage of civilization the more complete is the kitchen equipment. This is wonderfully demonstrated at the exposition, for there models of villages in the Philippines show the primitive cooking methods of the various tribes, and but a few steps away one finds kitchens fitted with all the latest appliances and apparatus now in use in the modern home. There are several model kitchens in the large exhibit palaces which show the latest devices for the saving of labor, time and money.

Of all the new appliances of this nature that are being demonstrated, the electrical ones are arousing the greatest enthusiasm, for more and more is this great and mysterious power being made to serve the practical needs of the house wife. Here are electrical dish washers, refrigerators, stoves, cookers, heaters, cleaners, sewing and washing machines, all merrily turning out the work thats previously spelt hours of aching muscles for countless women.

A great deal has been written and said about the disappearance of the home from our modern civilization, but every isle in every exhibit palace, every room in every foreign pavilion, every corner in the State buildings, has some suggestion or display of household equipment, and it would seem that this exposition is, above all things, an exposition of the methods of right living.

Leaves War to Play at the Exposition.



"We want the best orchestra conductor in France," was the gist of a cable message sent to Paris before the opening of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, by George W. Stewart, director of music for the exposition.

And in response to that appeal the French government released from war service Auguste Bosc and sent him to America. The United States owes more than one debt of gratitude to its sister republic in Europe, but the loan of the great orchestra director plunges us still more deeply in debt. France paused in the midst of a colossal war to pick from the bloody trenches one of her greatest musicians and sent him to us.

Auguste Bosc is now, conjointly with Max Bendix, conductor of the official exposition orchestra, acknowledged to be the greatest in America. In alternation with Bendix he waves his baton before an orchestra of eighty picked musicians, the best to be found in this country, and the harmony that results is of itself sufficient reason for the greatest exposition in history.

Bosc is thoroughly Parisian. Though he speaks no English, he has made himself the friend of everyone with whom he has come in contact at the exposition. As a musician and orchestra conductor he is acknowledged to have no superiors and few equals. He is a man in keeping with the exposition, itself the biggest thing of the kind ever held.

NEW MEXICAN EXHIBIT RICH IN TRADITIONS.

Relics of Ancient Past Teach Lessons of Indian Life and Customs.

Modern Americans Permitted Glimpses into Distant Days When Southwest Teemed with Other Peoples. Educational Conditions Reversed in Mission Which Once Taught Red Men of White Brothers.

BY MARY S. GULLIVER.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, March 27.—One of the most picturesque structures of the San Diego exposition is the New Mexico building, a low, rambling adobe structure with two square towers at one end and massive vigas or rafters extending through the walls. It is a replica of the ancient mission built by the Indians on the Rock of Acoma centuries ago, and the architecture and the nature of the exhibits within are distinctly typical of New Mexico, of New Mexico's Indian traditions, frontier life and the material resources in which the State is rich.

The location of the building is striking, and the building harmonizes with its setting as it stands on the edge of the deep Canyon Cabrillo and overlooks the ocean. To reach the mission, the original of this building, the Indians climbed up a steep mountain trail, sometimes going hand over hand, for 375 feet to the top of the mesa, where their village still stands, but, although the exposition replica stands on the canyon edge, one does not climb any trail or even steps to reach it. Instead the entrance is on a modern asphalted street.

The Indian legend on the Rock of Acoma is interesting. Two miles apart are two high mesas in Valencia county, New Mexico, the Enchanted Mesa and the Rock of Acoma. The Indian tradition has it that the two mesas were one ages ago, but that, through the wrath of the Fire God, there was an upheaval that separated the rock and made two mesas.

Proof that they had lived on the Enchanted Mesa, now uninhabited, is that ancient pottery is now found there with other Indian relics. Acoma, the old Indian village on top of the rock, is the oldest inhabited Indian village in the United States.

FAITHFULLY REPRODUCED.

In one wing of the building the old chapel of the mission has been faithfully reproduced, with its massive rafters, carved chancel and old paintings brought to the New World by the Spaniards. One of the most interesting of these antique pictures is one of the Christ and the elders, which was taken from the mission at Taos during the massacre there in 1680. The picture shows a saber thrust as the padre, in escaping, had wrapped the canvass about him, and met his death in his attempt to save it. Another old painting shows one picture painted on top of a first one and illustrates how the artist utilized the valuable canvass.

The ancient chapel at Acoma was used by the Franciscan friars to educate the Indians in the ways of the white man and convert them to the white man's religion, and now, by a strange coincidence, this replica of the ancient chapel is utilized by the progressive New Mexican residents to educate the white man in the ways of the Indian and Indian life. For the chapel-room is used as a lecture-room, and motion pictures of Indian life, Indian ceremonials and dances, as well as lectures and pictures showing the resources of the State, attract hundreds of interested visitors each day.

And if one listens to the questions asked the men in charge of the exhibit the need of this educational feature is soon realized, for the ideas of many of the visitors concerning New Mexico are surely vague and glimmering. One woman was overheard eagerly explaining to her friend that the pattern of a certain prize Navajo blanket on display was the Indian's idea of the map of New Mexico.

WONDERS WHY.

"And who would think that the Indian would make a map like that in his weaving?" said she as she pointed to the swastikas and designs on the beautiful black and gray blanket. Another visitor, a man, said he was a wampum collector, and asked to see the wampum collection. The polite curator, thinking he meant mineral, explained that while they had almost every mineral known in New Mexico, and had samples of these in this building, there was no wampum. When he at last understood that the visitor meant the Indian substitute for money he explained that Indians of the north used shell, or wampum, for coin, but that these Indians of the Southwest had always used the crude ore or metal for exchange in bartering, as they had known of the ores in the ground from early times.

A sweet-faced old lady, greatly interested in the Indian pictures and relics, kept commenting on the troublous times in the country where the exhibit came from, and finally asked the curator who was president. The gentleman in charge, Col. A. H. Koehler, Jr., the commissioner, was busily engaged in dictating to a stenographer, so did not grasp at first what she meant, and answered: "Col. Twitchell is president," meaning president of the Exposition Commission.

"And are you a Villista or a Carranza follower?" continued the questioner, for she was certain that New Mexico was a part of the country at war.

"No, madam, I am a Democrat, and that is just as dangerous in our State," said Col. Koehler.

So the New Mexico commissioners and assistants continue in their educational and missionary work in the hope that by the time the exposition is closed the public will know that New Mexico is not a place where Indian tribes war and hunt, and cowboys shoot up the town, but is the home of one of the best State universities in the country, a splendid agricultural college, a fine military school, of up-to-date city and county schools, and where the Indians live peaceably on government reservations.

SCHOOL CHILDREN.

Those in charge of the exhibit are making an especial effort to cater to the school children, although sometimes with discouraging results.

Recently, after the visit of many children on a day set aside for them, the curator in charge of the model-room, where clay models are shown of the early missions in New Mexico, found that almost everything movable had been carried off by the enthusiastic yougsters. Miniature models of Indians so pleased the small fry that not a single Indian was left about the tiny missions, while small Navajo blankets hung about a miniature reservation shared the same fate.

This model room is one of the most interesting features of New Mexico's exhibit. Californians are apt to think of missions as belonging peculiarly to California, but New Mexico has missions, and very old ones, at that. Among these clay models replicas of the ruins and missions in New Mexico is an interesting model of the ancient communal pueblo dwellings and the old Pecos mission, now in ruins; a model of the Puebla Quarai and the Franciscan mission, with the entrance through the roof for protection from the Indians. This was built in 1630.

The oldest church in the country, the chapel of San Miguel, built in 1620, which is still in use, is reproduced here. The traces of the prehistoric homes, communal dwellings, and the kiva where they held their ceremonials, of Pajarito Park, are reproduced just as they are found near Santa Fe, as well as the village of Acoma and the Acoma mission. Bent's fort, built for protection of travelers on the frontier, and the famous home of Lucien B. Maxwell, on the Santa Fe trail, where all travelers, whether rich or poor, friends or strangers to Maxwell, were entertained, are also shown here in miniature.

RICH IN RELICS.

The New Mexico Building is rich in traditional relics, pictures and curios, which are associated with the interesting Indian legends and traditions of the country. One can scarcely mention an article in the exhibit about Heavy Traffic.

LARGER CROWDS COMING LATER IN THE SPRING.

SAN DIEGO, March 27.—Although Santa Fe Railroad officials assert that the road is bringing an average of 2500 passengers daily into San Diego they do not expect the greatest rush of visitors to the San Diego Exposition will come before June.

"It has always been the experience of railroads, when special events are on, such as the two California Expositions, that the bulk of the travel does not get under way until vacation time," says W. B. Frisbie, passenger agent for the Santa Fe here. "In June the travel to California will be without precedent. Then the parents will come with their families or family affairs will be so arranged that some of the members may leave their homes. This cannot be done with children attending school, so as soon as the schools are dismissed for vacation there will be a great rush."

All passenger traffic records for San Diego were shattered Wednesday when the Santa Fe's afternoon train rolled into this city with 1303 persons aboard. This train came in two sections.

Additional through train service between San Diego and San Bernardino to facilitate exposition travel is contemplated by the Santa Fe, which is preparing a new time card to be effective April 1. An entirely new train to leave here in the evening and reaching San Bernardino late at night will be put on.

The Santa Fe is not the only mode of transportation having a hand in bringing exposition visitors here, for many are coming on the steamships which ply up and down the coast. The steamship companies report the travel at this time to be the heaviest since the exposition's opening and these also look for a sharp increase this summer.

One interesting circumstance is noted by the banks, the sharp increasing of checking and savings account which came immediately after the rates went into effect. This is interpreted as meaning a prolonged stay in California, sufficient not only to study the two expositions but also to study the west country and in many cases to remain permanently.

The weather is friendly, and the rainy season is now thought to be about over as not a drop has fallen in two weeks. This has proved an important factor in swelling attendance at the exposition, now at the top point since the auspicious opening days.

Salute!

SEVENTEEN GUNS PRIMED TO FIRE.

VICE-PRESIDENT TO RECEIVE ROYAL WELCOME.

Troops and Battleships Prepared to Honor Marshall Tomorrow as He Visits Panama-California Exposition—Cabinet Officials also to be Prominent Visitors.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIEGO, March 27.—A military demonstration, which for splendor and numbers probably will be without parallel on the Pacific Coast this year, will be given at the San Diego exposition Monday in honor of the visit of Vice-President Marshall and his party. The Vice-President will arrive in San Diego Sunday night and the following morning there will be an outpouring of troops that will greatly resemble mobilization in war time.

Every military organization from Fort Rosecrans, the entrance to San Diego harbor; a squadron of the First Cavalry and battalion of marine corps stationed on the exposition grounds, and the complete crews of sailors and marines from several ships of the Pacific fleet, commanded by Admiral Thomas Benton Howard, will take part in the parade and review which will be given for Marshall.

There will be at least six military bands in the parade, and the long procession will march across the Cabrillo bridge, making a picture of martial tone. As the huge column passes the Vice-President he will review it and then the guns aboard the warships and at Fort Rosecrans will boom their salute.

Marshall is coming to the San Diego exposition as the representative of President Wilson, and in an address on the grounds is expected to discuss western development and many questions pertinent to the financial condition of the country at this time. This will be the first time that Southern California will have had an opportunity to hear directly from the administration.

In Vice-President Marshall's party will be Secretary of the Interior Lane, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt, and Senator James D. Phelan. The officials will be accompanied by their wives.

The visit at this time of Secretary Lane has a particular significance, for he will study important reclamation and irrigation projects in Southern California. Some of these questions have been before Congress at its last session and Lane intends to become more familiar with them on this visit. It has been arranged so that he can travel through the back country in an automobile, this part of his trip having been planned by Congressman Kettner at Lane's request.

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, in coming to San Diego, will review the plans proposed by the Congressional party on its recent visit here. These were that a great naval base be established at San Diego, that Southern California should have more recognition in the question of warships, that the Southland was the place to build a big torpedo sation, and that a drydock, costing at least $3,000,000, should be built at San Diego.

During the visit of Vice-President Marshall and his party the army aviation corps at North Island here will give a number of interesting special flights and demonstrations of the progress the United States army is making in aeronautics.

Just as soon as the visit of the Vice-President is concluded exposition officials will arrange for a tour of the Automobile Club of Southern California to the exposition. The club is extremely desirous of making the run and is waiting for the exposition to set a date. This probably will be about the middle of April.

It is believed that such a tour will take at least 1000 machines through the Southland to the exposition. It will be made a week-end affair so that the busy business man will be able to make the trip.

The coast and inland routes from Los Angeles are in good condition, and heavy travel is coming over them each day to the exposition from points in the Southern California counties.

RANCH LAND SOLD.

Foothill Boulevard Property to be Planted by New Owner to Avacadoes—Bungalow for Bride.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN DIMAS, March 27.—A bungalow just built by C. C. Corwin on West Third street, has been sold by him to Gaston & Benton, who will probably rent it. Work started this week on a six-room bungalow for Miss Hattie Teague, who will be married May 20 to John Brubaker. The site is on Grand avenue.

F. H. Nusbickel of Glendora, has purchased the east half of the Eli Shuler ranch lying just north of town, facing the Foothill boulevard. The property slopes gradually and has a fine view. The new owner, it is understood, will plant part of the land to avacado trees. The rest is adapted to citrus grove.

The Ames Packing Company is having the entire basement floor of its plant cemented. Over 3300 square feet of space is to be covered.

REPORT LOT SALES.

The G. D. Robertson Company reports sales of lots in its Olivedale tract at Sunset boulevard and Coronado street to the following purchasers:

Mrs. Minnie Evans, Mrs. A. J. Laurie, F. R. Shepard, Mrs. Nealia Roy, Mrs. Malinda Nall, Mrs. Jennie Thrasher, Mrs. Mary F. Blaney, Mrs. D. A. Black, C. D. Hurlbut, J. W. McKee, William T. Harms, C. J. Phipps, E. S. Morrell, Cyrus Arnold, Thomas C. Woods, J. Val Loebel, William D. Owen, Miss Maybelle Heckert, R. D. Weller, Mrs. Emma C. Maag, P. C. Bohannan, Carroll M. Austin, Mrs. R. H. McCarthy, F. F. Pratt, Louis Wells, A. J. Irby, John A. Knollinger and L. C. Kreich.

F. O. Robertson, vice-president of the company, announces that his firm will soon place on the market a large tract of acreage in this vicinity.

Corona Farms Sales.

The Janss Investment Company reports sales in its new Corona Farms tract to the following: T. A. Nelson, ten and one-half acres on Pacific avenue, $3125; A. F. Wilson, ten acres of planted orchard land, $4445; George K. Murdock, thirty acres on west side of Hamner avenue, $10,000; F. E. Palmer, fifteen acres on Fourth street, $4500. Mr. Nelson, it is understood, will build a bungalow and plant his land to alfalfa. Mr. Murdock, the agents announce, will set out twenty-five acres to lemon and five acres to assorted fruits and olives. Mr. Palmer will plant grapefruit and lemons. The tract, which adjoins the town of Corona, was opened for sale about ten days ago.

SECURES CONTROL.

NEWPORT BEACH, March 27.—A deal of no small importance in local business circles was consummated recently, when W. H. Bicknell purchased from S. L. Collins the controling interest in the Collins Marine Supply Company. Mr. Bicknell came to Balboa about a year ago, and a few months ago purchased from the Collins Commercial Company a half interest in the Balboa garage, Ship Chandlery store, machine shop and the Balboa Island ferry, which enterprises were then incorporated under the name of the Collins Marine Supply Company. The new deal gives Mr. Bicknell the majority of the stock, and he will at once assume the active management of the various properties.

BUYS FINE RESIDENCE.

La Fayette Square Mansion Purchased by Los Angeles Woman as Permanent Home.

A fine residence at No. 1833 Victoria drive, in La Fayette Square, has been purchased by Mrs. Carrie E. Rose from C. D. Wagner, at a reported price of $20,000. The deal was handled through the Crenshaw Security Company.

The house is an adaptation of the villa type and contains fourteen rooms and three baths. The main rooms on the first floor are finished in walnut, mahogany and oak, while the baths are in marble and tile. The grounds are large and sightly.

RICHLAND FARMS.

The F. P. Newport Company reports the following sales in its Richland Farms tract, south of the city limits: To Jeanette M. Allen, one acre; to J. W. Davis, two acres; to Mrs. Koren, two acres; to A. W. Weller, two acres; to J. H. Foster, one acre; to Mrs. Mollie Slyder, one acre; to G. D. Eastman, one acre; to G. R. Trebbe, two acres; to F. A. Woodard, one acre; to A. E. Allen, one acre; to Minnie Shay, one acre; to J. D. Slyder, one acre; to George E. Capp, two acres; to D. F. Anderson, one acre; to W. B. Jones, one acre; to Ernest A. Heyn, one acre; to Emilie L. Green, half-acre; to N. D. Gates, half-acre, and to Miss Elizabeth Dickson, one acre. Several of the purchasers, it is announced, have contracted to build houses at once.

EMPLOY WOMEN AGENTS.

The James R. H. Wagner Company has adopted the unique plan of handling its Brentwood place tract entirely through women agents. Mrs. Dorothy M. Thies has been placed in charge of the sales activities in the subdivision. The company reports the sale of 120 feet of frontage on Twenty-third street, in Brentwood place, to Martha Pfaffman of this city. The consideration is given at $2550.

WILL MANAGE SALES.

The Huntington Beach Company has appointed George H. Matthews manager of its sales department. Mr. Matthews has until recently been connected with the Guy M. Rush Company.

THE STATUS OF EGYPT.

Britain Has Virtually Controlled the Country Since Its Army Suppressed the Revolt of Arabi Pasha.

[Providence Journal:] Turkey, backed as it is and also to some extent financed by Germany, can hardly be expected to give up the suzerainty of Egypt without a struggle. It is not likely, however, that it will ever recover its authority over the land of the Pharaohs.

The interference of the Western powers in the affairs of Egypt began about forty years ago during the disastrous Khedivate of Ismail, which placed Egyptain finances under a hopeless load of debt. A dual control by France and Great Britain of its finances was set up, and, later, the Sultan, at the instance of these powers, deposed Ismail.

In 1881 came the revolt of Arab Pasha, and the massacre of Europeans in Alexandria by the rebels. France, doubtless in fear of Germany, hesitated to interfere, but Great Britain ordered the bombardment of the Alexandria forts, and the rebellion was suppressed by British rtoops under Sir Garnet Wolseley.

Since the suppression of that revolt Great Britain has virtually controlled Egypt. In 1904 France, by formal agreement, recognized the predominance of Great Britain in Egypt and undertook to place no obstruction in the path of British rule.

Benefit of Yawning.

[London Chronicle:] Dr. Naegeli, professor of medicine at Liege University, commends the practice of yawning, which appears to annoy Lord Charles Beresford so profoundly. A good yawn, the Belgian professor maintains, is excellent for the lungs and for all the breathing organs; but there is an art in yawning just the same as there is an art in breathing. Every yawn should be as deep as possible, so as to bring all the muscles of the throat and chest into action and also to fill the vital organs with a current of fresh air. Dr. Naegeli has known of many cases in which a sore throat has been alleviated by persistent yawning. But how are you to insure a yawn? Listen to speeches?

Chimes Play Martial Airs.

[New York Sun:] In conformity with orders from Emperor William the chimes in the tower of the famous garrison church at Potsdam are playing daily the "Nun danket alle Gott" each hour, at each half hour "Ueb' immer Treu und Redlichkeit," with the following programme at other times:

(1.) Vater, kroene du mit Segen.
(2.) Wer nur den lieben Gott laesst walten.
(3.) Komm, suesse Ereiheit.
(4.) Wenn der Held nach Ruhme duerstet.
(5.) Ein' feste Burg is unser Gott.
(6.) War march.
(7.) Es braust ein Ruf wie Donnerhall.
(9.) Wohlauf, Kameraden, auf's Pferd! auf's Pferd!
(9.) Hinaus in die Ferne mit lautem Hoernerklang.
(10.) Deutschland, Deutschland ueber alles.
(11.) Heil dir im Siegerkranz.
(12.) Ich bete an die Macht der Liebe.

New Mexican Exhibit.

which there is not some interesting story.

A picture of an aged Taos Indian whose rugged face shows his strength of character, the Taos Christ, impresses one forcibly of the strange mingling of the old Indian customs and the Christian religion taught them by the white man. For while the Indians believe in God and in Christ, they must have a visible, personal Christ. As the present Christ of the tribe is aged the Madonna has been chosen by them, and her baby boy, who is shown in another picture hung in Col. Koehler's office, is being reared with that idea. When he is 12 years of age he becomes the Christ.

The New Mexico Building is the only State building at the San Diego exposition not duplicated at San Francisco, for New Mexico did not divide her appropriation, but spent the entire amount on their southern display.

Of the modern exhibits the New Mexico State flag, but recently adopted by the State Legislature as the State emblems, is one of the most interesting. Designed by Col. R. E. Twitchell, president of the Exposition Commission, and Col. A. H. Koehler, Jr., also of the Exposition Commission, it is peculiarly emblematic of the State. The blue ground signifies the blue azure sky of New Mexico, while in one corner is the national flag, emblematic of the staunch patriotism of the State.

FITS INTO GROUP.

New Colton Presbyterian Church to Harmonize with Other Important Buildings of That City.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COLTON, March 27.—Harmonizing with the larger buildings that border the city's main thoroughfare, the library, Methodist Episcopal Church and the new Lincoln school building now being constructed, will be the fine new edifice in mission style of architecture which the members of the First Presbyterian Church are to erect on the site of the present church at Eighth and H streets.

The new building will cost in the neighborhood of $17,000. The main auditorium will have a seating capacity of 350, while by using the adjoining Sunday-school room, 600 persons will be easily accommodated.

Work on the second story of the block which E. F. Harper is erecting on I street opposite the City Hall began this morning and will be rushed, as the Eagle Lodge, which has leased the upper floor, is eager to occupy the new quarters as soon as possible.

An Artist's Impromptu Solo.

[Youth's Companion:] Pierre Garat, the singer and exquisite of Napoleonic France, was not merely a glass of fashion and a wonderful, self-instructed singer, but an artist devoted to his art. But is the following, asks Bernard Miall in his biography, an example of sincerity in art, or of love of attracting attention?"

Coupigny had supplied him with a "romance" to be set to music. Whenever the two met, Garat replied: "I have not hit upon an idea as yet." One day Coupigny was walking down the Rue Neuve-des-Pettits-Champs. Hearing a sound of someone running up behind him, he turned; it was Garat, who seized him by the arm, dragged him up the stairs of a neighboring house, and, halting on the first landing, exclaimed, "I've got it." At once he began to sing the romance through at the top of his voice. The inhabitants of the house began to open their doors; heads were projected over the banisters; finally they began to approach; but Garat, having finished, tore down the stairs like a monkey, dragging the bewildered poet with him.

Filibustering in Europe.

[London Chronicle:] The feat achieved by Senator Smoot, who talked continuously for eleven hours, thirty-five minutes, with a view to obstructing the passage of the American government's ship purchase bill, has been surpassed on at least one occasion. When Mark Twain was living in Vienna he attended a sitting of the Reichsrath which lasted thirty-three hours, of which twelve hours were occupied by a single speech. The occasion was an attempt to advance a bill continuing the settlement between Austria and Hungary. The opposition resolved to bring about a crisis by obstruction, and the deputy's twelve-hour monologue was a contribution toward that end. Joseph Biggar once beat all records for the House of Commons by speaking four hours, but most of the time was spent in reading from blue books. The Austrian parliamentarian's speech was, according to Mark Twain, a skillfully-constructed argument.

Gun Fires Without Recoil.

[Popular Mechanics:] A gun that fires a six-pound projectile without recoil, and is therefore particularly adapted for service on a military aeroplane or dirigible, has been invented by an officer of the United States navy and successfully tested on board a small yacht. Both the gun and its projectile are of peculiar construction. The gun is open at both ends and is made as light as possible. The shell has the projectile in one end, while in the other end is a mass of bird shot of sufficient weight to furnish the necessary reaction when the projectile is discharged. When the gun is fired the projectile is thrown from the muzzle at a high velocity, while the bird shot is forced out at the breech end at such a low velocity that it is practically harmless. The gun is fired by electricity.

Henry Watterson's Remedy.

[Louisville Courier-Journal:] "The restoration of order in Mexico does not inevitably mean war with Mexico. When Huerta stepped down and out, Funston, had he been prepared for the event, could have gone to the City of Mexico without firing a gun, and, from that vantage, we could have said to Villa, Zapata, Carranza and company, 'We don't want your land and don't mean to rob you of anything, but, by the eternal, you've got to behave yourselves.' That is what Old Hickory, whom the President cites approvingly, would have said and have done. Otherwise, why was Funston at Vera Cruz at all? Why was the fleet at Tampico?"

Effectiveness of French Shells.

[Collier's:] I was sent on here with a field lineman and an operator, accompanied by Maj. Moore of the Signal Service, to establish a field telegraph office. They naturally selected the old government telegraph and telephone office because of its equipment, but it is the last house on the street and exposed on the side next to the bridge, and we were forced to move further into the heart of the town, for shells or parts of shells are constantly passing through the upper stories.

The bridge has been shelled incessantly, day and night, for four days to prevent infantry and artillery passing over, but the English have never stopped.

German artillery and range finders are excellent, but the timing is bad. Over 60 per cent. of their fire is wasted.

JACOB IN SEARCH OF A JOB.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

HAVING in mind to be a financier I put on my Persian necktie and sauntered through the ornate portals of the Seventh National Bank. I was looking for John Fergus Woolburn, the big squeeze of the whole works, and presently I found him.

Back in little old New York when a man wanted to see the president of a bank he had to send in his pedigree and a diagram of his business in advance. Then he would file down a line of underlings who would size up his collar and cuffs and pass him along until perhaps the august presence was reached. There would be fat wads of currency on the counters, but the main guy of the plant was buried in a mahogany nest back of the vault.

'Here they keep the gold locked up behind a foot or two of bombproof steel, but display the banking talent of the concern in glittering open cages much after the fashion of the exhibit of man-eating lions at the entrance of the big tent.

Between the two methods you pay your money and you take your choice.

"Howdy, John!" I exclaimed, cheerily, as I accosted the chief.

"Howdy, Jake," He replied, affably. "What's on your chest?"

"Well, it's just this way," I explained, "I believe I'll have to get a job as cashier or something. My wife says if I don't go to work she'll lock me out, and keep a dog instead."

"You've got your nerve all right;" interrupted the banker, "but what do you know about finance?"

"Didn't I run for Congress once?" retorted I, with asperity.

"Excuse me," stammered the moneyed man. "I had to ask the question as a matter of form. I forgot you were a statesman. You walk like an army man; were you ever in the service?"

"In the dark days of '61 to '65," said I, impressively, "I wore a Union suit.

"What size—a 22?" said the banker, with a grin.

"Never mind," said I, "it was a union suit. A grateful country is now paying me a pension because I lost my voice shouting for help at Bull Run. I am the man who sent the epistle to the Corinthians, which started the battle of Corinth, and I am the party who knocked the spots out of Spottsylvania."

"Sure," exclaimed the banker, "you are also the guy who couldn't get to Gettysburg and were so shy at Shiloh. What are you trying, to string me for? You were only an infant during the war."

"Perhaps so," replied I, hoarsely. "But I was at least an infant in arms."

"What do you know about the banking business, anyhow?" resumed the financier. "Do you know the operations of the Federal Reserve Act?"

"Any schoolboy knows all about that," replied I, promptly. "That works the same way as all party platform legislation. We have a revenue tariff and now we have no revenue. The regional banks were established in order to limber up the circulating medium—the mazuma. Now all you have to do when you want a thousand dollars is to go to the bank with a first mortgage on your home, a note indorsed by John D. Carnegie, your marriage certificate, your life insurance papers, and $1100 in cash. Then, if you have references from your grocer and tailor and hired girl, the loan is yours."

"If you were cashier and a friend came to you with tears in his eyes and said he needed money bad, what would you do?" queried the banker.

"Needed it bad?" I repeated.

"Yes; what would you do?"

"Give him all the bad money in the drawer, and make him give me a receipt for it," I answered promptly.

"Supposing a customer came to you with the old gag that it was against his principle to pay the interest and against his interest to pay the principal, what would you do?" continued the banker, categorically.

"My principal effort would be to stimulate his interest, I suppose," I promptly answered.

"As a matter of principle?"

"Principally."

"You interest me."

"I thought I would," I added. Then turning to a little leather box on the banker's desk, I said: "Do you scrape your face during business hours?"

"No;" answered the banker, "that's for shaving notes."

"Gosh!" I exclaimed, "and do they have to use a safety for that now?"

"Never mind," replied the banker, severely. "Tell me something about the blue sky law?"

"That law," I said, thoughtfully, was created by a stout politician named Hiram Johnson, for the express purpose of making every native son inhale thirty-two cubic feet of his beloved climate every morning before breakfast."

"Smarty!" exclaimed the banker, "I suppose you thought it was to regulate the limit on poker games. But anyhow, can you tell me what an elastic currency is?"

"Sure," I replied. "It's printers' money, and is just elastic enough to stretch from Saturday night to Monday morning."

"What do you know about financial conditions in general?" persisted the financier.

"Well: "It's about this way;" I began. "A financial condition is a good condition to be in. When a man is out of condition, he's broke. You can't have easy money in hard times, but you can have an easy time on hard money. While tempus fugits money fugits, too, and believe me Rachel, she's some fugitive."

"What do you mean by easy money?" continued the banker.

"Money that you marry, steal or win on the election," said I, readily.

"You dodo-domed derilict, you're just guessing," snorted the banker. "You're so blamed wise, maybe you can tell when the first panic occurred?"

"Sure thing," answered I, cheerfully. "You simple-minded son of sorrow, don't you remember that when the Israelites crossed the Red Sea they started a run on the bank?"

"That's right," returned the banker, reflectively. "And I'll bet the Israelites got their money."

"Furthermore," I added. "They knew what watered stock was in those times. Don't you recall, in the good old days of Pharaoh's daughter, they found a prophet in the water?"

Moses!" but it was such a little prophet," exclaimed the banker.

"But there was profit in water, anyhow," continued I. "Now I have a friends who has invented a wonderful machine that extracts the gold residuum from salt water. You run a thousand gallons of the Pacific Ocean in one end and take out the price of a suit of clothes at the other. When you've pumped the Pacific dry, you can tackle the Atlantic. It has perpetual motion beaten to a pulp. As a money maker, it has the mint looking like a dried prune. I've got a little stock to spare and can let you in on it."

"Excuse me," snorted the banker, "I've heard of that machine before."

"Well, anyhow, do I get my job," I persisted.

"Not by a dinky dink sight," exclaimed the financier, with profane emphasis.

And so I lost my job.

Well, they'll have to worry along without me. So I'm sure they got the worst of it.

HIGH AMERICAN PEAKS.

The New National Park Contains One Summit Hundred Feet Higher than Pike's.

[Washington Star:] A group of the lofty peaks of America are represented in the newly-created Rocky Mountain National Park, the latest land among the clouds to be taken under the protection of the shield of the American government. Among these peaks are Long's Peak, Hague Peak and Arapahoe Peak. Long's Peak is the central point of the new park. It is perhaps the peak worthiest of great fame in the Rocky Mountains, though, of course, it is Pike's Peak that is most frequently on men's lips when the towering domes of the Rockies are spoken of.

Long's Peak is just about 100 feet higher than Pike's, and from sea level it reaches 14,271 feet toward the sky, and is approximately fifty miles north of Denver. Lieut. Pike, whose name was given to the most celebrated point of the Rockies, gave to the peak now called Long's Peak the name of Great Peak. That was back in 1806. In 1820 a United States exploring expedition under command of Col. S. H. Long determined a great variety of useful data about that part of the world, and the name of the chief officer of the expedition was given to the highest peak of the chain of mountains which came to be called the Rockies.

Hague Peak is north of Long's Peak, and its top is 13,832 feet high. Arapahoe Peak flanks Long's Peak on the south, and is 13,520 feet above sea level.

Albert Bierstadt painted a number of scenes in the region dominated by Long's Peak, and that peak appeared in a painting by that eminent artist which hung at one time in the rotunda of the Capitol. Bierstadt is represented at the Capitol today by two paintings, one "The Entrance into Monterey" and the other "Discovery of the Hudson," both of which hang in the Speaker's lobby, House of Representatives. His canvas, "Mt. Corcoran," is owned by the Corcoran Art Gallery.

Among the many interesting facts concerning this region which were presented by Enos Mills, "the father of the Rocky Mountain National Park," or developed during the discussion of the almost unanimously approved project, was one that in 1872 the Earl of Dunraven fell in love with this region during a hunting trip and sought to possess himself of a great domain. It has been written that the Earl and his agents did their best to wrest it from Uncle Sam on the homestead basis, but their claims were disallowed by the Land Office. This region for some years has been a national forest reserve, but there is a wide difference between a national forest and a national park. In a national forest lumbering, mining, quarrying and grazing are allowed under certain restrictions. In a national park nature is not molested by private industrial activities.

GRASS AS A DRINK.

Many Cattle in the Hawaiian Mountains Find Food and Drink in the Wonderful Maninia Grass.

[Baltimore American:] The proverbial horse which can be led to water but which cannot be made to drink exists in large numbers in the Hawaiian Islands. Among the cattle he has thousands of cousins of the same proclivities.

It is a surprising statement to make, and yet one that is literally true and so commonplace that no one there thinks anything about it, and there are hundreds of horses and thousands of cattle which never take a drink of water through the whole course of their lives.

On all the islands the upper altitudes of the mountains are given up to cattle ranges. The cattle run wild from the time they are born until they are rounded up to be sent to the slaughter-house. Except during possibly two or three months of the rainy season there are no streams or pools of water in any part where the cattle range.

But everywhere there grows a recumbent, jointed grass, known by the native name of maninia. This is both food and drink, says a recent traveler. Horses and cattle grazing on it neither require water, nor will they drink it when offered.

Our first experience with this fact was on a trip to Heleakala. A party were mounted on horses, which had just been brought in from the range. The journey they made was fourteen miles, in which distance they ascended 9000 feet. The party started in the afternoon, and at sunset halted for supper. They thought it strange that the horses should leave a feed of grain to nibble the scanty grass which grew near-by, but were willing to trust their instinct in the matter.

However, before starting they insisted that they be given water. The native guide demurred, saying that they didn't need it, but with the good-natured compliance of his race, yielded to requests, and led a detour of about a mile, which brought the party to a ranch house where there was a well. But to the utter amazement of the travelers the horses would not drink.

They took it as another case of instinct and assumed that the water, for some reason, was not good and so refrained from drinking it themselves. It was not until the return the second day to Kawaapae that the travelers learned the secret of the wonderful maninia grass.

Conscription in England.

[Manchester Guardian:] If England had an emergency conscription for the present war, who would be taken and who would be left? Just a hundred years ago, when invasion seemed imminent, conscription existed for all practical purposes. By the militia act of 1808, suspended in 1816, every unmarried man from 18 to 45, not being an eldest son, was compelled to serve and undergo regular training unless he could procure a substitute.

YANKEE TRADERS IN LONDON.

Americans with Everything Imaginable to Sell Crowd the Hotels, Even Using Bathrooms as Sample Rooms.

[New York Sun:] The west end of London hotels are crowded with American business men, among them many colonels and not a few judges, eager to sell clothing, foodstuffs, fodder and everything else under heaven to Great Britain and her allies.

"Elegant salons" have been turned into stockrooms, and everywhere Americans engage in whispered conversations with foreign-looking gentlemen with the invariable ribbon in their buttonholes.

Many of the Americans represent large manufacturing concerns, and they deal specifically with one or two articles. Others are prepared to sell anything and everything, from a cavalry charger to a bootlace. The consequence is a whirl and a complication which must be very trying to European nerves.

In one apartment in a well-known hotel the other day two gentlemen were discussing the prices of 10,000,000 overcoats in the bathroom. Four others, with their hats on and smoking cigars, were sitting on the side of unmade beds, negotiating the purchase of motor lorries. In another bedroom a New Yorker still in his pajamas was working out the freight charges on horses.

Indeed, if the United States is doing half the business suggested by all this activity, President Wilson need have no fear that this country will suffer economically from the war. Indeed, the demand for all sorts of American goods by Belgium, France and Russia, to say nothing of Great Britain's necessities, must more than compensate for the loss of German war goods trade.

TO DETECT POISONS.

An English Chemist has Found a Way to Use the Quartz-lensed Spectroscope to Locate Drugs.

[Detroit Tribune:] Chemists, police officials and physicians are intensely interested in the new discovery of J. J. Dobbie, F.R.S., the principal chemist of the English government laboratories at London, who has concentrated public attention upon the great value of the spectroscope as a means of detecting poisons such as strychnine, cocaine, morphine and similar dangerous drugs.

By throwing the ultra-violet part of the spectrum from such a source of light as is obtainable from sparking such a metal as iron, through the lenses of a quartz spectroscope, the lines of these drugs can be distinctly located. Each drug, it has been found, produces a characteristic kind of lines.

Hereafter when a person dies under circumstances suspicious of poison, the mixture of his or her stomach contents or other tissues will be taken to a physical laboratory and exposed to the quartz-lensed spectroscope with a sparking light from iron. If any of these fatal poisons are present their characteristic lines will show in the ultra-violet part of the spectrum and the exact cause of death will be revealed. A quartz-lensed spectroscope is used instead of glass, because glass cuts out the ultra-violet rays.

The most minute particle of poison can now be detected in this revolutionary fashion. Even as little as one five-hundredth of a grain of strychnine was thus found by Dr. Dobbie.

"Yes, he isn't successful encugh yet to turn out poor work," replied the publisher.

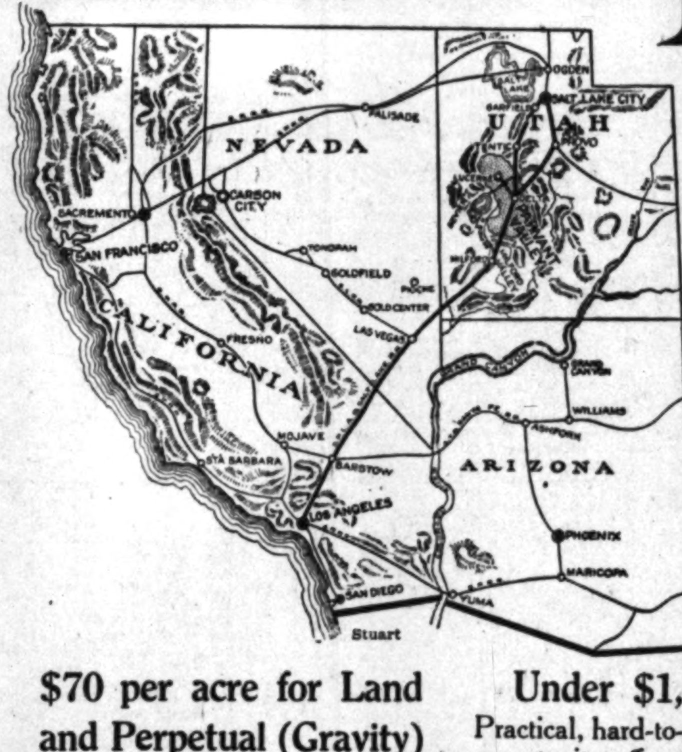
Land Opening



"Milford Extension" in Pahvant Valley, Utah

On Main Line of Salt Lake Railroad—

$70 per acre for Land and Perpetual (Gravity) Water Right

An Acre Down

Balance in 10 years' time. Main and branch line railroads run through the land. General farming conditions unsurpassed in the West—Ideal for grain, alfalfa, sugar beets, dairying, hogs, poultry, etc. A settled community—a proven district—Good roads, good schools, churches, etc. Wonderful climate, fine, bracing mountain air—good, pure water. Special low homeseekers' rates from Los Angeles on Wednesday and Saturday each week.

Under $1,000,000 Gravity Irrigation System

Practical, hard-to-satisfy farmers get ready! The best land and water opportunity offered in 10 years will soon be open to you. Fertile land in a valley of contented farmers—a valley of abundant crop yields—land and perpetual water right for less than it actually costs to irrigate by pumping in California, awaits you in the rich Pahvant Valley of Southwestern Utah.

This land is watered by a $1,000,000 gravity irrigation system built by the Delta Land & Water Company. The system has been approved by the State Engineer and the State Land Board and it has been in successful operation for four years. You will own your own water right for all time to come. When your water stock is paid for, you will have a free water supply forever. The estimated annual maintenance cost of the water system is between 30 and 40 cents per acre. The State of Utah has fixed the price at which these valuable water rights are sold. That is why you are enabled to get this Pahvant Valley land with perpetual water right for so little money.

You will be in a thoroughly proven general farming district, with good schools, churches, hotels, etc. Sugar beets alone have netted Pahvant Valley farmers the entire cost of the acreage on which they were planted in one season. A crop of alfalfa seed has returned more than $100 in seed alone on one acre. Pahvant Valley is one of the safest and most profitable alfalfa, alfalfa seed, sugar beet, cattle, hog and dairying districts in the west. The Pahvant Valley farmer is afforded the highest priced markets for everything he can produce. Climatic conditions are most desirable. The elevation is 4600 feet. A long, even growing season. Open winters. Pure lithia drinking water. All stock thrives vigorously. No hog cholera. Wheat yields 40 to 60 bushels per acre, oats 70 to 100 bushels per acre, barley 60 to 90 bushels per acre. The kind of land that quickly pays for itself.

Write for new booklet just off the press containing sworn testimonials by Pahvant Valley farmers, giving facts, figures, crop records, etc. Every farmer who seeks an opportunity to better himself should secure this booklet at once. The Pahvant Valley opportunity is the last of its type that the west will ever offer. Make reservations for opening excursion at once.

THE RICH COUNTY OF KERN.

New Agricultural Industries Added to the Wealth-producing Factors of a Great Dominion. Not Only Oil and Gold but Grand Soils for Agriculture—Achievements and Prospects and Growth in Population.

THE State of California is so vast in area, so rich in resources, and is possessed of so many opportunities that it is too colossal for the average brain to grasp. There are valleys in California so broad, so rich in resources and so capable of development that they constitute an empire in themselves. Indeed, the great San Joaquin Valley is almost as incomprehensible in this respect as the State itself.

It is proposed in this article to confine the consideration to a single county, Kern, in the southern end of the San Joaquin Valley. County? Why, this one political subdivision of the great State of California has territorial area and wealth enough to make the basis of a dominion in itself. This county contains 8050 square miles, or approximately 5,121,920 acres. The population? Not enough to make a great city! The latest figures give it at 37,715. To be sure, fifteen years ago the population of the county was only 16,480, and the decade and a half shows an increase of 21,235, or 128.8 per cent.

Not to go out of our own country, Rhode Island possesses a population of 508.5 to the square mile. At that rate the population of Kern county would come to more than 4,000,000 inhabitants. In other words, there is opportunity for nearly 4,000,000 people to go into Kern county, establish homes, make money, become rich and found independent fortunes. Combine with Kern county its next neighbor, Tulare, and we have an area of more than the whole kingdom of Belgium, with 7,500,000 population. This European kingdom and the Kingdom of Saxony have about one human being to every acre of land in the kingdom. At that rate Kern county would have a population of about 5,000,000 human souls.

RICH SOILS.

Of course, these possible figures depend upon the capacity of the soil to maintain the population in comfortable circumstances. The arctic regions or the Desert of Sahara will not support a dense population. What then about the soil and other resources of Kern county? There is no equal area in the world with better soils than Kern possesses. There are few so well supplied with water, and fewer with so salubrious a climate. It is not only the surface of the soil that is prolific. Beneath it lies untold wealth. Think of this county producing one-tenth of the world's oil, the development in 1914 being worth $36,025,000! Kern county has the finest gold mines in the State of California, and tungsten mines of world-wide pre-eminence. In connection with its oil wells, it has the greatest supply of natural gas known in the world.

The development of the county is going on very rapidly. Two years ago, about one-seventh of the area was vacant public land, for any comer to take up. Since July 1, 1913, thousands have gone into the county and taken up a great deal of this public land, leaving little remaining, excepting that remote from transportation or in mountain valleys, not accessible to easy settlement.

MOUNTAIN STREAMS.

To the east of Kern county lie the grand Sierra Nevada Mountains, with scenery as sublime as anything in Switzerland, and here are forests of a magnificence not known anywhere outside of America, with possibly the exception of Russia. From these snow-capped mountains flow magnificent streams of water through immense forests, some of them being of the giant redwood species, remnants of the primeval world and still gigantic in their proportions. These streams furnish the means of producing thousands of horse power of electric current, some of which is already developed, but much of which is still going to waste. With the oil and the electric current, Kern county offers the cheapest motive power for manufacturing in the wide world.

Below these mountains stretches a vast undulating plain as fertile as man ever harvested a crop from. The streams coming down from the mountains furnish water for irrigation in abundance, and here is one of the greatest advantages the California farmer has over his competitors elsewhere. He never lacks for water, never has it come in torrents, but always has it in abundance, and applies it when and as he will. This insures him an absolute certainty of not only annual crops but under the benign influence of the mild climate of the State insures the farmer several crops in the same season, and these same influences secure him the possibility of a variety of crops known only in California. For ages the rivers of the county have been washing down detritus into the valley, and the soils are all alluvial deposits, in places sixty feet deep. Such soils are absolutely inexhaustible.

THE CROPS.

In the census year 1910, the 1167 farms in Kern county produced crops of a value of nearly $2,000,000, with the expenditure of less than $1500 for fertilization of the soils. Note the development of the past five years, which has brought the crop valuation in 1915 to $6,500,000. Yet there was scarcely any increase of the amount spent for replenishing. There are very few soils in the world that would produce crops of citrus fruits, of deciduous fruits and grapes, without heavy fertilizing. These crops in Kern county in 1914 came to a value of nearly half a million dollars, and yet there was scarcely any money spent in fertilizing.

Kern county has wisely established exhibits of its products at San Diego and San Francisco. Under the auspices of its Board of Trade, the county maintains an exhibit at Bakersfield. At these three points visitors to the expositions and California tourists in general will be able to see exactly what this great county is capable of producing. The advantage of visiting Bakersfield is manifest in that there will be an opportunity to visit the productive orchards lying right in the vicinity.

Until quite recently the agricultural resources of the county were not made prominent. More attention was paid to the mineral resources. But the time has come to call emphatic attention to the possibilities of these wonderful soils under the invigorating influences of California suns and stimulated by abundance of water for irrigation. It was not until the people of Los Angeles and other parts of Southern California became attracted to the San Joaquin Valley that much was done in the way of developing this portion of the State. All of the valley in the old days was overrun with vast flocks of cattle, sheep and horses that required several acres to maintain one animal. Under such conditions, of course, the population was very sparse, and prosperity was confined to a few large landholders. With the coming of Los Angeles business men into the valley a great change was wrought. In the old days, of course, without railroad facilities, live stock production was not only the most remunerative but about the only one possible. With two lines of railroad traversing the valley from end to end, and with several branch lines cutting it in every direction, these conditions have been changed. With the coming of the Southern Pacific Railroad about forty-five years ago, cattle raising gave place in large degree to grain production. Tulare county, which at that time included Kings, in 1878, or thereabouts, sent down to tidewater at San Francisco from a single crop 14,000 flat cars loaded with grain for European markets. The plains of Kern are entirely similar to those of Tulare county. In fact, the whole of the San Joaquin Valley is made largely of one piece. The fact that other counties in the valley develed agricultural productions sooner than Kern came from the fact that a large part of the territory of Kern was held by a few people who used it for stock-raising purposes.

Of late years the agricultural development of Kern has gone on apace. The adaptability of the soil for grain-growing scarcely needed to be proven, for it was a self-evident fact, and it caused no surprise among the old residents when the growing of wheat, rye, oats, barley, Egyptian and kaffir corn, maize and millet became a staple industry. With plenty of water for irrigation on such fertile soils, and with such salubrious climatic influences, it became common to harvest from fifteen to forty-five sacks of grain to the acre, each sack containing about two and a quarter bushels. With this development came the planting of alfalfa meadows. There are now 100,000 acres in Kern county devoted to this kind of farming. Several cuttings a year take place, the crop amounting to from eight to fourteen tons per acre per year.

NEW INDUSTRIES.

The above are all common or general farming enterprises. Kern county is now noted for its rice, sugar-beet and bean crops. The rice industry is the newest of all, but in the opinion of those who are engaged in the industry it is to be a permanent and very remunerative branch of farmign. In the district around Pond, Wasco, McFarland and Delano large areas are in process of development for rice production. These towns are in the semitropic section of the county, heretofore noted for its abundant crops of alfalfa and the cognate dairying industry. Indications point to at least 5000 acres of rice, 1500 acres of sugar beets, and at Lerdo this spring it is expected that 400 acres will be planted to beans. Those who have seen the county develop know that these figures are but an earnest of what is to come, and that these new industries are but forerunners of many to follow. The hope is entertained that cotton will become a standard crop in Kern county, and there is no doubt about figs and dates becoming important industries.

Five years ago there was very little horticultural or viticultural enterprise established in Kern county. Tentative efforts were just being made. These efforts proved so successful that the setting out of trees and vines has gone on at a very rapid pace.

A COMPARISON.

By way of comparison let us see the actual progress made in tree planting since 1910:

	Acreage, 1910.	Acreage, 1914.
Apples	100	1,957
Pears	190	1,082
Oranges	100	1,672
Olives	40	525
Peaches	600	1,050
Prunes	200	542
Apricots	200	385
Plums	50	150
Totals	1,480	7,363

The above figures are furnished by Kent S. Knowlton, horticultural commissioner of Kern county, and do not include trees recently set, or in process of planting, amounting to something over 200,000, all told. In the Tehachepi district, for example, thousands of apple, pear and cherry trees are being planted in its four beautiful valleys—Tehachepi, Cummings, Brites and Bear. Likewise grapes and currants in profusion have there found a habitat, destined to make viticulture one of the county's great sources of wealth. In this section attention is directed in particular to the Ramina ranch, adjoining the town of Tehachepi. Here J. W. Jennings has created improvements that are most striking. The pear industry, for example, for which the entire section is famed, reaches the zenith of perfection. In fact, Tehachepi grows a pear of quality and endurance, equaling, if not surpassing, the product of any other locality in the State. Of the 3000 acres of deciduous fruits in this region the pear predominates, though apples and other fruits of the highest grade abound. A sandy-loam soil, at an elevation of 4000 feet; a mild snowfall followed by an annual average of thirteen inches of rain — these associated with an abundance of gravity water for irrigation make a condition most promising. Such is Tehachepi, the new fruit region, which, upon completion of the State highway, will be within two hours of Los Angeles.

Other prominent fruit centers which are attracting much attention are the Weed Patch, Wasco, McFarland, Shafter, Delano and Famosa. At Shafter, the olive center, the Kern County Land and Water Company is making excellent progress in the development of a tract of 7000 acres, known as the Shafter Colony. Over 3000 acres have been sold to date, a fourth of which is devoted to deciduous fruits. The soil—a sandy loam—is of a very high grade. Potatoes grown here are of the finest quality. In fact, the products in general have attracted much attention. Contented settlers furnish the best evidence of prosperous conditions in any community, and as all here are happy and making money no other testimonial is needed. Shafter is on the Santa Fe Railroad, eighteen miles northwest of Bakersfield.

Ten miles northwest of Bakersfield, in the heart of the most wonderful farming land in the county, is Lerdo. Here the Lerdo Land Company is carrying on extensive developments and effecting most lasting results. The soil here is of the sandy-loam variety, with water in abundance for all purposes. Lerdo is on the State highway, likewise the Southern Pacific Railroad, thus affording most satisfactory means of transportation.

North of Lerdo are the towns of Famosa, McFarland, Delano and other places of prominence along agricultural lines. To pass through this entire region is to understand the possibilities of farming such as Kern county guarantees to settlers. It is unsurpassed from a standpoint of lasting values and production.

CITRUS-FRUIT GROWING.

To the mind of the easterner California is not California without citrus-fruit growing. This industry, which has inspired poets to sing in ancient and modern times, is becoming prominent in Kern county. Nearly 1700 acres of oranges and quite an area of lemons and grapefruit are in a high state of cultivation and producing fine crops. The production of this citrus fruit tells the story of temperature better than figures could do it. It must be realized that the southern end of the San Joaquin Valley belongs really to Southern California rather than to the northern half of the State, and is similar in climate. The temperature records show that the summer climate is 4 deg. cooler and that of the winter 6 deg. warmer than portions of interior Southern California noted the world over for their orange crops. The Kern county people, used to the oranges from San Emidio, say that they are better than any grown anywhere else in the world. Edison is another section where orange country is developing in the most satisfactory way. At this point the Edison Land and Water Company has nearly 600 acres in Washington navels, and nearly every tree is doing well.

STOCK RAISING.

As remarked above, Kern county has long been noted for its live stock production. Of the total of $6,500,000 representing the value of farming in Kern county in 1914, $4,500,000 came from the live stock of the county. The county furnished to the world in these times of high living (when the comic illustrator is fain to represent the cow jumping over the moon,) beef amounting to a value of $4,000,000, while the mutton and wool of the county returned a revenue to the growers of $300,000. Hogs have become recently a source of revenue. Anywhere that alfalfa will grow and dairies are kept, pigs can be brought to the finishing stage in eight or nine months, and then finished off on rolled barley, making pork and ham as solid as marble and as sweet as a nut, being far better meats than can be produced on Kansas corn.

The large cattle ranches governed by the Kern County Land and Water Company, Miller & Lux, Carmel Cattle Company, et cetera, are among the big meat producers of the State. In addition to the wonderful holdings of the Carmel Cattle Company and associated concerns, these interests have recently purchased 4000 acres of rich Kern River bottom land, which is now being irrigated and brought into a high state of cultivation. It is to be used as a stock ranch for the fattening of cattle and hogs for market. PORTERVILLE PROPERTY TO BE PUT ON MARKET.

Thousand-acre Suburban Holding will Soon be Under Irrigation. Early Subdivision Assured—Los Angeles Man Transfers Valuable Ranch.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, March 26.—Of exceptional importance in the development of the suburban district to the south and west of Porterville is the sale of 960 acres of olive and fruit lands this week by Dr. C. Edgar Smith of Redondo Beach to H. S. Bachman of this city. Mr. Bachman has started the construction of a complete irrigation system for the land and expects to market the tract in ten and twenty-acre orchard holdings.

D. Freeman, formerly of Reno, Nev., has purchased from S. M. Williams a sixty-three-acre tract of alfalfa land north of the city limits. Mrs. Minnie E. Fulton of Fresno, has sold to J. T. Barnett, formerly of San Jose, a 160-acre tract of alfalfa land west of the city. As part consideration Barnett transferred to Mrs. Fulton a ten-acre tract of young oranges in the Globe district. Barnett expects to engage in the raising of thoroughbred stock.

O. B. Stockdale of Lone Star has purchased from D. B. Harris a forty-acre tract of alfalfa land in the Alta district, paying a reported price of $12,000. Mrs. Ellie H. Rogers of Fresno has bought from C. E. Crawford of Reedley 189 acres of raw alfalfa land in the Alta district at a consideration said to have been in excess of $30,000.

J. P. Wedel and A. H. Schwan of Upland, who lately put out 160 acres of early navel oranges on their property in the Success district, were here this week to let the contracts for planting an additional eighty acres of their holdings, giving them a total of 240 acres out of the 400-acre tract now out in oranges.

M. N. Newmark of Los Angeles has sold to the Visalia Land Company 520 acres of alfalfa and olive lands, situated just south of Porterville, in the Campo Verde district, the consideration being given at $40,000. It is understood that the new owners will complete an irrigation plant on the property and will shortly start surveying for subdivision purposes.

Other deals of the week follow: Henry Slinkard to F. B. Orr, eighty acres of meadow land in the foothills east of here; Mrs. D. B. Howell to Charles G. Howell, eighty acres of alfalfa land, west of city; J. C. Wells to George S. Wells, twenty acres of orange land in the Deer Creek district; Mrs. Blanche Cole to Mrs. F. M. Martin, ten acres fruit land, north of Porterville; William Brown to L. N. Cornell, twelve acres of alfalfa land, just north of city limits, and H. H. Beckwith to Mrs. Lydia Vaughn, section of grazing land, east of here.

PRIZES FOR LAWNS.

Ontario Chamber of Commerce Launches Civic Beautification Campaign.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, March 27.—With an offer of twelve cash prizes monthly as a special inducement, the Civic Beauty Committee of the Ontario Chamber of Commerce has launched a campaign which they believe will result in Ontario's blossoming as the rose. Residents are urged to give special attention to flowers and lawn. The committee is encouraging the planting of bright showy flowers in both yards and parkways and the general appearance of the street in front of property will be taken into consideration in the awarding of prizes.

The city has been divided into four sections and in each of these three prizes will be awarded monthly. The contest opens April 1, and the first prizes will be awarded May 1.

The installation of a model poultry ranch is the latest project for Chaffey Union High School, this city. At a meeting of the Board of Trustees this week it was decided to proceed at once with plans for the necessary preliminaries.

The ranch will be stocked free of charge by members of the Ontario Poultry and Pigeon Association, which interested the school board in the plan originally. It is believed that the model chicken farm will prove a great benefit, not only to pupils, but to poultry men in this section generally, as well.

INVESTOR BUYS RANCH.

Los Angeles Man Pays Cash for Land in Northern California. Property Mostly Under Cultivation.

A Stanislaus county property, known as the Dallas ranch, consisting of 132 acres, was purchased during the week by A. J. Harpstrite, a Los Angeles investor. The holding is under the Turlock irrigating system. Of the total area, twenty-two acres are in alfalfa, sixty-five acres in corn and twenty acres in black-eyed beans. The rest is to be put in potatoes.

The consideration is reported by E. K. Albrecht, agent for the buyer, at $27,500 cash. The seller, Mrs. Minnie J. Chapman, was represented in the deal by William Connelly.

The land lies north of Merced, between the towns of Hickman and Waterford. It has been leased for the new owner by Mr. Albrecht.

FOR TWO FAMILIES.

Double House of Concrete and Tile Construction Completed on North Harvard Boulevard Site.

An attractive residence of the two-family type has just been completed by Frank E. Hartigan for H. Ruenitz at No. 1800 North Harvard boulevard. The place was planned to accommodate the family of Mr. Ruenitz himself and that of Irving Hillner, his son-in-law. The improvement represents an investment of about $15,000.

The dwelling is of concrete and tile and contains fifteen rooms and three baths. The interior finish is in mahogany, oak, Circassian walnut and gum wood. The walls are covered with decorated tapestries.

RIVERSIDE MEN BUY VILLA SITES.

BANKER AND CITRUS GROWER ACQUIRE FIFTEEN LOTS IN BRENTWOOD PARK.

Two wealthy residents of Riverside have just become the owners of large villa sites in Brentwood Park through the purchase of a group of fifteen lots in this beautiful subdivision through J. Albert Campbell of the Braly-Janss Company, selling agents for the property. The buyers are Stanley J. and Pember S. Castleman. The purchase price aggregates $27,000.

Arrangements are being made to have the property landscaped and otherwise beautified, and within a short time the new owners expect to begin the construction of houses of the Italian villa type on the property. The fifteen lots take in a long stretch of frontage on McKinley drive, overlooking the ocean. The property is a short distance from San Vicente boulevard and the rim of Santa Monica Canyon.

Stanley J. Castleman has been engaged in the banking business in Riverside for a number of years, being an officer of the First National Bank of that city. His brother is the owner of valuable citrus groves in the district.

New Building Projected by Redlands Y.M.C.A.—Many Attractive Homes to be Built During Summer.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, March 27.—Another building will be added at once to the group recently built by the Y.M.C.A. at this place, the directors announcing today that a structure which will house a swimming pool and new office and reading-rooms will be erected within the next six weeks. The building will be 30x100 feet in size. A modern heating and filtering plant will be installed.

A number of attractive homes are projected in various parts of the city and there is, in fact, a decided revival in building. C. E. Waring, a retired business man from the East, is soon to start a bungalow on Sylvan avenue. Henry Studznika, formerly of St. Louis, expects to build on Cypress avenue. Many other projects are shaping.

Five homes are now being completed on Cypress avenue, by B. G. Holmes and Miss Flo Church. The former is building a bungalow and the latter a house of the Italian style.

Guy Fairbanks has purchased the T. R. Shuford studio.

Rich County of Kern.

twenty-four hours. In the entire county an area comprising 227,340 acres is being irrigated. This includes not only canals and natural reservoir sources, but artesian flows and pumping plants as well.

MINERAL RESOURCES.

A country is rich which has rich soils, plenty of moisture and a good climate. Kern county has all these in the highest degree. But when you get the surface wealth exhausted you are only scratching the back of this wonderful county. The mineral wealth of Kern county in 1914 amounted to a value of $40,000,000. That the wealth is permanent is plainly indicated by the fact that this was an increase of $12,000,000 over the value of the mineral production of the county in the previous year. Five-sixths of this increase is due to oil, amounting as said above, to $36,025,000 in 1914, compared with $25,929,892 in 1913. But while oil is the principal mineral production of the county, it is not by any means the only one. Copper, gold, lead, silver, gas and other mineral productions amounted in the year quoted above to more than $2,000,000.

BILLIONS IN OIL.

Marvelous as is the production of oil and colossal as is the value of the annual output, the figures sink into insignificance compared with the possibilities of Kern county's oil fields. From the well-developed sections the engineers estimate that there is still to put out of these wells 1,978,000,000 barrels of oil. At the present rate of pumping, this supply would last a hundred years, and at the average rate of increase will give plenty of this fuel for the next sixty years. At the present rate of 55 cents a barrel, this oil is worth more than $1,000,000,000. This will pay for the whole of Kern county at the rate of $200 an acre.

It is surely a great industry. Great pipe lines, for the most part eight inches in diameter, carry the product of these wells to many points for shipment. Four of these lines reach San Francisco Bay, and others run southward, some as far as the Port of Los Angeles. To give an idea of the extent of these pipe lines it is stated that if put together they would reach across the continent from the Pacific to the Atlantic Ocean. Twenty thousand cars and seventy-six tank steamers were used by the various companies to carry this oil to market in 1913.

NATURAL GAS.

In connection with the oil the discovery was made that a vast storage tank of natural gas underlies Kern county. Since this was first tapped near Taft in the southern end of Kern county, a great industry has been developed. This gas is piped to many cities of the southern part of the State, where it is used for power, light and heat purposes. One great pipe line reaches from the Midway field to Los Angeles and its environment, where more than 200,000 consumers were supplied during 1914.

THE FINER SIDE OF LIFE.

Of course, Kern county, being a part of California, the most progressive State in the whole American Union, these material things do not monopolize the attention of the people. The people are largely of the same blood of that in New England, where a crop could not be raised, planted a little red schoolhouse, and proceeded to grow men. Education in its most advanced form is carried on here at Bakersfield, where the High School is thoroughly equipped with a farm, with a chemical laboratory. Here farming is taught in the most scientific form by concrete demonstration. In connection with the schools of the county there is a system of interloaning libraries. Anyone who visits Bakersfield will find civilization at its acme. This will be shown at a glance by the public buildings, the schools of the city and every other indication of a highly-refined society. The city is noted as a railroad center, and the banking conditions are thoroughly modern, including a clearinghouse association. Besides the two trunk railroads passing through the city Kern county has developed a fine system of highways. The State highway passing through the Tejon Pass north to Bakersfield and on to the county line beyond Delano will be finished before the end of the current year. This will bring Bakersfield within 150 miles of Los Angeles, a distance which may be covered in four hours by automobile. This is due to the low grades over the Tejon mountains. The county itself has appropriated for highway purposes $2,500,000, to be used in constructing 320 miles of county roads connecting the different towns with the State highway.

Ground Broken for Bungalows in Vermont and New Vermont Squares. Builder Erecting Twelfth House.

Three attractive bungalows were started during the past week in the subdivisions of the Southwest Land Company in Southwest Los Angeles. F. W. Taylor, who has already completed and sold eleven houses in Vermont Square, broke ground for a twelfth house. The dwelling will be of the story-and-a-half type and will occupy a site on Western avenue, near Forty-first drive.

Mrs. Sophia Anderson started a six-room place of the chalet style on West Forty-second street, in New Vermont Square. The cost is estimated at $2000. C. H. Wiseman started a $2000 five-room bungalow at No. 1610 West Forty-fifth street.

Birch O'Neal, who has built and sold seven bungalows in New Vermont Square, is reported by the owners of the tract to have purchased during the past week a lot on Forty-second street, near St. Andrew's place. Mr. O'Neal, it is stated, will build on the site a seven-room house costing about $3000.

STEADY GAIN IN "GAS" OUTPUT.

Compressor Plants Still Being Added.

Daily Yield is Near Thirty Thousand Gallons.

Progress of Standard in Chinese Field.

The European war has not stopped the increase in California's output of cashinghead gasoline. Figures on the present daily average yield, show a total of nearly 27,000 gallons a day, a gain of over 4000 gallons in the past six or seven months.

Two new plants have been added since last summer, namely the Midday Gasoline Company at Taft, and the Rancho La Brea's in the Salt Lake field. These, with enlargements at the older compressors, have been principally responsible for the increase in production. In fact, the output of some of the other plants has dropped.

Additions at present being made to the plants include the installation of another engine on the Union Oil's Santa Maria plant, which will increase its capacity 1500 gallons daily. The Purity Gasoline Company in the same field is installing machinery to increase its capacity 300 gallons daily. The Union is also constructing a new plant in Olinda field. The Rice Ranch Company has enlarged its capacity within the past few months.

Following are the various plants in the State, with their present output shown, and the production at the outbreak of the war:

Cushing Yield Drops.

[Oil City Derrick:] From nearly 300,000 barrels a day a month ago the production of the Cushing field has declined to about 220,000 barrels. This is not the potential output, however, but has been brought about by closing in the wells, and also the bad conditions of the roads, preventing the completion of fresh producers. The decline is a large one and indicates what will happen when it is certain that the boundaries of the field have been fully marked. Meantime, active drilling in the spring and the opening of the old producers to their full extent will undoubtedly cause another increase in the production, and may bring it up to the long-expected figure of 300,000 barrels a day. Similar conditions exist in the Healdton pool, where the production has declined to 15,000 barrels a day. A few months ago it was estimated at close to 50,000 barrels. Most of the wells in this pool are also shut in and few are drilling.

Gushers in Baku.

[Oil City Derrick:] The deepening of wells in the Baku oil district of Russia has resulted in a number of good producers during the last five months. One of these wells produced 117,000 barrels of oil since the middle of October up to the latter part of February. The output of another well was 235,000 barrels in about the same period. Larger wells are also reported, one of which made 140,000 barrels in twenty-seven hours; another 173,000 barrels in four days, and another 100,000 barrels in a few days. These gushers are located at Surakhani, Binagadi and Bibi-Eibat. The deepest well and the largest mentioned above 2003 feet, and the others are from 1050 feet to 2100 feet deep.

Standard in China.

Although little has been heard of the Standard Oil Company's activities in China since the outbreak of the war, recent advices indicate that they have gone right ahead with their work of testing out the territory in the Shensi province.

Nevertheless, it has not been easy sailing for the big company. The formations which have been encountered in the Chinese territory are very troublesome, and moreover the company has found it somewhat difficult to retain a working force in the desolate region, where the wells are located. However, three wells are drilling, and geologists express the belief that the field is very promising.

The main difficulty which the company will encounter after it locates oil in commercial quantities will be the building of pipe lines, etc. This will involve very heavy expenditures.

Some doubt has been expressed as to the advisability of developing a production in China, at present. The fear is entertained that it will prove a detriment to the American trade.

A Standard oil man is quoted as follows in the Wall-street Journal, on this phase of the question:

"I do not believe that a big production in China would adversely affect the American petroleum situation. In the first place, it must be remembered that the Standard Oil Company of New York has thus far not covered more than about one-fourth of the Chinese population and the other three-quarters remains to be reached, thus offering a wonderful opportunity for expansion.

"As soon as the New York company is able to market its Chinese production it will probably develop a new market for it—that is—it will continue to take its present requirements of oil from California and the East and will open up new selling territory for its Chinese output. Then it must be remembered that in the event of the company finding oil in commercial quantities in China, it will have to spend years in constructing pipe lines and refineries. If the company locates oil in satisfactory quantities this year, it will probably be five years from now before it is ready to market it."

ISSUES VALUABLE OIL-FIELD MAPS.

MINING BUREAU'S PETROLEUM BULLETIN ALSO SOON TO BE OUT.

The California State Mining Bureau has just added a valuable folio of maps to its publications. These maps are issued in connection with Bulletin No. 69 on the "Petroleum Industry in California," which is still on the press, but will be put out soon.

The maps not only show the oil fields of the State in detail, but also the characteristic geologic formations in various sections, as well as cross-sections of strata, and also a general view of the pipe lines and oil districts.

In the geological maps different colors are used to indicate the formations in the various districts.

There is a detailed description of the geologic record of the State, by John Perrin Smith of Stanford University, on the cover.

An interesting feature is the pictures of the fossils.

CAN'T KEEP PIPE LINES FILLED.

STANDARD'S SHIPMENTS FROM VALLEY CUT DOWN.

Big System of Lines Operates to Only Half Capacity Since Outbreak of War—Union's Lease on Sunset Road Oil Property Soon to Expire. Natural Gas Deal.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, March 26.—Since August the Standard Oil Company's great pipe-line system from Midway and Kern River to Point Richmond—two eight-inch lines and one twelve-inch—has been operating at less than half-capacity. The lines can move about 4500 barrels an hour of Midway oil. At present about 2000 barrels an hour is being transported.

Except once in about two or three months it is all Midway and McKittrick oil that is pumped. Kern River oil is more difficult to handle. However, about the only shipments of that product made to the north by the Standard are on the Western Pacific locomotive fuel contract which the Standard took away from the Associated Oil Company about two years ago.

This oil is transported in blocks of about 100,000 barrels each, and when shipped is the only product sent through the two eight-inch lines. Delivery is made to the railroad at a way station near Tracy; the oil does not go through to Point Richmond.

WAR STOPS WORK.

The war has stopped all unnecessary work on all Standard properties; nor are there any signs of a revival. The refinery at Kern River is simply turning out moderate amounts of all goods, no enlargements being under way.

Only on one of the three wild-cat wells in the western extension of Kern River is work being carried on at present. This is the well on section 35; the others are shut down.

An officer of the Standard says that the only extensive drilling the company is doing is on the Murphy properties in Whittier-Fullerton, and this is obligatory.

Union Lease Out.

The Union's lease on the old Sunset Road Oil Company's property expires in April and the land will revert to the owner, the Midway Oil Company. Stockholders of that concern were recently advised by circular letter that it was for them to consider its future disposal. It is apparently settled that the lease will not be renewed.

The Union has been greatly disappointed with the results of the deal by which it acquired this land. A mass of litigation grew out of the Kern Valley Bank failure, that institution having held bonds and maintained financial relations with the former operators of the lands. For the last two years or more the Union has performed no development on these lands. None was required by the contracts, with oil as low as it is.

Natural Gas Fuel.

Negotiations are under way between the Standard and the California Natural Gas Company for the latter to lay a pipe line to the former's refinery in the Kern River oil field and supply it with fuel. At present oil is burned, a heavy expense as compared with natural gas. The bargain is not yet closed, but probably will be.

Natural gas is burned successfully at the El Segundo refinery. If the gas company lays the pipe line other companies may be supplied with fuel, but this is not contemplated in the present plans.

IS REBUILDING PIER.

EL SEGUNDO, March 25.—The Standard Oil Company has started rebuilding that section of its pier at El Segundo which was damaged by the heavy seas two months ago. About 1600 feet was carried away, and this is being entirely rebuilt. This sets at rest rumors which have been given some publicity to the effect that the Standard Oil was going to build a pipe line to Redondo Beach and ship from the Redondo pier.

FIRST IN THE CITY.

Bungalow Court of Fifteen Houses to be Erected in Riverside—Fine Home to Stand in Grove.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, March 27.—Plans are being prepared for the first bungalow court to be erected in the city. A group of fifteen homes will be erected by F. W. Burdell at the intersection of Linwood place and the extension of Magnolia avenue.

Further proof of a renewal of building activity on Magnolia avenue is proven by the decision of B. B. Bricker of Los Angeles, a member of the California Mausoleum Company, to erect an $8500 hollow-tile residence near Madison street. This will occupy a five-acre site, which will be elaborately landscaped.

TRACT OPENING.

New Ramona Acres was opened for sale Sunday, last, by the Janss Investment Company. The event took the form of an old-fashioned picnic and was well attended. The grading of New Ramona boulevard, which bisects the new San Gabriel Valley farms subdivision, is being rapidly completed, as are also the cement sidewalks and curbs on Del Mar avenue. Eight new houses are now under construction on the tract.

MIOCENE GUSHER OFF PRODUCTION.

QUITS AFTER YIELDING LARGE FLOW OF OIL.

Effort Being Made to Bring it in Again—Obispo Producer Revived with Output of Thousand Barrels Daily, but Litigation Still Ties up Profits.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TAFT, March 26.—The Miocene Oil Company's great well (section 32, 12-24,) on land leased from the National Pacific Oil Company, has quit, whether temporarily or permanently it is impossible to tell. For many months it flowed 2500 to 3000 barrels daily; altogether it has produced for more than three years and from three distinct sands. It came in as a 10,000-barrel gusher in the last sand.

The Miocene well was always under control. The special gas trap used both as a treating plant and a means of keeping back pressure was a feature of its operation. The trap was constructed of two fifteen-inch line pipes, 1800 feet long. The oil was allowed to flow into one line at a time, each being kept full of gas, and the pressure was diminished when the oil was to flow fast or increased to curtail the flow.

Beside neutralizing pressure the trap retained all the light properties in the oil which evaporated when it was run into the open sump to await shipment.

After one trap line was filled the flow of oil was turned into the other and the one which was already full was emptied into the settling tanks, where the water and sediment were removed, so that the oil was left in marketable condition. The oil was taken by the Standard Oil Company.

The preliminary work of cleaning out the well preparatory to making an effort to put it on production again is under way.

The great Obispo well, same section, has come back with a flow of 900 barrels daily. The stockholders would be very well satisfied with this output if they had the least idea when, if ever, they are going to get a chance at the money received for the oil already produced and now held in escrow by the receiver appointed by the court, awaiting the outcome of litigation with the government as to the company's rights under Presidential land withdrawals. The Supreme Court has ruled against them in the Midwest case, but they are living in hopes that Congress may extend them relief. More than $700,000 is in the receiver's hands awaiting the pleasure of the government.

The Maricopa Northern will deepen its No. 2 well to the lower gusher sand. The upper or so-called Wilhelm sand has not yielded a satisfactory well.

Oil Notes.

The McDougall-Segur Oil Company, promoted largely by Ira E. Segur of San Francisco, formerly of the Sunset Monarch Oil Company, has some 1400 acres in the Sweetgrass country. It was reported last week that some heavy oil had been struck in one of its test wells. The ground is broken and scattered in small tracts over a large territory. The Sweetgrass district is just north of the Montana line in Alberta province, Canada.

Perhaps to avoid possible capture, if under a belligerent flag, the Shells will have a cargo of kerosene purchased here shipped to China under the American flag, the Associated tanker, Frank H. Buck, being chartered for that purpose.

The report of W. W. Stephenson that he has 37 gravity oil which rises 1000 feet in the hole 2700 feet deep, at Calgary, arouses much interest here. Among those who have been to Calgary there are wide differences of opinion as to the probability of the strike proving good.

NOT LIKELY TO FILE SCHEDULES.

TIME FOR ANNOUNCING RATES EXPIRES SOON.

Transportation Companies to Carry War Against Common Carrier Law to Courts—Associated Opposes Water Control Bill—South American Trade Improves.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 26.—April 12 will mark the expiration of the time allotted for several pipe line companies recently declared by the Railroad Commission to be common carriers—the Associated, Producers' Transportation and General Petroleum—to file their tariffs. The Standard, which was also declared a common carrier, complied with the law over a year ago by filing its schedule of rates. It is not expected that any of the others will do so, for the reason that the matter is almost certain to be taken to court.

Oppose Water Bill.

Opposition to the Maddux water control bill has developed at Sacramento from the Associated Oil Company, whose representative was at the conference between legislators and oil operators Tuesday last to oppose the law proposed by the State Mining Bureau. Others argued for it, suggesting changes in detail.

South American Trade.

While shipments of oil fuel from California to South America are small compared with what they were before the war, they have nevertheless picked up considerably in the past few months. Except for the trade with Canada and an occasional shipment to the Orient the fuel oil sent abroad from this State all goes to South America. The Union-Agency does practically all the business in fuel oil with the Latin-American countries.

Strike Hot Water.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FULLERTON, March 26.—Hot water was recently struck in the Loftus well on the Berkinstock lease, north of Placentia, at a depth of 3500 feet. This is the first hot water that has been found in that section of the field.

SECOND CONTRACT IS BEING FILLED.

REWARD COMPANY RENEWS WITH STANDARD FOR THE M'KITTRICK YIELD.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

M'KITTRICK, March 27.—The Reward Oil Company is supplying oil on a second contract recently made with the Standard Oil Company. This agreement, like the first one, calls for 1,000,000 barrels, to be delivered at the Olig station. The first contract was entered into last summer, and immediately afterward the Standard opened the Olig station, which had not been operated since its construction several years previous.

The Reward Oil Company recently completed two new wells, thus making the total number on the McKittrick property forty. The concern also has a lease on the North McKittrick front, where some development work has been done.

The Kern Trading and Oil Company, which has leases in both the south and north divisions of the McKittrick district, has just finished the building of new rigs over wells Nos. 20 and 21 on the Davis lease. The derricks formerly standing on these locations were leveled during a windstorm which visited the northern portion of the field some months ago. The company will resume pumping these two wells within the next few days.

The East Puente Oil Company, after drilling well No. 1 on lease No. 2 to a depth of 1180 feet, obtained a production that is considered very encouraging, but has decided to go down further, in the belief that the output will be increased considerably. Drilling is to be resumed next week. The East Puente Company's properties are in the extreme northern part of the McKittrick district, being located between the leases of the San Francisco and McKittrick Oil Company and the Jackson Oil Company.

The San Francisco and McKittrick Oil Company will in a short time complete the construction of the 100,000-barrel reservoir. Work has been actively in progress for several weeks. With two other reservoirs the storage facilities of the company aggregate 335,000 barrels. The production of the San Francisco and McKittrick is large and the twenty wells on its lease have been very remunerative, the company having been enabled for years to pay good dividends.

The completion of the work of installing immense new pumps in the Junction, Antelope, Shandon, Creston and Santa Margarito stations of the Producers' Transportation Company marks a decided improvement in the matter of oil transportation facilities between the Midway district and the coast.

SHOOTING AND SLUGGING.

Chicago has Another Outbreak Because Employers to Get Their Work Done Put on Non-union Men.

[Chicago Hearld:] Shooting and slugging yesterday (March 13) became a part of the fight between building employers and the unions unseated by the Building Trades Council, and both Chief Gleason and State Attoreny Hoyne were appealed to for the protection of the substitute lathers employed by the contractors.

One man was shot. Another was knocked down by a slugger. A third, when attacked, drove off his assailant with a club.

A contractor was told that unless the men unseated by the trades council were employed his building would be blown up. Three others were advised over the telephone that if they hired non-union men they would be killed.

Early in the day the contractor, who is erecting a flat building at 3200 Chicago avenue, was called on the telephone and advised that if he didn't employ lathers from White City district council there would be shooting.

He ignored that threat, and a few hours later several men appeared at the building in an automobile. One went inside and shouted to the non-union lathers at work:

"Beat it out of here or you'll be croaked."

The men paid no attention. A few minutes later the man reappeared, put his hand through the narrow doorway and fired.

David A. Johnson of No. 4518 South Dearborn street, one of the substitute lathers, fell from his scaffold. He had been shot through the right leg, the bullet lodging in the left thigh.

The police could find no trace of the assailant, who was described as 30 years old, of stocky build, smooth shaven and wearing a dark hat and black overcoat.

At Rogers Park avenue and Sheridan road a "slugger" followed a substitute lather and knocked him down with a blackjack. The foreman of the job, observing the assault, chased the man several blocks.

At 4300 West Twelfth street an owner was advised that his building would be blown up and he would be murdered if he did not insist that men from White City councial be employed.

Chief Gleasner and State Attorney Hoyne when advised by the Building Construction Empolyers' Association of the violence both promised to lend all possible aid in running down sluggers. Chief Gleason declared he would furnish all the men required to protect lives of the substitute lathers and to protect property threatened.

The carpenter's district council announced that the referendum vote on whether the old agreement should be signed up for another three years with the employers resulted overwhelmingly in a rejection of the old wage scale of 65 cents an hour. The essentials of the uniform agreement did not enter into the vote, it was said.

UNION INITIATION FEES

So High in San Francisco as to Prevent Men Joining, Then are Refused Work Because They are Scabs.

[San Francisco Star:] Addressing the San Francisco Labor Council at a recent meeting, Andrew J. Gallaugher made some pertinent criticism of unions that maintain high initiation fees. He says there are fifteen unions in San Francisco that "have practically built a Chinese wall about their organizations by adopting a prohibitive initiation fee," which means, he says, "that honest workingmen, who desire to join these unions, find it almost impossible to do so, because the average workingman has not the money with which to pay the initiation fee." And Mr. Gallagher added:

"I know of one instance where a workingman with a large family to support wanted to join a local union. He even offered to pay $150 for the privilege of becoming a union man; but even then he was rejected and the doors of the union were closed against him. Such a condition is a disgrace to the labor movement and ought not to be tolerated."

The high initiation fees charged by some labor unions are the basis of a great deal of the criticism of labor unions generally by the opponents of unions; and that there is justice in the criticism is shown by the fact that high initiation fees are opposed by such stanch unionists as Sam Gompers and Andrew J. Gallagher. It seems very unfair to keep men out of the unions by charging high initiation fees, and then to label as "scabs" the men kept out of the union by the high initiation fees. Sam Gompers is in favor of high regular dues, but opposed to high initiation fees. He asserts that "the initiation fees should be small, thereby inviting and making it possible for the yet unorganized to join the union, and to make common cause with their fellow workers to secure the common welfare of all."

It does not look like a square deal to demand that every worker in a trade shall be a union man, and then place the initiation fee so high that large numbers of the workers in that trade cannot join the union.

English Woolens for Russians.

[London Chronicle:] The order received in Yorkshire for 100,000 Russian tunics reminds one that our export clothing trade played an important part in the struggle with Napoleon, who tried to crush it by prohibition and by a futile attempt to start an industrial revolution on his own account. That the English export clothing trade kept the flag flying in spite of the continental system may be gathered from the significant fact that in the retreat from Moscow—an expedition undertaken with the main object of compelling Russia to boycott our goods—Nepoleon's own soldiers were clothed in English woolens.

Editor Cannot Square Himself.

[Donneborg (Neb.) News:] An editor up in the northeastern part of the State is in bad on account of the write-up of a wedding. The bridegroom was named Gunn and his father, Abraham Gunn. The girls' name was Smith. The editor turned in the copy to the office boy the last thing before going to press, then hurried to the train to be gone two days. When the paper was printed the article was headed "Gunn Smith," and went on to say that the bride was arrayed in a dress of "white mile" instead of white mull, and she carried a large "nose." The editor wrote that the bridegroom was a well-liked son of A. Gunn, and the boy set it up, "The bridegroom is a wall-eyed son of a gun."

The editor has never been able to square it with the Gunns and Smiths, and all of them quit taking the paper.

UNION OFFICERS HELD FOR BLACKMAIL.

Seven Business Agents of Chicago Unions Have been Arrested and Required to Furnish Bail as Result of Finding of the United States Grand Jury.

[American Justice:] The United States grand jury, sitting in Chicago, has returned the first of its indictments against the alleged blackmailing union business agents, the investigation of whose grafting operations began last July, following an expose of their methods by the Chicago Herald. The men indicted are:

Charles W. Fry, business agent of Machinists' Union No. 126, and head of the Machinery Unions' District Council.

Michael J. Artery, secretary and business agent of Machinery Riggers' and Safe Movers' Union local No. 136.

Michael Galvin, secretary and former business agent of Truck Teamsters' Union local No. 705, and a business agent of the Teamsters' District Council.

Mike Norris, secretary and business agent of the Lime, Stone and Cement Teamsters' Union.

John Haley, business agent of the chauffeurs, business agent of the Lime, Stone and Cement Teamsters' Union, and organizer for the Teamsters' District Council.

John Miller, business agent of Coal Teamsters' Union No. 704.

John Lynch, business agent of local No. 731, Excavating Teamsters' Union and assistant business agent of locals Nos. 703, 704 and 705.

The arrest was a surprise to the business agents, as a "high" politician is said to have passed the word that they had nothing to fear; that the District Attorney and grand jury would "stall along" and do nothing. As a consequence, Fry was not prepared to give bail promptly and was obliged to spend the night in jail. Naturally he was highly peeved, and complained, "This is a fine time to arrest a guy." When newspaper men sought to question him, he replied, "Don't youse ask me nothing. I ain't got nothin' to say." Later all were admitted to bail in the amount of $5000 furnished by Alderman John Powers and John J. Corcoran.

The indictments charge an unlawful conspiracy in restraint of trade.

Two separate classes of accusations are made; that the defendants conspired to obstruct interstate commerce and did actually obstruct it. The attorneys for Fry, Artery and Galvin expect to file a demurrer to the indictment on the ground that the men cannot be prosecuted owing to the running of the Statute of Limitations, more than three years having elapsed since the offense was committed.

For the past year or more, Fry and his Machinists' Union have been involved in numerous jurisdictional disputes, with their attendant sluggings, violence and crookedness. The union was at one time dropped from the Building Trades' Council, but the American Federation of Labor, at its Seattle convention in 1913, ordered its reinstatement, thereby indorsing its lawless tactics.

The indictments of Norris, Haley, Miller and Lynch are based on complaint of John J. McLaughlin that his interstate shipments of sand and building material were held up because he wouldn't "kick in" with $5000. The offenses charged are on June 24 and 25, 1914. On that day, the indictment sets forth, the men took teamsters off the McLaughlin yards, the cars were tied up and interstate commerce obstructed.

United States Attorney Clyne issued the following statement of the indictment against the four men:

"This is an indictment in five counts, charging both a conspiracy and a combination in retaraint of interstate commerce, under the Sherman law.

"The conspiracy charged is to prevent the unloading of cars engaged in interstate commerce by causing the teamsters engaged in unloading and hauling the material to refuse to do their work.

"There was no grievance on the part of the teamsters themselves, no complaint in regard to hours, wages or conditions of labor, and the teamsters were compelled by the defendants to refuse to do the work under penalty of fines, suspensions and possible violence."

Four checks were presented to the jurors showing payments of money at other times to avoid the same trouble. When these checks and cash totaling $2500 were paid, it was after Haley and Norris had told McLaughlin: "Pay it or we'll tie up your yards so tight the sand can't leak out of a crack."

Concerning the corruptness of the Chicago unions, Mr. McLaughlin stated to the District Attorney: "No job can be completed without the payment of blackmail."

Homer K. Galpin and C. A. Williams, lawyers for Haley and Norris, according to the Herald, telephoned to United States Attorney Clyne to say they would deliver their clients into custody the next morning and be prepared to free them on bail immediately..

Haley didn't want to be arrested on the 27th. He is a former convict. The fact his union members knew that, coupled with his detention in the County Jail, would have interfered with his election that evening as business agent of his union once more. Norris is also an ex-convict.

Galpin and Williams, attorneys for the four, declared they were innocent before they knew the charges in the indictments against them. It is here recalled that every union-labor leader in the country declared the McNamara brothers innocent before they were tried. It is also recalled that to avoid the probability of capital punishment the McNamaras pleaded guilty.

Tolls on Belgian Skippers.

[London Chronicle:] Bombardment, fire and sword have not been the only enemies of Antwerp. Holland, lover of freedom as she is, was unable in the past to resist the temptation to play the part of a Rhine robber and levy toll on the ships sailing up the Scheldt. The French, after a century and a half of this injustice, came in 1794 to the rescue of Belgium, and compelled Holland to relinquish the dues. Antwerp then forged ahead, aided by the fine harbors and quays that Napoleon built. All went well until the Belgian revolution of 1830, when the Dutch found themselves in a position again to levy toll on the poor Belgian skippers. The revived blackmail lasted for thirty years, and was only ended by the payment of 30,000,000 francs to the Dutch. Of this vast sum Belgium had to find one-third. Since then Antwerp has never gone back.

TESTING LABOR-UNION EXEMPTION LAW.

[EDITORIAL.]

IT WAS predicted, when the Clayton law was enacted, with its provision ostensibly designed to exempt labor unions from the operation of the Sherman law, that that unjust and unconstitutional (class legislation) provision would soon be called into question before the courts.

Already the prediction has been fulfilled. A case has reached the Supreme Court of the United States through which the validity of the exemption and the scope of it, if validity should be affirmed, will be determined.

Suit was brought against New York members of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and union-shop manufacturers for an injunction to restrain the defendants from alleged activities, for which they were charged with having conspired, for the destruction of the business of manufacturers maintaining an open shop. A lower court denied the injunction.

That union-shop manufacturers are made co-defendants complicates the issue, since the action thus lies jointly against those who believe themselves to be exempt from the operation of the Sherman law and those who are not exempt. Even if the appellants win, the decision may be one that applies only to this particular case in which there is such a combination on the side of the defendants.

However, any decision in this case may at least indicate what view the Supreme Court is likely to take when the question of the validity of labor-union exemption clause comes before it without complications.

BRUSHING THE COBWEBS FROM NEW SEAMEN'S ACT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 27.—While Justice Department officials are continuing work on their opinion as to when provisions of the new seamen's law would become effective, Secretary Redfield issued this statement:

"The following announcement applies to sections of the seamen's act of March 4, 1915:

"(1.) Section six (forecast and accommodations) applies to vessels of the United States, the keels of which are laid on and after March 4, 1915, whether such vessels be built at home or abroad.

"(2.) Section 14, by its terms will apply to vessels of the United States and foreign vessels on and after July 1, 1915.

"(3.) Sections 4, 11 and 13 will apply to foreign vessels in the manner and at the times indicated in sections 16, 17 and 18 of the act."

Mr. Redfield's statement is the expression of Commerce Department officials as to apparent conflicts resulting from the language of the act in several sections, and which have brought numerous inquiries from shipping men.

Section 18 of the act contains the general statement that it shall take affect eight months after its passage, with certain reservations as to foreign shipping, while sections 6 and 14 fix the date of application on some specific provisions. Other sections are held to be of such nature as to be involved with those specific provisions and confusion arose as to whether they would take the same dates of application.

It was understood some Justice Department officials were inclined to believe the act would not become effective until November 4, under section 18.

SODA WATER WITHOUT SODA.

Aeration Is Accomplished With Carbonic Acid Gas Without a Trace of the Alkali.

[Washington Star:] The soda water fountain, or simply the "soda fountain," is one of the notable developments of the age. The fountain has become an institution in all American cities, and, like the American ice cream habit, was spreading in Europe and Asia when the war broke out, and will probably resume its conquering way in Europe when peace returns. The soda fountain season has so lengthened that many fountains fizz and sizzle the year round.

One of the noteworthy features about soda water is that very little, perhaps precious little, is what its name implies. That is, there is no soda in the water. Perhaps it cannot be fairly alleged that this fact renders it any the less palatable or less refreshing and wholesome. It is interesting that it has become the custom of millions of people to call soda water that which is just a particular kind of sodaless water.

The artificial aeration of water was invented by Joseph Priestley, who wrote, in 1772, an account of the methods he had recently discovered. For the sake of convenience, aerated and mineral waters may be divided into two main groups, table waters and medical waters, and the table waters may be subdivided into two classes, artificial and natural.

The chief variety of artificial aerated water is plain water charged with carbonic acid gas, and ordinary water so impregnated is commonly known as soda water, even though no soda is present in it. The most suitable water for this purpose is obtained from artesian wells, which are usually of great purity, or from springs of known purity. There are waters to which various salts have been added, and these are soda water, lithia water, magnesia water and potash water. True "soda water" contains a very small addition of bicarbonate of soda, but nearly all the soda water which the soda water drinking world gets when it orders lemon phosphate, strawberry, sarsaparilla and the like is plain water charged with carbonic acid gas in which, if the water was pure to start with, there is not a trace of soda.

Important in the commerce of the world are aerated distilled waters from which all solid matter like lime and other salts has been removed by distillation. These are subsequently charged with carbonic acid gas under pressure and are in consequence pure carbonated waters.

SUCCESS LATE IN LIFE.

Some of Our Most Prominent Men "Came Back" After Previous Years of Discouraging Experiences.

[The Oklahoman:] Those men who have reached middle age without achieving distinction or success should not be discouraged, but should recall the names of a few wizards of science and finance who accomplished much in their later years. Edison, starting late in life to rebuild his works after a fire, finds plenty of parallels in history.

Jay Cooke, caught in the malestrom of a panic, lost a fortune. His resolution, backed by industry, paid every debt he owed and made another new fortune.

Sir Walter Scott, in his old age, wrote some of his most famous novels to pay debts for which he was not legally responsible, and he died fairly wealthy.

The best money-maker of any book written by an American was partly dictated on his death bed by Gen. Grant.

Mark Twain's experience was similar to Scott's, and like him he refused to allow a burden of years to stop him. Twain wrote himself out of debt when an old man.

George Westinghouse "came back" with a rush after the 1907 panic had plunged his affairs into a state of disruption.

No, sirree, one misfortune, however big, is not sufficient to drown the courage in men like Edison, Scott, Grant, Twain, Cooke, Westinghouse and scores of others who used the wreck of one temple for materials with which to build another.

The capacity to produce big things doesn't diminish with age nearly so much as is commonly supposed. The desire and the necessity may grow less in many instances, but ability very often does not decrease with them.

REPORTS ON WAGES AND CONDITIONS.

Timely Bulletins from All Parts of the World.

The sixteenth biennial report of the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the State of California, Hon. John P. McLaughlin, Commissioner, just issued, gives the following as the rates of wages paid in Los Angeles, in 1914:

Labor Situation in Canada.

Labor was not well employed in Canada during 1914, and the close of the year witnessed a large number of workingmen out of work. This was particularly noticeable in unskilled occupations, but in skilled trades as well, particularly in building trades, a great many had no work. A certain amount of unemployment in the building trades is usual in the fall of the year, and in winter, when building operations largely come to a close, but lack of employment was noticeable in these trades even at the height of the usual building seasons, particularly in the West.

While unemployment existed to a large extent in the spring and summer, it was not until the closing months of the year that any considerable reductions were made in wages. The tendency up to that time was rather to reduce staffs and cut down working hours, which, while it meant decreased earnings, did not actually interfere with established wage rates. In the last few months of the year, however, wages were cut. During the first nine months of the year forty-six changes in rates of wages were reported to the Department of Labor, as compared with 173 in the corresponding period of 1913. Of these forty-six changes, thirty-nine were increases and affected approximately 12,000 employees, the greater number of whom were employed in transport lines. There were four increases reported, affecting approximately 2000 employees, chiefly electrical and steel workers. The last quarter of the year, however, showed a great number of decreases. Unskilled labor, particularly, suffered reductions practically all over the country. Civic employees also in many instances had salaries and wages reduced. Several hundred employees of metal mines and smelters agreed to a 25 per cent. reduction in wages to enable the resumption of mining and smelting operations. The wages of several hundred workers in coal mines on Vancouver Island were also reduced.

The year 1914 closed with a distinctly unfavorable situation so far as labor was concerned. The number of unemployed reached large proportions, estimated by some to be at least 100,000, and by others double that number. The question of dealing with unemployment and distress caused provincial and municipal authorities much concern. In the western provinces provincial governments granted large sums of money to various municipalities to assist in relieving distress and in furnishing work for the unemployed. In Ontario a commission was appointed to look into the situation and to suggest means for its alleviation.

One gratifying feature of the industrial year in Canada was the comparatively few trade disputes reported. There were, according to the record of the Department of Labor, but forty-four strikes during the year, the lowest number recorded since the department was organized in 1901, and less by sixty-nine than in 1913.

The cost of living was somewhat higher in 1914 than in 1913, the average level of prices, according to statistics of the Department of Labor, being slightly higher than in the previous year, largely as the result of the disturbance of trade by the war. The prices of foodstuffs rose sharply for a time, but later became steadier. Rentals remained stationary in some instances; in others there was a downward tendency.

"I WANT A MAN"

If you are the man I want I will spend patience and time to teach you the Real Estate Business. You can make a good deal of money while you are learning if you will do just as I tell you to do. A man alone is very often like a ship without a helm. I am the helm. If you have a little better than average personality, appearance and good manners, if you know what the value of sticking to the truth means, I will steer you on the road where other men are making from $5000 to $10,000 a year. This may be the definite chance you may have been waiting for to shape your future to success. I want to talk to you any morning after 9 o'clock.

CHILDREN, NOT CATS, NEED CARE.

Judge Porterfield, Who Originated the Plan for Payment of Money Toward the Support of Bread-Earning Widows With Children, Says States Should Be Careful Not to Encourage Sloth or Pauperism.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) March 18.—So far, eighteen States have accepted Edward Everett Porterfield's idea that poor women of a certain kind, having children, should be helped with money out of the public treasury. In his opinion, however, some of the States have acted unwisely in this respect. They have put trimmings on the original idea to its detriment and the injury of those who receive assistance.

Judge Porterfield, the pathfinder into a new zone of social legislation, to use a phrase coined by the professional uplifters, sitting in the Juvenile Court of Jackson county, Missouri, which is another way of saying Kansas City, saw a ragged and frightened procession of little boys and girls come in from the streets and vanish by his orders into public institutions.

Here began his thought that society, the taxpayers in other words, owed such children protection and training. There are pounds even for homeless dogs and cats. And then society, protecting itself against diseases, should protect itself against moral delinquents, against the making, by default in action, of thieves and vagabonds of both sexes.

At last the essence of his philosophy was put into four sentences. "From morning until night," he said, "the children of mothers compelled to work away from home are adrift without parental supervision or direction. They soon fall into bad company and bad habits.

"They find the picture show more attractive than school and they become truants. To get to the nickel show, they beg on the streets or steal the nickel."

So, in time, came a law, the first of its kind in the United States, granting allowances in Jackson county to widows and to the wives of Missouri convicts and of men confined in Missouri insane asylums. But the women must have children and be bread-earners.

SOME OF THE JUDGE'S SAYINGS.

"A child," Judge Porterfield says, "should never be taken away from a good mother."

"If the poverty of a mother forces her to neglect her child, the poverty should be removed and not the child," is another of his sayings.

"I don't believe," he will tell you, "in giving alms, but in reconstructing the family, in getting a broken-down family again on its feet."

"A good mother," he declares, "can rear her child better than can the best of institutions."

After practicing his profession for twenty-one years in Kansas City, having come here from Martinsburg, W. Va., where he was born, Judge Porterfield went on the bench in 1907. He has been judge of the Juvenile Court for six years, though he also acts in civil cases. The celebrated Swope murder case was tried in his court. He is a dark-complexioned, dark-eyed and dark-haired man and is full of sympathy and alive with energy.

"Hundreds of children come before me every year," he said, in telling the history of the law which he inspired and which is being used as a model in all parts of the country. "Many mothers, I learned, were widows or the wives of men confined in prisons and insane asylums. They couldn't support their children unless they went away from home to work. The children, left all day alone, ran the streets in many instances and for one cause or another were brought into court.

"Unfortunate men and women, drunkards and other human wrecks, were being rebuilt into decent and self-respecting citizens by various agencies and I thought that some constructive work was needed with unfortunate and neglected children. Why wait, I asked, until a boy or girl has grown up and gone to the bad before extending a helping hand? As a matter of humanity, the child should be taught and cared for. As a matter of public policy, the child should learn to be self-supporting and to conduct himself so as to be respected in the community.

PATHETIC SCENES IN COURT.

"I suppose that 200 children of widows came in the Juvenile Court yearly. They were charged with all sorts of large and small delinquencies. The boys were worse than the girls and there were more of them. Girls don't break into houses, don't loaf around saloons, don't commit assaults, don't hop on railroad trains, don't loiter about freight yards, don't sleep out of doors. Boys do all these things and sometimes they commit murder. Such boys, we too often forget, grow up and become men. Then the State must spend money to put them in jail and keep them there.

"Of course, the widowed mothers appeared in court to explain why their children ran away from school and roamed the streets and alleys at will. They were poor, they said, and had to leave their families every morning to do washing and other work. Their faces were sad, their hands were trembling and the backs of a good many of them were bent. They loved their children and it almost broke their hearts to give them up.

"Also there were women whose husbands were in prison and a few whose husbands, once hard-working men, were in insane asylums. They all said that it was desperately hard work to feed, clothe and house their families and be mothers to their children besides. The Juvenile Court is a place of sorrows at times, and most of the time, I might remark. Great tragedies are there revealed—not great as the world would look on them, perhaps, but great to the poor human beings concerned.

"It distressed me to break up a home, but in the interest of the child and in the interest of good citizenship the child often had to be taken away from its mother, and, in almost every case, a good mother, and sent to an institution organized for the care of children. This I had to do, though I believed that a child brought up in an institution is more or less a human machine.

RIGHTS OF EVERY CHILD.

"As my experiences multiplied, I came to the opinion that every child, no matter how poor, is rightfully entitled to the care, control, discipline and training of its mother, if the mother is capable of such responsibilities. The best citizen, as we all know, is the citizen who had a place in which to live and a good mother. Of necessity, I began sending children to the detention home. There was no other alternative then. But the smaller ones came under the influence of older ones, held by the law for one cause or another, and I realized that some other way of dealing with young children must be found.

"Soon after that I began turning the children over to an institutional church belonging to the Southern Methodists. They were well treated and given the best of training, but the arrangement, I saw, could be only temporary. Gradually the thought took form in my mind of allowing worthy mothers a certain sum each week for the partial support of their families. My idea was to keep mothers and their children together with the help of money out of the public treasury.

"Pension, in some connections, is an offensive and debilitating word. I have never used it in discussing the duty society owes to poor mothers and their children. I tell the women who apply to me for assistance that the law allows them a certain sum and that they must not look on it as charity, but as a right conferred on them by the statute.

"Pension laws for parents have been passed in eighteen States since our own law went on the books, and some of them open the door to all kinds of frauds. While I practiced law men often told me that they would run away and leave their wives were it not for their children. I do not believe in giving allowances to women who have husbands, unless the husbands are convicts or are insane.

PROBLEMS FOR THE FUTURE.

"A great many men would desert their families if they knew that their families would get a pension or an allowance after they were gone. Men who do clear out should be hunted down and brought back and made to work. Likewise, men in prison should be paid something and the money applied to the support of their families. These are matters which will be taken up, I think, by all States and communities before long.

"Well, after I reached the conviction that the State ought to assist mothers to support and keep their children together, I wrote a bill for introduction in the Legislature. Opposition to the idea developed, however, especially in St. Louis among social workers, and I changed the bill so as to have it apply only to Jackson county, which, of course, means Kansas City. The bill was hastily prepared but I wouldn't change it now in any particular but one, if I had the opportunity. The law, passed in April, 1911, limits the sum to be paid out annually to $12,000. I would increase the amount. Otherwise, the law is satisfactory.

"There was no such law on the statute book of any State at the time. We were without precedents for a guide. The scheme of helping mothers was an experiment, therefore, and was condemned in some quarters as being socialistic, visionary and injurious. Indeed, a bill similar to our law, when introduced in the Colorado Legislature, was called 'freak legislation' and thrown aside.

"I will say right here that no law of Missouri is giving greater satisfaction in Kansas City or is doing more good than the one granting allowances to widows. It is the most advanced legislation of its kind since the enactment of the first juvenile court law in this country by the Illinois Legislature in the year of 1899.

MOTHERS MUST WORK.

"The allowances we make in Jackson county are, as I said, for the partial support of women whose husbands are dead or in prison or in insane asylums, when such women are poor and are the mothers of children under the age of 14. It would be an unwise, if not a vicious, law that would fully provide for a family, because it would impoverish them and tend to impoverish the community.

"We expect and require the mother to earn all she can at home by washing, sewing, baking bread for her neighbors and doing odd jobs for mercantile houses. One widow is teaching music. The larger children do chores and if there are any above the school age, which is 14 years, they must help keep the family.

"No allowance can exceed $10 a month to a mother having one child under the age of 14, and can be no greater than $5 a month for each additional child who is under that age. The principal conditions upon which an allowance is made are, first, when in the absence of the allowance the mother would be required to work away from her home and children for her own and their support; second, when the allowance is necessary to save the children from neglect, and third, when the mother, in the judgment of the Juvenile Court, is a proper person morally, mentally and physically for the bringing up of her children.

"These facts are determined by a probation officer, who undertakes a thorough examination of the applicant. In this work he is helped by the officers and records of the Provident Association and the Board of Public Welfare. A painstaking follow-up investigation is made after every allowance is ordered and is repeated each month until the allowance is set aside by the court.

THE MOTHER, TOO, IS WATCHED.

"We learn if the mother is staying at home with her children, if she is keeping them clean, if she is keeping her house in order, if she is keeping her children in school and if in every way she is doing her full duty by them. When she neglects to meet all of our requirements, her allowance is cut off. So far only one mother has had her allowance discontinued and I will say that she was not altogether blameworthy.

"In writing the law I did not provide, I have heretofore said, for divorced women. To have done so would have encouraged divorces, as I pointed out awhile ago. Although a divorce may relieve a man from his obligation to support his wife, nothing relieves him from his duty and liability to support his children. Whether a man is divorced from his wife or not, his duty and liability to support his children continue. There is no such thing as a divorce from duty. The Illinois law, which follows ours, makes provision for divorced mothers, and is a mistake in that particular, so I believe.

"I do not like to dwell on what the administration of the law costs in dollars and cents because it is a humane law and kindliness, mercy and justice ought not to be computed in money. Still I will give you one or two figures. We made allowances to thirty-two mothers and 109 children in 1911, the first year in which the law was operative. Thirty-two homes were rehabilitated. The highest allowance was $22 a month; the lowest $8 a month.

"Jackson county paid $403 a month to aid in caring for 109 children, to aid in building 109 citizens. The cost per child was about $3.70 a month. But for the law most of the children would have been sent to public institutions, where the cost of keeping each child ranges from $4 to $5 a week. Sixty-eight mothers and 260 children, are now getting allowances at a cost of about $1000 a month.

HOTELS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

"The people and the taxpayers of Kansas City are doing more for neglected and homeless children than is being done anywhere else in the United States. The McCune Home for boys has seven cottages and two additional cottages are being built. A master, a superintendent and twenty boys live in each cottage. Delinquent boys are trained and educated, fitted for citizenship and given a trade by which they can live. The McCune Home is patterned after the one in Cleveland, which long has been doing very fine work. These are the only institutions of their kind in the country.

"There are large numbers of homeless working boys in all of our American cities. It occurred to me that hotels for such boys ought to be provided. I asked the people of Kansas City for $50,000, with which to open the first hotel of the kind in the United States. The people immediately subscribed $65,000. We have a three-story brick building containing not only bedrooms, sitting-rooms and so on, but a gymnasium, a library and a night school. Ninety boys are boarding at the hotel. They are taken care of when sick and are keeping good hours and behaving themselves. The cost of maintaining the hotel was $15,000 last year. The boys paid in $11,000 of that sum. The balance was gladly subscribed by the people of Kansas City.

"Then we have the Jackson County Parental Home for Girls, supported by the taxpayers, and $40,000 has been raised for a hotel, similar to the one for boys, which is open to working girls—fifty are living there now—who earn but small wages and who need protection and encouragement.

"Many a bad man might have been a good man and many an evil woman might have been a useful and respectable woman if they had not been shamefully neglected while young. Men will abandon their children; women rarely do. Keep mothers and children together.

"All cities and States should help struggling mothers. Pay them when they are widows; and if they are not widows, catch their husbands, put them to work, and, if necessary, turn their wages over to their families.

RARE MARBLE IN UTAH.

Equal to Italian in Grain and Purity While Colors are Found Heretofore Unknown in America.

[Christian Science Monitor:] Large deposits of travertine and onyx marble have been uncovered in the quarries of this State, which has within its borders a great variety of rare stone of this kind. It is believed that in time the marble industry of Utah will become one of the greatest in the intermountain region.

Chemical analyses of the Utah marble made by Prof. Herman Harms, the State chemist, and Prof. W. C. Ebaugh of the University of Utah show it to be remarkably pure, running 95 per cent. calcium carbonate and capable of standing great heat without crumbling.

In the Cedar Mountains, sixty miles west of Salt Lake City, there is one vein of marble 2500 feet long by 100 feet wide. A quarry near Thistle has a sufficient quantity of marble to last upwards of fifty years, it has been estimated, if continuous work is carried on. At this quarry marble like the Italian Travanel is found in large quantity. Colors range from the most delicate, flaky whites through creams, pinks and lavenders to rich yellows shaded with brown. One distinctive Utah marble is known as birdseye, owing to its peculiar formation, and is of a type hitherto unknown in the American market.

Dr. George P. Merrill, head curator of the United States National Museum at the Smithsonian Institution, commenting on the birdseye marble after visiting the quarry, said, "There is nothing like it in the world—at least if there is it has not yet been uncovered. The marble that approaches nearest to it in coloring and markings is found at Nassau, Germany, where two marbles called Formosa and Bougard are quarried. The birdseye marble is firm, hard and strong and cuts to a sharp edge. It acquires a perfection of surface and polish not excelled by any colored marble now in use."

The onyx marble also is extremely firm and tough, and susceptible of a high polish. It hardens on exposure, is easy to finish and works smoothly in the machines.

Onyx marble, because of its scarcity has hitherto not been used extensively for building purposes, rather having been reserved for decoration. Owing to the quantities now uncovered in Utah, it can be used more freely than ever.

COCOA BEAN PRICES SOAR.

Interruption of Traffic Because of the War May Increase the Cost of Confectionery.

[Pittsburgh Dispatch:] One of the effects of the European war has been to advance the price of cocoa beans, although none of the nations involved in war is a producer of such beans. The causes of the advance is attributed to the demoralization of ocean traffic as a consequence of war, and as a result of extraordinary demand for chocolate as a military emergency ration for soldiers on the march or in the trenches.

The manager of the Pennsylvania Chocolate Company said yesterday that there have been orders received in this country within the last month for an aggregate of nearly 1000 tons of sweet chocolate for the soldiers in the trenches in France and Belgium.

The chocolate bean contains a rich and nourishing oil—a purely vegetable fat that is, in itself, highly nutritious, and not all of which can be expressed from the beans, out of which the meal we call chocolate is manufactured. This vegetable fat supplies a deficiency to many who do not eat enough fats in the way of olive or other vegetable oils, butter or the fatty parts of meats.

Many countries and nearly all the islands in the East and West Indies produce the cocoa bean. Some of the best come from Central and South America, but those grown on the islands of the Dutch East Indies rank deservedly high.

Prices for these beans vary according to grade, but they have advanced on an average of 50 per cent. within a month, and about 65 per cent. since this time a year ago. This is not due to war in any of the countries or islands from which the beans come, nor to a shortage of the crop, but to the interruption to ocean traffic and the extraordinary demand for the products of the beans for the armies of the European nations and the increase of consumption among substantially all civilized peoples.

Swallowed His Toothbrush.

[New York World:] James Skeffington of the Providence (R. I.) School Committee was polishing his teeth when his grip on the handle of the brush slipped. The brush went down his throat so far he could not reach it. Involuntarily he swallowed the brush.

Mr. Skeffington caused call to be sent to the Rhode Island Hospital, whither he was taken, and the doctors lost no time in operating upon him.

The brush was removed from his stomach and this afternoon the patient was reported as doing finely.

MYSTERIES OF THE OCEAN.

Little Is Known of the Teeming Life Far Below the Surface, Where no Sunshine Ever Penetrates.

[New York Herald:] Where does the sea serpent dwell? Its appearances are only semi-occasional. Somewhere it must have a home. The question is, what region is its normal habitat? The answer is that its home under the ordinary circumstances is in the depths of the ocean. One might deem it not unlikely that the special haunts of the sea serpents are the great marine abysses in regard to which knowledge has been gained only within the last few years.

Naturalists today are obliged to confess that they know almost nothing about the fauna of these deeps. In truth, it may be said that three-fourths of the earth's surface remains as yet unexplored because covered by miles of water. All of this aqueous territory is a region of mystery, inhabitated by strange and fantastic creatures. The term fantastic as applied to them is not inappropriate, in as much as their forms in many cases are such as might properly present themselves in a nightmare.

Once in a while a deep-sea animal finds its way by accident to the surface and is found dying or dead, and it is from such occasional specimens that science has derived what small knowledge of the large depth fauna it possesses. Smaller creatures in considerable numbers, including crustaceans and mollusks, have been brought to the surface by the dredges of exploring vessels. Apparently there are in the depths numbers of cuttlefish-like animals, unlike any that are familiar to us, which furnish food to many of the abysmal fishes. Some of these cephalopods have an apparatus like a reflecting lantern for throwing light downward to the bottom, over which they pass.

On one occasion the U.S.S. Albatross passed through many miles of water, over which cuttlefishes of a deep-sea species about the size of a water pail, were scattered by the tens of thousands. All of them without exception were more or less mutilated, and it was evident that in the depths below they were being attacked by some enemy and destroyed wholesale. These cutties are known to be the favorite prey of abysmal sharks, in whose stomachs have been found great numbers of their parrot-like beaks undigested. Some of the deep-sea sharks come to the surface occasionally to feed, and one of them, of eel-like form, attains a length of sixty feet.

Undoubtedly a creature of the great depths is the giant squid, which is by far the largest of the cuttlefishes. A full-grown specimen weighs 10,000 pounds, its body is fifty feet long, and besides eight smaller tentacles it has two great ones for purposes of attack, each of them 100 feet in length. Thus the total length of the creature is not less than 150 feet. Swimming backward in its customary manner by expelling water from its siphon with its huge tail out of water, and the long tentacles undulating over the waves behind, this formidable monster can easily be taken for a sea serpent. Though it appears at the surface very rarely, it may be a not uncommon species down below.

Even on the brightest day no ray of sunshine penetrates to a greater depth than 600 feet in the ocean. This fact has been positively ascertained by exposures made with specially constructed marine cameras lowered into the sea. Consequently it is manifest that the depths of the ocean must be absolutely dark. A fluid blackness, a darkness that may literally be felt, reigns everywhere, illuminated only by the lanterns which the fishes and certain other abysmal creatures themselves carry. Some of the fishes have lamps which are turned on or off at will, being under control by the nervous system of the bearer.

THE HUMAN FACTOR.

The Influence of Machinery Requires a More Thorough Education of the Working People.

[Chicago Tribune:] The spirit of democracy which has been leveling down castes and classes within nations has now invaded industry, with the result that the skilled mechanic has ceased to be the industrial aristocrat he was a few years ago. There are, of course, a number of trades in which the human factor is still in the ascendancy; where individual skill is recognized and paid for. In the majority of industries, however, perfected machinery takes the place of individual skill. The unskilled, ignorant laborer is on a par with the man who has had years of experience.

These facts need to be looked squarely in the face, need to be emphasized just now, especially because of the false construction which is being put in certain quarters upon the movement for a better and more thorough education of the working people. Many advocates of continuation courses for children between the ages of 14 and 17 who are obliged to go to work convey the impression that improved education means higher wages. They convey the impression that industry is clamoring for more educated, more skilled workers; that it is accepting the unskilled, uneducated laborer under protest. Educate yourself a little more and employers will grab you and your wages will go up automatically. That is the gist of their arguments.

The danger of such assertions lies in the fact that there is some truth in them. We are suffering from a want of properly-trained men in a few highly-specialized occupations. In these occupations a boy with a good training may be given preference over a boy with a poor education. In the basic industries of the country, however, the education of the worker is not taken into account. His health and strength are. The skilled work in the iron and steel industry, for instance, is done by machines. The man directing the machine needs no special educational qualifications. In other words, the unskilled man is not there by accident, but by design. Industry needs him.

To make children believe that a two or three-years' attendance at an evening school gives them a passport to higher wages is to mislead them. Better, more enlightened citizenship is argument enough for a more prolonged and thorough training of the children of the masses.

Try Conciliation in Denmark.

[Case and Comment:] Before you go into court in Denmark, writes Axel Teisen, you must call your opponent before the Forligs Kommission (commission of conciliation.) If a settlement is reached it has the effect of a final judgment, and a writ of execution may issue thereon.

If a settlement cannot be reached the commissioners will hand you back your complaint, with attestation stamped thereon, that conciliation has been tried in vain. Then you take out your summons. This may be, but generally is not, issued by the court, by the party or his attorney. By it the defendant is warned to be in court on a certain day to see and hear the plaintiff present his case against him for answer, or else to suffer judgment for the amount claimed, with interest and costs.

How to Dress

If every woman tried to dress like the models shown in the average fashion magazine, she would look like a Futurist or a Cubist painting.

The attempts of a few are responsible for the queerly-dressed creatures which we occasionally see on prominent thoroughfares.

The intelligent woman who cares about her appearance wants to be fashionably yet tastefully and exclusively gowned.

Fortunately, there is a publication which will aid her—The Woman's Home Companion.

The fashion models in this magazine are not fantastic. They do not look like creatures which belong in a zoo or a museum.

They look like real human beings, real flesh and blood women—women who are really pleasing to the eye.

Every woman would be attractive in appearance if she made her gowns according to the designs and patterns furnished by the Companion.

The American Magazine

The American Magazine is the kind of magazine that nobody ever hides in a drawer. It is edited by responsible people, who have children of their own to bring up—edited by people who know that the best and even the most exciting reading matter in all the world is pure—edited by people of brains and character, who realize that nastiness is only a poor substitute for stupidity.

The American Magazine, with all its humor, its facts, its new ideas, its stories and its wonderful pictures, is one of the rarest and most significant products of present day American life. It is, in fact, THE American Magazine.

THE TIMES

By exclusive arrangement with the publishers, The Times is enabled to offer its readers, old or new, the following exceptionally liberal subscription proposition. Any subscriber, old or new, can get The Times, the Woman's Home Companion and the American Magazine, by signing a twelve months' subscription contract for the Daily and Sunday Times and paying therefor only 80 cents per month.

No other newspaper attempts to cover the home field—Los Angeles, Southern California, the Pacific Coast and the Great Southwest—as thoroughly and completely as does The Times, which is the only paper in the Pacific Southwest that daily prints a full and complete Associated Press report.

These comprehensive and authentic reports are of special importance at this time because of the great European war. The Associated Press is the world's greatest news-gathering organization; and its daily cable reports from Europe, which are trustworthy and impartial, show the real facts concerning the activities of the various armies.

In addition to the service of the Associated Press, THE TIMES has special correspondents of its own in the principal centers of population of America and Europe, and it daily prints every happening of importance on the civilized globe, including news of the political, religious, social and business life of the people of all foreign lands.

For further particulars inquire of any Times agent or phone The Times office—Main 8200—Home 10391, The Times-Mirror Company, Times Bldg., 1st and Broadway.

They All Fall.

VIRGINIA IS TUMBLED DOWN.

LOS ANGELES COUNTRY CLUB IS A WINNER.

San Gabriel Raises its League Standing by Surprising Midwick Team with a Real Defeat—Losers Sallied Forth a Man Short—Both Handicap and Scratch Matches.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

Two league team matches were the sum total of yesterday's official golf. Virginia went to Los Angeles and lost their proud 1000 per cent. for they were beaten on both counts—7 to 0 from scratch, 5 to 2 on handicap.

But San Gabriel raised its league status and somewhat restored its amour propre by defeating the superb Middicans on the San Gabriel links 5 to 1 and a tie on scratch, 4 to 2 and a tie on handicap.

LOS ANGELES VS. VIRGINIA.

At the Los Angeles Country Club Judge Frederickson beat Bill Campbell 1 up but lost the handicap 2 and 1. Jack Jevne beat Virginia's captain, A. M. Goodhue, 2 and 1, and 3 and 2. R. J. Cash beat Dr. Foote 3 and 2 and 4 and 3. Jack Niven beat Dr. Sellery 1 up and 4 and 3. Frank Millar beat Frank Hicks 2 and 1 and 4 and 3. John Wilson beat C. B. Bellowes 6 and 5 but lost the handicap 2 and 1. L. T. Bradford beat A. C. Scanlon 3 and 2 and 5 and 4.

And it rained a very wet shower when everybody was a long way from shelter, so that a great many gentlemen had to be wrung out and hung up to dry when they came in.

There were more than 150 players on the course, scores of whom played for the sweepstake which was won by Earl Cowan with 5-7-2 up. Frank Millar was second with 2-2 even, and P. H. Smith and R. J. Cash came third with 2 down and 5 and 2 handicap respectively.

SAN GABRIEL—MIDWICK.

Midwick sallied forth a man short to their match with San Gabriel, so that Harry Cole won by default from Norman Murray.

Bill Bacon tied Hugo Johnstone at the eighteenth and as San Gabriel were already the winners they did not play it out.

George Cline likewise played a good game and beat Conde Jones 6 and 5 and 7 and 6. E. R. Williams won his match for Midwick from scratch against A. T. Jergins 3 and 2, but Jergins won the handicap 2 and 1. C. W. Hunt also won for Midwick 1 up at the nineteenth against T. Jefferson, but lost the handicap 5 and 3. Charles Alkire won on both counts from A. Macdonald, 2 up and 7 and 6. Goodell beat Ralph Harris 1 up at the nineteenth on both counts.

One suspects Midwick of regarding San Gabriel as a "contemptible little army" or something awkward like that — a state of affairs that invariably leads to defeat. At all events they did not send half as strong a team as they could have mustered.

HAVANA SCRAP IS POSTPONED.

CUBANS REFUSE TO SEE FIGHT EASTER SUNDAY.

President Menocal Requests that Fight be Held Monday, April 5, Because of Protests—Promoters and Principals Agree—Fighters Say Change will not Affect Them.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HAVANA, March 28.—The fight between Jack Johnson and Jes Willard which had been scheduled to take place here April 4, for the heavyweight championship of the world has been postponed until Monday, April 5.

The postponement was due to a request made by President Menocal of Cuba. In a letter to the fight promoter he said that great objection had arisen in Cuba and the United States to the fight taking place Easter Sunday, a holy day, and he requested that it be postponed until the day following. A meeting of the principals and promoters was at once held and the request of President Menocal was acceded to.

Americans here have been surprised at the opposition in Cuba to holding the fight Easter Sunday. The promoters were asured that at least five thousand more people would attend any day other than Easter. The date originally was set for Saturday, April 3, but it was changed to Sunday at the request of several Havana associations.

Both pugilists say the change will not upset their training, as they have had a full week's notice. Light road work was the only feature for the forenoon at the two camps.

Later in the day Senor Montalva declared a half holiday for all government employees on April 5. The banks and the merchants are expected to follow suit.

GOOFS BLANK PA'S ANGELS.

CICOTTE STRIKES OUT NINE IN SIX FRAMES.

Benz Also Twirls in American League Form—Chech is Out of Luck—He is Beaten in First Inning and Fails to Touch First on Triple—Wolter Arrives.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Two strange phenomena were witnessed yesterday — the Goofs won a ball game, and it rained.

This should give those who believed that we are in the last days of the world something to blab about.

In a way, the two phenomena may have been related. It is impossible to throw any part of the terrestrial arrangement out of kilter without other parts being affected. Undoubtedly the shock of the Goofs winning caused nature to spring a leak, while it is not unlikely that the earth wobbled on its axis.

About enough coin was taken in to pay for the wear and tear on the bats and other office furniture.

THE REASON.

The game was a battle against time all the way. Time and again it seemed that the pastime would be overtaken and soused by a March shower, forcing the management to call it off and return the proceeds. This would have been a severe blow, considering the condition of the money market.

The athletes, fearing that if the proceeds were not retained their food supply might be cut off, hustled the combat along and succeeded in retiring the last man just as the first drop fell. Cicotte was so interested in the question of food and finances that he fanned nine men in six innings, thereby saving a lot of valuable time.

The condition of the weather caused the conversation to turn to the opening day arrangements. Darmody agreed that in case of a heavy rain it probably would be best to dispense with the floats, barges and scows, and use submarines in the parade.

It seems that Mayor Rose is to pitch the first ball. That is according to precedent and all right, for the Mayor has a lot of good curves.

But it does seem that a great opportunity has been overlooked to vary the programme and innovate a little. For one of the movie queens to get out and shoot up a spitter to the first batter would have been something calculated to make a hit with the public.

And then there is Margaret Edwards. Had she been engaged to pitch the first ball, the announcement would have packed the park. With Margaret pitching, everybody in town would have turned out, barring possibly the blind man who sells shoestrings on Broadway.

WOLTER HERE.

Harry Wolter reported just before the game and informed Frank Dillon that he had a brand-new Ford story.

Wolter's lateness in reporting gave rise to the rumor that he had been in the submarine F-4 for the past few days.

He looks a trifle fat, but that is something which can be cured.

The exact score was 4 to 0.

The Angels could not do much with Cicotte and Benz, who happened to remember that C. Pants, the boss, is coming back to town pretty quick, and almost pitched their arms off at the shoulder socket. At that, they shouldn't have worried and strained themselves, as the Goofs are expected to get out of town about two hours ahead of Rowland's arrival.

Six scattered hits were made off their delivery. This total would have been swelled to seven had not Ed Finney scrouged Zeb out of a hit in the seventh by calling him out at first.

Benz worked the last three innings, and Cicotte the first, making a total of nine. Both were in regular American League form.

Another shift was made in the Goof line-up, Kuhn, the red-headed catcher, being yanked off first and placed behind the bat, which is his natural position. This, however, did not change the color scheme at first base, as that position was played by William R. Lathrop, a pitcher, who is also redheaded.

Chech was all right except in the Something New.

WORM DRIVE ON PACKARD TRUCK.

RADICAL DEPARTURE FOR THE COMPANY.

The New Line of Trucks Run in Capacity All the Way from One to Six Tons and All of Them Aim for Stability, Service and Centralized Control Features.

The first of the new Packard worm-drive trucks to reach the Pacific Coast arrived last week at the salesrooms of Earle C. Anthony, Inc., and attracted no little attention among local truck men. The new trucks present rather radical departures from previous Packard practice, notably, of course, in the adoption of the worm type of final drive. This is an improved Packard type, which the Packard engineers claim solves every difficulty which has hitherto been encountered in the use of worm drive on heavy duty trucks.

The new Packard truck line includes one, two, three, four, five and six-ton models. The first arrival was of the three-ton type, and shipment of the one and two-ton models is expected in April, with the heavy-duty types following later.

Block cast motor, low-hung frame to facilitate loading; centralized control, air-cooled service brake, are a few of the features of the new truck which attracted especial attention this week. Probably no other new commercial vehicles were ever subjected to more severe tests than were the new Packards. The new models were driven in testing work, with full load, for an aggregrate distance of more than 125,000 miles before the Packard engineers were satisfied that practice had confirmed their theories.

"The new trucks are the product of the experience of ten years in motor-truck building," declared Packard Sales Manager E. E. Caister of Earle C. Anthony, Inc., last week. "So completely satisfactory did the trucks prove in every test that the Packard engineers confidently predict that their design will remain practically unchanged for years.

"I believe that the appearance of the new Packards marks a new era of standardization and stability in the truck business. Truck buyers have learned what an asset it is to have a thoroughly responsible and powerful organization back of the trucks they use. No further evidence of this is needed than the fact that since the new Packard trucks were announced in February the Packard factory has received orders for no less than $1,250,000 worth of the new vehicles. And practically every one of these sales was made only from catalogues and blue prints. The fact that the Packard company was producing the trucks was sufficient for these scores of buyers, many of whom have been using Packard trucks since 1903."

The exposition track at San Francisco, where the big trotting and pacing races will be decided this year, will be used by the amateurs for matinee racing every Sunday in May, July, August, September and October.

Fair Enough.

FISHING TRIPS ON BAD ROADS DEMAND GOOD TIRE.

As a class, anglers probably are the most particular men regarding the tires with which their cars are equipped, declares Manager Tom Wilkenson of the United States Rubber Company's Los Angeles branch. Mr. Wilkenson has outfitted several motorists for their fishing trips in the last two weeks, and has found all of them men who knew tire values and wanted the best they possibly could get.

The angler takes his car over roads seldom traversed by automobile and for this reason, he demands the very best in anti-skid tires. His time usually is limited, for he wants to spend all he can in fishing, so he seeks a tire which will give him greatest insurance against punctures.

Practically every fisherman who had his car retired by the United States Rubber Company specified Nobby Tread casings. Not only the anglers, but motorists of all classes are coming more and more to use the Nobby Tread tire throughout the year, and practically as many Nobby Tread casings have been disposed of in the last two weeks as plain tread types.

Boom Business.

ROAD RACES BOOST SALE OF NEW SPEEDSTER MODEL.

Automobile races have one very prominent effect. They create new additions to the growing class of motorists known as speed fans. Local dealers say they have been able to trace the approach of a speed contest for a number of years by the increased interest of the public in raceabout and speedster models.

Last week, while interest in the Venice race was at its height, Hawley, King & Co., distributors, received a shipment of Oakland model 37 speedsters. The new type of car is different from any other car, and Manager Reeve Gartzmann says the number of sales indicates it is making quite a hit. Another carload was received last Wednesday, and yesterday only two cars remained. Three of them were sold to San Diego fans.

The speedsters are geared for from six to sixty miles an hour on high. This ratio does not interfere with their work on hills and in crowded traffic, according to Mr. Gartzmann, but at the same time makes them capable of a quick getaway and high speed. They are built with a platform back whereon may be carried the spare tires or luggage.

A Need.

WANT SUBWAY IN THE CITY.

Suggest Broadway as Route to be Followed.

Congestion Such as to be a Menace to Cars.

Automobile Men to Get Back of Proposition.

The motoring interests of Los Angeles are becoming thoroughly awakened to the importance and necessity of early action on the subway solution of our city problem, according to Harold L. Arnold, distributor of Hudson and Dodge Brothers motor cars for Southern California.

Mr. Arnold has made a close study of this question and is preparing to bring the matter to the attention of the Automobile Dealers' Association, with a view to urging the municipal authorities to early action.

"It does not require expert analysis of the traffic situation," said Mr. Arnold, "to come to the conclusion that preliminary steps must be taken immediately to secure the necessary relief, but I have authorized O. K. Parker, the well-known engineer and road authority, to prepare a traffic census covering the principal business streets.

"Mr. Parker will also investigate for me the results obtained in eastern cities, and his report will deal so thoroughly with the subject that I hope to be of material assistance to the city authorities when the question comes up for consideration.

"I am already convinced that the first link in the underground system should be a subway the full length of Broadway, and its extension to Pico street. The relief this would afford to motoring traffic on Broadway would have a strong tendency to maintain values of North Broadway realty, because of the greater facility with which motorists could reach business establishments between Third and First streets.

"It is already such a problem to negotiate Broadway between Third and Seventh streets that ladies, especially, do not like to trade where they have to drive at risk of life and limb because of such congestion of traffic.

"Every business house north of Eighth street will benefit materially by the relief afforded through the subway system, and no step the city can take will yield greater returns for the investment than a well-planned and constructed subway system.

"By all means let us get at this problem at the earliest date possible, and if my organization and the Automobile Dealers' Association can be of material assistance, I can assure the city authorities that we are willing to go the limit to hasten the day when construction of the subway will be commenced.

"This question is one that means relief not alone to the motoring interests and retail business houses on the streets directly affected by the subway, but is just as important to pedestrians and wholesale establishments of the city. Relief in the one case means a saving of time, vehicle safety and more freedom, while in the other, it directly affects personal safety and a wider range of trade relations which will extend the limits of our wholesale districts and build up the values of property not now considered as available to the larger business interests of the city.

"From every point of view," continued Mr. Arnold, "the subway is an undertaking the city should commence at once, and as the preliminary investigation will take considerable time, I for one want to urge the concerted support of every motorist in our county to the end that a year from now the subway will actually be under construction."

The Boston Athletic Association will stage its annual Marathon race on April 19, which will be Patriots' Day.

EIGHT TO HAVE DISTINCT BODY.

SHIPMENT POSTPONED SO AS TO FIT CARS WITH NEW LINES.

Ed Harris has just received word from the Cole factory that his shipment of Cole eights has been postponed until March 25 in order that the cars may be fitted up with the latest model body, on which the Cole designers have been working for some time.

Charles P. Henderson, general sales manager for the Cole factory, is planning to come to the Coast in time to assist in the big sales campaign which will commence with the arrival of the new model. In the meantime, Mr. Harris is doing a terrific business in the fours and sixes and expects to be completely cleaned out when the new car arrives.

ENDLESS TRUCK TIRE HERE.

The long-awaited shipment of the new Kelly Springfield endless tire for motor trucks arrived in Los Angeles Thursday. The local branch of the Kelly Springfield factory announced this tire several weeks ago, and several large orders were received before the tires reached the Coast. These were taken care of immediately, and nearly exhausted the first shipment.

The first carload of the new pressed on tires will arrive some time this week. An elaborate service station has been opened near the local branch to take care of the truck equipment. A nine-ton hydraulic press has been installed to care for the truck owners using pressed-on tires. This service station is equipped to care for all types of motor trucks, and will install block, endless or pressed-on tires.

The Time Has Come to Tell the Truth About the Eight-Cylinder Cadillac

Ultra conservative has always been the Cadillac advertising. In announcing the eight-cylinder Cadillac this policy has been adhered to more firmly than ever.

We knew that were we to tell what had been found in the thousands of miles of testing the public would be inclined to doubt us. And good cause they would have had if we had boldly stated that the Cadillac eight would do more things that a motorist wants his car to do than any other make and that the Cadillac eight stood without a peer—the world's leading motor car.

We unhesitatingly make that declaration now because the car is backing up the claim in the hands of six thousand owners.

Six Thousand Now in Use

The owners are telling the wonderful story of the Cadillac eight. This car neither rides nor drives like other motor cars. It is as far ahead of other makes as the modern car is an advance over the models of a dozen years ago.

Not only in performance is this Cadillac showing qualities heretofore unknown to motor cars, but in mechanical efficiency it far surpasses any previous model.

The Cadillac makers knew before the car was offered that it was a machine of marvelous qualities, but they preferred that the people find out for themselves the merits of the car.

Today the Cadillac eight stands as the highest grade motor car in the world, and most of the world recognizes it.

Overland roadster, acting as a scout car, was sent on a long journey over the roads of Southern California and the report on their condition is given below.

Fixing 'Em Up.

UNTRY AND DESERT ROADS BEING IMPROVED.

EN the people begin to alise the value of good roads there will be few places in the States where automobile traffic easy, in the opinion of Manager Starr of the Los Angeles branch W. Leavitt & Co., Coast agents erland automobiles.

d roads mean easier hauling es cost for marketing. They e most important features in ening of a new country. With oads over which to operate trucks the railroad no longer is ssity in the opening up of a ountry.

Angeles county is setting a high d in road building. Not only oulevards are receiving the best n, but the country and desert are rapidly being improved. ngeles county's boulevard sys been the envy of other coun oughout the United States. A t of macadam roads connect portant towns and cities. Where warrants it there are two or mproved routes.

ust as important is the work one on country roads and on rt. For several months the rs have had men at work on t and Bouquet Canyon routes Mojave, on the Saugus-Castaic to Ventura and on the roads from Palmdale through Lit- into Rock Creek and Victor-e grading and rolling of the mile stretch between Castaic ch and the Los Angeles-Ventura nty line has been practically com- ted, and the old road, which was foot or more deep in dust in sum- r and a little deeper in mud in ter, has been transformed into a -surfaced country road.

nt Canyon has been improved placed in good condition from ash to Acton, and from there in- lmdale the road has been scraped rolled until it permits of speed ust as the law allows — and r. From Palmdale to the San dino county line the roads, formerly were the terror of the motorist who had to make the trip, have been made over into first-class highways. The road into Little Rock and from there into Rock Creek is as smooth as a boulevard. Last week the last of the rough places were removed and the few short stretches damaged by rains were placed in first-class condition.

Thus have two of the worst roads in Los Angeles county been transformed into two of the best. San Bernardino county probably will begin where Los Angeles left off in the improvement of the Palmdale-Victorville route, but there is still much work to be done there. At present the Hesperia-Rock Creek route is effectively blocked by washouts, but this road can be put into good condition at little expense.

On the main Victorville-Palmdale road in San Bernardino county there is little work to be done. The road, of course, could be much improved by graveling, but an ordinary drag would do the business nearly as well.

The Cajon Pass is in need of much attention. From the last railroad crossing to the summit of the hill it is in very bad shape. The footing is loose sand. The amount of travel over this route and the fact that many eastern tourists will come that way during the summer demands a better highway.

BIG ORDER FOR TIRES RECEIVED.

The general tone of business in Southern California is good. Especially is this true in the automobile and tire market. Dealers all along the row are talking prosperity, and they have the evidence to back their statements. One order received last week by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company's local branch was for 110 casings.

Manager Jessup of the local branch and Robert Cartmell visited the agencies in San Diego, Santa Ana, Long Beach, Ventura and Santa Barbara, and they, too, report better business. A carload of Kelly-Springfield tires will arrive in Los Angeles tomorrow or Tuesday.

The automobile show in Phoenix, Ariz., will also have an architectural and industrial section. The show will open Tuesday and continue until Saturday night.

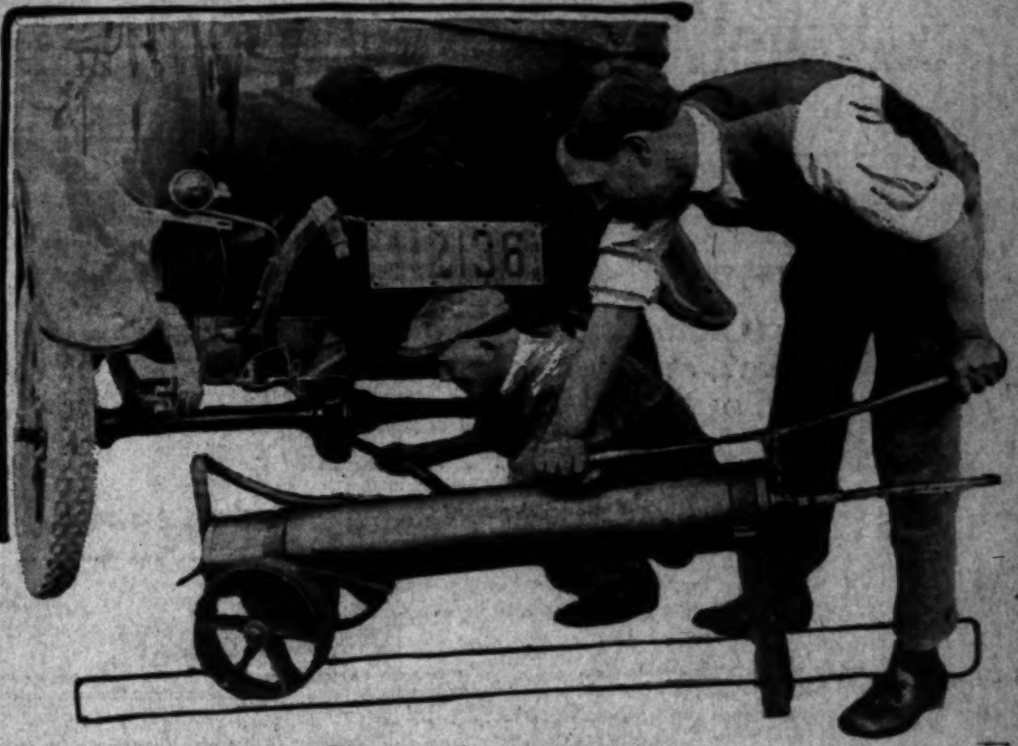
GREASE GUN TIME-SAVER.

Another labor and time-saving device has been designed by M. S. Walton, superintendent of the Maxwell Service Department of the Lord Motor Car Company. It is a huge portable grease-gun, used for filling the transmissions and the differentials of Maxwell cars with grease. This enormous grease-gun holds thirty pounds of grease and with it a differential can be filled in less than one minute.

"Some of the best time-saving apparatus in our shops has been designed and built under the direction of our own mechanics," says Harry Lord, of the Lord Motor Car Company. "Everybody knows that it is not the materials used that makes automobile shop work expensive. It is the labor, the time.

"Take this grease-gun for instance. With it we can fill the transmission and the differential of a Maxwell '25' while you wait. And with the pressure behind it we can fill it full, forcing the grease into every part of the mechanism, which is absolutely impossible for a workman to do by hand or with a hand gun.

"We realize that there are two kinds of service. First, there is the service given by the car itself. Second, the service given by the maker or the dealer while the car is in use. The very fact that the public has purchased and is using today over 40,000 of the Maxwell '25's' is proof conclusive that the car itself is giving satisfactory service. And what we are striving for, as distributors of Maxwell cars in Southern California and Arizona, is to not only give proper satisfactory service to all Maxwell users in this territory, but to give the very best obtainable."



The 42-centimeter grease gun

In use in the Maxwell service department. It packs the grease in tightly and is easily transportable around the garage. M. S. Walton, head of the service department of the Maxwell agency, and inventor of the grease gun, is on the right.

GIRL MECHANIC LEARNING GAME.

WORKING HARD TO BECOME A CHAUFFEUR.

Daughter of Wealthy Eastern Stock Broker Out Here Studying Mechanics and Determined to Take up Automobiles as a Profession.

Determining to go out into the world and shift for herself when the European war closed the stock markets in New York City and brought heavy financial reverses to her father, Miss Helen C. Andrews, twenty-year-old daughter of John Andrews, former wealthy broker, is in Los Angeles, and yesterday begun a course in an automobile school to thoroughly master the practical and theoretical intricacies of automobile mechanism.

"Afraid of soiling my hands? I should say not. This is not the first dirty work that I have done,"" she said as she plunged her hands into the engine of a big car to adjust a carburetor.

Los Angeles was her objective point when she left New York City, with only enough funds to pay her transportation to Chicago. There she secured work and moved on to St. Louis and later to Birmingham, Ala., finally arriving in Denver last fall. From Colorado Springs she traveled to Tucson on money she earned in hospitals and private families, finding little difficulty in working her way with her ready wits and cheery disposition and winning smile.

Just a mite of a girl she is, weighing less than 100 pounds, and hardly five feet tall.

Manager L. C. Hufford of the Universal Automobile School, at No. 126 Jefferson street, laughed when she applied for admission. "Why, you can't work on these heavy cars. It's difficult enough for a strong man to master the mysteries of a machine and do the work necessary for their maintenance," he told the winsome little applicant.

"You just watch me," she responded.

Yesterday she appeared for her first lesson clad in overalls, jumper and other masculine attire, and tripped about like a fair-faced boy working on his favorite hobby. She showed remarkable adaptability to the work, workmen stated, and removed the wheel and steering rod for cleaning.

When Miss Andrews, who has adopted the cognomen "Billy," to conform with her position and clothes, was set to work washing a chassis, she undauntedly began the task and turned out a first-class job.

The girl says little concerning her family, except that since the opening of the exchanges in New York her father's financial standing has so improved that letters begging the daughter to go back and live at home have been coming to her daily. But spurred on by her desire to accomplish something and learn the automobile thoroughly, she now declines to return to the East.

Miss Andrews hopes to become a chauffeur, but is determined to know the "why" of things before foresaking the shop for the wheel.

Helen Andrews, mechanic.

This young lady is the daughter of a wealthy New York broker, who recently went on the rocks financially. She is going to become a chauffeur, but is going to know the "why" of things before she starts running one.

ABILITY TO BUCK SNOW DRIFTS SELLS MACHINE.

THE snow-bucking ability of the Cadillac eight has been shown in all eastern cities this winter, but probably nowhere better than in Omaha recently. A few days ago the city awoke to find all traffic through the streets blocked by a storm which would have done credit to January or February. Trolley cars were hopelessly blockaded for hours and automobiles were nowhere to be seen on the streets. Business men and workmen stayed at home or tramped to their places of employment.

The storm appeared to George Reim of the Omaha Cadillac agency to offer the best opportunity to try out the Cadillac eight with a test more severe than any he had been able to give it. A telephone message was sent to a man known to the company who was marooned in a trolleyless suburb. He accepted an invitation to ride down town in the Cadillac.

Half an hour later the car was at his door and within an hour he was at his office. Frequently the snow was piled higher than the radiator ahead of the car, and several times the Cadillac was forced to buck its way through drifts higher than the top. The performance resulted in an order for the Cadillac on the spot.

METZ OUTPUT REACHES HUNDRED CARS PER DAY.

WORD has just reached Los Angeles from the East that the Metz factory at Waltham, Mass., the largest of its kind in the East, has increased its output to 100 cars a day.

The Metz automobile plant is situated on the historic Gov. Gore estate, a tract of 120 acres, and comprises three separate and distinct factory units, each complete in itself.

The largest of these, the Crescent Park plant, contains 400,000 square feet of floor space, every available inch of which is devoted to the latest types of specially-designed automatic machinery. The finishing and shipping departments are located in the River-street plant, which is a large three-story building, and the assembling department is in the Gore-street plant, adjoining.

This latter building has only recently been completed, if indeed the word completed can be properly used in this connection, for it is constantly being enlarged to accommodate the company's increasing output. In addition to providing a colossal and ideally-arranged assembling floor, it serves to take the overflow from the other two factories, both of which are equipped to capacity. COAST ROUTE REALLY OPEN.

Official Dope on Roads to Exposition.

Highway in Good Shape for Autoists.

Much of it is Macadamized Highway.

Official information for visiting motorists on the exact condition of the coast route to San Diego was detailed yesterday by the route and map service department of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

This report was made following a co-operative trip arranged by club officers and Mr. Rufus Choate, Los Angeles representative of the Panama-California Exposition, for the purpose of contradicting any announcements that the coast road is impassable or in anything but good shape.

Important as the shortest route to the fair, motorists are taking this highway along the sea for hurried trips, returning, then, via the inland or Riverside roads. According to the report of the official scout car, there are many miles of completed State highway along the coast of which the average motorist has not yet been made aware.

Contrary to circulated reports, the road between Tustin and San Juan Capistrano, through El Toro and Galavan, is now in fair shape, and, while not so scenic, is much shorter than the highway via Laguna Beach and the roller-coaster Cliff drive.

Auto club officials report that the State highway executives have arranged to keep all detours rolled and sprinkled for exposition travel. Already this has been done on the shore drive between the mouth of Trabuco Canyon and the beginning of the seven-mile stretch of pavement just north of Oceanside.

With the completion and opening recently of the Torrey Pines grade at the approach of La Jolla another splendid stretch of boulevard is offered. From Los Angeles to Santa Ana the pneumatics do not leave the macadam. Long stretches of State highway offer fast time through Oceanside, Cardiff and Del Mar. From La Jolla into San Diego the road is good, making of the coast drive a Riviera which rivals anything offered in the Old World.

CARBURETOR IS RACE STANDARD.

HAS WON PRACTICALLY ALL OF THE BIG SPEED EVENTS THIS SEASON.

More than 50 per cent. of the cars entered in the 500-mile motor sweepstakes at Indianapolis on Memorial Day will be equipped with Master carburetors, according to advices received from the Detroit factory of the Master. This Los Angeles-invented carburetor has become practically a standard for racing equipment. Its victories of the last year place it at the top in number of times placed, and practically every race driver in the West has used it for the last two seasons.

The Master's most important victories in the last fifteen months were in the 1914 and 1915 Vanderbilt cup race and the 1915 Grand Prix. In the 1914 Grand Prix at Santa Monica the Master was second, third and fourth.

However, the Master has won many other races during the season. Notable among them was Barney Oldfield's success at Venice.

NEW TRUCK FOR PUBLIC SERVICE.

AFTER TOUGH TEST ON ROTTEN ROADS, SIGNAL MACHINE IS CHOSEN.

Because of its adaptability for work on poor roads and steep grades the Board of Public Service Commission has purchased a ton and a half worm-drive Signal truck from Hawley, King & Co. The Signal was decided upon after three weeks of investigation, inspection and practical demonstrations. Before the deal was closed representatives of the commission were taken to Santa Paula, where they inspected a Signal in the service of the fire department.

The new truck has been assigned to the city water department. It will be used to haul supplies, such as heavy pipe, for the aqueduct. The chassis has a wheelbase of 144 inches, having been designed especially for such usage.

AUTOCAR HAS ITS PRICE CUT.

A telegram received from M. S. Bulkeley, Pacific Coast distributor of the Autocar, who is now in Philadelphia, contains the information that the Autocar Company has reduced the selling price of the product $200. Mr. Bulkeley if following the telegram in person and expects to start a whirlwind selling campaign when he reaches the city.

GENERATOR BATTERY IS COMPARED WITH MAGNETO

"THE most important characteristic of any ignition system should be its dependability under all conditions," states Froman Speers, president of the Bekins-Speers Auto Company, distributor of the Haynes. "The generator-battery system of ignition has caused much discussion as to its reliability in comparison to the high-tension magneto system. As a matter of fact, there is in reality very little difference between the two systems. The generator-battery system is standard equipment on more than 60 per cent. of the leading 1915 models, and by actual results is proving the equal of the magneto in all respects and the superior at cranking and low speeds.

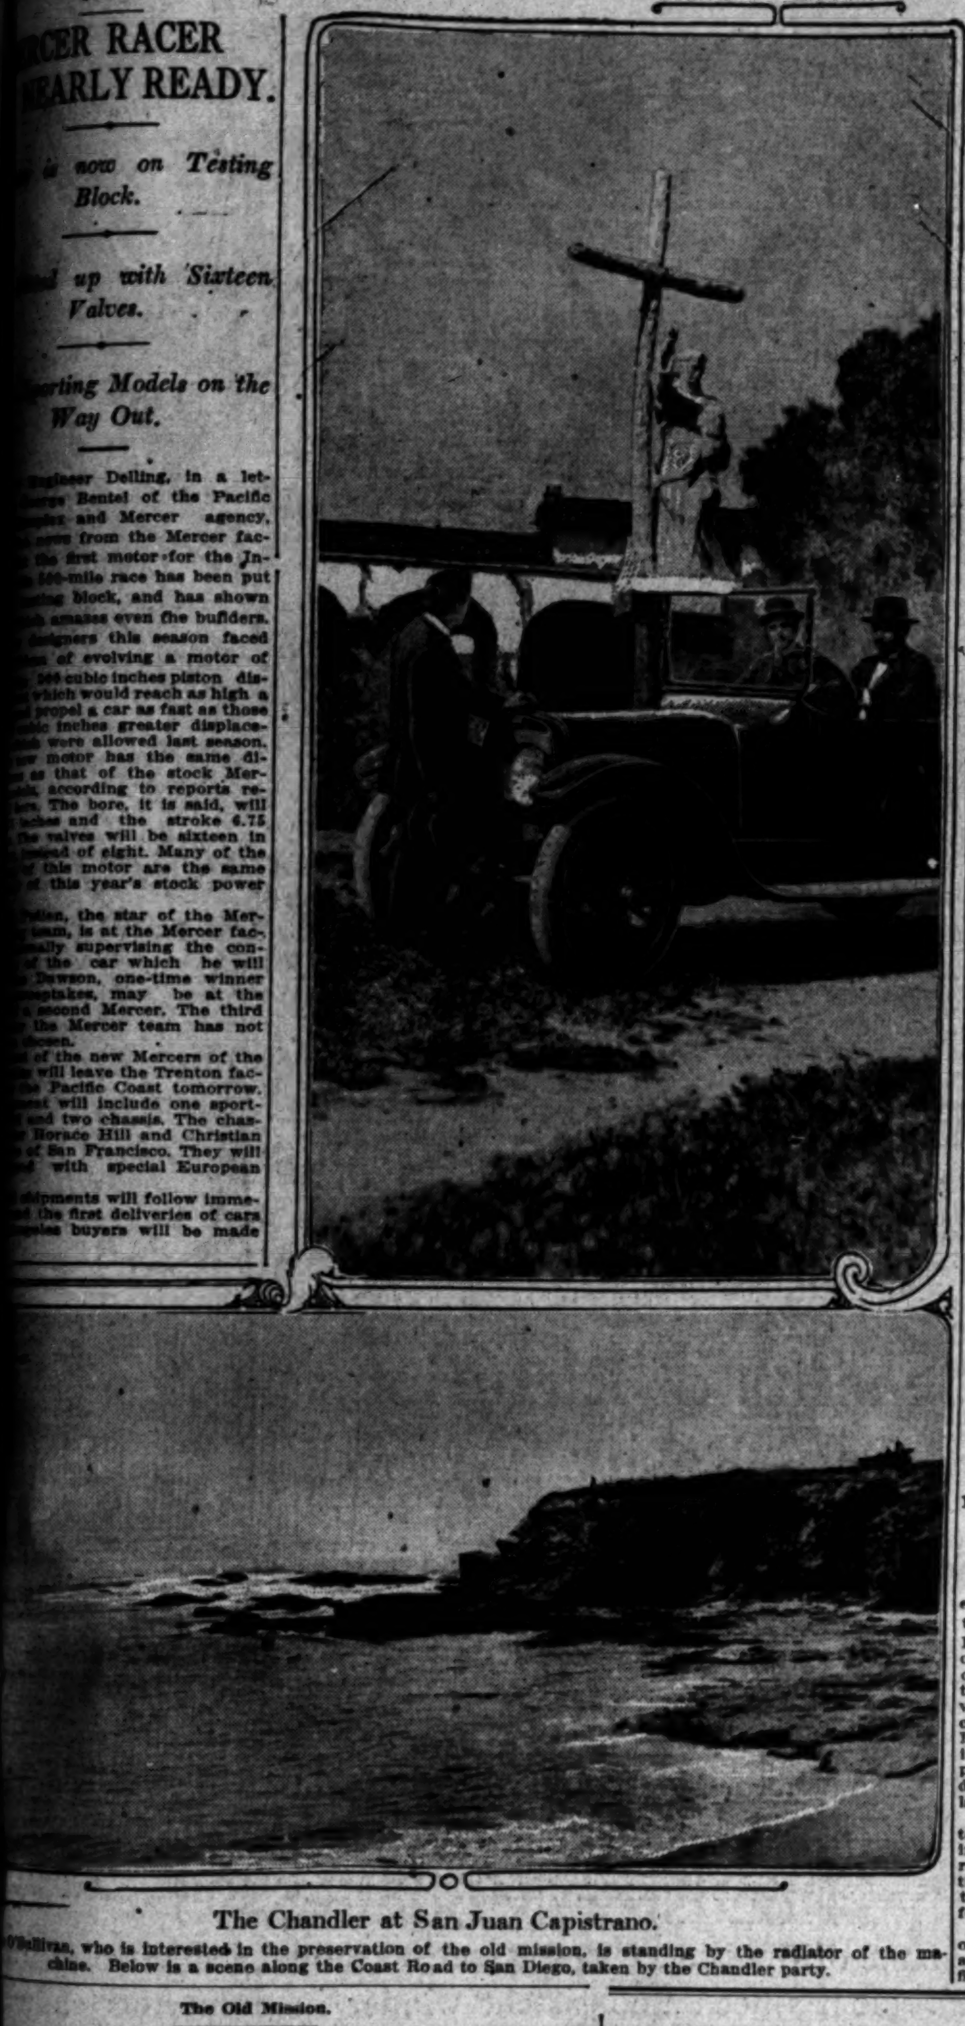
"It is a significant fact the new eight-cylinder motors are depending upon the generator-battery system for ignition in preference to the magneto. The two systems have their distinctive fields of operation.

"The magneto system is, of course, reliable, but it has its limitations in output the same as any electrical generator. From observations and tests made of the two systems, it seems that when all arguments are boiled down one system is as dependable as the other and that the generator-battery system is pre-eminently suited to the touring car when extremely low speeds are necessary at times, while the magneto system works to its best advantage in the racing car where the speeds are high and fairly constant.

"Suppose that the armature of a high-tension magneto be taken and mounted stationary at some point on the car, and that the magneto distributor be driven from the same shaft as before. Then if an outside source of current, such as from the lighting generator, be sent through the distributor and armature, the ignition current is given exactly in the same manner as would be given by the magneto were its armature revolving, except that the current would be stronger at the low motor speeds.

"The motor buyer has been confused by comparisons being made between the high-tension magneto and the old-time vibrator coil system, instead of the modern high-tension distributor generator-battery system. This latter system can be made a dual system, as is the case with most of the magneto systems."

When wheels get rusty under tires the rust should be removed with emery cloth and the rims painted with graphite.



The Chandler at San Juan Capistrano.

O'Sullivan, who is interested in the preservation of the old mission, is standing by the radiator of the machine. Below is a scene along the Coast Road to San Diego, taken by the Chandler party.

... lasting material than ... of the Old World, ... is stone, California has another problem to face if she is to preserve what John Steven McGroarty is working so earnestly to save.

It is a problem, not of rebuilding, but of preservation, according to Father O'Sullivan, the man who, with his bare hands and some pine scantlings has bolstered up pillars and walls in splints. A party of motorists, yesterday, in the Chandler "six" found the father at work on some sodden adobe—all that is left of the Children's gate. The courage of the man is astounding—with his decrepit cathedral tumbling about his ears.

But now everything is to be changed.

A new Landmark Society is under formation, and yesterday, it was announced that San Juan Capistrano is to have a cloister (branch) all its own.

It is not $10,000 nor $20,000, which the place, needs, but $250,000. This was explained to the Chandler party by Father O'Sullivan. It would go for excavation, preservation and supplementation.

There are plans on foot now for a world-wide organization of the lovers of the missions. A dollar a year by each member will be asked. Perhaps, in all of Southern California there are 100,000 persons, who, each, will give a dollar toward the saving of the mission. In all the world, perhaps, there are as many more.

If this defense money is not forthcoming, the elements will win the case, and there will be no more Capistrano.

TWO DEALS OF SIX CARS EACH.

ELECTRIC DELIVERY CARS ARE SOLD TO JEVNE AND BULLOCKS.

H. W. Harrison of the Commercial Electric Garage, distributor for Southern California of the G. V. Electric, has been having a busy time of it lately. Last week he sold six electric G. V. delivery trucks to the H. Jevne Company, and the week before that he sold a like number to Bullock's, and these, with the G. V.'s in use by these firms before this last deal, make quite a fleet of electric delivery cars running around the streets.

Power Is a Factor in California Motoring

We are often asked why the COLE LITTLE SIX develops so much more power than the average Little Six, when COLE has the same size motor and a trifle more weight;

It is not accomplished by lowering the gear ratio as many believe—

You will grasp the reason in a moment when you look under the hood and see the special COLE way of suspending the motor so that it harmonizes perfectly with the balance of the car.

We can show you many substantial reasons. Come in and see for yourself.

SAN JOSE HIGH WINS IN NORTH.

FIRST ANNUAL HIGH SCHOOL MEET IS HELD AT STANFORD.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, March 27.—The north coast section of the California Interscholastic Association, which comprises fourteen high schools, held its first annual field and track meet here today in a drizzling rain.

San Jose High School took first honors with a total of 53 points. Palo Alto was second with 28. Other schools which scored more than five points were:

Santa Rosa, 25; Berkeley, 21; Oakland Technical, 9; San Mateo, 8, and Santa Clara, 8.

The all-State meeting of the association will be held at Fresno, April 3.

The Ottawa team which won the National Hockey Association championship and Stanley cup, emblematic of the Canadian honors, is composed mainly of Ottawa-born players. Of the eleven men in uniform in the deciding game with the Wanderers in Montreal, ten were born and raised in the city of Ottawa. Art Ross was the exception.

SQUABBLE OVER BASEBALL SCORE.

SHERMAN INDIANS CLAIM GAME IS 5 TO 4 WIN; SANTA ANA CLAIMS DRAW.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA ANA, March 27.—Santa Ana Polytechnic High School battled the Sherman Indians to a 4 to 4 eleven-inning tie this afternoon, according to the scores kept by the local scorekeepers.

The Indians claimed a 5 to 4 victory, the one tally keeper for the invaders asserting that Cleveland's hit scored two men in the first of the eleventh. Santa Ana claims that his hit scored only one man, which would make to 4 to 4 tie.

The Indians scored in the fourth and sixth frames, one of the latter tallies being a homer by Pitcher Larosa, Santa Ana scored two in the last of the fourth. Larosa pitched during the entire game, as did also Carver.

University of Pennsylvania football candidates, instead of indulging in football practice, will become members of the Lacrosse squad and keep in shape by playing the great Canadian game.

Manual Wins.

and he was through for the day. Before the relay he tried to limber up. With every stride his face twisted in response to the painful effort. He could not run.

WAVES SUB. ASIDE.

A substitute runner was placed on the course to take the last lap. Wark stood watching Manual Arts climb out on each lap. As his team mate came down the stretch, several feet behind the Manual Arts man, someone said, "Take it, Wark, make up the loss and give us the relay."

It was like a powder stimulant. The Long Beach boy threw off his bath robe, shoved the substitute aside and jumped into the race. He was touched off three yards behind the Manual Arts runner. For twenty-five yards he held his own. Then he began to weaken strength, he gathered his muscles again under control and picked up a few inches; but it was no use.

Once on the straightaway, he headed in the general direction of the tape; but he was an athletic derelict. His head fell forward, his choppy little stride was irregular, he took up the whole course then pitched forward. As he was going down he fought gamely to keep his feet like a football player stumbling through the line; but he fell in the shadow of the tape.

Los Angeles High was second in the relay. Anaheim won third place and Hollywood fourth The race gave Manual Arts a new record. The time of 1m., 34 3-5s., made by Long Beach last year, was cut to 1m., 33.3-5s. by the Manual men.

THOMPSON IS THERE.

Thompson of Long Beach and Bidwell of Glendle went fifty-fifty on a new record in the high jump. The boys tied at 6ft. 1 3-4in., breaking the record made by Argobrite of Ventura High at Bovard Field in 1908 by three-fourths of an inch.

H. Lamport of Manual Arts clipped one-fifth of a second off of the 220 hurdle record formerly held by Gene Kern of Pasadena High. Lamport won a close race from House of Riverside in 25 3-5s.

Thompson of Long Beach sprung a surprise on the critics when he showed over House of Riverside in the 120 high hurdle, but the Riverside boy crowded him back to third in the low stick event.

The Thompson boy was a busy man on the field yesterday. While appearing in the discus, he stopped long enough to win the high hurdles, then went back and took first in the former event. During the high jump he entered the low hurdles, taking third and then returned to the high jump and tied for first place and a new record. He was to have run in the relay but was still jumping when that event was called and his coach decided to keep him out of the final act.

House of Riverside took the broad jump with a leap of 20ft., 11 1-8in. Plaven of Santa Ana was but one-eighth of an inch behind him when the measuring took place. Second in both the hurdle events also went to House.

The Lamport brothers of Manual Arts did an excellent day's work for their school. W. Lamport finished second in the 100 and 220-yard dash, giving Wark a close call. The other brother took first in the low hurdles and third in the high sticks.

GOOD MANAGEMENT.

All the morning the high school boys worked through the preliminaries and when it came to the finals, the events were run off with systematic management, seldom seen in such a great meet. Seth F. Van Patten, manager, and every official on the field did their duty perfectly. The policing of the field was excellent and only officials and athletes were allowed on the course at any time.

The summary:

Mile: Won by Crippen (Poly;) Frost (Redlands,) second; Walker (Pomona,) third; Martin (Riverside,) fourth; time 4m. 40 3-5s.

100-yard dash: Won by Wark (Long Beach;) W. Lamport (Manual Arts,) second; Needham (San Diego,) third; Jameson (Los Angeles,) fourth; time 10 2-5s.

first inning, when Chappelle, Demmitt, Kuhn and Baker engaged in some brisk hitting and soaked him for three runs. The other tally, which came along in the sixth, was an accident. Bromwich drove to left and the pill took a bad hop past Rube, converting it into a home run. Fortunately the bases were unoccupied at the time.

The only time our side approached the plate was in the sixth, when Maggert got himself thrown out there trying to score from second on Zeb's single to Demmitt.

Chech tripled in the third, but owing to a slight inadvertence he does not get credit for the deed. After Charles had reached third the Goofs threw the ball around among themselves awhile and then discovered that Chech had not touched first. The pill was promptly relayed to that point, and Chech returned to the bench in sorrow.

CHANDLER SIX
$1295

A Letter From Mr. Chandler

Chandler Motor Car Company of California
Los Angeles, Calif.

Gentlemen:

We are not surprised to learn that you heard some people express doubts as to whether the Chandler selling for $1295 is the real Chandler, the same car that has been selling for $1595. We get the same kind of reports from all over the country. But at the same time we are getting such a quantity of orders that we are convinced thousands of people are taking the trouble to find out for themselves that it is the same car.

It isn't strange, at all, that there are some doubters. It does seem too good to be true. I recall that you had some doubts, too, at first. It is difficult, indeed, to realize the progress that has come in the automobile industry in the past two years. You remember what a sensation the Chandler Light Six was at $1785 two years ago. And again last year, when the car had been beautifully refined, and perfected in every detail, at $1595. Is it any wonder that people should marvel at the $1295 price?

The fact remains—you know it, and we know it, and anyone else can easily convince himself of it—that the Chandler at $1295 is the identical model that set the quality standard for light sixes and sold for $1595. We are standing absolutely pat on this model. We haven't changed a single part or feature or material, and we won't. This is our car for the year—and doubtless for years to come—and $1295 is the price.

The people who come into your store and examine the Chandler, and who go out and drive it, or ride in it, are convinced; and we won't worry about those folks who doubt without investigating. I feel pretty sure that every man who thinks of spending more than $1000 for an automobile is, at least, going to look at the Chandler. And if he does—well, we will be satisfied with his decision.

The factory is breaking all our past production records and the big new building is being rushed through to completion.

Very truly, F. C. CHANDLER,
President Chandler Motor Car Co.

THE NEW OHIO models, in beauty and novel features, easily leads the Electric Car field.

Helical-gear or worm-gear drive, as you prefer. Beautifully-arched fenders, beaten by hand from one piece of aluminum.

Sashless glass in all windows. Disappearing front window. Touching a short lever raises or lowers the windows to any position desired. Refined body lines, made possible by hammered aluminum construction throughout. Specially designed interior upholstering.

The patented exclusive Ohio magnetic control with magnetic brake, is the simplest, safest and most effective operating mechanism known. Think of being able to govern the speed of the car—forward or reverse—sound a warning signal, or shut and lock off the power all from a small disk little larger than a vanity box!

Think of being able to retard the car instantly amid congested traffic or on slippery streets, merely by pressing a button!

See whether any other car surpasses—even equals—the Ohio in artistry of design and luxury of appointments. Your own judgment, after such a comparison, will satisfy us.

THE ELECTRIC PLEASURE CAR

BY R. H. MORRIS.

The wonderful progress and rapidly increasing popularity of the electric pleasure car warrants the prediction that it will be only a few years until the electric vehicle will predominate for local and suburban use. This because it better fulfills average service requirements. Statements concerning the electric show, among other things, that 90 per cent. of those who use gas cars do not exceed the mileage radius of the electric in any one day's driving.

While admitting limitations as regards speed and mileage, they hardly apply in service for which the electric is intended. Its speed exceeds that permitted by law in the cities. It allows one to go as fast as sane driving warrants. As to mileage, it is seldom, except in touring, that one travels more than 35 to 50 miles in a day. The electric with a radius of 60 to 90 miles is more than ample to meet actual conditions.

Nor should we forget that in California, we have what has well been called a Paradise for electrics. Our beautiful boulevards go everywhere. Our season is perpetual with Nature always calling, today where "Old Ocean roars," tomorrow to some retreat in the quiet hills. What else can afford the same opportunity for the fullest enjoyment of one's time and friends in health giving, nerve toning recreation, as the silent, safe

The electric pleasure car has heretofore associated itself almost entirely with the requirements of milady in her social life and economic duties. Today it is merging into the larger field where utility factors are considered. There will always be the sumptuous, elegant cars for those who seek the luxury and comfort of conventional types, where refinement in finish and equipment are major considerations; but, smaller cars of lesser weight, yet of equal quality and service value, will come, and at a lower price.

The electric of today is a perfected vehicle, yet it is apparent that many have held aloof from it because of what they did not know. Manufacturers realize marketing the electric is a matter of education rather than salesmanship. To understand the electric and appreciate what it is capable of doing, is to own one.

It has many incomparable features. It is extremely quiet in operation, and smooth running. It glides along without vibration of any kind. It is thoroughly clean; no oil, no grease, no smoke or odor. Its control is remarkably easy, making it absolutely safe for anyone, old or young, to handle. In congested traffic it has a quick getaway, an ability to work in and out here and there with least physical effort, and always with perfect confidence that makes handling it a pleasure, almost a fascination.

As to convenience and comfort, the electric is an ideal vehicle. In the coupe model, we have the perfect two-purpose car; open on all sides when you wish it, with a protecting roof always above you. Or in windy or stormy weather, it can be closed entirely or not, as you may desire. It can be left anywhere any time, and locked against theft or disturbance, securing at the same time, any wraps or other articles that you may wish to leave in it.

Again, it is thoroughly reliable. It

THE NEW LIGHT BAKER ELECTRIC

WEIGHS A FULL HALF TON LESS THAN MANY OTHER ELECTRICS.

Easy Steering: High Speed and Mileage; Reduced Upkeep Cost;

Steering is no effort. Imagine the relief in being rid of 1000 pounds when driving over a rough pavement through a jam of traffic. And speed! 23 miles per hour—probably the greatest ever built into an electric coupe. Better speed and just as good mileage with 32 cells of battery as heavier electrics with 40 to 42 cells—weight is the greatest handicap to both speed and mileage. Much lower cost of upkeep—weight is the most expensive thing about a motor car; it wears out tires, consumes power, grinds out bearings, increases repair bills. Longer life of car—excess weight pounds itself to pieces. Rides with unusual comfort—light body hung low on long chassis equipped in the rear with Cantilever springs. Light, graceful exterior impossible with heavy bulky cars.

Unique Seating Arrangement: 98 per cent. of the time electrics carry four passengers and under. 71 per cent. of the time, one or two passengers. The new light Baker is designed to meet these actual conditions. It is a roomy four-passenger Coupe, instantly convertible into a two or a three-passenger car merely by folding back the front seats (new disappearing type) out of sight and out of the way. Think of the pleasure of riding without empty front seats.

Advanced Equipment: Frameless windows throughout; front window drops way down. Invisible drip moulding; fixed rain visor. Mechanical window lifts; automatic circuit breaker; automatic door switch for interior lighting; combination eight-day clock and odometer. Worm drive axle; crown metal fenders. Exquisitely rich interior upholstered with exclusive imported fabrics in beautiful Poiret colorings. From every standpoint this new light Coupe is the finest Baker Electric ever made.

"The Car That Made Good in a Year"

Yesterday—
Another Demonstration of BEARDSLEY ELECTRIC
Efficiency

YESTERDAY another of the Beardsley Electric owners' tours took place—Los Angeles to Monrovia via Pasadena. Again was demonstrated with striking conclusiveness the wonderful cross-country tourability of the Beardsley Electric — its extreme ease of control, long mileage and thorough fitness for the West.

On a recent owners' tour, fourteen Beardsley Electrics, in a cross-country mileage contest, made an average of 100 1-10 miles on a single charge. The car scoring the highest, 112 miles, was one of the first cars sold by us.

The Beardsley Electric is the first and only electric pleasure car built in the West—and after a close study of Western road and climatic needs.

Brougham, $3000. Open-air Victoria, $2750. Roadster (the latest sensation) $2500.

Demonstration, gladly.

HE STORY OF THE ELECTRIC TRUCK

BY HARRY W. HARRISON.

ectric truck history, so far as this country is concerned, be about 1897, with the building of the trucks which were put eration in 1898 and 1899. Several of these 1899 1000-pound have been in daily service ever since and are still on . But that does not say the electric truck met fair sailing ped into popularity. The first motor truck, and especially ectric truck, was misunderstood and met indifference or incredulous opposition on all sides for it was the first on the field and so had to break the way for all motor trucks. It came to supplant a method in vogue for eight or ten centuries, and it had to make good to live.

But its hard knocks have been its salvation. Misjudged, maligned, beset first by criticisms and later by the fiercest competition, it has steadily forged ahead. If the types of 1902 had been more successful from the standpoint of simplicity, ease of operation and greater mileage, the electric probably would have gone along in a desultory fashion and not amounted to much for another decade; but because it was crude, because people couldn't or wouldn't understand how it should be cared for—because it had to stand the acid test, even when unfairly treated, of paying dividends on the investment its owner had made in it, it has grown into a thoroughly efficient machine.

The discredited early types were wonderful for their time. They were clumsy, but this was in their favor, for it showed how much a well built truck could stand. Some of them have already borne the brunt of from 12 to 15 years' hard work. And I want to impress upon you this fact: It is these same old veterans of 1902-07 running side by side with the standardized product of today that is convincing the business man of the dependability of the electric truck. He sees with his own eyes the evolution, the improvements in design, construction, mileage, etc., are tangible. He sees, too, that the old ones were essentially good, sturdy forerunners of today's product of which no one could be ashamed.

Long before 1905 the electric truck had dissipated the idea that one can sell motor wagons by pleasure car methods. Its pioneers soon gave up the idea of making money the first few years. What they wanted to do was to get something on the street and be able to prove its strong points and limitations. They certainly succeeded in discovering "limitations," every one was right there to help them out in that. You may remember adding a few "I told you so's" to the general verdict yourself. But have you ever noticed that a recognized universal need and a means of supplying that need are unusually discovered about the same time. The shortcomings of horse-drawn service, and above all else the increasing cost of such service, almost compelled people to at least consider the electric truck.

Some of our heaviest deliveries in this city are handled with electric trucks. The owner is not concerned whether his truck goes in spurts of speed and loses time in stopping and starting, or goes more slowly and loses no time stopping and starting, so long as the total is about the same; but he is very much concerned when the vehicle has to be laid up for repairs, he has not only the inconvenience, but the cost of the repairs to bring up his total cost per package for delivery.

So it is because the high grade electric has served its apprenticeship, has proven that it is the most efficient, reliable and economical mode of delivery that you will find the largest business houses all over the country have adopted an electric delivery system. And the slogan, "To electrify is to simplify," is never more justly applied than when referring to the electric truck.

The G. V. Electric Truck
Is the Answer to Your Delivery Problem

75 per cent of our business throughout the world in 1914 were repeat orders. It takes a good truck to have a record like this. Don't judge a truck by the results of one month or even one year of service. If at the end of a year your truck is so worn that the replacement of parts runs into big figures, your truck is not a paying investment. G. V. Trucks have the smallest number of parts to replace and these parts have proved their ability to stand years of hard, continuous service. G. V. Trucks with service records of 7 to 10 years are common.

5 Oakland Reasons For the Car's Popularity
1. Flying Wedge Lines with Least Wind Resistance.
2. Low Center of Gravity with Usual Road Clearance.
3. High Speed Motor with Great Power.
4. Great Strength with Light Weight.
5. Economy with Luxury.
Let Us Show You the Oakland.

5 Leading Oakland Superiorities

SEE the Oakland car and you get at once a feeling of speed, beauty and strength. The design of this car embraces all those lines which other car builders must adopt. In the cutting down of wind resistance alone there is a big fuel saving and much new driving comfort. Six to sixty miles an hour without sideway or throw. The Oakland-Northway Motor sweeps up the hills with uninterrupted speed.

Oakland Fours and Sixes

Have many points of superiority not found in any other car. We want to give you a chance to prove these points. We want you to ride in the car and get the feel of power. Come in and see the Oakland.

NEW CABRIOLET ARRIVES HERE.

Is Ideal Car for Southern California.

Because it can be Open or Inclosed.

Steering Wheel Lifts Out of the Way.

The first King eight inclosed car has reached Los Angeles. Last week Clarence English, Southern California and Arizona distributor for the King, received a King cabriolet, a car of the convertible type.

Mr. English believes that the convertible car is the ideal inclosed car for Southern California. There is so little inclement weather here that an inclosed car is not always a necessity and often an open car is desired. In the cabriolet, one has a car which can be used for an open roadster or an inclosed four-passenger car.

The cabriolet, like all other cars of the King eight-cylinder line, is equipped with a patent adjustable steering wheel, which can be pushed out of the way to facilitate easy entrance and exit for the driver. The wheel pushes upward, leaving the entire space between the seat and the steering column clear.

This feature is a fine one for every driver, but is most appreciated by the fat man, to whom getting into and out of the driver's seat always has been a bugbear.

H. A. Turner, one of the first to receive delivery on a King eight in Los Angeles, drove to San Diego last week, making the trip south by way of the coast route, and returning by the inland route.

According to Mr. Turner the best way to avoid construction work between Irvine and the county line is to go by the new concrete road to Laguna and from there along the bluffs to Serra. Between Serra and the county line there is quite a bit of rough road, but all of it is passable.

Some System.

ONE AXLE CARRIES LOAD AND ANOTHER THE POWER

THE internal gear drive rear axle is a distinctive feature of the Republic truck, but J. A. Stoner, manager of the Mack Motor Truck Company, local distributors, predicts that within two years all truck makers will be employing this type almost exclusively. Trucks of all capacities up to and including the giant of ten tons are now being built with this type of power transmission.

A teaspoonful of graphite for every 5000 miles is all the attention this axle requires, Mr. Stoner says. Cheap replacements is another advantageous feature that augurs well for the future, he asserts, as the gears may be obtained for less than half the cost of those employed in other types of construction.

"The internal gear represents the combination of all the best in other types," Mr. Stoner asserts. "For years, truck makers have employed the chain system of transmitting power to the wheels. More recently they have taken up the bevel and worm gears. Pleasure car manufacturers find the hollow rear axle the best for their purposes, while the chain requires a solid axle.

"The internal gear drive involves a rear axle having two separate members, one of which carrie[illegible] while the other provides f[illegible] reduction through a set of [illegible] in the center of the axle [illegible] spur gears at the wheels. 13,366 cars in just that one year!

Enough to fill 2228 freight cars—shipping 6 to the car!

Or enough to load 4456 freight cars if shipped 3 to the car, the way many other manufacturers ship.

Enough to form a line of cars, unbroken from end to end, a little over 47 miles long.

And representing not only more cars than most manufacturers make altogether, but many more than the entire year's registration in California of any other car priced at higher than five hundred dollars.

With California recognized as one of the best markets for cars in the United States—one of the few that the builders of cars fight hardest for—this tribute to Studebaker Supremacy—of 13,366 Studebakers registered in one year—is as strong endorsement as any man can wish.

And the reason is obvious, when once you study the Studebaker Cars. When you study the power that silent and smooth-running motor develops—the ease of driving and even EASIER-riding qualities that are in-built in the cars—the "balanced lightness" that keeps the cost of maintenance LOW—and the scores of refinements of finish and fittings that make the Studebaker a delightful car to own, to ride in or to drive.

But SEE the car—that's the thing. We'll gladly show you either the FOUR or the SIX, whichever you like. Or the Roadster "that's built for three." And a demonstration, including any tests you care to make, on hills or the roughest roads, will quickly show you why 13,366 Californians picked the Studebaker Car stell's Silvertown cord-equipped Mercer which finished fourth at Venice. The tire on the right ran the whole distance of 300 miles and can hardly be told from the unused tire on the left. Below is a section of the tire showing the construction. It has two layers of cord anchored to the bead by imported steel staples and surrounded by three layers of pure rubber gum. On top of these is a breaker strip of friction fabric, and on top of that the pure rubber gum tread.

How cord tires wear.

The Dope.

RUCKSTELL TELLS WHY HE USES "CORD" TIRES.

RUCKSTELL, who drove such a wonderful race at Venice, is a great student of his car, as well of his tires and accessories, and ably no racing driver who has in the game so short a while better versed in the strong and points of the various cars and Ruckstell of course is strong for Mercer. He thinks there is no like it, but he is just as strong Goodrich Silvertown Cord tires. know from my experiences and rvation," said Ruckstell in con- tion with Frank Carroll, local ager of the B. F. Cords are securely anchored in the bead made of the steel and these prevent rim cut- The tread is so perfectly cured it has the greatest resistance to I have tried out my car with tires, carefully noting the speed and then applied the cord tires, with the result that I secured five miles more an hour from the cords than from the fabric.

"The Goodrich Cord is superior to the foreign cords for several reasons. While the principle of the European and the Silvertown Cords is the same and the construction identical, the Goodrich Cord has so much better material and the tread is so much more thoroughly cured that it gives more service and better service. The tread of the Goodrich Cord does not peel; that is, if it is cut in any way the tread does not work loose and come off. It is so well frictioned that it resists the tendency to pull loose from the carcass."

Carlson, who finished second in the race at Venice, and who made but one short stop, is another cord tire booster. His Silvertowns, after going through the race, show scarcely a mark and he used the same tires in the race at Tucson without the least trouble.

Dave Lewis, who drove such a remarkable race at Venice, going out in the ninety-sixth lap, when he was seven minutes ahead of the field, says that the Goodrich Silvertown Cord is the logical tire for the race, as well as for the tourist.

Disbrow, who drove the Simplex at Venice, is just as strong for the cords as Ruckstell, while Eddie Pullen will use no other tire. All these drivers maintain that the additional speed given by the Goodrich Cord as well as the qualities of endurance and resilience, warrant their strict adherence to this type.

Runs Like a French Car
Looks Like a French Car
But—The Price is American

Do you know what distinguishes all high-grade, expensive French cars? Smooth propulsion—smooth propulsion at all speeds and under all conditions.

The BRISCOE CAR runs like a French car because this car was first designed and built in the Briscoe laboratory at Billancourt, France. It contains the best ideas of the great engineers who were consulted.

The BRISCOE CAR looks like a French car because it is designed by foreign artists to appeal to discriminating purchasers in this country. Although selling for less than a thousand dollars, its appearance takes it out of the ordinary-looking, low-value class.

Furthermore, because of methods of construction, careful workmanship, and fine materials used, the BRISCOE CAR will always be classed with the highest-priced large cars—not with the cheap, ordinary product of hasty and careless manufacture.

Its reliability is assured by the fact that the men who built this car have made successes of other cars—by the fact that they have a fund of personal experience as large as any group of men in the automobile industry—by the fact that the design of this car is the result of three years' study and investigation here and abroad.

A Demonstration on the Roads

We will be glad to give you a demonstration of the Briscoe Car on any roads or hills you may select. You are the one to be convinced—a demonstration on your own terms will convince you.

Note carefully the following features, boasted of in cars costing $1100 to $1400. You would demand them if you were paying $1500 to $2500. The BRISCOE has them—without additional charge:

The Giant Among Tires

Why Does Goodyear Tower So High Among a Hundred Others?

Last year we sold 1,478,883 Goodyear pleasure car tires alone—about one tire for every car in use.

Yet Goodyear has some hundred rivals. How came this tire to dominate like that?

Millions of Salesmen

Can there be any reason but this?

In the years before, we sent into service millions of Fortified Tires. And those tires, by their records, sold the tires of last year.

You know that. Perhaps you favor another tire. But you know in your heart that Goodyears, in some ways, must excel the rest.

Five Costly Ways

They do excel—in at least five ways, costly and important. Each is exclusive to Goodyear Fortified Tires.

These combat rim-cutting, blowouts, loose treads. They combat insecurity, punctures and skidding. These tires alone get our "On-Air" cure, which costs us $450,000 yearly. They alone, for safety's sake, have 126 braided piano wires vulcanized into each tire base.

They alone have our All-Weather tread. Its toughness and thickness resist wear and puncture. And no other tread has such sharp, resistless grips.

Reductions Total 45%

Goodyear price reductions for two years total 45 per cent. The last big reduction was on February 1st. Three times in two years, as our cost came down, we cut the cost to you. Thus our matchless production always insures you most for your money in Goodyears.

Each year these tires grow better. We keep scores of experts constantly working, seeking new ways to improve them.

Doesn't fairness to yourself suggest trying these tires? Any dealer will supply you.

Gosh, Yes!

NEW SIX SELLS VERY RAPIDLY.

AND THE FACTORY IS BEING ENLARGED.

Don Lee Finds it Necessary to Get More Cars from the Factory and His Allotment for April for this State has been Increased by Forty Additional Cars.

So heavy has been the demand for Paige cars throughout the country the announcement was made last week that the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company would immediately break ground for a large three-story addition to the factory that will enable this concern to increase their daily output at least fifty additional cars.

This move has been made necessary on account of the unusual success of the Paige Six. This model made its appearance a year ago, and since then has been growing in popularity until it has become necessary to work the present plant night and day.

The effect of the Phoenix race, in which Paige Fours finished second and third, was felt all over the country. This desert classic has become known as the hardest of automobile races throughout the country and the demonstration given by Paige cars in that event resulted in an even greater demand for that model.

A victory in the average road race does not live long in the minds of the people, but to win the Los Angeles-to-Phoenix road race or to make such a showing as the two Paige cars made is not soon forgotten. The Paige company published a small folder on the race and the demand for these came from all sections.

Work on the big addition to the factory will be rushed night and day and it is expected that it will be possible to install machinery in the lower floor within thirty days. Work will start in this new plant before it is completed.

Efficiency.

"SERVICE" SELLS TIRES AS WELL AS AUTOMOBILES.

"HANDLE the tire users with the least possible annoyance; treat them on an equitable and just basis so that they feel glad to do business with us."

It was in this sentence that S. G. Carkhuff, secretary of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, who has been in Los Angeles for three weeks, explained the ideal of Firestone service. Mr. Carkhuff is in charge of the efficiency department for all his company's branches and is the man upon whom rests the responsibility for service.

In explaining further what he regards as the ideal of service, Mr. Carkhuff said fair and square dealing is the only enduring principle. "Our company was not the first in the business, but our progress founded on this policy has been the cause of a remarkable growth," he said. "It is not difficult, even in these modern times, to build up a business by trickery, but the public soon finds it out and then the end is reached.

"Every official in our company believes in the one principle. We carry it to all branches through the managers and they pass it on down through the employees so that it comes in direct contact with the tire users. Every year our books show we have gone ahead. We are making money and, notwithstanding the financial condition of the country, we are selling more tires than ever. That means the tire consumers have faith in us and the product of our mills.

"Los Angeles is one of our best cities, but the branch does not have to maintain the extensive service department those in eastern cities do. In the East, repair and supply cars are kept in readiness to go out upon call at any time.

Some Battle.

COAST CLUBS LINED UP FOR GREAT RAC

Team Which Finishes Without a Deficit will be Real Winner—Magnates Have Maintained Standards Under Adverse Conditions—Line-ups Opening Day, and Averages.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

THE Coast League race starts next Tuesday, and it promises to be a hard and exciting financial battle all the way; probably the greatest in the history of the league.

One of the six teams is sure to win the pennant, but the real winner will be the one which finishes without a deficit, even if it finishes in the rear.

For what profiteth it a magnate to win a pennant if it leaves him all flattened out financially?

Better a berth in last place, with a few simoleons salted away for a rainy day, than the championship with nothing wherewith to pay the winter fuel bill.

WHAT'S A PENNANT?

A pennant is of no great intrinsic value. It would be hard to hock one for more than six bits. Witness the sad case of Cornelius Mack. He won enough pennants to make a rag carpet, but with each recurring pennant he found it harder to coax the backward and blushing dollar out of retirement. And then in the end, Connie was forced to sell Eddie Collins for $50,000. Let this be a warning to all magnuts.

It would be lamentable, indeed, should President Powers win the pennant, only to discover at the finish that he must sell Oscar Horstman in order to break even on the season; or for the Tigers to win and find it necessary to dispose of Cack Henley.

But, yanking ourselves out of the mire and muck of mere commercialism, and viewing the race from the high plane of unadulterated sportsmanship, it is certain that the public is going to be given some real baseball for its money—providing that it has any money.

The Coast League today is the fastest big minor in the country. In order to maintain this standard, and give the public the best that the market affords, the club owners, if anything, have gone a bit too deep for their own financial good. But they are a game bunch, and will draw on their private resources, if necessary.

With baseball on the hog all over the country, the Coast League, of all the minors, is the only one which has not lowered its ideals.

Today it is a shade faster than ever before, and that is saying a good deal.

The two other big minors, the American Association and the International League, have cut salaries to the bone, and have adopted a player limit of sixteen men per club.

The sole retrenchment of the Coast League consisted of reducing from twenty to eighteen men. Salaries, if anything, are a shade higher than last season, and the average pay roll today is equal to that of a majority of major league clubs a few years ago. Even the double umpire system survives.

"The Coast League is in a class by itself among the minors; of all the A.A. leagues, it alone has maintained its standard in the face of adversity. Salaries are even a shade higher than last year, when it was thought that the limit had been reached. The spirit of the West has again asserted itself." (Uncensored remarks delivered yesterday by Frank Dillon.)

And Pop certainly spoke a mouth full.

The men back of the Coast League either are pennant-mad or all "guts."

DOPED AGAIN.

The race itself has been doped from every angle, and frequently redoped, so about all that remains is to see that the peanuts are well cooked and get the parade in motion.

There really remains nothing of pith and moment to be said.

Magnets and managers will issue their formal statements and will either claim the pennant outright or play safe and hope for the best. These make fair reading, but will have no vital influence on the race. History has yet to record where a pennant was won by a pre-season statement.

The magnets and managers cannot be blamed for viewing their handiwork with undisguised satisfaction and saying something about it, for it is a man's-sized job to build up a regular ball team and an undertaking involving considerable expense. Every club in the Coast League is a work of art, and masterpieces come high.

The Angels will open the season with Portland right here in Los Angeles; the Oaks will meet the San Francisco, and the dedicate the Salt Lake park.

An Expert.

ELECTRICS FILL EVERY REAL NEED OF MOTORI

Statistics, Declares Prominent Manufacturer, that 98 Per Cent. of All Auto Trips are of Sixty or Less and are Thus Well Within the Range Modern Electric Automobile.

W. C. ANDERSON, manufacturer of Detroit Electrics, and one of the recognized experts in this line in America, makes a strong appeal for the electric motor vehicle and backs his remarks up with some live figures which prove the tremendous range of utility of the modern electric car. His remarks, in part, are as follows:

For several years it has been recognized that a good electric car is the most economical type of automobile from the standpoint of operation cost. The simplicity of the electric and the fact that it can be driven with safety by every member of the family have also become established facts.

Within the past year or two the electric pleasure car has forged its way to the front and has demanded consideration everywhere because it has proven itself a practical car for motoring needs.

The question is sometimes asked why the electric car is the logical vehicle for practically every motoring need of a family? In the first place it is a car of utility. Its field of usefulness really knows no limits. There was a time when men hesitated at buying an electric because they felt that the zone of operation was too restricted. Today statistics prove 98 per cent. of all automobile trips do not exceed a total of sixty miles at an average of twenty to twenty-five miles an hour, which means that 98 per cent. of all trips [illegible] within easy radius of a good electric car. And per cent. of trips the siderably less expensive that, everything considered, tric car is a wise investment.

Another reason why a today is a practical car the fact that an electric power and hill-climbing anywhere. This is proven that in hilly cities the dotted with electrics, where years ago they were little seen. We have cars with larger battery motor connected directly ing shaft, thus giving cent. to 20 per cent. meet the most severe

Another reason for the ularity of the electric creased speed. The new tric for instance can make miles an hour, a rate than any city ordinance speed is in marked electrics a few years ago ble of.

These three facts—the of usefulness, the and the greater speed attributes which account use of electric pleasure

…Trinkeller stable consists of a …wo-cylinder Buick, a 1910 four-…der Buick and a 1915 six-cylinder …, each in the pink of condition, …ach holding a remarkable economy record.

…1905 Buick, although ten years old, is still in daily service, and is averaging twenty-two miles to the gallon of gasoline, showing that economy of gasoline consumption is no new thing in the Buick family. It was this model that introduced the famous Buick valve-in-the-head motor, its two-cylinder having both the intake and exhaust valves in the head of the cylinders.

The 1910 Buick, after serving for four years as a general family car, covering during this time most of the points of interest in the entire State, has served during the last year as Mr. Trinkeller's business car, and, while it has been in daily service since its purchase, five years ago, has cost but $2.50 for repairs.

The 1915 Buick six-cylinder is now the official family machine of the Trinkeller family. Mrs. Trinkeller, who is an ardent motorist, and handles her car like a veteran, pilots the big seven-passenger machine all over Southern California with the greatest ease.

"While we were familiar with the gasoline mileage records possible to get with the Buick, still we were astonished at the showing made by our newest," Buick says Mr. Trinkeller. "So far we have averaged better than eighteen miles to the gallon of gasoline with our six, and as considerable of our mileage has been over city streets, where our motor has run idle a great deal, we consider that the new Buick is making the greatest showing of our whole Buick family."

Fielder Jones, manager of the St. Louis Federal League team, may act as a pinch-hitter during the coming season.

PENDELL TAKES ON A NEW LINE.

WILL HANDLE COMMERCE CARS IN ADDITION TO ATTERBURY.

H. G. Pendell, Southern California distributor of Atterbury trucks, has taken on a new line, the Commerce. He will have the same territory as for the Atterbury line. Lynn Buxton, distributor of the Moon and Lexington lines, has taken the Los Angeles county territory for the Commerce and expects to push this line ahead in the next few weeks.

The Ontario Cricket Association will not take part in international or interprovincial matches because many of the best players have enlisted.

HUPMOBILE

Power, Flexibility and a Big Car

People in Los Angeles know the Hupmobile as a car of great power and great flexibility.

It has this same reputation not only throughout California, but in all parts of the country—in fact, wherever it is known.

There's a great deal of comfort in the knowledge that your car can go anywhere any car can go—and without excess strain on the machinery.

Hupmobile owners everywhere know that is the kind of car they have; and Los Angeles Hupmobile owners have proved it to their own satisfaction.

With all its great power, the Hupmobile engine has truly remarkable flexibility.

When you have your demonstration we will throttle the car down to less than 5 miles per hour on high gear.

The speed will be too slow to move the speedometer needle from zero; and we will jump the speed to the highest notch without the motor checking or bucking or slipping the clutch.

That's a real flexibility test.

The motor is non-stallable, too—a safety factor too big to overlook.

The Hupmobile has a great many other good points that you should know about before you select any car.

Let us demonstrate them to you—by giving you a ride in the car.

How much per—— ——DELIVERED Mile?

THAT'S the Tire Question in a Nutshell!

Not—"how much does the Tire Cost"—"how much Rubber is in it"—"how many layers of Cotton fabric"—or "how many different Vulcanizings does it go through."

Because,—Results have shown that some of the Tires which have most Cotton, Rubber, Weight and stiffness, give much less MILEAGE and Resilience than other tires made lighter by more expert workmen, through more direct and precise Methods.

Nor is so-called "Mileage Guarantee" worth considering in purchasing of Tires.

Because,—no Tires are actually guaranteed to give definite Mileage, no matter what the surface reading may suggest.

Such "Guarantee" would be impracticable with the best Tire ever made, or that ever will be made.

—This, unless the Tire User could, in turn, guarantee the kind of roads over which he would always drive, the kind of driving his Chauffeur would always do, and the air pressure he would always carry on each Tire.

THE "Mileage Guarantee" is therefore a deceptive Misnomer.

It does not guarantee given Mileage but is only a figure arbitrarily named "as a Basis for Adjustment" on Claims made for defective Workmanship or Materials.

Read any of these "Guarantees" that are printed (or have the verbal ones defined) and you will see that they don't guarantee anything except that the Maker alone shall decide everything such "Guarantee" is supposed to cover.

The larger the Milage "Guarantee" the higher the price must the Maker charge, to cover (as with Life Insurance) the increased "risk" of replacing Tires that are reasonably sure to wear out, in considerable numbers, before they have given the "Guaranteed" Mileage.

The Careful Driver, over good roads and streets, would thus pay more than the Tire is worth, so that the Reckless Driver, or he who must continually drive over bad roads and streets, might get Mileage he is not entitled to, at the Careful Driver's expense.

THE Goodrich Safety Tread is the fairest-priced Tire, of similar Quality, in the field.—Ten to 30% lower than other Tires that give less Mileage on average performance, less effective Traction, with more Vibration, and greater tendency to separate the layers of Fabric and of Tread.

Compare the "Goodrich Safety" Mileage Cost with that of any other Tire in the field, and ACT on what the Comparison shows you.

Note the following table of comparative prices on non-skid tires. Columns headed "A," "B," "C" and "D" represent four highly-advertised tires:

Size	Goodrich Safety Tread	OTHER MAKES
		"A"	"B"	"C"	"D"
30x3	$9.45	$10.55	$10.95	$16.35	$18.10
30x3½	12.20	13.35	14.20	21.70	23.60
32x3½	14.00	15.40	16.30	22.85	25.30
34x4	20.35	22.30	23.80	31.15	33.55
36x4½	28.70	32.15	33.60	41.85	41.40
37x5	33.90	39.30	41.80	49.85	52.05

If you are charged less for any other make than Goodrich, they are taking it out of the tire; if you are charged more, they are taking it out of you.

The UNCOMMON CAR

Our fixed policy is to concentrate on a few fine cars; not more than FOUR CARS A DAY. Only one motorist in every three hundred owns a Locomobile. Limiting our production of fine Motor Cars enables us to specialize in details; enables us to express the requirements of those families who are accustomed to the note of Individuality in all their selections.

DEWITT

CARE OF TACKLE.

BY AD REED.

SUCCESS in bait fishing depends more often on the correct baiting of the hook than may appear at first thought.

The best way is that which gives the longest life to the bait and at the same time makes it appear more natural to the fish.

Worms of all kinds should be impaled in the following manner: Insert the hook one-half to one inch from the head, force it down through the body, and bring it out about one inch from the tail, so that head and tail can wriggle. Have the hook completely concealed. If one worm is not enough, use another in the same manner and so on.

Minnows and all small fish should be hooked through the lips. The hook is inserted under the lower jaw and then out through the top of the nose.

Frogs.—Hook your frog through the lips close to the right or left eye. The reason for this is that the frog will try to right himself and will wiggle around more.

Helgramite or Dobson should be hooked under hard collar on the back, hook being inserted under edge towards the head and then out under edge towards the tail.

Crayfish or crawfish should be hooked through the lobster-like tail, hook being inserted on under side and coming out through the top.

Shedder Crab—It is well when casting with "shedder" bait to tie the bait on the hook with cotton thread to keep it from being thrown off.

The best shedder bait is the claw, strung up by the hook so that it is entirely concealed with one of the points of the claw covering the point of the hook. Put on a piece of the body first if the claw is small and let the claw cover hook point as described.

Blood Worms or White Worms and Sand Worms—These should be hooked near the tail and the hook carried through them for about half an inch, thus freeing the head and making it a more attractive and lively bait.

Shrimps—Use a small thin hook and one shrimp if the fish sought can be taken on a thin hook. One shrimp looks more natural than two or more and greater success may be achieved in that way.

Sand Eels—The hook should be inserted near the head, forced down through the body and brought out near the tail so that about two inches of the tail hangs from the hook with the point of hook showing and the balance of the hook entirely covered.

Do your own varnishing and winding of rods if you like tinkering; to one who enjoys going over his own tackle it is interesting and not difficult.

LINE—When fishing do not let your slack line drag on the ground—a line that has been stepped on is as good as broken, except that the break will come later, perhaps when you have a fish on.

Enamel lines should be rubbed often with deer fat or mutton fat, and when the season is over should be taken from the reel and wound on a large wooden or aluminum ring (such as is used for tournament lines;) this prevents the line from becoming permanently coiled.

Undressed silk lines, such as are used for bait casting from the reel, and linen salt water lines should be wound from the reel to line drier after each day's fishing and allowed to dry. Silk lines, particularly, rot quickly if this is not done.

REEL—It is sufficient to clean and oil your fly reel once a year, but the bait-casting reel (quadruple multiplier or free spool) and the surf-casting reel (double multiplier or free spool) require great care. They should be taken apart frequently and cleaned, and should be oiled after each day or two of fishing. Be sure and take the reel apart and clean if it has been submerged during the day.

Be careful in handling these reels, do not drop them, as a fall often ruins a reel.

Use only the finest lubricating oil on your bait-casting reel.

Use tissue paper instead of rags in cleaning your reel, as the lint from rags is injurious to delicate bearings.

LEADERS—Silkworm gut keep best in chamois and should be kept in a cool place during the closed season.

FLIES—You will avoid regrets if you put your flies away in camphor in an air-tight receptacle during the closed season; for while the fish cannot get at them, the moths can and will if they are not properly protected.

BOOTS, WADERS—These should be hung up by the straps when not in use and should never be put away folded. Keep in a cool place. Avoid barbed wire fences while using.

CREEL—Wash your creel in cool water often, also it is wise to varnish it about once a year.

POLO POSTPONED BECAUSE OF RAIN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, March 27.—The polo game between the fours of the Philadelphia Country Club and the Midwick Club of Pasadena, which was to have been played on the field at the Panama-Pacific Exposition late today, has been postponed because of the rain.

The Premier Tire Investment

Tire purchases are investments to all intelligent buyers. In making investments the first consideration is the dividend.

"Nobby Tread" Tires are the premier tire investment of the world, because—they pay the biggest dividends in mileage, being the lowest final-cost-per-mile tires in the world, because—"punctures 90% less" means greatest security for amount invested, because—they are real anti-skid tires.

True Tire Economy for Everyone because—they can now be purchased for the price paid in former years for simply ordinary tires, because—few today can afford the extravagance of buying "cheap first-cost" tires, when "Nobby Treads" have absolutely proven their ultimate economy on the basis of lowest final-cost-per-mile.

extricate your flies from trees, etc., do not be impatient, do pull too hurriedly or with force, ly and gently. Generally the unwinds itself and the flies will down. A quick impatient jerk only cause the hooks to become the branches and the leader to tightly snarled. It is wise a releaser, but it will not necessary to use it often if the directions are followed. never can tell when you will your wader or boot, so it is wise to keep some rubber cement in your kit.

Leaders can be stained by soaking over night in a solution of strong tea or coffee.

Do not go out in a boat all wrapped up in a heavy overcoat and above all do not wear hip boots; in case the boat overturned the best and strongest swimmer would be drowned.

If necessary to change seats in a boat be very careful in passing each other so that you do not upset the boat.

Never stand up in a boat and do not lean too far over the side of a boat when netting a fish or playing him.

Do not take a loaded gun with you when fishing in a boat, for you may either blow a hole in the boat or shoot your partner.

Do not forget your anchor; but in case you do, use a large flat rock. A flat one will hold better and will not slip from your rope as easily as a round one.

A tackle box is a most useful thing when boat fishing. It will save much time and annoyance in looking for tackle and will not get mixed up with your line after landing a fish.

Take along some fresh water when fishing in salt water, and in summer a cake of ice covered with a piece of blanket or carpet will be the thing.

It is unsportsmanlike to go and anchor beside another angler who is catching fish.

You must change the water frequently when using live minnows. The bait will die otherwise.

When fishing in a boat or canoe do not scuffle your feet on the bottom as it scares the fish. This applies especially to fresh water fish.

Keep angle worms in green grass and not tincans, mud or dirt.

Kill every water snake you see, as they destroy millions of fish eggs every year.

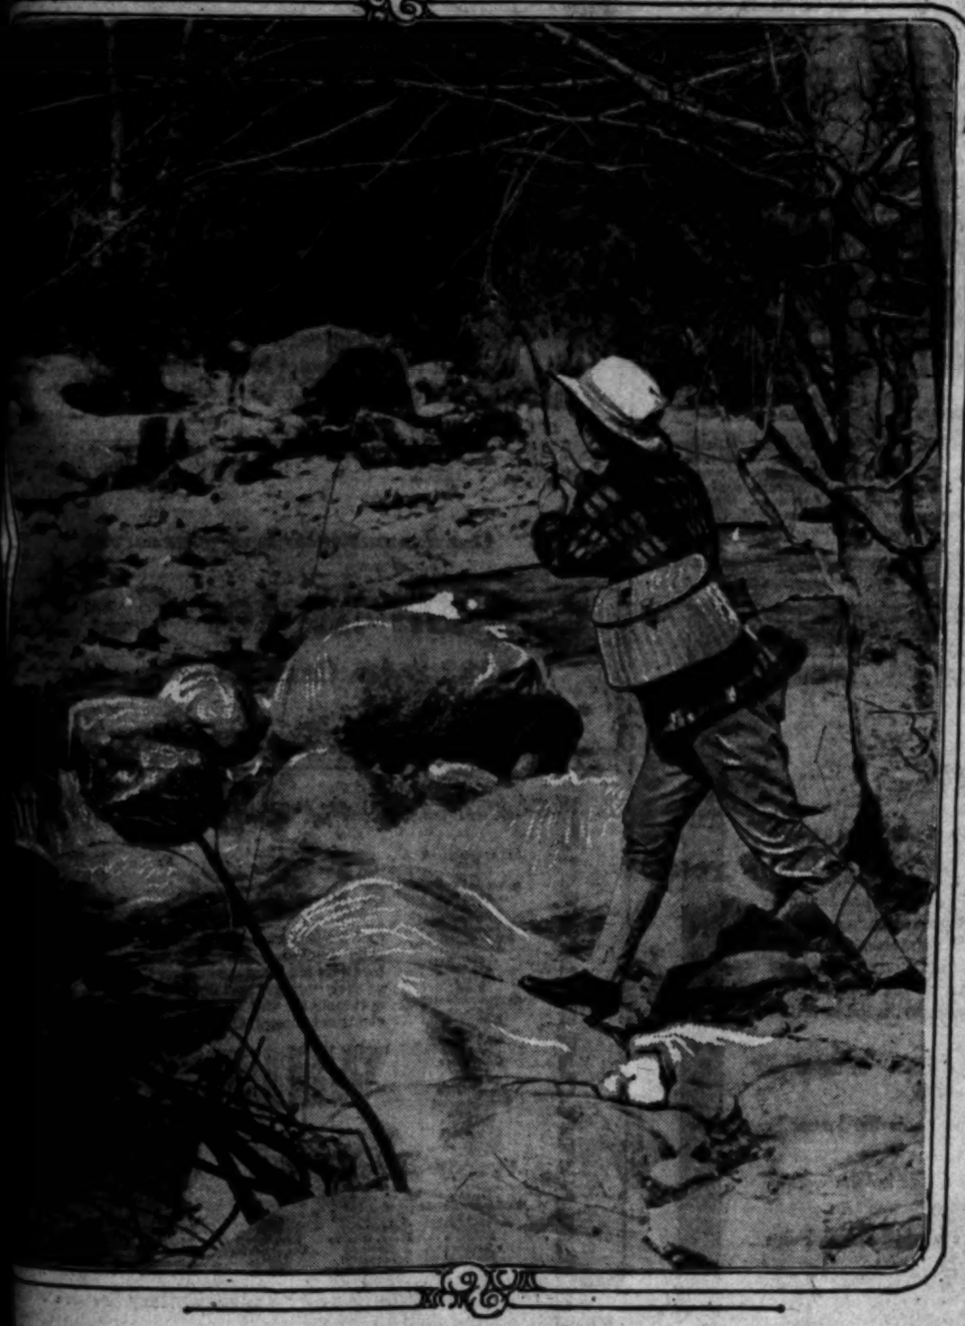
Kill your fish at once. Besides being more humane, it will keep the flesh better.

You will not have to feed frogs for a week or more if you keep them in a perforated box with a little moist grass.

Keep shrimp in wet sawdust or wet moss.

When using live bait always give the fish plenty of time to swallow the bait. Fish take the bait head first and then turn it.

A good way to unravel a tangled line is to tow it behind the boat. Don't forget to change the water in your live bait pail.



One of the famous trout pools

On the San Gabriel River, where trout are said to be unusually plentiful.

Mountain Pools.

FISHERMAN TELLS HOW TO GET TO TROUT STREAMS.

GEORGE CLINE has made a personal investigation of the fish conditions in the various trout streams near Los Angeles within the past two weeks. The following is the result of his investigations:

San Gabriel.

The auto road to Auzsa is in fine condition, and good up the canyon for a little more than seven miles. The road for teams and mounts is good up the East Fork through Follows Camp to Camp Bonita. On account of the road to San Dimas being impassable this year, parties going to Weber's Camp should take the road to Bonita. The San Dimas road will be put in good condition a little later on. The West Fork road of the San Gabriel is all right for teams or mounts to Camp Rincon. Water is very high, but clearing rapidly, and will doubtless be clear enough for good fishing at the opening of the season.

Bear Lake in Bear Valley.

There is only one route to Bear Valley at present, that is via Victorville. Heavy snows having made other routes impassable. The one open road is very difficult, snow and chuck holes are to be contended with. The lake has been well stocked with Black Spot, Loch Leven and Rainbow trout from the fish hatchery which was built last season. Trout varying in size from fifteen to thirty inches is the average run in these waters. There should be twice the number of small sized trout, formerly caught, as they are young fish from the hatchery.

Malibu Creek.

Located on Malibu Creek, which is in the Santa Monica Mountains. Reached by way of Calabasas on the Ventura road. After reaching Calabasas continue on to the blacksmith shop, where the road divides. Take the left-hand road into the hills. Do not go through Crag's Country Club, which is on the right. Leave your auto at Crater apple ranch. The best fishing will be found at the commencement of the pools which are about two miles down stream, where are located the big steelhead trout which come up from the ocean. Here will be found deep pools, some of them thirty to forty feet deep. One can fish in this stream down as far as the Rindge estate, which extends back from the ocean about a mile. This country is of volcanic formation, so wild and rugged in many places, that great care should be taken in getting over the ground. Fishing is always good the first part of the season, though this stream has not been stocked for a number of years. Trout thirty inches in length are frequently taken from this stream.

Sespe.

There are two routes to the best fishing grounds on the Sespe. To reach the Upper Sespe, go by way of Saugus to Nordhoff, or Ventura to Nordhoff, then to Wheeler's Hot Springs. The best fishing in the Sespe will be found in these upper waters.

The route to the Lower Sespe is via Saugus to Fillmore, then up the canyon twelve miles to Henley's camp. This auto road has been put in good condition. From Henley's on up the stream to a point above the falls, excellent fishing can be had.

Matilija.

Matilija is reached by way of Saugus or Ventura to Nordhoff. Fishing has always been good here, as this stream is stocked every season. Water this year is high, but clearing. Good sized trout can really be found. Fishing on both the Sespe and Matilija can be enjoyed on the one trip.

Big Tejunga.

The possibilities for getting the limit of average-sized trout in this stream are but little known to the average fisherman. Those who have fished there fully appreciate these waters, as one of the ideal fishing spots near Los Angeles.

The Big Tejunga is reached by way of Glendale to Sunland as far as the Heyt Ranch. Then one should trail up as far as the falls to get the best fishing in the stream. Good fishing this season owing to the fact that this stream was not fished out, as were most streams, last year. This fishing ground is easily accessible from Los Angeles, both by auto and trail.

SIXTEEN THOUSAND MILES ON A TIRE.

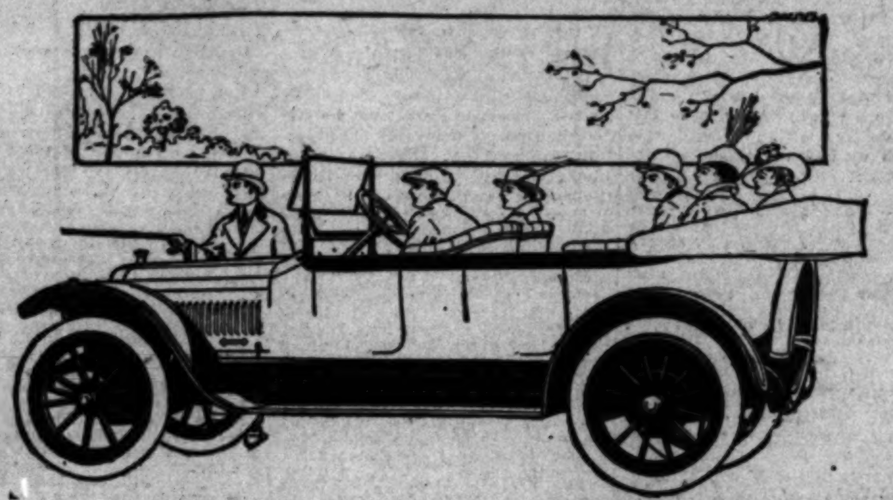
AND THE ORIGINAL AIR IS IN THE TUBES YET, THE DRIVER SAYS.

With positive proof that Lee tires smile at miles, Heinie Hyhicle, has driven his automobile over 15,000 miles without a puncture. He claims this a record for Lee tires and his claim seems likely to hold water. He is a resident of Angeles Mesa and lives at No. 5339 Eleventh avenue. The actual record was 16,224 miles.

When those Lee tires were first installed it was "Heinie's" desire to drive just as far as possible and make a record that would be worth talking about. His first trip was to Newhall and he drove so carefully that his friends began to make fun of his efforts to avoid a puncture.

Then he began to take side trips. That was a long time ago. Now Heinie is still traveling with that original air in his tires and he declares that he'll do 50,000 miles before he's through.

"Patsy" Donovan, the well-known baseball player, will manage the Buffalo International League nine this season.



Beneath the Colors

No method has ever been discovered by which cheap cars can be finished to equal the appearance of cars of genuine quality. The glaring gloss and the solid colors—so monotonously alike—are the badge of commonplaceness. The one sure proof of car quality today is the art and the variety of effects with which a maker finishes his cars. When you own a superb Winton Six, you may have a finish as distinctly personal to yourself as the decorative effect in your own home.

Two sizes, both sixes. The New-Size at $2285, and the 48 H.P. at $3250.

CHLORIDE FOR ASCOT TRACK.

Much Work on Course for Coming Auto Race.

Two Tons of Chemical will be Used.

Burman, Disbrow and Cooper to Practice.

Preparations for the fifty-mile race for the track championship of the world, which will be staged at Ascot Park next Sunday afternoon, with Burman in his Puegeot, Disbrow in his Simplex and Cooper in his Stutz as the contestants, have assumed definite form.

The management has tackled with a will the problem of keeping down the dust. This probably is the greatest menace in dirt track driving, and the cause of more accidents than any other evil. Not only is it dangerous to the drivers, but it causes the spectators great discomfort.

DUST TO GO.

Those in charge of the Ascot race declare that this will be entirely eliminated when the work on the track in completed. More than two tons of calcium chloride, which has a great affinity for moisture, and keeps the surface of the track continually damp, will be used on the mile circuit.

The first application of the chloride will be made tomorrow, when the scraping and rolling of the track begins. The first application of the chemical will be thoroughly worked into the track by the scrapers and rollers. After the course has been thoroughly sprinkled and all soft places removed, sprinkling of the course with the chemical will be begun. For more than a day this will be continued, the last application being made shortly before the race.

APPLICATION.

In order to properly apply the chloride, the manager wired one of the big eastern laboratories for directions and received a five-page letter of instructions, telling just how much chloride to use for each square yard of the course.

The chloride is applied in solution, 275 pounds of the chloride being used in each wagonload of water. Experts declare that the proper application of the calcium will keep down the dust during a 100-mile race.

While the management is worrying over the preparation of the course Burman, Cooper and Disbrow are having their hands full preparing their cars. Each is working many hours a day to get every fraction of a second more speed out of his mount.

Disbrow is constantly tinkering with his Simplex, the chassis of which was built especially for track work. It is so built that Disbrow can take the curves at the highest possible speed, sliding around rather than keeping traction, and it is this ability and daring that has won Disbrow his world records and a warm place in the hearts of the racing fans.

Cooper is changing the gearing on his Stutz to make it more adapted to track work. The car will be so geared as to give the best possible speed on a mile circuit. Cooper believes his car will be almost as fast as that of his rivals, and that it will go through without a stop.

GETTING READY.

Burman has rebuilt his Puegeot, and says it now is the fastest car that ever bore that famous name. He declares it to be several seconds more speedy than it was when he established several new records at Bakersfield.

Just what form of start will be adopted will be determined by the flip of a coin. Burman, whose Puegeot has a wonderful "get-away," will be in favor of a standing start, while both Disbrow and Cooper will favor a rolling start. That this will play a most important part in the race is believed by all who have followed the fortunes of these three racing stars.

Positions for the start also will be decided by the flip of a coin, but after the start a merry battle will be waged for the pole, as this will be a huge advantage in a race of fifty miles, with three cars on the track.

Policing of the course will be most effective. The track will be closed to all traffic fifteen minutes before the race is scheduled to start, and there will be no persons except officials on the course from that time until the finish of the race.

VOLLEY BALL FOR Y.M.C.A. LEAGUE.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, March 27.—Y.M.C.A. Physical Directors Glover of Riverside, Dunn of San Bernardino and Duncan of Redlands met today and arranged for a volley ball league between the three associations. Double-header games will be played at each place in succession.

The schedule is Redlands at Riverside March 31, San Bernardino at Redlands April 7, Riverside plays Redlands at San Bernardino April 9, Redlands at San Bernardino April 14, Riverside at Redlands April 17 and San Bernardino at Riverside April 21.

A tennis tournament will be held on the local courts between the high school divisions of the associations on April 17. A track meet and swimming meet will be held at San Bernardino April 1.

WASHINGTON STATE WINS RIFLE SHOOT.

NORTH CAROLINA TAKES CLASS B AND YALE CLASS C IN INTERCOLLEGIATE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, March 27.—Washington State College won the trophy in class A of the intercollegiate rifle competition, according to an announcement today by the National Rifle Association. North Georgia won class B and Yale class C. Michigan Agricultural, with 995 out of a possible 1000, established a college record.

Among the scores of the last match were:

Class A—United States Naval Academy, 959, vs. California, 948.

Class C—Arizona, 900, vs. Idaho, defaulted.

Some Help.

FENDER LIGHTS QUITE USEFUL.

WIDTH OF THEM PROTECTS CAR ON SIDES.

Lights also Illuminate the Wheel Paths More Clearly and Shine a Little Better into the Ditches and Gullies on Side of Road Preventing Car from Becoming Ditched.

When the Pierce Arrow engineers brought out their first car with the lights mounted on the fenders, motorists wondered what the reason for the change could be. That it was based on sound logic they accepted, for the Pierce designers don't de things without reason.

After motorists had driven the new cars for a short time, they became aware of the advantages of the new location. They found that in night driving their wheel paths were better illuminated, and approaching cars were giving them a wider berth. Approaching drivers allowed room for that portion of a car, which usually extends to the sides from the lamps, and thus the Pierce was given more room and the dangers of being side swiped were reduced to a minimum.

Not only this, but the new location of the lamps gave a wider diffusion of the beams toward the side of the road, lessening the dangers of the ditch, they responded more quickly to a turning movement, due to being farther removed from the center of the turning axis, and they decreased the exaggeration of road inequalities, being mounted higher than the old style lamp.

The only change in the lamps of the 1915 car was in their design, which conformed better to the lines of the new car.

BILLIARD TIE TO BE PLAYED OFF.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, March 27.—Play to break the triple tie in the world's three-cushion billiard championship will be started Monday night with a match between John Daly and George Moore, both of New York, who triumphantly wound up their series last night. Each had won nine and lost two games.

William Huey of Chicago, who also has won nine and lost two games, will meet the winner of the Daly-Moore match on Tuesday night for the championship trophy and $1000 as first prize. Daly brought the tournament play into a triple tie last night by defeating Alfredo De Oro, the retiring champion, 50 to 46. Moore won from Charles Morin of Chicago, 50 to 43, in the afternoon.

SUB-CASINGS A HELP TO TIRES.

CASINGS THUS EQUIPPED WHEN IN GOOD CONDITION WEAR WELL.

The warm weather and better road conditions has not only given the local motor trade decided impetus, but has created a great demand for tires and tire accessories. In an interview this week, H. S. Nettleton, general manager of the Western Auto Sub-Casing Company said:

"For some time past the popular demand for our product has been increasing and within the past few weeks the demand has taken a big leap forward.

"This condition, we believe, is primarily caused by the development of tire weaknesses coming at a season when wear on tires is greater than during the winter months.

"Our experience has proven to us that those motorists who equipped tires in good condition with our Fisher Sub-Casings have been receiving uninterrupted service from their tires and greater mileage in spite of the warm weather.

"On a commercial vehicle weighing two and one-half tons and with a one-ton carrying capacity, 30,000 miles of service was given by two rear tires equipped with Fisher Rim Grip Sub-Casings, or 15,000 miles on each tire. During this time we have been informed that only one puncture occurred.

"The traffic superintendent of the company that owned this truck has stated that previous to using our product the service had from standard tires did not average above 5000 miles.

Schedule Tangle.

STOVALL IS TO MANAGE KANSAS CITY FEDS AGAIN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, March 27.—The adoption of a playing schedule for the season to open April 10 and selection of managers for the Kansas City and Newark clubs were the two chief matters before the adjourned meeting of the Federal League here today. The schedule was the subject of much concern to the league and it was stated that although two different lists of games have been prepared, one by Robert B. Ward and the other by Lloyd Rickert, neither was considered acceptable.

One of the difficulties in connection with the schedule arose from the fact that the Newark club will play ball on Sundays, while the Brooklyn club will not be permitted to do so.

There was some difficulty in selecting a manager for the Kansas City club. George Stovall, who has been manager of the Kansas City club, did not want to go back there, it was said, and William Phillips, manager of the Indianapolis club, now transferred to Newark, objected to a suggestion that he take charge of the Kansas City team. Kansas City, it was understood, wanted a playing manager other than Stovall.

After the meeting had been in session for three hours, word was sent out that Stovall would remain with the Kansas City club as manager and that Phillips would be manager of the Newark club.

MEET IN NORTH IS POSTPONED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERKELEY, March 27.—The U.S.C. and California freshmen track meet which was to have been held in the university oval this afternoon was postponed because of rain. The meet will be held on Wednesday if the weather clears up and the track is in condition.

VALVE-LIFTING CAMS IMPORTANT.

HAVE BIG INFLUENCE ON THE EFFICIENCY.

Problem is to Get More Gas into Engine Quickly and to Get Burnt Gases Out as Rapidly as Possible. Shape of Cams Often Determine the Value of the Engine.

Few people realize how much depends on the design of the valve-lifting cams in an automobile engine. The problem that has confronted motor designers has been to get more gas into the engine quicker and to get the burnt gases out as rapidly as possible.

The Marmon 41 uses the hollow-lift type of cam, which gives a quicker opening, allows the valves to stay open longer and to drop quicker. Another advantage is that the cams are designed on the uniform acceleration principle, so as to secure gentle opening and closing of valves, thus avoiding shocks, wear and noise. Instead of using the tangent type, in which the cam side is perfectly flat, the Marmon construction provides for a concave lifting surface, which is more expensive to make, but has many advantages over the conventional tangent type.

The Marmon 41 camshaft is enclosed in a camshaft tunnel, which runs on seven bearings in a bath of oil. This is a distinct advance in following out the well-known value of the Marmon force-feed oiling system. The valve tappets are hollow and the adjusters have small holes, through which oil spurts. Every time the valve stem comes in contact with the adjuster, it strikes a cushion of oil.

TROUT TO CLIMB UP FISH LADDERS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA BARBARA, March 27.—Under the direction of Deputy State Game Warden H. J. Abele, the City Water Commission is building concrete fish ladders in the Santa Ynez River, to permit salmon trout to ascend the river above the city's dam at Gibraltar. Until public notice was called to the absence of the fish ladders, and the fact that trout trying to leap the dam were becoming exhausted and dying, no member of the commission or the city's engineers thought of providing for the trout. Under the State law the city would have been liable had not action been taken quickly.

Nineteen Strong.

HAP HOGAN AND TIGERS LEAVE FOR SALT LAKE.

BILL BURNS, the big portside flinger, who was with the Angels in their championship days, yesterday agreed to terms and will be given a chance to show what he can do in the way of delivering the goods.

Burns has been showing a lot of stuff in recent workouts, and Dillon thinks that he may prove to be more valuable than anything that the White Sox have to offer in the way of a left-hander. The Angels need another southpaw.

Burns is generally regarded as having the best move to first base of any pitcher in the country. He also usese four different deliveries in pitching — a combination calculated to baffle the batter.

After leaving the Angels, Burns was with Cincinnati and Philadelphia. Last year he pitched for Louisville, where he had an indifferent season. He believes that he can do much better on the Coast.

Hogan and his Tigers, nineteen strong, left yesterday afternoon for Salt Lake. This is the first time a California club has invaded Salt Lake and the event is somewhat epochal.

Composing the brave little band, in addition to Hap, the chief composer, were:

Catchers—Spencer and Mitze.

Pitchers—West, Henley, Mitchell, Piercy, White, Hitt and Decanniere.

Infielders — Gleichmann, Purtell, Hetling, Berger, Hosp and Risberg.

Outfielders—Kane, Carlisle, Wilhoit and Bayless.

Hap figures that he will be able to wipe up Salt Lake with a judicious use of these athletes.

At the conclusion of today's game with the Angels, the Goofs will start East. They will play tomorrow in Las Vegas. Joe McNeill, traveling secretary of the club, stated that Bens and Weaver will be left here and join the first club which will arrive Monday, and play the University of Redlands that afternoon. Roth and Mayer, now with the first club, will be turned over to the Goofs.

Ed Walsh will remain in Los Angeles for a month more to have his arm treated by Dr. Spencer.

Rowland will arrive here Monday, when Maier and Powers will confer with him regarding the possibility of getting any pitchers from the Sox. It is thought that the Tigers will get Klepfer.

CARD BASEBALL GAME CALLED OFF.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PALO ALTO (Cal.) March 27.—The baseball game between the University of California and Stanford University, set for today, has been postponed because of the rain.

BAITING THE HOOK.

WHEN FISHING, remember to turn the rod from time to time so that the strain will bend it first in one direction and then in another.

Example—After playing and landing several fish with the guides underneath the rod, turn it over so that the next few fish are played and landed with the guides on top. Rods with independent handles can be treated in this manner very much easier than the others, as the rods can be turned without turning the handle and reel.

Do not twist the joints in taking your rod apart, but separate by a straight pull, taking the tip down first, then the second joint, etc.

If you are in a boat, be careful not to lay the rod down so that it may be stepped on.

Never lay your rod down if fishing along a shore or stream, stand it against a tree or rock so that it cannot be stepped on or stumbled over.

It is always safest to carry your rod butt first, when walking through brush or trees. Many fine rods have been broken by sticking the tip into a tree or into the ground while carrying tip first.

Take your rod indoors when through fishing for the day; do not leave it out in the night air. The finest rod in the world will not last long if left out at night.

Dry the rod off thoroughly upon returning to the house after fishing in the rain.

Your rod should be kept indoors but away from heat so do not put it near a radiator or steam pipe.

When through fishing for the season, wipe your rod off carefully with a damp cloth if it is dirty, and go over it thoroughly to see if the varnish is worn off anywhere, or if wrappings need repairing.

If varnish seems to be getting hard or has been on for some time, wipe the rod off with cloth dampened with neatsfoot oil, but do not leave oil on the rod.

The best possible receptacles for rods at all times are aluminum tubes with a cork in each end to exclude the air. Rods kept in these tubes do not dry out and develop loose ferrules as readily as they do if kept where air can reach them. The loosening of ferrules, etc., is due to the alternate swelling and shrinking of the wood as the air is first damp and then dry.

CARDS WALLOP BROWNS, 15 TO 2.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS, March 27.—The Nationals won the first game of the annual pre-season series from the Americans here today by 13 to 2. The teams' fielding was ragged. Score:

Nationals, 13; hits, 12; errors, 4.

Americans, 2; hits, 7; errors, 4.

Batteries—Niehaus and Snyder; Wellman, James, Hoch, Loudermilk, Leverenz and Sveroid.

Philadelphia athletes feel the need of a club, now that the Athletic Club of the Schuylkill Navy has gone out of existence.

PAIGE

"The Standard of Value and Quality"

You Should Know

—and know of your own knowledge and through your own investigation what other cars—less or equally or more expensive—have to offer before you buy any motor car. That is precisely what we want you to do with Paige cars. Take any "Six," every "Six," $100 or $200 or $400 more costly than the Paige Fairfield "Six-46;" see if it has features as good as the Paige-Continental motor, the Gray & Davis starting and lighting system, the Rayfield carburetor, the Bosch magneto, the one-man top, the extraordinary Cantilever spring suspension, the distinction and beauty of the Paige "Six" body design, the luxurious riding qualities and power and seven-passenger comfort of the Paige "Six-46." And then remember that the Paige "Six-46," the highest in quality, is the lowest in price—$1525 here.

Take the Paige Glenwood "Four-36." Compare it with all other "Fours" in the same way—for style, power, comfort, service—sheer dollar-for-dollar value.

And then remember that the Paige "Four-36," the highest in quality, is the lowest in price—$1175 here.

If you only compare—you'll re-echo the national verdict—that the Paige is "the world's greatest motor car value."

We have them both—the epoch-making Paige "Six-46," and the world-famous Paige Glenwood "Four-36."

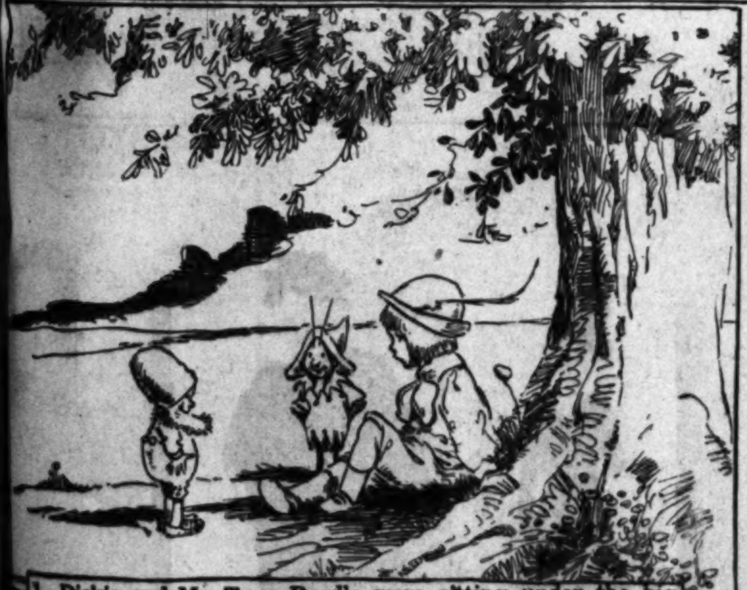
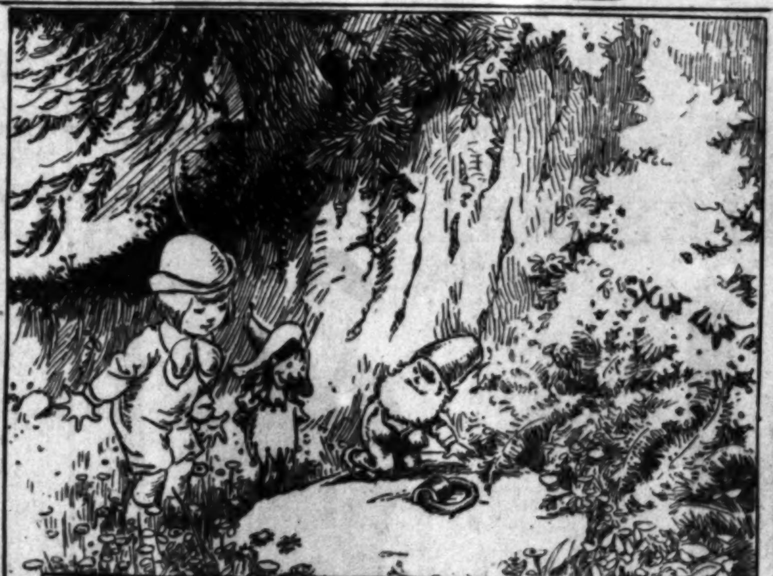
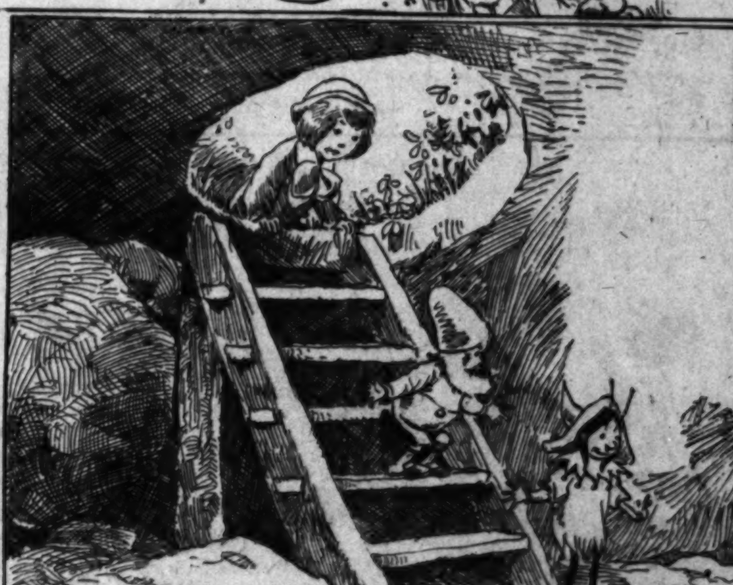
MR. TWEE DEEDLE.



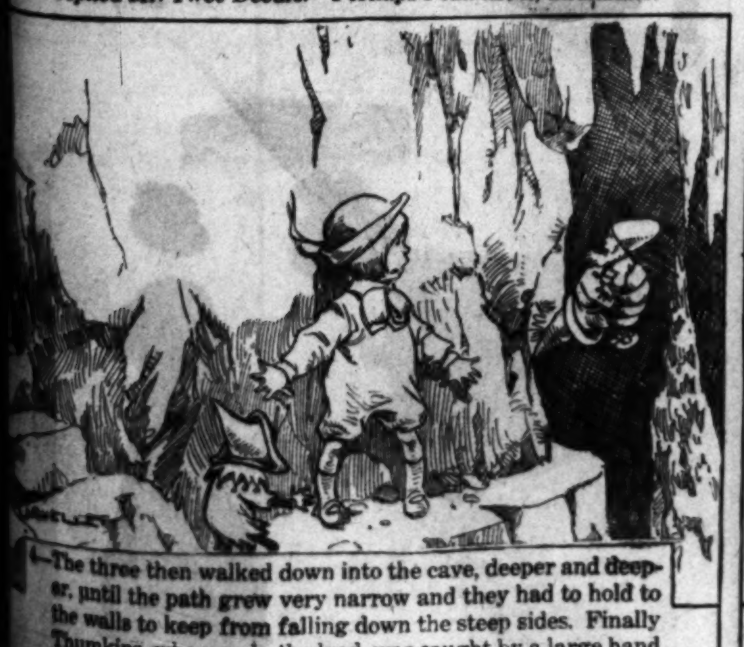
1—Dickie and Mr. Twee Deedle were sitting under the big tree one day when a little gnome walked up to them and said:—"I've found a queer stone with a large iron ring in it, but it is too heavy for me to lift!" "Show us where it is!" replied Mr. Twee Deedle. "Perhaps I can lift it, Thumkins!"



2—So Thumkins showed Mr. Twee Deedle and Dickie the stone with the iron ring in it "That will be easy!" said Mr. Twee Deedle, and exclaimed:—"Didle, Dad Didle! Hop up, Mr. Stone!" And the big stone slowly moved to one side and left a hole in the ground.



3—There were rude steps leading into the hole, so Mr. Twee Deedle and Thumkins climbed down. "Come down, Dickie," they cried "There must surely be an adventure in this cave.



4—The three then walked down into the cave, deeper and deeper, until the path grew very narrow and they had to hold to the walls to keep from falling down the steep sides. Finally Thumkins, who was in the lead, was caught by a large hand and lifted around a dangerous corner. Then the hand came around and lifted Dickie and Mr. Twee Deedle around.

5—When our friends saw the large old man who had lifted them around the corner they were frightened at first, but the old man smiled at them and asked them to sit down. They found queer round stones like the trunks of hollow trees to sit upon, while all around large icicles hung from the ceilings.

THE STORY THE OLD MAN TOLD.

"When I was a little boy," the man began, "many, many years ago, I lived in a country where Jack Frost paid us a daily visit, painting the windows with pictures of beautiful flowers and ferns all in ice, and from the eaves of the houses he would stretch lovely icicles until some of them reached to the ground. I used to knock the icicles from the roof with sticks and put them down the backs of other children who were not as large as myself." "That was a naughty thing to do!" said Dickie as the man stopped to wipe the tears from his eyes.

"I know now that it was," the old man continued, "but at the time I thought it was great fun to see the little boys and girls wiggle as they felt the cold icicles slip down their backs."

"And one day when my grandpa was asleep in an easy chair I slipped up behind him and dropped a large, cold icicle down his neck, and as he hopped from his chair I ran out the door just as Jack Frost was reaching up to paint the door latch with frost. When I opened the door I bumped Jack Frost so hard that his icicle nose broke off right at the tip, and as he caught my hands and flew up over the housetop with me he said:—'Now I know who it is who has been knocking down my beautiful icicles, and I will place you where you will not be able to break any more.' So he blew his cold breath in my face and I had a wonderful dream as I went to sleep, and when I awakened I found myself in this cave!

"What you thought were icicles are stalactites, and these are formed by the constant dripping of water, in which is carbonate of lime. The drop of water containing the lime runs through a crack in the roof of the cave, and when it drops to the floor of the cave some of the lime sticks to the roof as the water evaporates, so you see as each drop falls it leaves a tiny bit of lime hanging to the roof, so that after many years the lime forms a shape just like an icicle. Where the drop hits the floor of the cave, the same thing happens, so that in some places there are solid lime stalactites from roof to floor. They are so hard that I could not break them off even if I wished!" cried the old man.

"Maybe some day Jack Frost will let you leave the cave, when he finds that you have repented of your naughtiness!" said Dickie.

Oh, yes," the old man replied. "He has told me so, but I have lived here so long now I do not care to leave, for there are many beautiful things in the cave, and I will be glad to show them to you."

6—Dickie felt the icicles and found they were not cold, and seemed to be of stone. "How did you happen to be in the cave?" Dickie asked the man. "And what makes all the stone icicles?" "That is a long, sad story," the large old man replied. The story our three friends heard is told above.

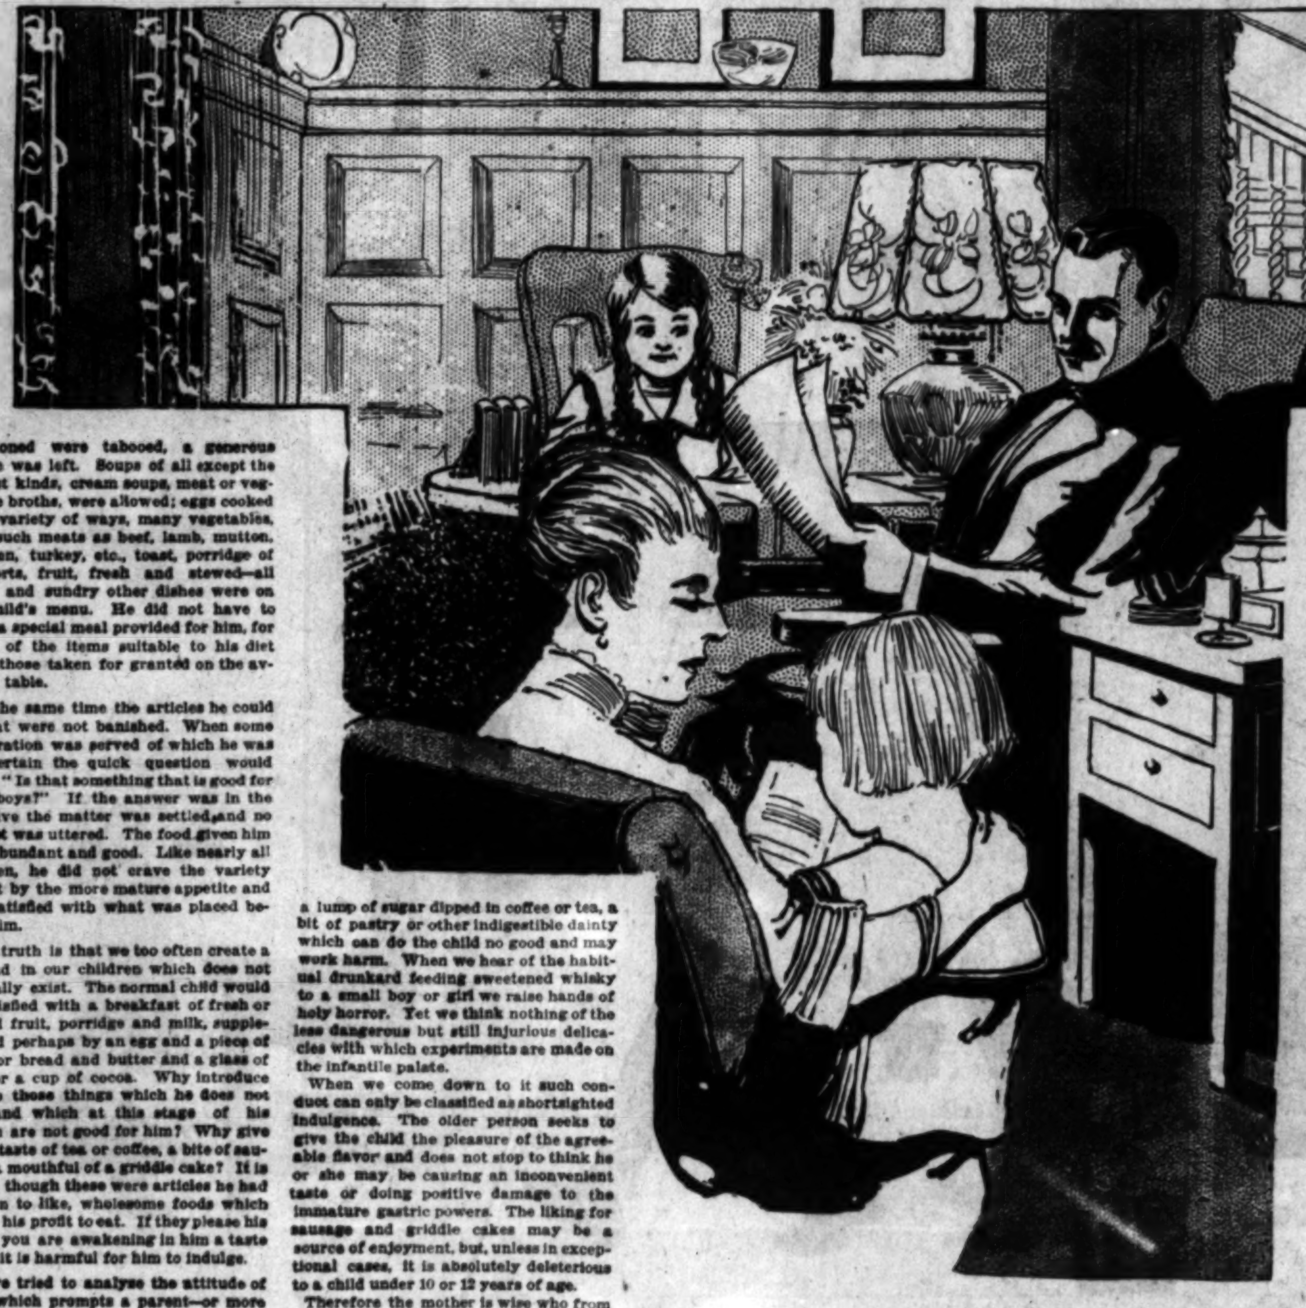
COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

"GOOD FOR LITTLE BOYS."



A REQUEST for advice has just come to me from one of our Cornerites. "The doctor has told me that my 6 year old boy shall be put on a diet," she writes. "The child is not to be permitted to eat sweets—candy, desserts, cakes, and the like—fried articles, hot bread, any variety of pork except bacon, no veal, no made dishes. How am I going to manage it? It seems hard to have the child at the table with the rest of the family and not permit him to eat what we do, and harder yet to oblige him to have his meals by himself. How can I arrange to have him eat only such things as the doctor permits and still let him share our companionship at meals? Do advise me."

Like Mr. Lincoln, "that reminds me of a little story." A friend of mine had a cottage on the edge of a lake. She also had three children. One day a visitor remarked, "I should think you would have a fence built around that lake to keep your children from falling in."

"There is a fence around it," returned the mother smilingly. "My order to the children is never to go down by it unless some older person is with them."

That was sufficient protection to the children. They had been trained to obey and to take it for granted that their parents knew best. Put the same sort of fence about the food your child is not permitted to eat.

"But," you say, "it is hard for the child to be forbidden the articles we have, not to be allowed to eat as we do."

You might as well state that it is hard for the child not to sit up late, to go to the same amusements enjoyed by his elders, to have the same privileges, to dress in the same fashion. Your position is that taken by so many parents in this day, that the pleasures of childhood and those of maturity should be practically identical.

Before we go further into that let me take up the original proposition—that of the child's special diet. I feel qualified to speak on that topic, for it is not so many years since there was a case like that of your own in my family. One of the children was put on a diet practically identical with that you outline. Sweets, hot breads, rich foods of all kinds were cut out, but it was never for a moment considered that he should be banished from the family table or that the general bill of fare should be altered because his diet was changed.

There were two or three reasons for this. In the first place, the child had been trained in habits of strict obedience and the statement that this or that was not for him met with no cavil on his part. In the second place, his mother held decided views on the question of children's diet and did not for a moment dream of taxing a baby's digestion with the food that could be easily assimilated by a grown person.

Even when such articles as you have mentioned were tabooed, a generous choice was left. Soups of all except the richest kinds, cream soups, meat or vegetable broths, were allowed; eggs cooked in a variety of ways, many vegetables, fish, such meats as beef, lamb, mutton, chicken, turkey, etc., toast, porridge of all sorts, fruit, fresh and stewed—all these and sundry other dishes were on the child's menu. He did not have to have a special meal provided for him, for many of the items suitable to his diet were those taken for granted on the average table.

At the same time the articles he could not eat were not banished. When some preparation was served of which he was not certain the quick question would come, "Is that something that is good for little boys?" If the answer was in the negative the matter was settled, and no protest was uttered. The food given him was abundant and good. Like nearly all children, he did not crave the variety sought by the more mature appetite and was satisfied with what was placed before him.

The truth is that we too often create a demand in our children which does not naturally exist. The normal child would be satisfied with a breakfast of fresh or stewed fruit, porridge and milk, supplemented perhaps by an egg and a piece of toast or bread and butter and a glass of milk or a cup of cocoa. Why introduce him to those things which he does not need and which at this stage of his growth are not good for him? Why give him a taste of tea or coffee, a bite of sausage, a mouthful of a griddle cake? It is not as though these were articles he had to learn to like, wholesome foods which it is to his profit to eat. If they please his palate you are awakening in him a taste which it is harmful for him to indulge.

I have tried to analyse the attitude of mind which prompts a parent—or more frequently a grandparent—to give a baby a lump of sugar dipped in coffee or tea, a bit of pastry or other indigestible dainty which can do the child no good and may work harm. When we hear of the habitual drunkard feeding sweetened whisky to a small boy or girl we raise hands of holy horror. Yet we think nothing of the less dangerous but still injurious delicacies with which experiments are made on the infantile palate.

When we come down to it such conduct can only be classified as shortsighted indulgence. The older person seeks to give the child the pleasure of the agreeable flavor and does not stop to think he or she may be causing an inconvenient taste or doing positive damage to the immature gastric powers. The liking for sausage and griddle cakes may be a source of enjoyment, but, unless in exceptional cases, it is absolutely deleterious to a child under 10 or 12 years of age.

Therefore the mother is wise who from the first accustoms her brood to understanding that what is good for grownups is not suitable for children. There is no sense in the world in banishing pies, cakes, fried foods, and such dainties as lobster, crabs, cheese, etc., from the table because the children cannot have them. Establish the rule from the first that some articles are good for little people and some are not. If they have become used to seeing certain dishes placed before their seniors which are not meant for them they will not feel themselves ill treated by being forbidden the food of the "Olympians," as Kenneth Grahame calls them.

It is singular to see how little consistency parents practice with regard to the training of their children. The father who will do as I have seen some fathers do, and refuse to eat a dessert because the children were not permitted to share it, would never feel he must abandon smoking on the ground that he would not have an indulgence that his small boys and girls could not enjoy. The mother who is too tender hearted to keep pastry and fried cakes away from her child would not think for a moment of permitting her little daughter to wear the mother's jewelry or "play ladies" in the parent's best frock because the child begged for it. The parents have their pursuits, their avocations, their amusements, their food, their entertainments at which they have arrived in the course of growth and development. It is absurd to fancy that the youngsters are ready for the same sort of thing when they are still far behind their elders in age. Why deprive the children of the simple enjoyments that belong to their years, why make miniature men and women of them instead of leaving them their baby joys until they outgrow them and naturally demand something more fitted to their advance in age and understanding?

Of course this all has to do with the principle of training the children in habits of obedience and deference to constituted authority. If the parent [illegible] one line he or she can give no [illegible] for not yielding in another.

I have been unfortunate enough to [illegible] the guest in homes where the [illegible] ruled the establishment in fact [illegible] name. They absorbed the [illegible] at the table and elsewhere; their [illegible] were deferred to, their tastes [illegible] their opinions asked, their [illegible] tolerated or taken as a matter of [illegible] I have never observed that such [illegible] were any happier than those who [illegible] taught to do as they were told [illegible] indulgences were fitted to their [illegible]

More than this, such training [illegible] or training robs the children of [illegible] later in life. I wonder sometimes [illegible] there is left for the young of [illegible] when they attain years of [illegible] cretion. We read of the [illegible] opera parties of small boys and girls [illegible] their early teens or even younger [illegible] of their attending plays, dances [illegible] functions of all sorts, even [illegible] wines and cordials are served. The [illegible] ard of dress established for [illegible] is on a par with that of their parents [illegible] small boys have their miniature [illegible] suits; the small girls wear laces and [illegible] vets and other rich fabrics as [illegible] jewels. The simplicity of [illegible] seems to have passed into oblivion.

Not for a moment would I [illegible] youngsters of all the good and [illegible] that is coming to them. But I confess a fondness for the old times when a [illegible] girl had one or two "party [illegible] which served her for a whole [illegible] the small festivities to which she [illegible] vited; when no one heard of a [illegible] an Eton suit for a little boy [illegible] the mild parties which seemed to [illegible] cup of happiness to overflowing [illegible] days. I wonder what the girl [illegible] for a great surprise and joy [illegible] grown-up when she has so [illegible] What will there be left for her or [illegible] boy in the way of unaccustomed [illegible] ures that are innocent and [illegible] gant?

Do I seem to have wandered [illegible] from the query with which [illegible] gan? The whole subject [illegible] be essentially one—the need of [illegible] our children young as long as [illegible] indicate that they are still [illegible] With the rushing spirit which [illegible] to be a synonym for the American [illegible] ency, we force maturity upon [illegible] dren while they should still [illegible] nursery. I don't care how [illegible] the progress is identical. Food [illegible] occupations, amusements, [illegible] we give the babes in years [illegible] that should be reserved for [illegible] youth and wrong them in the [illegible]

So keep your child a child as [illegible] can. Feed him with the food [illegible] little boys" now and don't [illegible] self that he must be refused [illegible] ments of his elders. They [illegible] him soon enough.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"I FIND the house hints in the Corner very helpful. I thought that the following little recipe of mine might assist some one now, as meat costs so much. We call it 'sour eggs.' Fry slices of salt pork or bacon, as many as you need for the family; when crisp cut the meat fine and break in as many eggs as will be required for the persons who are to eat of the dish. Stir and add a little vinegar to give a sour taste and serve with mashed or baked potatoes. Two slices of pork and three eggs make a great plenty for two persons. Another thing worth knowing is that crackers scalloped like oysters are delicious with fish. Instead of potatoes use crackers, onion, butter, milk, salt, and pepper. Bake to a nice brown. I wonder how many know that potato dressing for geese and ducks beats all other kinds. Boil the potatoes, add seasoning and a little butter or pork; mash, moisten with milk. May I ask if any one has bulbs of Mariposa lilies? I have never seen them and am most anxious to have some. I have tried the seed stores here, but they are not carried in stock. MRS. T. G. D."

I have no doubt that eggs cooked as the writer described would be good, although I confess that the name sour eggs does not appeal to me as especially appetizing. I should call them "piquant eggs," or something of that sort. The dish thus cooked should be savory without the vinegar, or with the addition of a little onion juice. The scalloped crackers sound as though they might serve as an excellent substitute for potatoes and I know the merits of potato dressing for ducks and geese. I hope the bulbs of the Mariposa lilies may be found.

No Name or Address.

"Some time ago I noticed a request in the paper by Mrs. B. for the poem, 'The Fly,' by Theodore Tilton. I have the poem and would be glad to give it to Mrs. B. if she desires it. MRS. L. M."

Doubtless Mrs. B. would be glad to receive the poem if it has not already been sent to her, but unfortunately Mrs. L. M. gave no name or address. We have no other clew as to her identity.

Wants Floral Bead Formula.

"I am trying in every way to get the formula for making the floral beads which I understand are made from orris root, cornstarch, and gum arabic, but I do not know the proportions or how to mix them. If you published the same in the Corner I failed to see the directions, although I can't see how, for I always read the Corner carefully. I can make the black rose beads from the real rose petals and would like very much to get in touch with some one who would send me the formula for the kind I speak of. "MRS. A. S."

Recipes and directions galore have been given for almost every kind of bead which may be made at home. Those of cornstarch, of salt with gum arabic and orris root have been among them, I am sure. In any event I hardly feel justified in yielding further space to such instructions. I will hold the address of Mrs. A. S., however, and gladly send it to any one who will undertake to supply her with the formula she wishes. I know that among the Cornerites there will surely be some one who will be happy to help out this sister with the directions she seeks.

Inexpensive Fruit Cake.

"Seeing a request in a recent issue of the Corner for an inexpensive fruit cake I gladly submit two recipes, both of which I have tried and found excellent: No. 1—Seven cups of flour, four cups of brown sugar, two tablespoons of baking soda, two tablespoons of butter, four cups of sour milk or black coffee, three pounds of raisins, two pounds of currants, one grated nutmeg, half teaspoon of cloves, one and one-half teaspoons of allspice, one teaspoon of cinnamon, half teaspoon of ginger, two cups of walnut meats, half pound of mixed candied peel. This will make a couple of good sized loaves. Half the quantity will make one good sized cake and will be found satisfactory. No. 2—One cup of sour milk, one cup of sugar, half cup of butter, one teaspoon of soda, cinnamon and nutmeg to taste, two cups of flour, one cup of currants, one cup of walnuts broken and dredged with flour, one cup of chopped figs. Delicious. This is my first visit to the Corner. M. M. D."

We are glad to have both these recipes, although I wonder if there is not an error in the quantity of baking soda ordered in the first recipe. To my notion, two tablespoons is an error for two teaspoons. If M. M. D.—who did not send her name and address—should see this query will she not let us hear from her in the matter? Also I think there should be instructions to chop the nuts and candied peel and to dredge these and the fruit with flour.

Does All Sewing by Hand.

"Has any one in the Helping Hand a sewing machine to give away, one run either by treadle or by hand? I have a little boy 3 years old and a small baby and I have to do all my sewing by hand. I have been a reader of your Corner for years past and am always glad to learn of the good work you are doing. I hope some time to be able to do something for some of the Cornerites. MRS. L. R."

Is there a sewing machine available for this correspondent? I think that a woman who has two children to sew for certainly deserves a sewing machine, and I hope that some friend has one to give away and will send to me for the address of Mrs. L. R.

Scrapple.

"I am asking for a recipe which I used to have, but which was lost during a recent illness. I think the dish was called hard scrabble, but I am not quite certain, for a friend gave it to me some time ago. The preparation was used in the place of meat and contained meat of some kind and cornmeal, and after being cut in slices was friend in a skillet. I do wish I might get it again, and I will watch the Corner in hopes of its appearance. "MRS. C. R."

To my mind there is little doubt that the dish you wish is not hard scrabble, but scrapple. On this persuasion I give you the following recipe, but if some one who knows of a preparation bearing the name you give it I shall be happy to receive and publish the directions. Clean a pig's head, put it over the fire, and boil until the meat slips from the bones. Take out the bones and chop the meat fine. Set the liquor in which it was boiled aside until cold, remove the cake of fat which will rise to the top, put the liquor back on the fire, bring to a boil, and turn in the chopped meat. Season well with pepper and salt, boil up and thicken with cornmeal, putting this in as would be done in making cornmeal mush, sifting the meal through the fingers slowly, that it may not lump. Cook the mixture for an hour, stirring constantly at first and afterwards putting the pot at the back of the stove that the contents may cook slowly. When done pour into a long, narrow pan, making the depth of the scrapple about four inches or less. When cold it may be cut into slices and fried in butter or dripping to a good brown. This is good and appetizing, especially in cold weather, for luncheon or for supper.

Want Two White Kittens.

"I notice all kinds of things are asked for in the Corner, so my request may not seem so strange. My little boy and girl are anxious to have two little white kittens. They want only white ones and those that have been well cared for. "R. M."

I hope the two white kittens may be found to meet the wish of the small boy and girl. I am sure the pets will have a good home and kindly treatment and I shall be glad to give the address of R. M. to any one who can make it possible to send such live freight.

An Ad in the Paper.

"I have read in the paper how you have helped many others and I would like to have you help me. I wish to put an advertisement in the paper under 'Situations Wanted.' Will you tell me what it would cost if put in for one day and what for a week? Would I have to put my full name with such an advertisement? "ALICE."

I would be glad to help you if I could, but the advertising department lies outside of my province. As you know, we do not put requests for paying positions in the Corner and you must write to the advertising section of the paper for the information you wish. They will tell you what you would have to pay for an insertion for a day or for a week. It is not necessary for you to append your name to the advertisement, although you must give a signature of some sort or a number to which letters in reply to your request may be addressed.

Rain Soaked Wall Paper.

"I can answer the question asked by Mrs. F. J. C. in regard to restoring the papered ceiling which the rain has ruined. My husband is a paper hanger and painter, so I inquired of him the way to repair the damage. He says: 'Go to a paint store and buy some calcimine the color wanted—it comes in powdered form—mix it with water like paste and it is then ready to apply. A brush should not be used as would be done for painting, but the calcimine should be stippled on and the ceiling will look like new. I have lately learned how to make corn nut loaf, and it is a splendid dish. If any one would like the recipe I will send it to you. "MRS. L. B. M."

Many thanks for the suggestions to remedy the damage done to the paper by the rain. I wish the instructions had gone a little further and told exactly how stippling is to be done. By all means let us have the recipe [illegible] loaf. It will be welcome [illegible] it in the Corner for all [illegible]

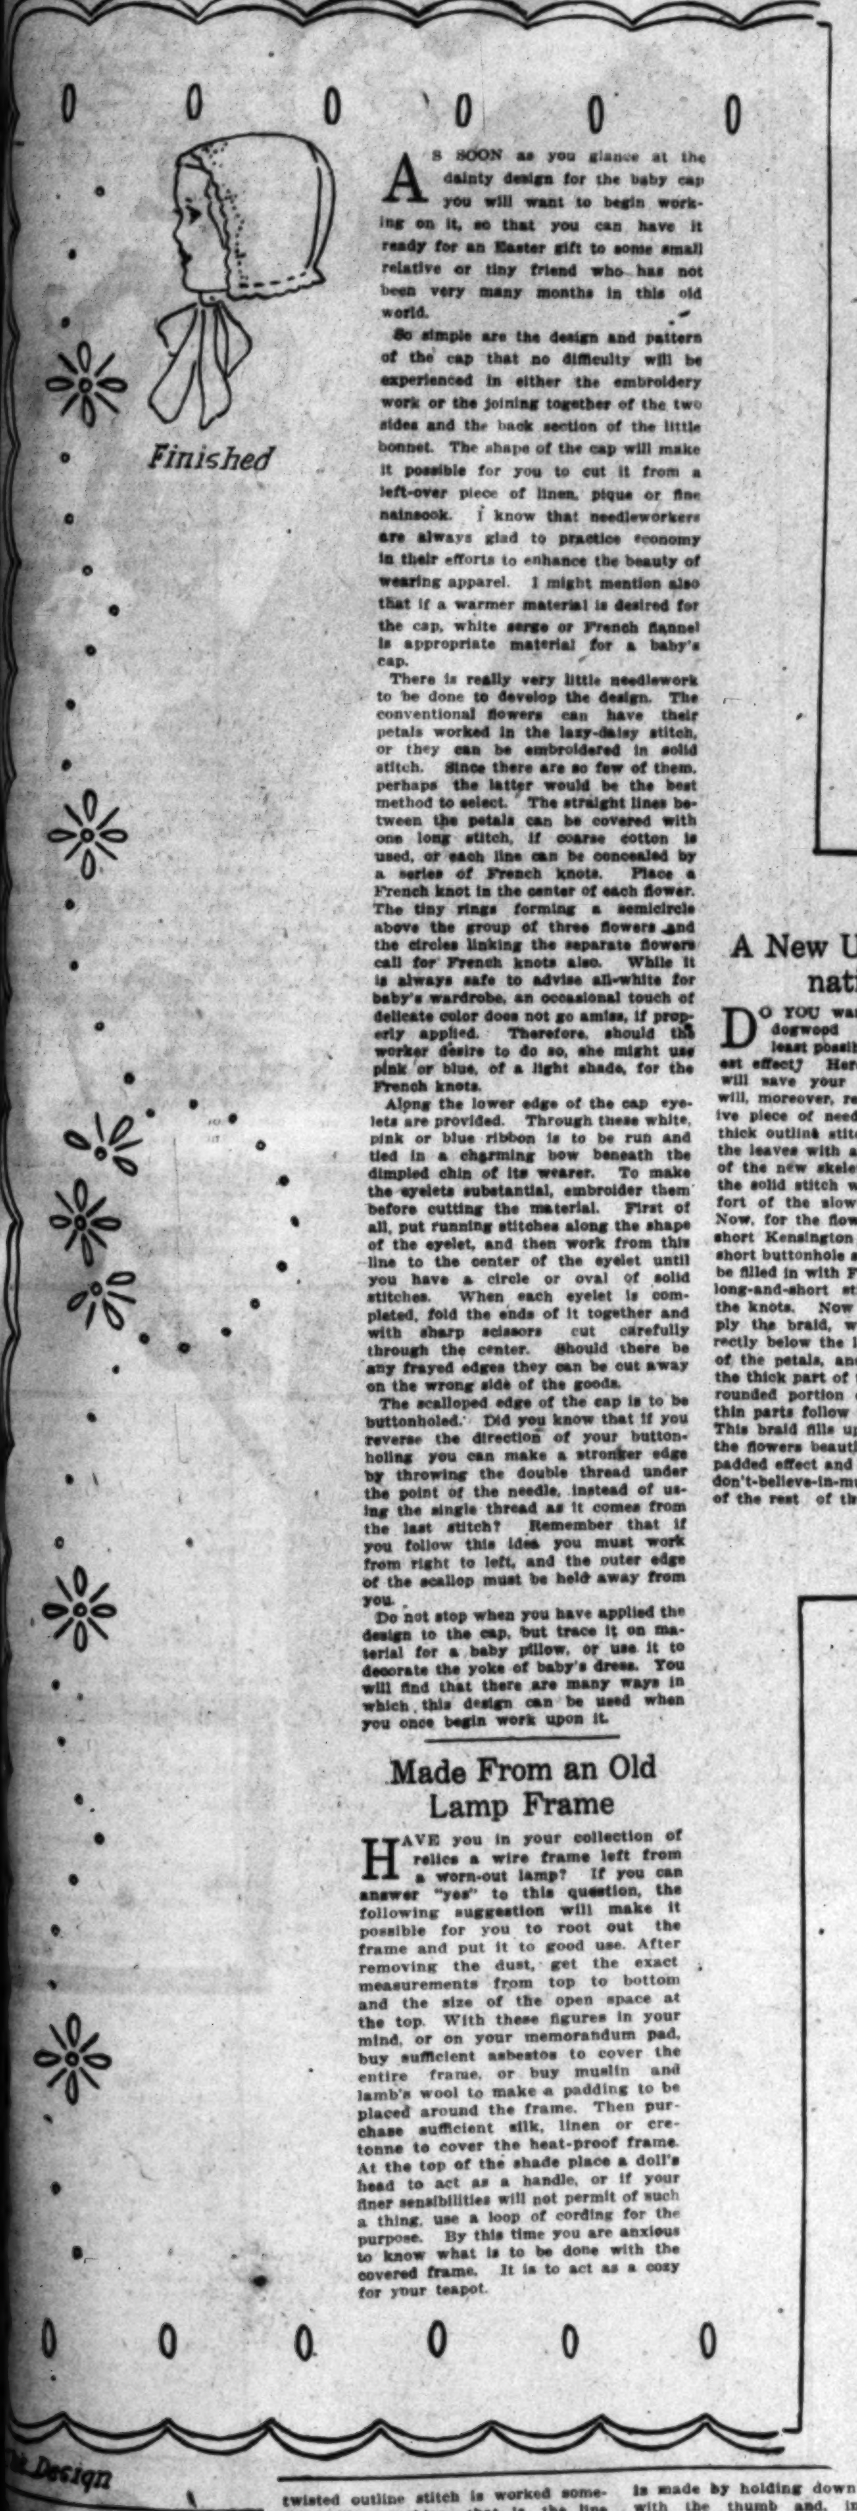
A CAP for the BABY

DESIGNED BY OLIVE G. HAUSLER.



Design

AS SOON as you glance at the dainty design for the baby cap you will want to begin working on it, so that you can have it ready for an Easter gift to some small relative or tiny friend who has not been very many months in this old world.

So simple are the design and pattern of the cap that no difficulty will be experienced in either the embroidery work or the joining together of the two sides and the back section of the little bonnet. The shape of the cap will make it possible for you to cut it from a left-over piece of linen, pique or fine nainsook. I know that needleworkers are always glad to practice economy in their efforts to enhance the beauty of wearing apparel. I might mention also that if a warmer material is desired for the cap, white serge or French flannel is appropriate material for a baby's cap.

There is really very little needlework to be done to develop the design. The conventional flowers can have their petals worked in the lazy-daisy stitch, or they can be embroidered in solid stitch. Since there are so few of them, perhaps the latter would be the best method to select. The straight lines between the petals can be covered with one long stitch, if coarse cotton is used, or each line can be concealed by a series of French knots. Place a French knot in the center of each flower. The tiny rings forming a semicircle above the group of three flowers and the circles linking the separate flowers call for French knots also. While it is always safe to advise all-white for baby's wardrobe, an occasional touch of delicate color does not go amiss, if properly applied. Therefore, should the worker desire to do so, she might use pink or blue, of a light shade, for the French knots.

Along the lower edge of the cap eyelets are provided. Through these white, pink or blue ribbon is to be run and tied in a charming bow beneath the dimpled chin of its wearer. To make the eyelets substantial, embroider them before cutting the material. First of all, put running stitches along the shape of the eyelet, and then work from this line to the center of the eyelet until you have a circle or oval of solid stitches. When each eyelet is completed, fold the ends of it together and with sharp scissors cut carefully through the center. Should there be any frayed edges they can be cut away on the wrong side of the goods.

The scalloped edge of the cap is to be buttonholed. Did you know that if you reverse the direction of your buttonholing you can make a stronger edge by throwing the double thread under the point of the needle, instead of using the single thread as it comes from the last stitch? Remember that if you follow this idea you must work from right to left, and the outer edge of the scallop must be held away from you.

Do not stop when you have applied the design to the cap, but trace it on material for a baby pillow, or use it to decorate the yoke of baby's dress. You will find that there are many ways in which this design can be used when you once begin work upon it.

Made From an Old Lamp Frame

HAVE you in your collection of relics a wire frame left from a worn-out lamp? If you can answer "yes" to this question, the following suggestion will make it possible for you to root out the frame and put it to good use. After removing the dust, get the exact measurements from top to bottom and the size of the open space at the top. With these figures in your mind, or on your memorandum pad, buy sufficient asbestos to cover the entire frame, or buy muslin and lamb's wool to make a padding to be placed around the frame. Then purchase sufficient silk, linen or cretonne to cover the heat-proof frame. At the top of the shade place a doll's head to act as a handle, or if your finer sensibilities will not permit of such a thing, use a loop of cording for the purpose. By this time you are anxious to know what is to be done with the covered frame. It is to act as a cozy for your teapot.

Outline Stitch and Its Variations

OULD you believe that there are at least thirteen variations of the simplest of embroidery stitches, the outline stitch? ould be just as well, now that calling for simple stitchery favor, to make the acquaintance of some of these varieties of the popular and indispensable stitch. When you slightly the stitch, bringing it at angles he line to be outlined, you have outline that is a trifle more than the simpler stitch. A twisted outline stitch is worked something like couching: that is, the line to be followed is run with rather closely run stitches, then a second thread is wound through these stitches on the right side of the material only. The cable stitch, though very easily done, is not so easily explained. When the thread and needle are brought to the surface of the goods, the thread is caught down with the left thumb, the needle is inserted at an angle at the right of the thread and brought out at the left of the thread. The knotted outline is a cable stitch with a longer space between the stitches or with the needle inserted straight from left to right instead of the angle. The chain stitch is made by holding down the thread with the thumb and, inserting the needle at the starting point, bringing it out a short distance directly below the point of its insertion and thus forming a loop. This is repeated, inserting the needle at the thread just inside the first loop. A zigzag chain stitch is a variation of this last stitch, and differs in the working only in placing the needle at angles first from left to right and then from right to left instead of the vertical stitch of the plain chain stitch. With these variations to work with the clever woman can obtain some very new and startling effects, the length of the stitch and the size of the thread making still further variations on the outline stitch itself.

An All-Ribbon Boudoir Cap

YOU will not need a bit of lace to make this pretty cap, unless, of course, you wish it extra frilly and dainty. On the next shopping trip buy three-quarters of a yard of soft blue satin ribbon, about five inches wide, three yards of three-quarters-of-an-inch-wide ribbon of the same color and a piece of baby ribbon also in the light-blue shade. You will need a small piece of soft muslin or china silk for lining, but your piecebag will probably supply this remnant. Now you are going to fashion a rather close-fitting cap not unlike a turban, but one that will not cock coquettishly over one eye; rather will it cover the entire coiffure and form a soft frame for a pretty face. For the center of the crown you will weave back and forth eighteen strips of the middle-width ribbon, each strip being about six inches long, just like the paper mats you were so proud of in kindergarten days. The wide ribbon is sewed loosely into this—you would hardly call it gathered—and joined at the center-back with a very inconspicuous seam. Now, with the narrowest ribbon, you make a dainty quilling by running a gathering thread directly through the center with tiny even stitches and pulling this thread until the ribbon is comfortably full. Do not have the tiny frilling too scanty looking, nor do not make it awkwardly full; use your judgment. Now, with the gathered frilling outline the joining of the edge and the center crown, also the whole edge of the cap itself, in little curlicues like a succession of the script letter E. In the center of each small loop place a wee pink rosebud, either the artificial kind used in millinery or fancy work or some of your own creation, fashioned of folds of very narrow ribbon. There will be a short piece of the middle-width ribbon left, with which you may add two short tails a la Glengarry or Tipperary or coquettish chin ribbons, to hold the dainty all-concealing bonnet in place. To line the cap, cut the muslin in two pieces and shape exactly like the outer ribbon, slip-stitching it carefully but securely around the bottom. A pretty variation of this idea would be to weave two shades of blue ribbon for the center crown, using a lighter shade for frilling about the edge.

A Novel Bath Mat

WE HAVE all become so accustomed to accepting the Turkish bath mat as the regulation thing that it is a positive relief to see the shops exploiting something new in this indispensable household commodity. This newest venture into realms of unusual needlework is a bath mat worked in colors upon what might be described as huck toweling disguised as a natural-colored, heavy, linen basket-weave cloth. It is not very large, but of a size sufficient to cover the tile or wooden floor in front of the usual size bathtub. There is a border on this rug formed by a darning stitch done with blue cotton. In the center there is a large oblong containing the enlightening words "Bath Mat" worked out in the same blue cotton. Between the border and the oblong portion there is a curious blending of colors in the same darning or weaving stitch, except that the stitches run only one way. The rug is finished at both ends with an ornamental linen braid. The whole effect is of a rug woven with rich colors on a putty-colored ground.

For a blue-and-white bathroom, try treating a heavy piece of white huck toweling in this same manner, but with all-blue cotton, and you will not be disappointed in the result.

A New Use for Coronation Braid

DO YOU want to work that large dogwood centerpiece with the least possible effort and the greatest effect? Here is a suggestion that will save your time and nerves and will, moreover, result in a very attractive piece of needlework. Use a heavy thick outline stitch for the stems. Fill the leaves with a darning stitch or one of the new skeleton stitches, that give the solid stitch without the time or effort of the slow-working satin stitch. Now, for the flowers, use the long-and-short Kensington stitch or a long-and-short buttonhole stitch. The center will be filled in with French knots and a few long-and-short stitches radiating from the knots. Now you are ready to apply the braid, which is sewed on directly below the long-and-short stitches of the petals, and in such a way that the thick part of the braid comes at the rounded portion of the petal and the thin parts follow the sides of the petal. This braid fills up the empty spaces of the flowers beautifully, giving a raised, padded effect and relieving the flat, "I-don't-believe-in-much-work" appearance of the rest of the centerpiece.

In Place of the Nursery Bib

AWAY with the bib, and its naughty strings that will knot or the buttons that will not button! Here is the dearest little eating apron that ever covered dainty ruffles or Dickens suits, and when mother realizes what a very simple matter the making of such an apron can be, she will hasten to fashion one for the littlest girl or boy in the nursery. A Turkish towel, or a simple huck affair, can be turned with a snip of the scissors and a few stitches into a comfortable, easily managed apron. At about two-thirds of the length of the towel cut a hole large enough for the little head to slip through. Bind this with tape, or scallop it if you wish a little extra fanciness. The shorter side is then gathered or pleated into a belt, made from wide tape or a piece of old toweling, which passes around to the front and holds the apron in place. Cross-stitch may make the little apron still more attractive, especially if the design be the favorite nursery chicks, bunnies or kittens. While the linen or huck toweling is prettier, the Turkish toweling is really more practical because of its absorbent qualities. It saves crying over spilt milk.

Unusual Linen Pillows

IF YOU are a lover of the bizarre and unusual in household furnishings, and a practical economist as well, you will relish the suggestion for making use of the soft-colored linen patches that lurk in the dark corners of every patch-box. The most novel arts and crafty cushion tops that ever graced the wicker chairs of lawn or veranda are being evolved from these linen scraps. They cover all sorts and shapes of pillows, from the ridiculous little sausage-shaped affair, just the thing to slip under the neck or the crook of the back, to the comfortable oval-shaped cushion. A small, round pillow is covered with a grayish-lavender dress linen. At the center is a round cluny or torchon lace doily, secured under a flat linen button. This pillow is edged with a torchon lace, and looks even daintier than it sounds. A dull-blue linen, just the same shade as that faded-looking morning dress you wore last summer, is oval-shaped. Diagonally across the top is a band of gray linen, edged on either side with bias strips of dull green. On this gray band is poised a new genus of artificial flowers; namely, the linen rose. These curious roses are cleverly fashioned from folded scraps of various dull shades of rose, lavender and blue linen, with flat, green leaves and stems. Though this one pillow combines at least five different colors, the entire effect is far from being gaudy or even gay. This same rose treatment is used on a third cushion, with a band of wide cluny lace in place of the green line diagonal. Your own patches may yield even stranger combinations than these described, and the pleasure of creating your own models will be in proportion to the added attractiveness of your porch for busy mornings and drowsy afternoons.

Embroidery on Hats

THE woman who is fortunate enough to be able to do embroidery work so well that she can afford to wave it on high without a feeling of embarrassment will be grateful to know that the newest and highest-priced hats are given a chic touch by means of a few stitches.

An extremely smart mourning hat of dark blue straw has nothing more to trim it than a band of blue grosgrain ribbon which is tied in a pump bow at the back. From the bow fall two streamers which extend several inches over the brim. The ends of the streamers are embroidered in white and yellow French knots which form a group of three circles.

A charming hat, of fairly large dimensions, is of black tulle. The brim is made of two layers of tulle, the upper one having embroidered on it white daisies with yellow centers and a sufficient amount of green leaves to make the flowers look real. The same decoration is added to the lower layer.

On a brown straw hat which has a crown of satin there is a band of yellow velvet. The velvet has embroidered on it a wreath of circles, one linked over the other. In this instance the circles are merely outlined, but there is no reason why half of each circle should not be worked solid, with the other half filled in with French knots.

Keep your eyes open for hand touches which are really artistic, and see what you can do in the way of copying the suggestions that are truly worth while. The feeling of satisfaction which you enjoy when the work is finished will reimburse you for all your time and trouble.

Cretonne Sets

A NUMBER of readers are making plans for furnishing their summer homes. While selecting everything which will lend an air of coolness, these vacationists should not overlook the fact that luncheon sets of cretonne are very much the fad. The reader who decides to make a set for her home should select cretonne with a design carrying out the color of her china or the general color scheme of the dining room in which it is to be used. The beauty about this material used for such a purpose is that it requires no intricate stitches to give it beauty. The edge of the large centerpiece and the smaller doilies are scalloped and buttonholed, and that is all there is to the embroidering of the set. Women, fond of crocheted edges might crochet picot lace on to the edges of the various pieces.

For Needles and Pins

HERE at last is a pincushion that is really pretty! None of your ribbon-embroidered, ribbon-threaded eyeletness about this dainty accessory for the dressing table! It is exactly like the old-fashioned nosegay that is coming back to its own with hoops and flowered taffetas; but instead of the central posy there is tucked a wee, silk-covered cushion that will hold as many pins as any respectable, button-and-hook-sewing lady could use in a year. And such a simple little article to make. A small bran-filled cushion for the center, a stout wire run through this, then a ring of roses about the cushion, then a frill of fine lace—the frillier the better. The wire stems of the roses may be wound about the central wire, and the whole thing wound with pink ribbon or silver braid, a loop being left near the top for hanging on dressing table or bureau. Blue-headed pins in groups of five suggest an inner wreath of forget-me-nots on the pink cushion itself. Commencing operations with cushions about the size of a small walnut will result in the daintiest nosegays that, as favors for the shower luncheon, will prove both useful and attractive.

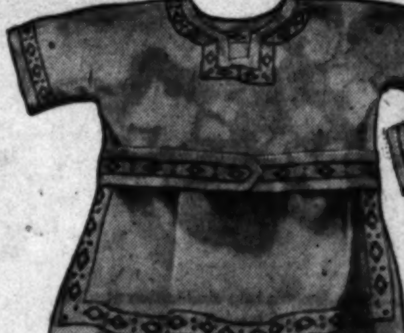
A Royal Bag

A VERY rich bag that can be used for a workbag, a theater bag or a vanity bag, depending upon the size, is made of royal-purple velvet and embroidered in gold thread. The bag is made with a flat circular bottom, to which the upper part of the bag is shirred. To the mouth of the bag, about an inch below the extreme edge, little gold-plated or gilt rings should be attached about an inch or an inch and a half apart. Through these a double cord of gilt is run. The bag itself is embroidered in a floral or more formal design composed entirely of the tinsel thread. This design may be as elaborate or as simple as you choose. Line the bag with satin of old-gold color, and you will have as rich a bag as a queen could wish, unless, of course, "18k" were used for the broidering. This bag makes a most acceptable gift for most feminine occasions.

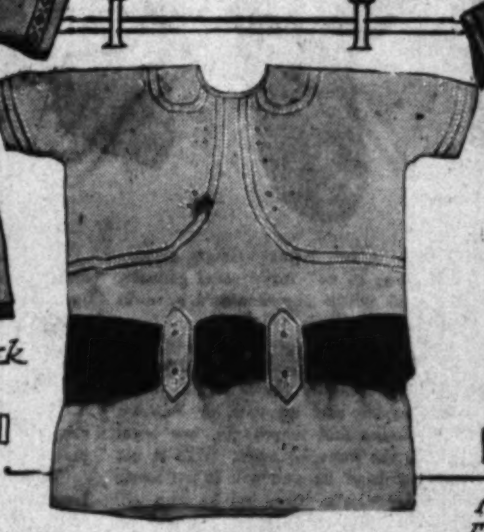
How to Transfer

PLACE a sheet of impression carbon paper between your fabric and the newspaper design, the latter on top. With a sharp pencil or a glass-pointed pen go over the outline. The design will be transferred to the material and will [illegible] until worked.

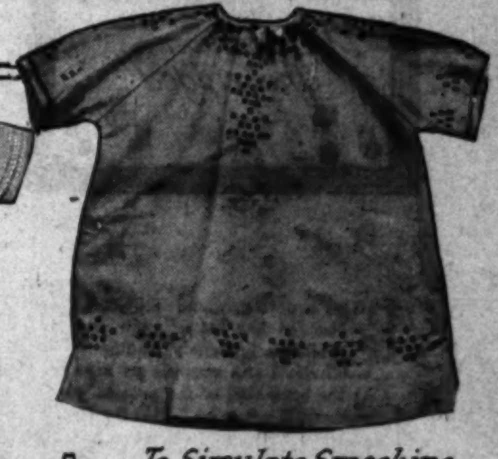
COLOR TOUCHES ON SMALL FROCKS



Attractive Bordered Frock



An Eton Effect



To Simulate Smocking

DEVOTEES of handwork on frocks for the wee tots are breaking away from the all-white idea and are using many popular stitches in bright colors. Indeed, the favorite cross-stitch would lose its effectiveness if worked in white on white. The materials used for the more severe embroidered dresses are a very fine cotton poplin, a cotton rep, pique and heavy linen. These frocks are usually cut over the kimono pattern, which is so comfortable for the growing youngster.

The eton effect in the poplin dress with the velvet sash is accomplished by two outlines of heavy embroidery. To make this heavy outline, a double row of the outline stitch is filled in with a diagonal stitch of a darker shade of mercerised cotton. The collar effect is arrived at in the same manner. Buttons and buttonholes are suggested in the same way by an outline of a lighter shade filled in with the darker cotton. The tabs that hold the sash in place are set on separately, although they may be actually embroidered on the goods and long slits worked on each side to allow the ribbon to be passed through. If the slits are worked in the frock it would be well to fortify them on the wrong side of the material with a facing of tape. This dress would be effective for the brown-eyed lassie if worked in shades of brown on natural-colored linen. Either brown or black velvet ribbon about four inches wide may be used for the sash which fastens in front with snap fasteners under a wide tailored bow. The frock opens in the back and the opening is secured with snap fasteners or "blind" buttons and buttonholes.

Of white rep is the frock with the cross-stitch design simulating the popular smocking. This model boasts of raglan sleeves set in with fine beading. The neck is slightly shirred and finished with a row of fine feather-stitching in color. The wide sleeves are finished also with the feather-stitching, and ornamented with small pyramid shaped groups of cross-stitch. The front of the dress and the top of the hem are treated with the same cross-stitch groups. This particular cross-stitch is peculiar in that it is a stitch upon a stitch or a small dark cross upon a larger cross of a lighter shade. The effect is heavier and more ornate and is also more in keeping with the smocking idea. The frock would delight some kiddie if made up in pink-and-white check gingham with two shades of pink embroidery. It can be cut in one piece over a kimono pattern, with the raglan sleeve effect only suggested by the beading, and may be slipped on over the head, the fullness at the neck being held in with an invisible tape or ribbon.

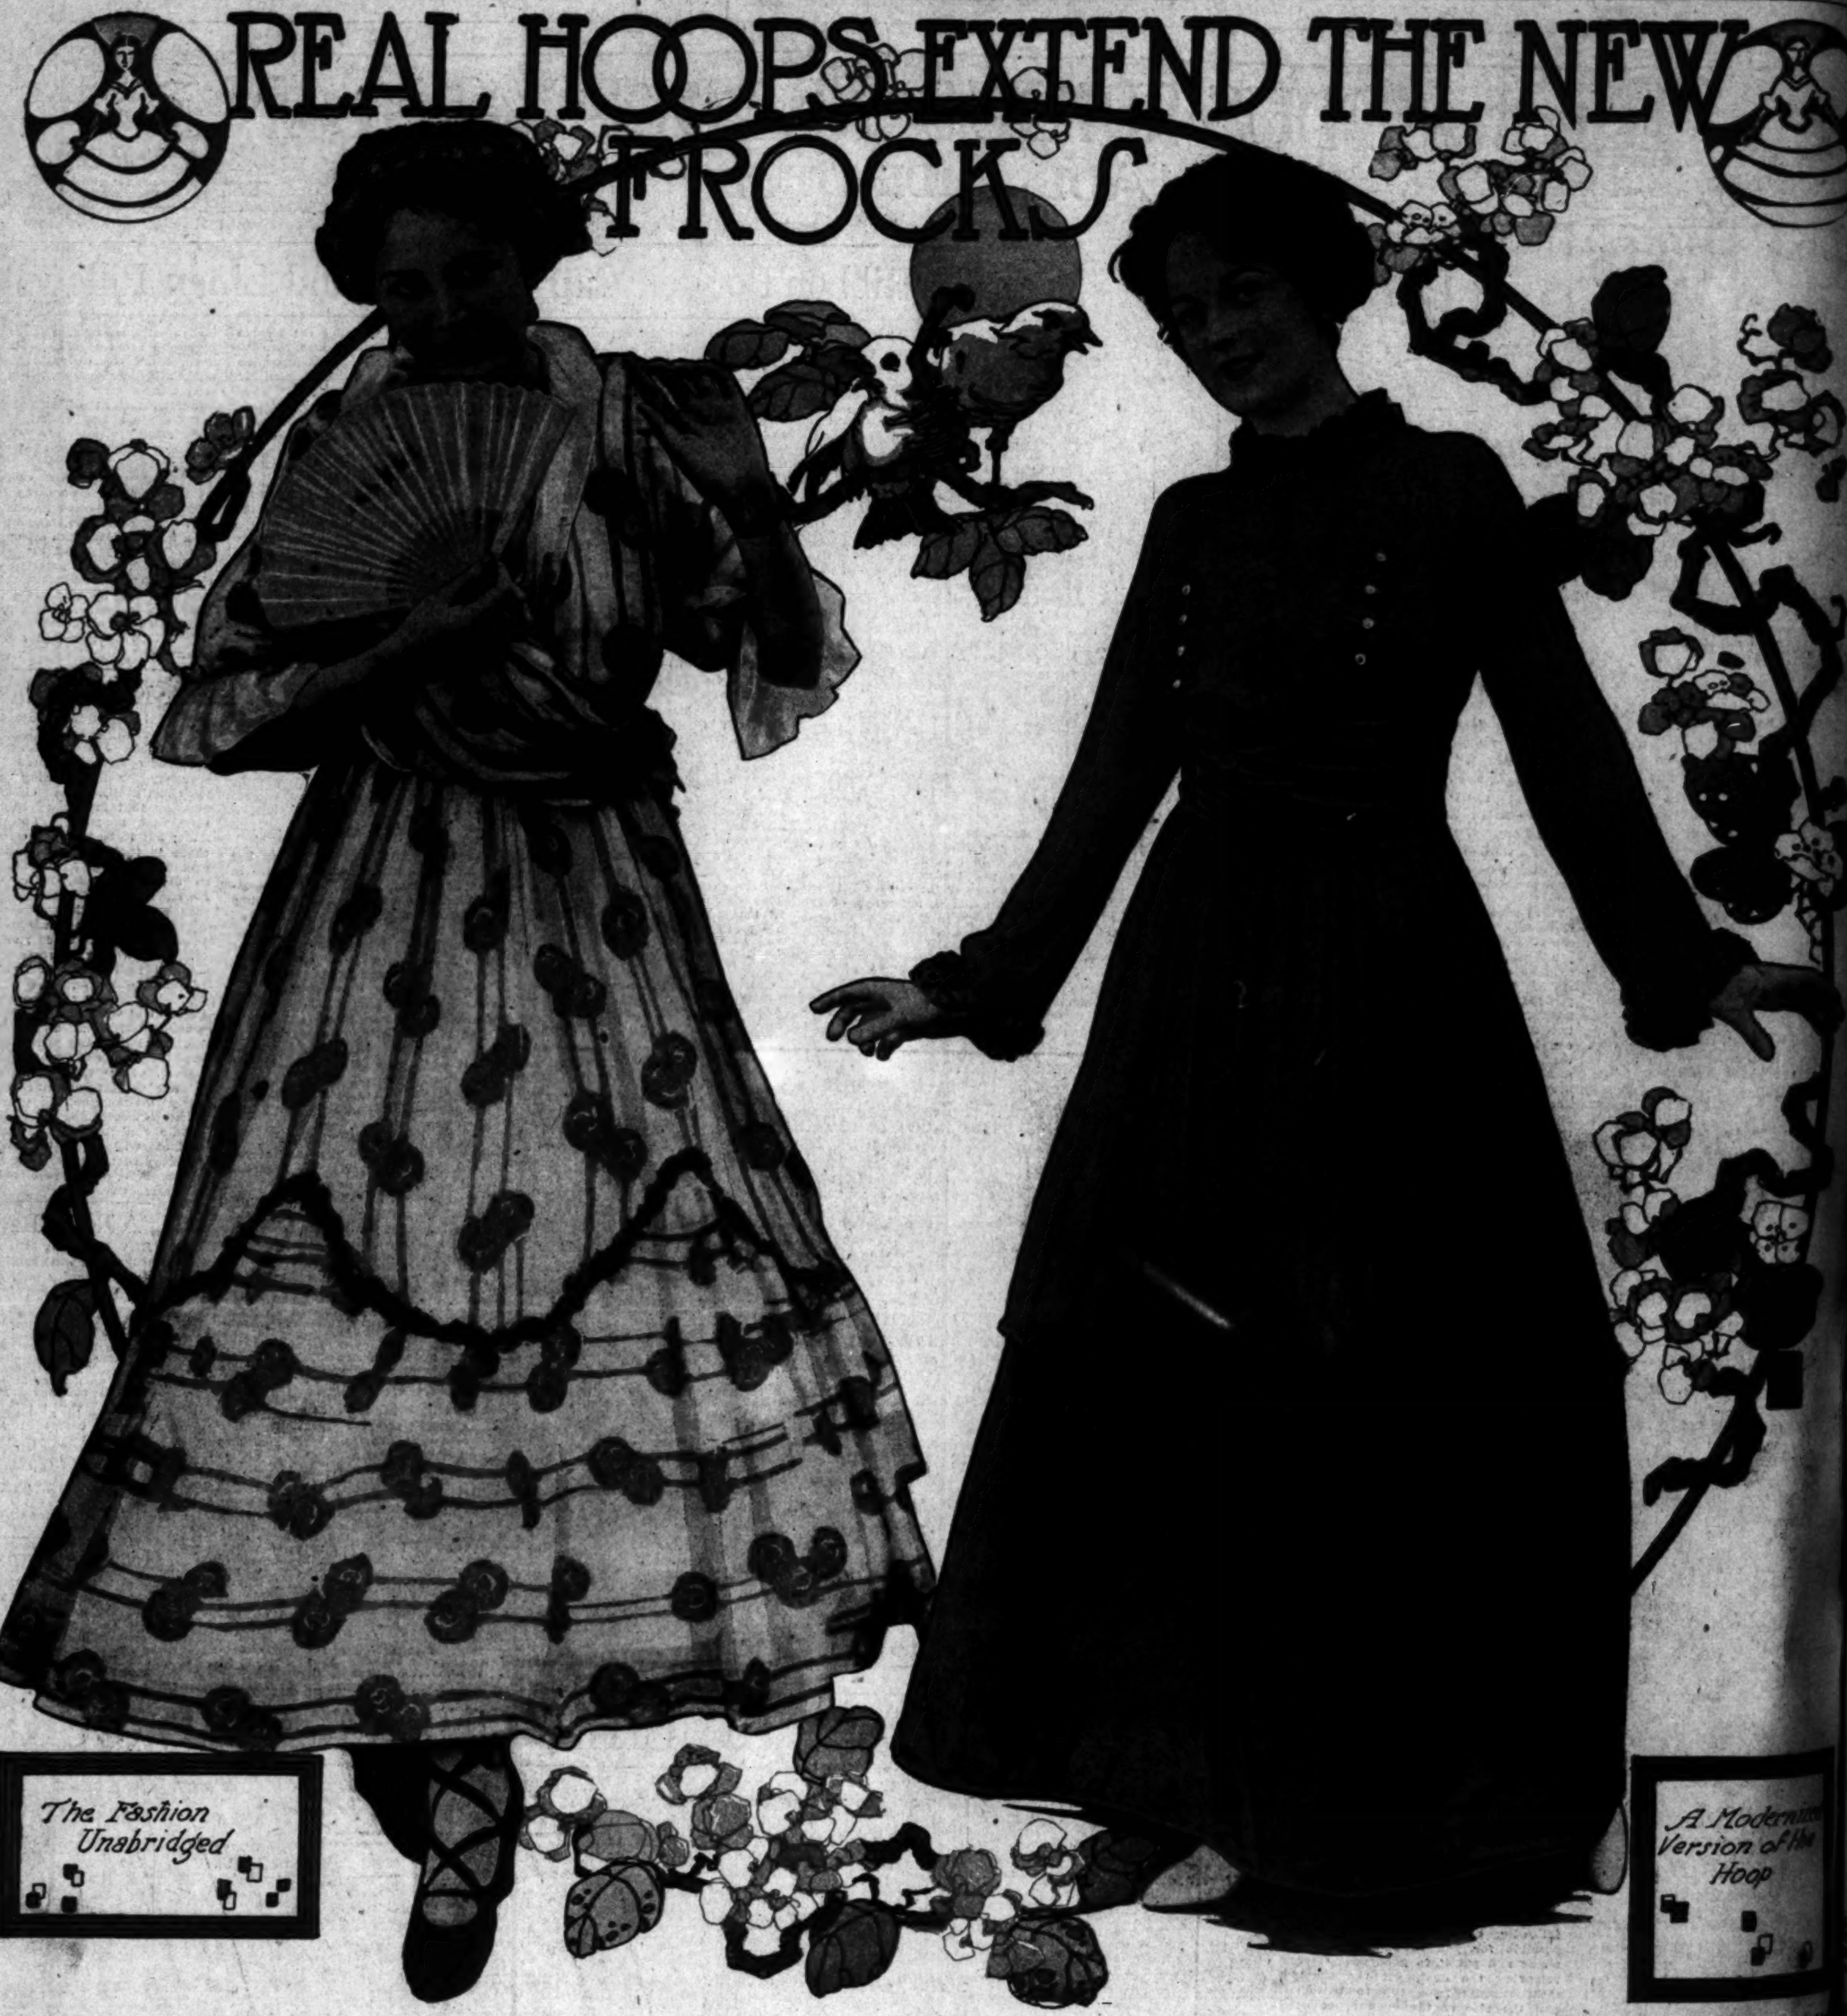
The bordered frock, also of poplin, reminds one of a miniature Roman toga. It would be especially charming worked out in two shades of blue cotton for the embroidered bands. You will see that there is a decided tunic effect formed by the border on the skirt. The belt is separate and held in place by two narrow straps of the material at the sides. The neck and sleeves are trimmed with the border, which is easily worked with simple running stitches in the two shades of blue. If you think the oddly shaped neck is likely to stretch out of shape you may embroider a small pointed tab to keep the two corners in place. This dress may be slipped on over the head or made with an opening in the back.

You are probably anxious by this time to experiment with that remnant of linen or gingham that you have been saving for a wee frock, so hunt up your colored cottons and kimono patterns; and if you have any doubts, we may be able to help you over your difficulties.

In Blue and White

HAVE you blue-and-white china? Then, of course, you need a blue-and-white centerpiece. Blue and white and black and white are the leading combinations of the season, so far as embroidery is concerned. The blue-and-white centerpiece may be one of various designs, but the quaintest and most attractive is the Dutch mill centerpiece in two shades of delft blue. If the centerpiece is large, four of these mills should be distributed at regular intervals about its edge. Add cluny lace to the piece, couching it on with the darker shade of blue, and you will have a charming addition to your set of blue-and-white china. If the centerpiece is large, by adding a half dozen plate doilies and four larger doilies for extra dishes, you will have a pretty little luncheon set.

REAL HOOPS EXTEND THE NEW FROCKS



The Fashion Unabridged
A Modernized Version of the Hoop

THEY are with us, and many of them are the real thing. What? Hoops, indeed! Fashion has been threatening "to hand them to us" for several seasons, doubtless humanely leading up to the point where she wouldn't have to blindfold and manacle us in order to present her little (?) gift.

At the beginning of the present year we had frocks that were timidly extended by slender millinery wire. This innovation met with so little objection that Fashion decided the psychological moment was nigh. Now she calmly shows us her hand. Hoopskirts are to be, for some of us, this late spring and summer, or Fashion will know the reason why. Certainly manufacturers and merchants, her loyal henchmen, will do all in their power to carry out the imperial edict. Will it not mean more material used, yards and yards and yards of it; and will it not mean a double amount of business for the staymaker, for who is there but he who will undertake to manufacture the detachable hoopskirt that may be worn under all gowns in the wardrobe—unless it be the basketmaker or a venturesome tinsmith? The undergarment manufacturer may also put a substantial finger into the pie, if Fashion's latest whim is carried out, as what could be more practical than the hooped silk petticoat of a color that would harmonize with several frocks?

How hoops ever came into civilization at all is a question. One historian declares they were found upon the feminine beauties of the South Sea islands, when those same beauties didn't happen to be classically unadorned; and this same historian gives a picture of a hooped and draped islander among her nude sisters, to back him up.

Car steps were lowered for the women who wore the recent tube skirts; and now shall we see doors widened for the entrance of the hoop? Will trains and trolleys be lengthened so that each car may contain more than six females? It is true that children could be tucked out of the way by gathering them, henlike, under cover. Gentlemen might be packed neatly, with their consent, upon the back and front platforms.

The question irrelevantly arises as to how the poet will describe his beloved's locomotion. She cannot glide, as in swaying draperies; she will hardly mince or trip, as in the tube skirt. Consequently, there is left but one thing for her to do; but will the poet, with all the license generally accorded to him, venture to say that his heart's desire "waddles"?

Yet, scoff as we will, we all come away from a theatrical of the civil war times in a tender little glow of approval for the quaintness of the 1860 fashions—now don't we? The description of the fashion gains little but ridicule, but the actual has about it a charm that is not to be denied, however inconvenient assure us that fashion is.

A beauty of wartimes declares, however, that the hoop was useful and had an excuse for being. Women in those days wore many petticoats. a drag upon them and also wrapped about their ankles, so as to render difficult. The hoop or the crinoline, whichever was used, held the skirts the body. The hoop also aided in giving one the appearance of being small waisted, a serious ambition at that time.

The pretty "unabridged" frock shown is of organdie in old-rose There is a foundation petticoat to the dress which contains two real hoops, the knees and one at the edge of the skirt. The silk-and-chiffon tion is very fortunate. Only one moderate-sized hoop is used at the top of the skirt bottom. Quilling upon the sleeves and stiff little bows give the hooped an added quaintness.
